ARCHWAY OF THE UNION STATION IN ST. PAUL FALLS ENDANGERING MANY LIVES

PRINCE OF WALES,
Who Represents His Father, King Edward, at the Quebec Celebration.

Ten Tons of Debris Are Scattered in Every Direction.

Cab Driver is Badly Cut While Warning Pedestrians.

Arch Weakened Under Strain of Heavy Electric Sign.

St. Paul, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The archway over the main entrance to the St. Paul union depot collapsed at 8:20 o'clock this morning, endangering the lives of twenty people and injuring one, A Kergan, a cabman. He was badly cut about the shoulders and arms, but his injuries are not serious.

The accident occurred when the station was well filled with passengers for the morning trains. Cabmen in the street before the entrance saw the arch giving way and warned those who were about to pass beneath it to stand back. Kergan was urging persons inside the station not to attempt to come out, when the arch fell, hurling brick and stone upon him.

At least ten tons of debris were hurled to the pavement, and the main entrance of the station is now completely blocked. Passengers are entering through the baggage room.

The arch had weakened under the strain of a large electric sign, which had been swung over the sidewalk as a feature of the illumination for the conclave of Shriners last week. Workmen were removing the sign this morning when the arch fell. None of the workmen was hurt.

AMERICANS VICTORIOUS

In Leading Events of Day in the Olympic Games.

Bacon Takes the Final in the 400-Metre Hurdle.

London, July 22.—The final in the 400 metre hurdle race was won by C. J. Bacon, Irish-American A. C. Harry L. Hillman, New York A. C., was second, and Treemer, United Kingdom, was third. The time of the winner was 55 seconds.

In the final of the running broad jump, F. C. Irons, Chicago A. A. did 24 feet 6½ inches, which is a new Olympic record.

G. S. Dole, Yale university, won the final in the catch-as-catch-can wrestling match, defeating Slim, England.

London, July 22.—This is the first really fine day since the opening of the Olympic games, and the officials at the stadium looked for an attendance exceeding that of any previous day except Saturday. The fine weather today is particularly fortunate, as the final in the 100-meter dash, in which the public takes the greatest interest, is on the program. It should be a great contest, as every man qualified for the final is an exceedingly fine sprinter. Those who qualified are: R. E Walker, South Africa; R. Kerr, Sanada, and F. A. Rector and N. J. Cartmell, America.

The experts are wary about attempting to pick the winner of this event, although most of them predict that it will be either Rector or Kerr

Another final to be run off today is in the 400-meter hurdle race, in which Hillman and Bacon of the American teams have opposed to them, Burton

HERBERT WILL SUPPORT BRYAN

Former Secretary of the Navy Discusses Campaign Issues.

New York, July 22.—In a dispatch from Fort Carling, Ont., Hilary A. Herbert, who was secretary of the navy in President Cleveland's cabinet, says:

"Mr. Bryan was not my choice, but he and Kern are both able and clean and they are the undoubted choice of the Democracy.

I do not approve everything in the Denver platform, but it is infinitely preferable to the Republican platform, and Bryan and Kern will receive my hearty support.

"If the contest ought to turn on tariff reform and fair elections, now is the time, now the opportunity, for the old fight over again between the people and the protected interests.

"Mr. Roosevelt has blazed the way he saw soon after he came into office that the rapid growth and infinite multiplication of trusts and combines, fast following the passage of the Dingley law, robbing the people by arbitrarily raising prices, would be laid at the door of the party that passed that act. Logically he should have assaulted the law, but that he either cared not or dared not to do, yet he was brave enough to show up the iniquity of the trusts in messages and speeches and to pursue them in the courts until they spoke of him througn the press as a crazy Anarchist.

"Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt by pursuing this course has saved his party. That certainly was his purpose, but possibly Mr. Roosevelt has failed in this end, and he certainly has if the people can only be made to see that the trusts have been robbing the people, just as the president says they have, and further that these trusts, thriving under prosecution through the courts, have their citadel in the Dingley law.

"Let the people further understand that there is no free silver law issue, and it is not anarchy to insist on fair tariff laws. Then let us declare that we will have published to the world an account of all contributions to our election funds, not after election, but before, and not only an account of moneys received by some one person called treasurer of a national committee, but by all treasurers everywhere. Pushing these issues to the front the Democrats ought to win."

ROBBERY AND MURDER.

James Ryther Believed to Have Been Killed for Money.

Rochester, Minn., July 22.—That James Ryther of Pleasant Grove, whose body was found in Little Cannon river at Cannon Falls, was beaten insensible, robbed and then thrown into the river, is the opinion of the coroner at Pleasant Grove. A girl who claims to have seen the act and to have suffered at the hands of the murderer, has been found, but there is no knowledge as to the perpetrator of the act.

The body remained in the river several days before discovery, and then was held in the morgue at Cannon Falls for identification, and finally was buried. A letter, barely legible, was found in the pocket of the water-soiled clothes which disclosed the name of Mrs. James Scanlon of Elko Minn.

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS HOLD STATE CONVENTION TO FRAME A PLATFORM

BISHOP H. C. POTTER,
Eminent Churchman of the Episcopal Denomination, Who Died Tuesday.

Will Also Nominate Candidates for the Primaries.

Opposing Parties Flayed by Temporary Chairman Melvin A. Hoyt.

The Resolutions Will Ratify the National Platform.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22.—The Democratic state convention was called to order at the Alhambra theater this afternoon by State Chairman H. H. Manson, who, after reading the call, made the announcement of the selection of Melvin A. Hoyt as temporary chairman.

Mr. Hoyt immediately began the delivery of a lengthy speech, in which he flayed the opposing parties. In closing, he paid a warm tribute to the Democratic presidential candidate, William J. Bryan., Mr. Hoyt said, in part:

"The Republican party, the party of special privilege and paternalism, the party that has created the trusts and monopolies that have throttled and are throttling competition, despite the fact that the trusts have been 'busted' by an acrobatic and spectacular trust-buster, and are still seeking to drive the smaller and independent dealers and traders from business in the land in all lines into ruin and the already over-filled ranks of employes; that 'grand old party, that affects to legislate good crops and high wages, now again in the arena offering the voters of the country a professed, ponderous and insistent tariff revisionist as a nominee for president, and a high protective tariff standpatter of the very pattest variety as a nominee for vice president, with the blighting after affects of a bank picnic thrown in as a sweetener to prove that it is a simon pure author of certain prosperity, if the voters will only select the combination headed both ways.

"If the voters of this country do not perform an operation upon the party of bunkoism, flim-flam and misrepresentation of the big stick and steam roller, of the now-you-see-it and now-you-do-not-see-it style of presenting issues and candidates to them for their suffrages, by the removal of not only all its gallstones, but also of its head and vital organs, then they deserve not only to pay tribute enormously but with every increasing

RESERVES TO VISIT PORTS

Sailor Boys to Call at All Harbors on Great Lakes.

Chicago, July 22.—Plans for opening the new United States naval reserve training station at Lake Bluff and for the annual squadron cruise on the great lakes of the several United States training ships were discussed at a dinner given last night by Capt. W. F. Purdy, commanding the Illinois Naval reserves, in honor of Capt. George White, commanding the U. S. S. Wolverine.

Paymaster Rose of the new station said the barracks would be ready for 1,500 men by next summer and for 2,500 by the fall of 1909.

Capt. White said the coming cruise of the training ships would be of great service to the reserves.

"We shall touch in our cruises every harbor of the great lakes, the Canadian ports, and go almost to the Atlantic ocean," he said.

Newport, R. I., July 22.—The president's yacht Mayflower, with the president on board in a dense fog last night, ran into and sunk the lumber laden schooned Menawa. EVANGELISM IS CRITICISED

Professor Compares Modern Methods to Cure for Drunkenness.

Chicago, July 22.—Prof. Albert G. Coe of the Northwestern university criticizes modern evangelism as a means of conversion and compares it to a well known "cure" for confirmed drunkards. Writing in the American Journal of Theology, issued from the University of Chicago press last evening, the professor says:

"In the first place, there is a prima facie ground for defending the use in certain cases of evangelistic methods that look toward sudden and profound upheavals of the mind. But, in the second place, there is imperative ground for the careful elimination of such methods and for the general use of methods that look to more deliberate and controlled reactions.

"Confirmed drunkards as a class present a field in which the former method seems to be justified. The reason therefor is found in the same traits of the drunkard's mind that enable specialists in nervous diseases to overcome the drink habit by suggestion."

Prof. Coe declares also that there is being developed a religious quackery. He writes "Wise religious leaders and workers take advantage of the ascertained facts, perceiving that increased knowledge brings increased power to influence men. Unwise leaders and workers shun such knowledge and as a consequence there is growing up a religious quackery parallel to the quackery that practices medicine, but refuses to be guided by medical science."

JUDGES ARE UNANIMOUS

District Court Verdict Reversed by the Court of Appeals.

Another Trial to be Had in Accordance With Opinion.

Judge Grosscup Renders Decision and Other Judges Concur.

Chicago, July 22.—By unanimous opinion of the United States circuit court of appeals for the Seventh district the famous case of the government against the Standard Oil company, in which the latter was fined $29,240,000 by Judge Landis in the district court must be re-tried.

This opinion concurred in by Judges Baker and Seaman was delivered here today by Judge Grosscup, who wrote the opinion. The concluding sentence of the opinion reads:

"The judgment of the district court is reversed and the case remanded with instructions to grant a new trial, and proceed further in accordanco with this opinion."

The opinion begins with a brief statement of the manner in which the case was brought from the district court to the court of appeals. Section six of the interstate commerce act relating to the publishing and filing of rates is quoted, and the opinion continues:

"There are 169 assignments of errors taking up 67 pages of printed record. In view of the conclusion, however, to which we have come it is unnecessary to review many of the assignments—the ones reviewed covering all the propositions of law that we deem essential to the guidance of the district court in the event of a second trial. Comprehensively stated the assignments of error which we shall review, relate:

Assignment of Errors Reviewed.

First—To the view adopted by the trial court carried out in its rulings on the admission and exclusion of evidence, and embodied in its charge to the jury that a shipper can be convicted of accepting a concession from the lawful published rate, even though it is not shown as bearing on the matter of intent, that the shipper, at the time of accepting such concession, knew what the lawful published rate actually was.

Secondly—To the view adopted by the trial court that the number of offenses is the number of carloads of property transported, irrespective of whether each carload was the whole or the part only of a single transaction resulting in a shipment; and,

Thirdly—Whether, in the imposition of the fine named, the trial court abused the discretion vested in tho court.

We shall take up those subjects in the order stated, the first being: whether the shipper can, without error, be convicted of accepting a con-

St Paul, July 22.—The Minneapolis, Red Lake & Manitoba railroad company today served notice on the state railroad and warehouse commission that beginning Aug. 1 it would sharge a passenger fare of 3 cents a mile, thus ignoring the 2-cent fare law.

SEND FREIGHT BY BALLOON.

Company Organized for Cut Rate Airship Excursions.

Boston, Mass., July 22.—If the aspirations of the projectors of the American Aerial Navigation company are realized there will be cut rate excursions between Boston and New York and later on between New York and Chicago by the air route. Freight may be handled between the cities by balloon. Great possibilities for the no-dust and no-danger-of-collision lines are promised by the promoters, chief among whom is Charles J. Glidden, telephone expert, automobilist and balloon operator.

Glidden is so certain that the dirigible balloon has the elements of a successful means of transportation, that he has a Boston firm of lawyers preparing papers for the incorporation of the American Aerial Navigation company, with rights in United States, Canada and Mexico. The proposed company is to be organized with authority to manufacture and operate aerial devices of all kinds, and to establish routes for the transportation of passengers and freight.

The male members of the congregations immediately followed the preachers' lead and doffed their uncomfortable coats.

TAFT BANNER IS FLYING ONCE MORE.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., July 22.—High above the electric wires of the traction company the Taft banner, which met such an ignominious fate the night before the nomination of Mr. Bryan, was yesterday flung to the breeze. Mutilated and begrimed, the banner was stretched across the street in the same location from which it was said the Democrats had torn it from its moorings. From either side of it an American flag was hung as a mute warning that it would be protected against a repitition of vandalism. Hundreds of people watched the proceedings, many of them prophesying that the banner would be allowed to remain in its place until the close of the campaign.

RAILROADS

WILL REACH BUTTE SOON

Milwaukee Official Says Work is Progressing on Coast Extension.

Engineers Say Roads Will Reach Coast by January.

William B. Dixon, assistant general passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, is in Duluth today, having recently made an inspection trip over the coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Mr. Dixon states that the work on the coast extension is being pushed as rapidly as possible. At the present time there are approximately 2,000 laborers employed in the state of Montana, on the line of the C. M. & St. P. It is expected that the road will enter Bute within two weeks.

The completion of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul to the coast will have a local bearing, for, at the present time, the C. M. & St. P. has leased freight rights over the tracks of the Northern Pacific road. The lease in its terms practically amounts to the same object as if the Chicago line ran its tracks directly to this city. The road maintains an agent here and upon the completion of the new coast extension will route freight directly from Duluth to Seattle, the coast terminus of the new transcontinental line.

Just what effect upon freight rates the completion of the new line will have, Mr. Dixon did not state. However, it will make added competition, not only from Minnesota territory, but also from the Chicago territory. The Burlington, besides the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific will feel the effect of the entry of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul into Seattle.

Work upon the tunnel east of Butte has been retarded because of the encountering of a foreign substance in the rock boring. At the present time the trains of the road are being sent as far west as Lombard, Mont.

Mr. Dixon says the line of the extension penetrates one of the most fertile sections of Montana. There is a rich farming country contiguous to the new line, while further to the west the road enters a country rich in possibilities. Mr. Dixon is enthusiastic over what he saw upon his recent trip and believes that the Milwaukee will enter Seattle shortly after the first of the year.

ROADS WILL RAISE RATES

Statement That General Increase of Freight Tariffs is Planned.

Advices received from Chicago this morning are to the effect that the railroads will place into operation an increase of freight rates within the near future.

The advices state that the increase will not be horizontal, but will nevertheless be comprehensive in their inclusion of commodities. Coal, it is said, will not be included in the general increase of freight tariffs.

It is known that the railroads have shown an increased gross earning for the first week in the present month over a corresponding period of June. Yet the basis for the increase of freight rates is based upon the plea that the railroads of the country are not making a substantial, or rather a reasonable margin of profit over and above operating expenses.

Some time ago, during the winter months, when the railroads of the country threatened to increase the freight rates, the shippers of this state took some preliminary measures looking toward the organization of opposition to the efforts of the railroads to increase general rates. Shipping associations in other states also began preparations to combat any effort of the railroads to place increased tariffs in effect.

Just what action will be taken by the shippers of this and other states, in the light of the announcement of a general increase in freight rates, is problematical. It is certain that the efforts of the roads toward increasing rates will meet with vigorous opposition from both shipping and commercial associations. The railroad and warehouse associations of the various states may be invoked in the effort to combat the move of the railroads.

The roads have long employed legal counsel in an effort to determine how they can construe, or avoid certain restrictions in the matter of preventing rate increases. The statement that the railroads intend increasing the rate would imply that they have reached some conclusion as to how the matter of increasing tariffs can be carried out.

HEARING CONTINUED.

Testimony Taken in Condemnation Proceedings for Soo Entry.

The hearing in the condemnation proceedings to secure right of way entrance of the Soo railroad to this city was continued this morning. C. E. Wales, of the Pittsburg Coal company; W. B. Patton, chief engineer of the Duluth & Thunder Bay railroad; W. M. Crindle, and Chief Engineer Green of the Soo testified before the commissioners.

The tenor of the testimony was to the effect that the value of the ten acres, of which the Soo road would use part in securing right of way, was about $25,000. The officials of the Northern Pacific testified as to this tract being valued at $250,000.

The testimony given this morning tended to show that the land desired for a right of way is valued at approximately 30 cents a square foot, while the testimony given at previous hearings placed the value of the land desired at 50 cents a square foot.

The previous testimony, also, was to the effect that the Soo right of way on the tract should be valued at 70 per cent of the total value of the entire tract. The testimony given this morning valued the land desired at approximately $34,000.

Another hearing will be held tomorrow morning.

Business Good.

Officials of the Northern Pacific state that the present passenger business of that road out of Duluth is the greatest in the history of the road. Just at the present time the Pacific coast and Yellowstone National Park business of the road is very heavy.

So heavy are the ticket sales of the Duluth office that it has been found necessary to secure additional help in the ticket force. The Great Northern is also doing a very heavy passenger business to the Pacific coast.

Rates Are Excessive.

Washington, July 22.—In the case of the Banner Milling company and others against the New York Central Railroad company and others, decided by the interstate commerce commission yesterday it was held that the present rates on flour and other grain produce from Buffalo to New York and New York points of -- cents per 100 pounds, 13 cents to Boston, and Boston points, and 13½ cents to Sherbrooke points, are excessive; and that those rates ought not to add 10 cents to New York and New York points, 12 cents to Boston and Boston points, and 12½ cents to Sherbrooke points without undertaking to express an opinion upon any claim which may be hereafter made by the millers of Minneapolis, the commission holds that the relation in flour rates between these different localities which has for years existed, could not be disturbed.

Litigation Settled.

Judge Dibell, yesterday, issued an order discharging Robert S. Lerch from the receivership of the New York store, the litigation having been settled, all bills paid, and the business divided to the satisfaction of the parties. The litigation over the New York store started last January, H. H. Leury contending that Mr. Slabtosky had turned him out of the store, and instructed his clerks not to turn over any money resulting from sales, to him. The report of the receiver shows that the sale of the stock netted $2,126.50. After all bills were paid, there remained $625.50 for each of the partners. This has been paid, and the receivership is at an end.

Test Case Argued.

The case started by Whitney Wall to test the constitutionality of the $600,000 bond issue recently made for the new courthouse, which was appealed from Judge Cant's court, was argued in St. Paul before the supreme court on Monday, W. J. Stevenson representing the county, and Douglass Marion, appearing for Mr. Wall. The decision of the supreme court is expected during the first week in August. When the case was taken before Judge Cant, Mr. Stevenson entered a demurrer to the action, which was sustained by the court. An appeal followed.

Suit Over Photographs.

K. L. Fenney, commercial photographer, has brought suit in municipal court against F. Laurie for $3, covering the cost of some photograph plates, and $15 damages besides. Fenney claims that Laurie refused to give him from eighteen to twenty-four plates that belonged to Fenney, thereby causing the loss and damages asked for.

A Small Fire.

The fire department had a run this afternoon to the Clarendon hotel, corner of Garfield avenue and Superior street. A blaze started in the rear of the building, from unknown cause, but was extinguished before any particular damage was done.

PULLED WRONG CORD.

Gallant on Street Car Rings Up Numerous Fares.

One of the street railway conductors employed last evening on an extra car in the Woodland service, for the big fete, must have had an unpleasant surprised when he "cashed in" at the company's office. It seems that the conductor was new at the business, and was put out on a trailer on the extra service as the regular men were all busy..

A young lady passenger returning on the car from Woodland wanted to get off in a downtown residence district, but the car was crowded and she could not attract the conductor's attention. Noticing her predicament, a young man volunteered his assistance, reached for the bell cord, and began to ring vigorously, but the car did not stop. Again and again did the young man pull the cord and the other passengers, who surmised the trouble, began to smile, while the faces of the young woman and the young man began to redden with vexation and embarrassment.

It finally came to the young man that something was wrong, so he began pulling both bell cords and the car came to a stop. His preliminary exercise had been on the wrong cord and, instead of ringing the motorman's bell he had been ringing up fares.

FIVE PERSONS HURT IN FIRE AT ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, July 22.—Four men and a boy were hurt, two of them probably fatally, in a fire this morning in a South Second street boarding house. Two of them jumped from upper windows on finding themselves trapped in their rooms by the flames. Adam Klein, 68 years old, and Albert Trotwell, aged 40, were the most seriously injured.

CANADIAN PACIFIC R. R. SHOPMEN DISSATISFIED.

Winnipeg, Man., July 22.—The shopmen of the Canadian Pacific railway in Western Canada are dissatisfied with the recent findings of the conciliation board that investigated the matters in dispute between the company and the men, and today, T. McVety head of the mechanics in the shops in Western Canada, went to Chicago to consult with officials of the American Federation of Labor, with the view of securing assistance should a struggle result. Ten thousand men are affected.

FIRE BUGS AT WELLS.

Wells, Minn., July 22.—A fire of incendiary origin was started in a shed in the rear of Cander & Osdoba's hardware store Sunday evening, and by the prompt work of the fire department a serious conflagration was averted. Some oily waste taken from a journal of a nearby railroad car was used to kindle the fire in one corner of the shed. This makes the sixth fire within the past few months that has originated suspiciously in this town.

Origin of the Glove.

The origin of the glove can be traced to the farthest antiquity. On the monumens of the Pharaohs in Egypt there are represented among the tributes paid by the subjected people's gloves of the shape of the long suede worn by modern women. The ancients also knew the art of brewing, but their methods were crude when compared with our own modern methods. This is especially true with reference to the brewing of golden grain belt beer, which is brewed according to the most modern and approved methods and made from the best of nature's products. Have this delightful beverage on your home table and enjoy its benefits. Order Duluth Branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

SAWMILL SHUT DOWN.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the continued depressed condition of the lumber market, the sawmill of the C. V. McMillan company of Ootonagon has been shut down for an indefinite period. Operations at the logging camps were suspended some time ago. The company has a large stock of lumber on hand, and has practically withdrawn it from the market until prices improve.

PRISONERS WANT TO WORK.

Lincoln, Neb., July 22.—Prisoners in the Nebraska penitentiary, idle for more than a month, are begging and pleading for something to do. The state board of public lands and buildings held a meeting yesterday, but failed to provide tasks for the men. Recently the contract for the prison labor expired and the contractors refused to pay the increase of 25 cents a day per convict demanded by the state.

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS HOLD STATE CONVENTION

proportion to the interests, which, by their audacious methods in sending their representation to Chicago to write the special privilege planks of the Republican party platform, made a declaration equal to an assertion that the voters of this country are dashed fools and unfit for the opportunities of self government with which they have been endowed.

"The committee on resolutions of the Republican national convention ought to be indicted before the law for conspiracy against the American people in a continuing effort to maintain present cinches, and so as to construct a platform whose demands shall be sought to be embodied into the future public policy and law of the land, making it still lawful that the great body of consumers of this nation shall be held up and robbed, that a few privileged tariff boomers and trust magnates may financially further gorge themselves with immunity from any form of punishment for their acts of extortion.

> "It is up to the electors of this nation to votte that indictment next November, and, if they fail to do so, let them ever afterwards hold their peace about high prices of living and scarcity of jobs, and cheerfully accept the self-imposed servitude of the trusts.

"While I do not proclaim there is no need of a tariff in this, as in all nations, I do assert that the protective tariff—and mark the difference between the terms tariff and protective tariff—has outworn its welcome as an instrument by which, as claimed for it, the material prosperity and general progress of this nation may be secured and maintained.

"If there ever was a reason for the inauguration and continuation of a protective tariff in this country, which is denied, the time is long past when it could and should have been discontinued for the profit and justice to the citizenship that should underlie every form of government and especially that of self governments.

"Breathing the spirit of justice, of truth, of individualism, of equality before the law, and faith in the honesty and purposes of the people into the Democratic party, thus reviving and emancipating it from lethargy and doubt, and rescuing and recalling it to duty, William Jennings Bryan was nominated for the presidency on a platform constituting a veritable bill of human rights.

"It was a challenge to predatory wealth, which had sheltered itself in the security of the Republican party's indifference to the cry of the distressed, to mortal combat for the preservation of its special privileges.

"Nothing that Mr. Bryan could do could prove more amply his harmony with the purposes of fundamental Democracy or his fitness to occupy the high office of president of this country than the readiness, cheerfulness and ability with which he has accorded to President Roosevelt acclaim for the inauguration of demands and principles from Democratic platforms since he had no place in his own party to go to get them.

> "The Democratic party should be of good cheer. The sky is full of hopeful signs. The party has weathered many a defeat, and, like the drummer boy in the army of Napoleon, at the battle of Austerlitz, it has never been known to beat a retreat.

"There can be no retreat in the cause of inherent human rights. That is why the Democratic party has never retreated. Like the drummer boy it knows only to beat an advance. Just as sure as the party is true to that purpose, it will vindicate the truth, the inherent rights of individualism and the principle of 'equal rights to all, with special privileges to none,' on which ethics of Christian citizenship, as a party, it rests. This will come either by its own elevating to power or by forcing the party in power to apply them, just as President Roosevelt is doing now, lest he and his party perish on the fires of popular indignation."

Committees Announced.

At the conclusion of Mr. Hoyt's speech the various district chairmen announced the make-up of the various committees, after which an adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning.

A. J. Schmitz of Milwaukee, after a conference with his friends today, announced himself a candidate for governor, in opposition to J. A. Aylward of Madison.

Burt Williams of Ashland is the most prominently spoken of for second place. For secretary of state, T. J. Cunningham of Chippewa Falls is in the lead, Byron Barwig of Mayville and E. A. Evans of Baraboo are mentioned for state treasurer and attorney general respectively, and Henry Neuens of Sheboygan and Henry Fetzer of Sturgeon Bay will be presented for insurance commissioner.

There seems to be no doubt about H. H. Manson of Warsau being re-elected state chairman.

It is common gossip that the forthcoming platform will ratify the national platform adopted at Denver, and among other things, will criticize the Republican state administration for alleged extravagance in state expenditures.

KNIGHTS WILL INCORPORATE

Arrangements for Organizing Finnish Order Under Way at Meeting.

Certain changes in the ceremonies of the order, and also some rather important changes in the by-laws are being considered at the secret session of the supreme council of the Finnish order, the Knights of Kaleva, in session in Flaaten's hall today. John Jokisalo, president of the supreme order, and John Belt, founder of the order, arrived here yesterday and are in attendance at the secret session today.

Tomorrow, legal questions will come up. Arrangements will be made to incorporate the order by acts of legislature in the various states where it is represented, and an effort will be made to put it on a better business basis throughout.

Friday will come the election of officers and the selection of a meeting place for the supreme council for next year.

The delegates went to Joyland last evening to hear the Innes band and expressed themselves as highly delighted with the program. The entertainment part of the program, including a boulevard drive, and a trip around the harbor will not be commenced until Saturday morning, when the business has been completed, and when all the visitors, including the Copper country delegation have arrived in the city. A big banquet in Odd Fellows' hall Saturday evening will conclude this year's session of the supreme court.

DIRT FLYING ON ELKS' LOTS

Excavating for Local Lodge's New Building Has Started.

The old residence, which has for so many years occupied the lots adjoining the Board of Trade building, on West First street, where the Elks will erect their new temple, has been moved off the property and excavation has been started for the foundations.

The house was taken off the property yesterday afternoon and excavating began bright and early this morning. The Elks propose to erect their new home as quickly as possible to be comfortably ensconsed therein before the snow flies.

An important meeting of the building committee of the Duluth lodge, No. 133, will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock when plans for the new building will be gone over and different arrangements incvidental to its construction will be formulated.

DRY NOMINEE IS WELCOMED

Friends of Eugene Chafin, Candidate for Presidency, Greet Him.

East Troy, Wis., July 22.—Eugene W. Chafin, who was nominated for president of the United States by the Prohibition national convention, was given an informal reception by a large number of his old neighbors and friends. Mr. Chafin arrived at the old Chafin homestead, five miles northeast of here, Sunday and when the fact became known in this village preparations were made to congratulate him on his nomination as Prohibition candidate.

Over 100 from this village and about here assembled at the Chafin farm. Lawrence Clancy, an old schoolmate of Mr. Chafin, in a humorous speech said that the gathering was for the purpose of notifying Mr. Chafin of his nomination as Prohibition candidate for president. He also spoke of the times when "Gene" as a boy rode miles into Mukwonago and cut grass on Seymour Brooks' march with a dull scythe. These reminiscences were well remembered by Mr. Chafin.

Mr. Chafin expressed his pleasure at being so warmly congratulated by his home people. He said that the informal notification which he had just received pleased him more than would the formal announcement at Chicago next month. He told of his surprise at being nominated and how he happened to become the candidate for president. He spoke afterward of the fact that he was born five rods from the present tracks of the Milwaukee-East Troy interurban line. After his speech a social hour was enjoyed by all in greeting the candidate and personally congratulating him.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

Marshfield, Wis., July 22.—The mangled body of William Kneehmhall, aged 30 years, was found yesterday on the Central tracks in the big cut just west of this city. The supposition is that when returning to his work he was hit by a midnight passenger train. He leaves a wife and four children.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The topic of the town today was the subject of the "Woodland Plays," given last evening in Hunter's field before 1500 enthusiatic spectators. The scene of the play was one which Duluth people will not witness soon again. Hundreds of flaming torches and grotesque jack o' lanters lighted the eager visitors through the field and over a charming rustic bridge hung with pink cherry blossoms, and wistaria, into the most witching fairyland imaginable.

One had to stretch one's imagination, in order to recognize real flesh and blood Woodland girls in the white, marble-like statues that added so much to the attractive picture.

Red-cheeked Japanese maidens served tea in a cosy pagoda, and ambitious little merchants lustily shouted their wares—"popcorn, peanuts, and ice cream cones."

One of the most beautiful attractions on the grounds was the burning log heaped with brush that was so strangely reflected in the mirror of the lake. A lighthouse at one side of the water, seemed to quietly keep watch over the scene with its huge red eye.

The stage, with its hanging masses of cherry blossoms and wistaria, rustic seats and lanterns, resembled a beautiful portion of the land of flowers.

The first operetta was the well known children's fairy story—"Snow White." Miss Jessie Beatty played the title role in a manner which filled the children in the audience with the deepest pity for her mishaps, and admiration for her wonderful yellow locks and dainty white dress. The four little dwarfs convulsed their hearers with laughter at their queer sayings and actions.

Miss Maude Matteson played the cruel stepmother in a most realistic manner, singing several excellent solos in her part.

The "Flower of Yeddo," the feature of the evening, was most effectively produced.

The entrance of the chorus of sixty costumed girls and boys, each carrying a colored torch, made a brilliant scene.

The plot of the comedy was based on the temptations offered to Kami, the poet laureate, by Samara, whom he loves, and two of her friends. Miss Marie Erd did excellent work as Taiphoon, and Miss Mildred Washburn made an almost irresistible temptress. Miss Esther Coffin, as Samara, and Mr. George Hathaway, as Kami, took their parts exceptionally well.

The wrestling match was exceedingly funny and produced much laughter from the onlookers.

Charles O. Applehagen, as Ah Sin, won enthusiastic applause for his rendition of "Wistaria," in which the chorus joined.

The whole production reflected great credit on those who have worked so hard to make it a success—A. F. M. Custance, who directed the entire performance; Prof. Alletzhauser, who trained the dancers, and the Glen Avon ladies, upon whose shoulders the entire responsibility fell.

A matinee performance of the plays was given this afternoon before a large audience.

THE WHINING EVIL.

Causes Initation in the Home and Makes Querolous Old Women.

There are many snags in the course of matrimony, says the Detroit Journal, but none more difficult to overlook than whining. The woman who whines conjures up one of the causes that has dissolved many a friendship strained the patience of more than one husband and frequently led to permanent separation. Whining is infinitely worse than wholesome criticism, or a burst of temper, that expends itself, and in time clears the mental atmosphere.

Whining, once a woman gets the habit, is ceaseless. Instead of seeing the good in daily life, she dwells only on what is difficult or unpleasant, and instead of being thankful for what she has, she is wretched and complains because of what she lacks.

It is doubtful if the life of any person were ever precisely as she or he would have it. There is always something lacking, but that is no reason dwelt on. And there always is something pleasant, if only we will look for it.

The woman who whines, dwelling most upon the disappointments of the day, is the one who constantly loses a little more of that which was hers Even the most phlegmatic temperament cannot put up with hearing that kind of "talk" all the time, and no amount of persuasion will avail, and it gets to be merely a question of time when the whiner will find herself either entirely alone, or, what is worse, shut out from real companionship.

A husband who comes home at the end of the day tired, and usually nervously worn, is in no condition to be the recipient of fresh irritation, be it important or trivial. Many vital things concerning the household that are not pleasant must be told him, and these he expects to know; but for the trifles he should be spared. And it is keeping these from her mate that a sensible, happy-natured woman does, and has a lot more fun and ease because of it. With such a wife as a companion a man does not dread going home in the evening, because he knows there will be pleasant conversation; or, if something goes wrong it will be brought up in a matter-of-fact way and not with whines and complaints that, far from doing any good, only make existing conditions worse.

His impulse is not—like that of the husband of the woman who whines—to flee to places of refuge, and the woman who has fought the impulse to complain and fret, and who has been bright, even in difficulty, always gets her reward.

As a matter of fact, the woman who whines gets the worst of it from all directions. Other people either are bored by or dislike her. Her husband is irritated many times unnecessarily and she cannot help but know it. Her children declare, after a time, that "mother is always finding fault," and she becomes a dreaded creature, a querulous old woman, whose absence. not presence, brings joy. It is worth an honest effort to keep out of this habit, and the woman who finds herself among those who complain cannot take a start too quickly in the other direction.

Decrees of Fashion.

Very fetching are long limp skirts in Liberty stuffs bundled about the knees and ankles so that no breath is given here to the silhouette at all, and worn with knee-long tunic-shaped coats, over which sashes are draped about the waist, the coats being in heavy linen, in silk, or fine cloth. A sash accompanies many tailor gowns, either inside or outside the coat, says Vogue. Tussores, printed with quaint, old-fashioned bouquets, with cretonne designs for borders, or with Persian patterns are very smart, and blue and white printed Chinese cotton crepe is being used for summer gowns trimmed with bands of plain blue cotton crepe thickly soutached in white and stuffed with white cotton tassel. Long Arabian cloaks are made on thick white cotton crepe loaded with cotton tassels. A most stunning summer gown and coat is in coarse unbleached cotton cloth bordered with a large, undulating band in ecru cretonne printed in garlands of pink roses tied with Nattier blue linen, then by a blue soutache design, these successive stages of trimming decorating coat and wide sleeves, as well as the short skirt.

One of the fashionable weddings in London for which Paris dressmakers were kept busy, was entirely Greek, the bride in a draped gown of white satin embroidered in a Greek key design in seed pearls and with long points of the peplum hanging from the shoulders and weighted with pearl tassels. Her maids of honor wore white crepe gowns embroidered in silver that were very similar, save that they did not wear the shawl of fine white silk mull that draped the head in antique fashion, in place of the traditional veil. The pages, inevitable at an English wedding, wore Greek tunics in fine white cloth embroidered in pale blue Greek key design, and they wore myrtle chaplets on their heads, and sandals on their feet. I thought the bride's limp veil, swathing her head and shoulders and one arm, instead of the usual crisp, floating cascade of stiff tulle, a most beautiful idea and worth repeating.

Green grapes, small, sour and hard as marbles come high, bringing almost a cent apiece. Most of the fruit has risen in price. The pineapple season is about over, so that fruit calls for a higher price and the cantaloupes are much larger, a fact which partially explains the rise in that direction. The fish look very inviting and the sweet breads—my—but what a price!

MALARIA AND WEAK HEART

The following interesting story told by Mr. J. H. Riley, Pensioned Fireman of South Boston, Mass., is a sample of the thousands received from grateful men and women who have been benefited by the World's greatest tonic-stimulant.

In an interview, Mr. Riley said:

"I joined the Fire Department of South Boston in 1890, and was lately pensioned off because of a bad fall while in service, which telescoped my spine.

"A little over a year ago I was taken sick while in the engine house, and it developed into heart trouble and malaria. I went to a number of doctors and two different hospitals and went through a course of treatment from each, but I did not receive much benefit from any of them. The doctors would not let me go in swimming, nor smoke, nor drink anything but water. I stopped both tea and coffee. My case was getting very serious when a friend said to me: 'Why don't you get a bottle of Duffy's Malt Whiskey? I know a man who was given up for all time, and he took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and today he is as well a man as you can find.' So I commenced taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and the result is that the doctors now say that I am all right, and I never felt better in my life. Of course, I am very little good as far as heavy work is concerned, owing to my injury, but I am well, and that is a good thing to be able to say. I thank you for the remedy that put me on my feet again."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolute pure distillation of malted grain, great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

(Dose):—One teaspoonful in each glass of drinking water during the hot weather will kill all germs.

If weak and run down, take a teaspoonful four times a day in half a glass of milk or water. It stimulates the heart action, causes the blood to course more quickly through the veins, and builds new tissue.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is sold throughout the world by druggists, grocers and dealers, or shipped direct for $1.00 per bottle.

If in need of advice, write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a handsome illustrated, medical booklet containing some of the many thousands of gratifying letters received from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young, who have been cured and benefited by the use of the World's greatest medicine.

PICNIC WILL BE A WHOPPER

Grocery Stores Will Close Thursday for Annual Celebration.

If you did not lay in a stock of groceries to carry the family over tomorrow, there is likely to be a shortage in your food supply, for the grocers of the city will have their annual picnic Thursday, and all the stores will be closed. This is the one day of the year that the grocers have set aside for their own enjoyment and that of their families and clerks, and the public has always before accommodated itself to the situation.

Unless all signs fail, the picnic at Lincoln park tomorrow will be the biggest and best affair of the kind yet attempted by the dealers in foodstuffs. Plans have been made for entertainment of a big crowd, and the street railway company promise to provide plenty of cars on the lines to the western end of the city to handle the people. There will be no speech-making—just a good time—with a big program of sports and athletic contests, one of the features of which will be a ball game between the grocery clerks and deliverymen.

There will be all sorts of races for the men, women, girls and boys, and there are enough prizes offered to feed a dozen families all winter.

One of the events will be a bread baking contest. The rules require that nothing but Duluth Universal flour shall be used, and the judges will be disinterested experts on bread quality. The grocers will have a dance at the pavilion in the evening.

FINE OF $29,240,000 IMPOSED ON STANDARD OIL COMPANY SET ASIDE AND NEW TRIAL ORDERED

cession from a lawful published rate even though it is not shown, as bearing on the matter of intent, that the shipper, at the time of accepting such concession, knew what the lawful published rate actually was—a view of the law that is embodied in the charge and carried out in the ruling excluding certain proffered testimony, including that of one Edward Bogardus, who, being in absolute charge of the traffic affairs of the plaintiff in error during the period covered by the transaction, offered to testify that during that period he did not know anything about an 18-cent rate over the Alton railroad; that his attention had never been called to any such rate by any person or by the examination of any document, and that it was his understanding and belief, based on what he was told by one Hollands, tariff clerk for the Alton railroad, that the rate over the Alton road was 6 cents and that such rates had been filed with the interstate commerce commission.

Regarded 6 Cents as the Rate.

Hollands, who was called by the government, had previously testified that he had no recollection of telling Bogardus that the 6-cent rate (a commodity rate) had been filed with the interstate commerce commission. But answering on his voir dire, the jury being excused, Hollands further stated that he regarded 6 cents per 100 pounds as the oil rate between Whiting and East St. Louis, and that he regarded a certain application sheet, which covered Whiting at Chicago rates, and the sheet for Chicago, taken together, as showing a 6-cent commodity rate; that whenever he spoke of the rate on this commodity between Whiting and East St. Louis he had in mind those papers, and that if he had been asked by Bogardus or anybody else, whether there was a rate between Whiting and East St. Louis he would have answered that there was, and that it was filed, and that such rate was 6 cents, which evidence thus proffered was excluded by the court for the sole reason that, as a matter of fact, as the court (not the jury) found the fact to be, the application sheet containing this 6-cent commodity rate had not been filed with the interstate commerce commission. Had the court found as a fact that the sheet had been filed, or, submitting that question to the jury, had the jury found that that sheet had been so filed, the 6-cent rate given to Bogardus admittedly would have been the lawful published rate.

A Tariff on File.

The court relates that Bogardus was offered as a witness to prove that a tariff describing a rate of 6¼ cents from Whiting to East St. Louis was issued by the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad company, a competing line, Oct. 9, 1895, and filed with the interstate commerce commission two days later; that such tariff sheet was among the tariff files in possession of the plaintiff in error and that the latter, during the period named shipped thereunder a large number of cars of petroleum and products at said rate, and that such rate was equivalent to the shipper of the rate of 6 cents over the Alton, owing to a quarter of a cent terminal charges, all of which evidence was excluded, as was also the offer of the tariff sheet itself, produced from the files of the interstate commerce commission and an amendment thereto filed in April, 1903.

The opinion here quotes Judge Landis' charge to the jury, in which the district judge declared that to show that the defendant accepted a concession knowingly, it was not necessary to establish that the defendant had actual knowledge of the lawful rate.

Court Cannot Concur.

On this phase of the case the opinion of the court of appeals declares:

"In this interpretation of the interstate commerce law, so far as it relates to shippers, we cannot concur. The case cited by the government, such as those requiring liquor sellers at their peril to know whether the person to whom drink is sold is a minor or within the prohibition act or not, are not controlling, nor very persuasive. The interstate commerce act was intended to promote, not to restrain trade and commerce—to secure fair dealings in commerce through uniformity, not to put obstructions in the way of commerce. Surely, the farmer who brings his produce to town to be shipped to the city markets or the small merchant shipping to the country, or the householder, who ships his furniture, were not meant by the interstate commerce law to be guilty of having accepted a concession merely because they took the word of the carrier or his agent as to what the rate was. In this respect the shipper and carrier stand on different ground. The carrier is required by a separate provision of the law to establish and publish rates and is forbidden to charge or collect from the shipper a rate greater or less than such established and published rate. But in the ordinary shipper under any reasonable view of the situation to which the law relates thus bound—bound at his peril, under the law intended to promote commerce to cipher out before he can safely put anything that he has into commerce, all the confusing papers and figures that generally make up a tariff sheet? Plainly not, it seems to us."

In support of this contention the court cites "first, Bishop's new criminal law, section 286."

Do Not Take Word of Carrier.

Though it is true that large shippers like the plaintiff in error do not usually take the word of a carrier as to what the rate is, but examine for themselves the tariff sheet, and have all the knowledge that is necessary to an intelligent examination, from which it might easily follow that professions of ignorance on the part of such shippers would stand on a different plane from the ordinary shipper, it does not on that account follow that the ultimate question of intent is not the same, whether the shipper be a large one or a small one; for the law is the same for all shippers, and the duty devolving on the government is the same, viz.:

That before conviction there must be proof of all the facts upon which the shipper's offence is predicated. This view of what is essential to constitute the offense makes it plain that the trial court was in error as a matter of law in the application to the case of the shipper of the principles that the trial court applied in this case. And this error is made all the plainer, lifting it from what otherwise might be considered a mere technical error to the level of a real substantial error, when the exact nature of the so-called tariffs published and filed are relied upon by the government as the lawful rate are scrutinized; and when the rate that the trial court deciphered out of these papers is compared with admitted rates on the same road road for a like product. The tariff sheet relied upon as the lawful published rate filed with the interstate commerce commission is tariff sheet No. 24 of the Chicago & St. Louis Traffic association, and the first thing to be noted is that this tariff sheet makes no reference by name to petroleum or the products of petroleum.

No 18-Cent Rate Appears.

On the face of that tariff sheet no 18-cent rate for petroleum or the products of petroleum appears. The 18-cent rate was only arrived at by a process of certain circumlocutions; that is to say, on the face of these tariff sheets there was found a printed line, "Governed by Illinois classification except as noted herein;" then by turning to a classification adopted by the railroad and warehouse commission of Illinois Sept. 7, 1899, it was found that petroleum and its products were set down in the fifth class; and then by turning back to tariff sheet No. 24 it was found that the rate set down for the fifth class was 18 cents per one hundred pounds. And so out of this process of reference and cross reference the lawful published rate was evolved by the trial court to be 18 cents, not because it so appeared on the face of the tariff sheets, but because by reference to other sheets—sheets fixing, not rates but classifications, and that not by the interstate commerce commission or the carrier, but the Illinois railway commission—it could be so figured out.

The court remarks the number of nice judicial questions raised in the case and declares that the court is not prepared to say that tariff sheet No. 24 really fixes the rate on petroleum and its products at 18 cents. "The most we can say," the opinion reads, "that the question is one upon which judges after full discussion might very reasonably disagree."

The error of the trial court in taking away from the plaintiff in error its right to submit to the jury the whole question of whether it had knowledge of the tariff sheet from which it is said to have accepted a concession and therefore with intent to violate the law, whether the rate was paid in the honest belief that it was the lawful rate—is an error that rises into one of solid substance.

Taking the question as to whether each shipment constituted a separate offense by which interpretation of the law Judge Landis imposed the largest fine in the history on the Standard Oil company, the court has this to say:

Gist of the Offense.

"The gist of the offense is the acceptance of a concession irrespective of whether the property involved was carloads, train loads or pounds. Has a shipper fully and finally accepted a concession when he has done nothing more than to agree with the carrier that less than the published and filed rates shall be paid for the transportation of his property? Is it not necessary that the transaction be closed by actual payment of the lower rate? In the rebate the shipper paid in the first intsance the full rate to the carrier and afterwards received back a part. Manifestly the offense of accepting a rebate has not been committed until the shipper has taken back a part of the first money, whereby his property has been transported at less than the lawful rate. Proof that he agreed to accept a return of a part of the full rate—stopping there—would not support an indictment for accepting a rebate.

Agreement Not Binding.

Such an agreement is not binding, and at any time before its complete conclusion the shipper may repent and insist upon the carrier keeping the whole amount. The concession differs from the rebate only in this, that the concession the shipper, instead of paying the full rate and receiving back a part, merely settles for the difference. The result is the same—the property is transported for the same amount less than the lawful rate. And there is no basis in the statutes for holding in the case of accepting a concession, the transaction is consummated and the door of repentance is closed at any moment earlier than in the case of accepting a rebate. So proof that a shipper has agreed to accept a concession stopping there will not support an indictment for accepting a concession until the intended wrong becomes an accomplished fact.

"The number of offenses in the present case should have been ascertained in accordance with these principles. The measure adopted by the trial court was wholly arbitrary—had no basis in any intention or fixed rule discovered in the statutes. And no other way of measuring the number of offenses seems to have been given a thought either by the government or the trial court."

Question of Abuse.

As to whether Judge Landis, in imposing the monumental fine, abused the discretion vested in the court, the court opines:

"Briefly stated the reason for the trial court for imposing this sentence was because after conviction and before sentence it was brought out that the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the defendant before the court was principally owned by the New Jersey corporation, a corporation not before the court—the trial court adding (upon no evidence, however, to be found in the record and upon no information specifically referred to that in concessions in the character for which the defendant before the court had been indicted, tried and convicted the New Jersey corporation was not a 'virgin' offender.

"Is a sentence such as this sound? Can a court without abuse of judicial discretion wipe out all the property of the defendant before the court and all the assets to which its creditors took in an effort to reach and punish a party that is not before the court—a party that is not even indicted? Can an American judge without abuse of judicial discretion condamn anyone who has not had his day in court?

"That, to our mind, is strange doctrine to Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence can that rightfully be done here on no other basis than the judge's personal belief that the party marked by him for punishment deserves punishment? If so, it is because the man who happens to be the judge is above the law.

Decision on Appeal.

The decision handed down by the United States court of appeals was on the appeal mado by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, from the verdict rendered April 15, 1907, by which the company was found guilty of accepting rebates, and was later fined by Judge Landis of the United States district court, $29,240,000, the maximum under the counts of the indictment.

The specific charge against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was that it had accepted rebates on shipments of oil in carload lots from Whiting, Ind., to East St. Louis, Ill., over the Chicago & Alton railroad. Evidence was adduced at the trial showing that the company receive rates one-third as large as other shippers were obliged to pay. It was contended by the counsel for the oil company that the rate was not secret, but the jury found otherwise.

During the trial, counsel for the oil company refused to give information called for by Judge Landis after he had taken the case under advisement. The court thereupon issued subpoenas for the officials of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, among them John D. Rockefeller. The officials appeared in court on July 6, 1907, and were personally examined by Judge Landis. It deveoped from the questions put by the court that the Indiana corporation, against which indictments had been returned, is owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the earnings of which during the three years in which occurred the transactions covered by the indictments amounted to nearly $200,000,000, and that dividends averaging 40 per cent per annum were paid during that time. Judge Landis, after keeping the case under advisement for several weeks, passed sentence on the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Aug. 3, 1907. The company entered a motion for a new trial, which was refused, and then appealed from the decision of the jury in the United States district court on the ground that the verdict was not based upon the facts, was unjustifiable and that the fine imposed by Judge Landis was excessive. It was on this appeal that the decision of today was handed down.

WILLIAM MARKLEY DROWNS IN LAKE NEAR MARQUETTE.

Marquette, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A man found dead in Lake Superior here last evening has been identified by letters in the pockets as William Markly, residence unknown. He is supposed to have been a member of the crew of the steamer R. S. Warner, which was here June 26. How the drowning occurred is a mystery.

DEATH SUMMONS CAME SUDDENLY

Mrs. Catherine E. Hammond of Lakeside Succumbs to Heart Failure.

Mrs. Catherine E. Hammond, aged 76, of Lakeside, died suddenly from heart failure, about 9 o'clock, last evening, at the home of her nephew, Carl Driesbach, 4129 McCulloch street. The decedent had been actively engaged about the house and garden yesterday and was about to retire for the night. The death summons came as she stepped into her room and she expired within a few moments, before medical aid could be procured. Mrs. Hammond's husband, Lester B. Hammond, died suddenly about eight years ago, while working in the Jackson school building of this city.

Mrs. Catherine E. Hammond was born in Dansville, N. Y., and came to Duluth from Buffalo, N. Y., about sixteen years ago. She is survived by two children, Miss Katherine L. Hammond, 101½ West Fourth street and William D. Hammond of Los Angeles, Cal. The latter was notified this morning concerning his mother's death and the funeral arrangements will be announced as soon as he is heard from. Interment will be made at Dansville, N. Y.

The decedent was a very lovable character and will be missed by a wide circle of friends as well as relatives. She was an active worker in church circles, being a member of the First Christian church of this city for many years.

"Had dyspepsia or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me."—J. H. Walker, Sunbury, Ohio.

KOPPALA RELEASED.

Bond is Belate Through Mistake of Justice of Peace.

Matt Koppala of Aurora, who was sentenced by the justice of peace of that place to a term of sixty days in the county jail on conviction for dynamiting fish in Partridge lake, has been released on bond, pending an appeal to the district court.

Koppala's bond was furnished five or six days ago, but he was not released for the reason that the justice of peace did not make the proper return of the bond to the clerk of the district court. Instead of sending the bond under separate cover, he sent it attached to a number of other papers where it was not discovered until Mrs. Koppala came to Duluth to find out why her husband had not been released, and a search was instituted for the missing document. The county authorities have been taking care of Mrs. Koppala and her children while Koppala has been in jail.

Offers you new possibilities of cleanliness. Looking at the soap-question broadly, after trying all kinds, you'll be inclined to believe—as thousands do—that there is really only one other kind, and that its name is "just soap." The "just soap" kind can't begin to do the good things for your Skin that RESINOL SOAP does—for it's the "RESINOL" and the pure vegetable oils that really produce the splendid results. There is only one RESINOL SOAP, but if you use it once and see how extra clean it gets you and how wonderfully refreshing it is, you're hardly likely to ever go back to the other kind. North Dakota National Guard Going to American Lake, Washington.

Bismarck, N. D., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The orders for the trip of the National Guard of North Dakota to American Lake, Wash., have been issued from the office of Adjt. Glen. Poole. They call for the encampment from Aug. 16 to 31 on the field of the camp of instruction, and a full regiment of this state will leave for that place on or about Aug. 12 or 13. A special train will transport the companies from here to the West, the entire distance to be covered being something like 1,700 miles.

OLD GUNSHOT WOUND FATAL.

Rockland Man Dead of Injury Received Three Years Ago.

Rockland, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral was held here Sunday of Charles Evans, who died Friday from a gunshot wound received at Ontonagon about three years ago.

While he and a companion were crossing a river, the gun carried by Mr. Evans was accidentally discharged, he receiving the full charge just under the lower rib. Considerable difficulty was experienced in locating the shot, and it was not until after the sixth operation that the physicians succeeded. Mr. Evans was about 22 years old and was well known at Tamarack.

INCREASE WORK TRAINS.

Great Northern to Do Considerable Improving of Northern Division.

Crookston, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern is planning an active campaign of improvements on the Northern division, and has ordered five work trains to begin operations July 25. This will employ five engineers who have been firing, and create vacancies for ten more firemen. The Downer gravel pit will be opened and a steam shovel operated there the balance of the season, and the track will be resurfaced from Halstead to Breckenridge. After the dullest season the railroad men have been up against on this division for years, all men will be put to work at once, and all will work full time and many overtime from this time forward till after the present big crop has all been moved.

BEGGARS BECOME NUISANCE.

St. Cloud, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Cloud is having its troubles with the swarm of beggars and cripples who are coming here daily and telling their troubles to the people on the streets. During the past two weeks it is estimated that 100 beggars and cripples have hit the town. One visited a West end house shortly after noon and threatened to do all kinds of things if the woman would not buy a half dozen of his pencils. The woman was alone in the house and rather than take any chances paid the man 50 cents for a half a dozen pencils.

WANTED FOR FORGERY.

Calumet Officers Looking for Man Said to Have Absconded.

Calumet, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officers of Calumet and Chicago are looking for John Kostenchee, accused of forgery. He has absconded, it is said, with upwards of $400, the earnings of seven of his fellow-boarders for the past month with the Calumet & Hecla Mining company. Kostenchee took the 3:40 Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train Saturday afternoon, booking for Chicago. It is in that city that an attempt will be made to find the fellow.

Kostenchee boarded with a man named George Brosovich of C street Raymbaultown, and, in addition to himself, seven other boarders resided there. All of them were in the employ of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, with the exception of the absconder, who has been out of work for several weeks.

Kostenchee was aware of the place his fellow-boarders kept their pay books, and it is alleged that on Saturday morning, after the others had gone to work, he went to the boarders' rooms, gathered up all their pay books, took them to the pay office of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, signed them and later presented them at the First National and State banks of Calumet, where he received cash for them.

NOOSE IS TIGHTENING.

Around Neck of Accused Indian Murderer in North Dakota.

Bottineau, N. D., July 22.—In the Seidel murder trial one of the defendants, Joe Peltier went on the stand and recited the revolting details of the murder, laying the act on the Indian, Little Rising Sun, while they, the two breeds, stood by and watched it, both too overcome with fright to stop it, though both are much larger than he. The courtroom is crowded all the time and the feeling runs pretty high. The Indian going on the stand, brought out the breed's story, and Charley Peltier will go on the stand today. The story of the awful crime is now pretty complete except the details of the murder of the little girl.

EAST GRAND FORKS TO HAVE BIG MARKET DAY.

East Grand Forks, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—August 8, will be public market day in East Grand Forks. Such was the decision arrived at by a most enthusiastic mass meeting of citizens last evening, held under the auspices of the Commercial club. Mr. Porter has just returned from a tour in which he inspected seven of the twelve demonstration farms scattered over the state. "The hot weather has not affected the crops as much as is generally supposed," he said. "Although in one or two regions where the soil is light and sandy it has done considerable damage."

If you want to be forceful you will have to eat foods that are full of "FORCE"

Why not eat "FORCE" itself? It is the wheat-barley food—the kind that repairs waste tissues, builds up worn-out muscles and tired nerves. All the nutritive elements of the whole wheat combined with barley-malt, making them partially digested before they enter the stomach.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

AFTER SODA FOUNTAINS

The Health Department Starts a Campaign of Cleanliness.

Ice Cream Establishments Must Maintain a High Standard.

The health department is after the soda fountain keepers of Duluth. Cleanliness is the slogan of a campaign started against their places. Some of the local fountains are in first-class condition, and are kept that way all the time, but men in charge of others become careless and allow dirt to accumulate, and in such quantities that the ice cream girl would lose her appetite for the stuff if the accumulation was where she could see it.

An inspection is to be made of all the soda fountains in the city, and those which are not right up to the mark will be reported. The proprietors will be warned to clean up, and if the order is not obeyed they will find themselves in trouble. If there is one place where cleanliness is more earnestly desired than another it is around a place where ice cream, drinks and the various ice cream combinations are dispensed to a hungry and thirsty public.

In a number of instances in the city, it is said, the fountains are model places. Nothing is found lacking in facilities to keep glasses, syrup jars, ice cream ladles and other apparatus clean. These establishments will be rated excellent. In direct contrast, a few places are found which are said to be in a decidedly unclean condition. The ice cream ladles are not kept clean, and glasses used at the fountain are not all that could be desired in the way of being clean. The syrup jars aso are said to be in bad condition.

It is understood that fault will be found in several places with arrangements for washing glasses. The objection lies in the large amount of dirt and grease which accumulates on the inside after comparatively short usage, and the difficulty and time consumed in taking it apart to clean it. Criticism is offered on many of the rinsing tanks. It has been suggested that running water be kept in all of them. The fountain clerks often fill the tanks with water and then drop a quantity of washing powder into them, which they use to wash perhaps a hundred or more glasses before emptying the tanks and putting in a fresh supply of water.

RELENTLESS ARMY

Of Moths is Feeding Upon Foliage in Chicago Parks.

Chicago, July 22.—The head gardener of Lincoln park is in great distress these days. So are his brother gardeners in all of the other city parks.

These guardians of the city's foliage plots have been confronted with a new and formidable enemy, an invading army of moths that has settled upon the trees and left in its wake withered leaves and half-naked boughs. With their forces of undergardeners, the chiefs are waging a war upon the winged pests in an attempt to save the foliage.

The invaders are known as white-marked tussock moths, and they are gaining headway this year because their natural parasites have been destroyed by atmospheric conditions.

Buffalo, Detroit and other Eastern cities are being ravaged to a still greater extent than Chicago.

PROPOSED INCREASE

Of Freight Rates Causes a Stir Among Railway Officials.

Stockholders Hammering Away at Directors for Fatter Dividends.

New York, July 22.—There is a great commotion among railway officials over the proposed increase of freight rates and while they, very naturally, would like to secure the advanced prices, yet the cool, shrewd, far-seeing ones among them do not believe the present time the opportune one for making the change. The officials are between two fires.

The stockholders desire good dividends, and with depressed trade and consequent small tonnage, combined with a wage scale that will bear little or no reduction, the dividends that have prevailed for the past few years cannot be earned. If the officials, however, can stand the fire of the stockholders for a few weeks longer they will be out of their difficulty, as far as reasonable dividends are concerned on all the important lines. The trade depression is passing away quite rapidly now, and it will not be many months until the cry of "car shortage" will again be common to all shippers. It would be far greater wisdom if the stockholders would patiently wait for their dividends to be earned by increased tonnage than by an ill-advised and badly timed effort to increase rates now. While all political parties virtually, and some specifically, call for government regulation of transportation lines the fact is such regulation is actually in force at the present time, and the regulations are becoming closer and more complete every year. Regulation is becoming control and will progress until control becomes complete and full. In other words, when the government gets through regulating it will be in control, and when it is in control there will be but little to desire in ownership to the stockholders.

Many Will Prefer Bonds.

Many of them will prefer bonds to shares when the control period is in full play. As scientists would put it, this seems to cover the future life history of railways. Under such conditions dividends will approximate interest rates on government securities, but, if lower, will be more secure and regular in payment.

There are quite a number of distinguished admirers of Alexander Hamilton who would strenuously oppose centralization of power through the ownership of railroads, and there are disciples of Jefferson who deem it the proper thing. So it would seem almost a reversal of the opinions of the leaders of a century ago. Times change and men change with them, yet it would seem paradoxical if Hamilton's wishes for a strong government should be carried out against the views of his disciples by those who believe in Thomas Jefferson. The railway question is not like the tariff. It is not a local question, but one that takes in the entire country, and is a business question from start to finish. It will not be settled until the business interests of the country settle it acceptably to the shippers and other patrons of the roads. It is only when differences arise that the government steps in and as these differences will always require adjustment the government will be kept always busy and always regulating, always taking a little more control, and when the differences are all adjusted the subsequent proceeding will interest the stockholders no more. There is bound to be a greater volume of business for the railways than at any period of their past history, but the more business the greater number of adjustments, the greater demand for regulation and the louder demand for control.

Opposition Is Powerful.

The vast and powerful manufacturers and shippers' associations of the country are becoming as active in opposition to increase of rates as the railway men in favoring them, and so goes on the "irrepressible conflict" until as in all such other struggles the matter is settled and settled right.

It will be years in contention, years before final settlement is reached, but the country's progress will proceed nevertheless and prosperity will not be blighted nor kept away by reason of this difference over railway rates. In recent letters I have alluded to the tremendous fruit crop of the South. It is said that Georgia alone has shipped nearly 4,000 carloads of peaches this season, and that the production of the state in peaches will run fully 1,000,000 bushels more than in 1907. The peach crop of the Delaware peninsula in 1907 gave the railways but 186 cars of freight. It is estimated that this season upward of 3,500 cars will be required to transport the peaches that will be shipped from that same section of the country. Peach trains leaving Georgia have reached New York in forty-eight hours during this season, and the rapid transit has benefited shippers and merchants and enabled the consumer to secure the fruit in much finer condition.

The ease in money in this city is showing heavily in the mortgage loans being made. The quarter from April 1 to July 1 has surpassed in amounts put out on mortgage security all recent quarters. The city of New York remitted to the state treasurer for mortgage taxes due the stae $336,000 for he quarter ended June 30, 1908.

Shows Nearly $135,000,000.

Mortgages are taxed in New York when recorded 50 cents on each $100 of the amount of the mortgage. Of these collections the city retains half and the other half goes to the state. The tax collected would show that mortgage loans to the extent of nearly $135,000,000 were recorded in New York city in the past three months. This surely shows ease in money and a great revival in purchases of realty.

The bureau of statistics has given out the figures of our foreign commerce for the fiscal year ended June 30, and the balance of trade in our favor for the twelve months is the immense sum of $666,457,00. This balance exceeds that of 1907 by $220,000,000, and is the greatest balance in our favor ever recorded. The next largest balance that ever accrued in our favor was in 1901, when the amount was $664,592,000. This present fiscal year bids fair to produce a balance in our favor still greater, for our crops are very large in proportions, and values bid fair to be above late averages. Europe and Asia will absorb our cotton, corn and wheat quickly at prices that will heap up our credits abroad, and twelve months from now the depression in trade of early 1908 and the money famine of 1907 will be ancient history, as will all our previous panics and depressions.

Never in the history of the world has there been witnessed such speedy recovery from a disastrous situation, and the United States can truthfully assign as the reasons for such swift return of prosperity a sturdy, resourceful, confident class of business men, aided by magnificent crops, supplemented by a world's demand for products that the people possess the cash to pay for.

HE MAY RECOVER.

Incision Made in Tetanus Victim's Cheek for Nourishment.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 22.—Harry Gilbert, aged 14, is at the West Penn hospital, suffering from tetanus, as a result of an injury received by the explosion of a pistol on the Fourth of July. When the boy was taken to the hospital, a week ago, he was perfectly rigid.

The physicians know that not one case in 500 recovers where the disease is that far advanced, but they decided to try to save the boy. Since that time over $100 worth of anti-toxin has been injected into him, and liquid nourishment was forced through an incision made in his cheek, which kept life in his body. Yesterday he began to relax and his mouth can now be forced open enough to feed him from a nursing bottle. The physicians at the hospital are confident that he will recover.

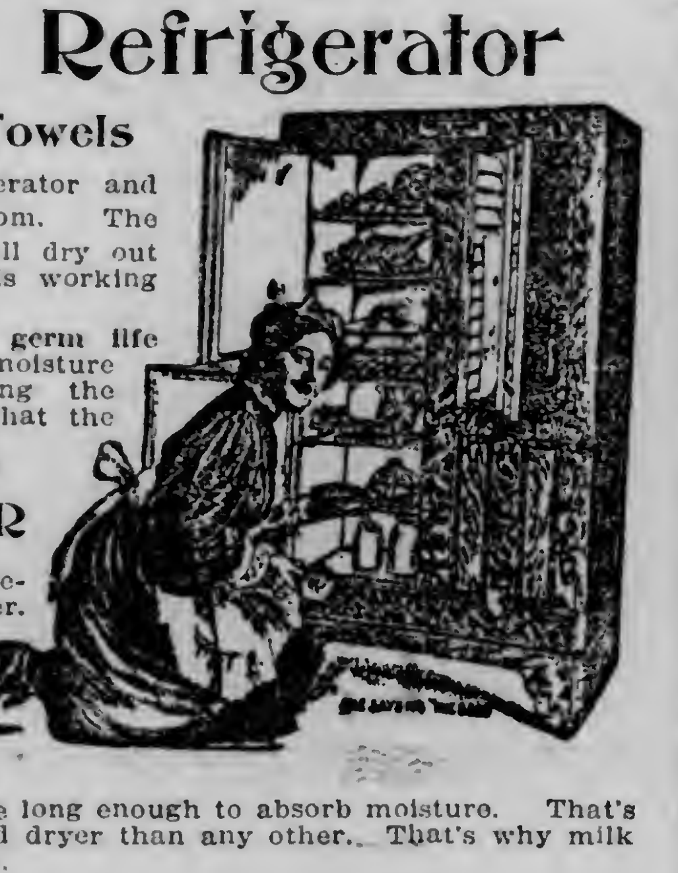
The Bohn Syphon Refrigerator



Take Two Wet Towels

Hang one in your refrigerator and the other in a warm room. The one in the refrigerator will dry out first if your refrigerator is working properly.

Cold discourages the germ life that sours milk. But moisture encourages it, counteracting the cold. It's easy to prove that the

BOHN SYPHON REFRIGERATOR

Is much dryer and ten degrees colder than any other. The thermometer and wet towel tell the story.

The Syphons pass the air through the ice chamber oftener and don't let it stay with the ice long enough to absorb moisture. That's why the Bohn is colder and dryer than any other. That's why milk will keep longer in a Bohn.

But you must see the Bohn to appreciate its beauty. Finest cabinet construction and finish, opalite or enamel lined. Will you not let us show you this refrigerator—this "life preserver"—tomorrow?

ANTI-MARRIAGE CONTRACT

Must be Signed by Women Teachers at Tamaqua, Pa.

Tamaqua, Pa., July 22.—The board of education of this city has ruled against Cupid. When the public schools are opened for the fall term it will be found that the male teachers are married and that the women teachers are maidens who have promised not to wed in the term for which they have been appointed.

It is the latest idea to prevent the confusion that has been an annual thorn in the side of the board, because so many pretty teachers sent in their resignations in order to marry male teachers. The board believes it has solved the problem.

The women teachers must have signed anti-marriage contracts.

MARINE NEWS

GLOOM IS DEEPENING

Many Big Lake Carriers Are Being Laid Up in Port.

Late Season Activity May Call Some Out Again.

Instead of the activity on the Great Lakes increasing as the season advances, the slight boom, which was noticeable during the latter part of June, has almost entirely subsided and the trade has fallen back into the rut of depression and hopelessness, which characterized the early weeks of the present season.

Reports from the lower lakes are that carriers are being tied up every day and it is predicted that by the end of the week, no more than half of the wild fleet will be in commission. The Gilchrist company is operating but twenty-three of its total fleet of sixty-one ships. Eight Cleveland-Cliffs boats have not been fitted out this season and thirteen of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet are still at their winter berths. Some of the big independent lines have put no more than one-half of their boats in commission.

The rush of the new grain crop movement late in the season and a probable slight increase in the ore shipments just prior to the close of the season, will call out some of the boats now being laid up and it is likely that a few, which have not yet been moved, will make a few trips. For the main part of the season, however, there is nothing in sight. Eight or ten boats are lying in the anchorage basin, where they were moved from their winter berths without ever having had steam up. Some of them will probably get out in the closing weeks of the season, but others will be moved back next spring to wait for a more prosperous season.

Big carriers, which come up with coal, are leaving for the lower lake ports light almost every day. The ore movement shows no appreciable increase. In fact, there are a smaller number of cargoes for the independents now than there were a month ago. The grain trade amounts to practically nothing and coal is not moving as freely as it was. Boats are waiting at both ends of the route for cargoes and the entire aspect is one of gloom.

NEW DRAW IS SWUNG.

Interstate Bridge Will be in Commission Soon, After Many Delays.

The big draw span of the Interstate bridge, spanning the Duluth-Superior harbor between Rice's point on the Duluth side and Connor's point on the Superior side, was swung into place yesterday, found to be true and accurate and swung back again for further adjustment and the finishing touches.

Just when the new draw will be put in commission to provide a roadway for foot passengers, teams and street cars between Duluth and Superior will not be determined for a few days. There is still considerable work to be done, but it will not be very long before the draw is in working order.

Quite a crowd saw the draw swing for the first time. The old draw span was knocked down by the steamer Troy of the Western Transit company's fleet, in July, 1906, and the work of removing the wreckage and erecting the new draw has consumed about two years.

COMES FOR REPAIRS.

Drifting Log Damages Propeller of Steamer Ionic.

The Northern Navigation company's package freighter Ionic, which plies between Canadian ports on the north shore and Georgian bay, arrived in the local harbor last night in tow of the tug James Whalen, and was taken to the Superior shipyards, where she will go into drydock for repairs.

On the last trip to Port Arthur a log drifted into the wheel of the Ionic and badly damaged the propeller. An attempt was made to make the necessary repairs at Port Arthur, but it failed, and the steamer was towed here. The repairs will only take two or three days' work and the boat will resume its run.

DECREASE IN TONNAGE.

Report on Sault Ste. Marie Canals Shows Falling Off.

Detroit, July 22.—The annual report of C. Mack Townsend, United States district engineer, made public here, shows a large decrease in the amount of freight carried through the canal at Sault Ste. Marie during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908 ,as compared with the preceding twelve months. The total tonnage for 1908 was 46,431,220 tons and for 1907, 54,652,619 tons.

The tonnage passing through the American canal in 1908 was 33,964,074, a decrease of 11,049,000; while that carried through the Canadian canal was 12,467,146 tons, an increase of 2,818,725 tons.

The total expenditure in the district during the past year was $21,148,116, of which $1,022,987 was used for work in the Detroit river.

HAVANA GOES AGROUND.

Tugs Are Unable to Release Boat Ground in Portage River.

Houghton, July 22.—The steamer Havana, bound down from Duluth with cedar poles, ran hard aground in Portage river near Cole's creek, yesterday noon, and has not been released. Tugs pulled at the big vessel for several hours yesterday afternoon, but were unable to free her. The grounding was caused by the steamer taking the wrong side of a buoy in the narrow part of the channel.

STEAMER STREET BURNED.

Fire Made Rapid Headway, But the Crew Landed Safely.

Detroit, July 21.—The steamer Charles A. Street bound down with three barges in tow caught fire last night in Lake Huron while off Lexington, twenty-five miles above Port Huron and was destroyed. The crew of thirteen was all landed safely at Lexington. When the fire broke out on the Street which was 165 feet long and owned at Mt. Clemens, Mich., the barges were cut adrift. The fire made rapid headway despite the best efforts of the Street's crew and it was soon apparent that the steamer was doomed. The life boat was destroyed by the flames and the crew began building a raft on which to leave the burning boat. Before they had completed it, however, the crew of one of the barges rowed back three miles and took them off safely and landed them at Lexington.

Maj. Fitch at Houghton.

Houghton, July 22.—Maj. Graham D. Fitch of Duluth, chief of engineers for the Lake Superior district, arrived here this morning in the government yacht Vidette on his annual tour of inspection.

Coal Charters.

Buffalo, July 22.—Yesterday's coal charters were the Kendall and barge, Toledo; the Arizona and Culligan to Chicago at 40 cents, and the Chieftain to Waukegan. The market remains in a fairly active state.

QUEER CHARTER MADE.

Chili Will Take Grain Cargo From Green Bay to Chicago.

One of the queerest charters that has come to the attention of local marine men for some time is that of the steamer Chili, one of the Elphicke fleet of Chicago, which left this morning, light for Green Bay, where she will take a cargo of grain to Chicago. Why Chicago should receive grain from Green Bay isn't clear, but that will be the Chili's cargo.

The case brings to memory the similar incident some years ago, when a boat took a cargo of grain from Duluth to Chicago. It was unloaded at Chicago, passed through the usual channels, and the morning after unloading, the same cargo was loaded back into the steamer, which took it down the lakes to Buffalo.

TAKES IN ALL LAKES.

Steamer John Lambert Brings Sodium Nitrate From Montreal.

Marquette, Mich., July 22.—Coming from and passing through Lakes Ontario, Huron, Erie and Superior, the steamer John Lambert arrived here with nitrate for the Marquette plant of the Du Pont Powder company. She discharged 400 tons of her cargo of 2,000 tons at this port, and from Marquette has proceeded to Washburn, Wis. More of the commodity will be unloaded at that point, and after this the vessel will go to Chicago to discharge the remainder As she will traverse Lake Michigan in making this latter port, she wil thus have to pass lengthwise through all of the chain of lakes before the last of her unusual cargo is delivered. The sources of supply of nitrate of soda are practically all in the South American countrites and Chili is the principal one. The stuff is shipped in rough sacks. The Lambert's cargo came from Chili, it being reshipped at Montreal.

THAT BIG ROAD LEVY.

Says the Eveleth News: "We should not be surprised if considerable opposition to the mill tax for road purposes should develop at the Duluth end of the county. No open objections have been made yet, but reading between the lines in The Duluth Herald's discussion of the levy it is easy to see that there is latent opposition somewhere. A big paper like The Herald usually has a policy which is made to apply to all such questions without great delay, and we fail to detect much enthusiasm in The Herald for the bigger tax. Having secured the costly courthouse and cinched the grouping plan Duluth should favor good roads for the county, even if they do cost something."

The Eveleth News is informed that Duluth stands between the horns of a very embarrassing dilemma in this matter, and that while outspoken opposition to the proposed large increase in the road levy of the county has not developed, Duluth is still so puzzled that it can hardly be expected to greet the proposed higher tax with great enthusiasm.

Duluth wishes the county to have good roads. That much goes without saying, because Duluth's growth and prosperity depend in a very large measure upon the development of the agricultural possibilities of the county, which in turn depend almost entirely upon good roads. Duluth, if it opposed generosity in road appropriations, would be opposing its own best interests.

Yet Duluth, too, needs a lower tax rate rather than a higher one. Its tax rate is now too high, and the most immediate duty before its citizens and its public officials is to find some way of reducing it. Nothing would be gained if, at great sacrifice, the city or school district rate were reduced and the reduction more than offset by an increase in the county rate. The county is now levying more than $100,000 a year for roads, where a few years ago it was only appropriating $30,000 or $40,000 a year.

The county tax rate, too, demands some attention. Not long ago the total valuation of the county was about $100,000,000. With the tremendous jump in the valuations of the iron mines made by the state tax commission, the valuation of the county was more than doubled. If the county expenditures had remained where they were before, this would have more than cut the tax rate for county purposes in two. Yet the county rate will be nearly back to its old level this year, and if the proposed road levy of $225,000 is made it will be quite as high as it was before the county's valuation was increased.

It should be remembered, too, that upon the growth of Duluth as a market for the products of pasture and soil depends the prosperity of the farming sections which the projected roads would benefit. If the growth of Duluth is delayed by high taxes—and nothing can hold a growing community back more certainly than high taxes—the greatest market for the fruits of the St. Louis county farmer's toil will be limited.

This is not entirely a Duluth matter; neither is it entirely a range matter. If $225,000 is levied for roads it will not all go to the range territory, neither will it all go to the Duluth territory. It is a matter to be determined for the best interests of the entire county, for if one part of the county suffers all must suffer. And Duluth is a part—and not a small part, either—of St. Louis county.

NO ROOM FOR NARROWNESS.

It seems to The Herald that an unnecessary amount of fuss is being made over the fact that a banner showing a picture of Taft, which had been torn down from its position in the principal street of Lincoln, has been restored to its place.

Surely there is room in Lincoln, a city of 60,000 souls of diverse political views, for a picture of Taft. There is no more reason why Lincoln should bar the display of a Taft picture than there is why Cincinnati should refuse to permit the display of Bryan's picture.

Bryan lives in Lincoln, but so do a lot of Republican voters. Taft lives in Cincinnati—when he is home, which is seldom—but so do a lot of Democratic voters. Naturally each town is proud of the fact that the candidate of a great party lives there, but that offers no excuse for the narrowness displayed in the objections to the display of pictures of the rival candidates.

This is a big, broad country, and its hope for the future lies in the breadth of its views, not in jaundiced narrowness of vision and of thought. If the Democrats of Cincinnati wish to put Bryan banners in the streets, by all means let them do it. If the Republicans of Lincoln whose admiration for their famous fellow-citizen does not interfere with their loyalty to their party wish to display Taft's picture, let them do it. There is no occasion for opposition, or even for comment.

UNIVERSAL TWO-CENT POSTAGE.

Beginning Oct. 1, the people of this country will be able to send letters across the ocean to England at the rate of 2 cents, and for the first time the universal rule of 5-cent foreign postage will be broken. This is not strictly correct, of course, unless we figure Mexico and Canada as not being foreign, because we have had 2-cent postage relation with these countries for a long time.

The reduction of the British rate, however, foreshadows a general reduction of the world postal rates. It begins with England because that nation, by blood and heritage, is nearest to us; but it will presently be extended until within a short time it will be possible to send a letter to almost any part of the world for 2 cents. We are already sending letters to the Philippines for 2 cents, though the rate is still 5 cents to points nearer than Manila.

The first organized establishment of a postal service in England was in the latter half of the seventeenth century, when a penny post was established in England. It was accompanied by a general postal system in the British dominions, with rates of 8 cents for 15 miles and 25 cents for each 300 miles. In 1839 the general rate in the British isles was reduced to 2 cents, and in 1840 postage stamps were put in use and a money order system established. The first city delivery reached London in 1855, and in the early '60's the postal savings banks, the parcels post and the postal telegraph were added. These latter conveniences, except the parcels post in a limited form, have not yet reached the United States.

The American postoffice date from 1639, but it was very unsatisfactory and immature until Benjamin Franklin took hold of it in 1737. When the colonies became independent and a postoffice department was established, Franklin was the first postmaster general, and under his administration rates were reduced to 6 cents under 30 miles, 8 cents under 60 miles, 10 cents under 100 miles and 25 cents for 450 miles and over. Half a century later the rates were made 5 cents for distances under 200 miles and 10 cents for longer distances. In 1863 the flat rate of 3 cents was established, and in 1883 came the present 2-cent rate.

We have reason to be proud of our postal system, because it is a public enterprise and was not turned over to private capital, like the railroad business, the express business and the telegraph. The free city delivery and later the free rural delivery were splendid improvements, and cheap newspaper postage has done much to enlarge the field of publicity and knowledge. Yet many improvements are yet needed, among which are these: 1-cent postage; a full parcels post system, doing away with the express business; postal savings banks, and a postal telegraph system, doing away with private telegraph companies.

THE PURE MILK ORDINANCE.

The movement for an up-to-date milk ordinance for the city of Duluth received a setback at last night's council meeting. It is to be hoped that it is only temporary, and the statement of one of the opponents of the defeated measure that he will prepare another ordinance which he believed would fill the bill gives hope that something will yet be done.

The main objection to the defeated ordinance was that the provision requiring the cooling of milk immediately after milking would be a hardship upon the smaller dairymen, and it was asserted that it would drive some milk dealers out of business, thus centralizing the control of the milk business, and bringing on higher prices. As to that there is not much evidence now of any bitter competition in the milk business. It is possible that this provision might have been softened by an amendment making it effective at some future date, giving the dairymen ample time in which to comply with it, but as it stands now, the council has rejected the plan altogether.

Pure milk is a very important matter, and unless proposed measures threaten unnecessary hardship to milk dealers, the purity of the milk should be a higher consideration than the pronts of the milk merchants. Though pure milk is a wholesome and a necessary food, impure milk is a deadly poison. Pure though it is in its original form, milk extends a lavish hospitality to disease germs of all kinds, and careless handling of milk is blamed for many disastrous ills, including two of the very worst—typhoid fever and consumption.

That the present milk regulations, both of the state and city, are far short of being what they should be seems to be generally conceded. The problem is to devise a milk ordinance that will adequately protect the public, without placing unnecessary burdens upon the milk dealers. It must be remembered at the outset that almost any regulation designed to insure pure milk will involve some expense to milk dealers, and that opposition from that source is confidently to be expected.

WHAT ABOUT THIS?

George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the Republican national committee, recently sought to justify the solicitation of campaign contributions from corporations, admitting that he proposed to ask such donations. He did it rather lamely, on the ground that corporations, like individuals, should be allowed to support their principles, as though any corporation had any principle except the principle of profits.

Can the Republican national committee have forgotten that congress, in January, 1907, passed an act which the president approved Jan. 26, 1907, prohibiting corporations from making contributions in connection with elections?

Mr. Bryan and his friends appear to have remembered it, because their program as to campaign contributions, announced a few days ago, states that no donations whatever will be received from corporations, and that no single contribution of more than $10,000 will be received. Incidentally, full publicity as to contributions of more than $100 is promised before election, while the Republican promise as to publicity is not to be carried out until after election, when the possibility of the facts influencing the voters will have passed.

The text of the federal law on this subject is in effect as follows: It shall be unlawful for any national bank or any corporation organized by authority of the laws of congress, to make a money contribution in connection with any election to any political office. It shall also be unlawful for ANY CORPORATION WHATEVER to make a money contribution in connection with any election at which presidential electors or a representative in congress are to be voted for, or any election by any state legislature of a United States senator.

This is flat enough and definite enough. No federal corporation may contribute to any election, and no corporation whatever may contribute to any election in which federal officers are to be voted for.

The law is equipped with a penal clause that can be made to force it into full effect, if properly used by the courts. Any corporation which makes a political contribution in violation of this law is to be subject to a fine of not more than $5,000, and every officer or director of any corporation who shall consent to any unlawful contribution shall upon conviction be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 and not less than $250, or by imprisonment for a term of not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Corporation contributions always constituted a crime, because they are designed to influence elections to the profit of the contributing corporations, and because the funds so used belong to the stockholders of the corporation and their diversion for improper purposes is theft; and this year such contributions are made criminal in law, and it is to be hoped that if any party or any corporation violates the law severe and exemplary punishment will follow.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

If the statement of James Dougherty, hailing from Marysville, Ohio, and stopping at the McKay hotel, is to be credited with all the seriousness that Mr. Dougherty would have one accept, there are few if any divorces in that section of the Buckeye state from which he hails.

The reason advanced by Mr. Dougherty is that the couples down Marysville way get acquainted before the parson ties the knot. It is not an unusual thing for a lad to court a lassie twelve or fourteen years down in that section of the state where they make presidents, and the statement of Mr. Dougherty, that people get acquainted before they are married, sounds quite reasonable.

"There was one young fellow who started to keep company with a girl when he was nineteen," said Mr. Dougherty. "When he started going with the girl his face was innocent of the brittle stubble that decorates the face of experienced men. A slight down kept score upon his few years upon this mundane sphere. When the bans were finally pronounced the white whiskers that decorated his ruddy countenance looked like a heavy snow shadowed up against the old red barn.

"They are 'sot' in their ways down Marysville way. They don't like sudden changes. This applies equally well to other things than marriage. However, when a young man begins going with a girl down in that part of the country, the folks all expect that they will get 'hitched' in the course of time. They are not at all surprised if the period of keeping steady company extends over a smooth and placid course of ten or fifteen years, but, in the end, the good folks are sure that the happy and blushing couple will be united in holy wedlock.

"You see, by the time that the marriage is performed they have become used to each other's ways. If they had any intention of traveling different routes, some premonition of this intention would have been given before the minister asked the girl if she would be the willing Wilhelmina to the stern and gruff commands of the worser half.

"They become familiar with the habits of each other, and the divorce court is an evil that has died of misuse in Union county, Ohio.

"The longest case upon record was that of old Jed Prouty. He rushed—you couldn't exactly say rushed either, for there was nothing of the rush order about their courting—Miss Appleby for close onto twenty-three years. Ominous number that, yet despite the lemon possibilities in the number twenty-three, the parties to the long heart siege were finally listed in the double harness class, and to this day are trotting an even and well-tempered race through life.

"Some one, whose curiosity has stood the test of years until it reached the breaking point, once questioned Jed about his engagement to Miss Apleby.

"'Lor' bless you, man,' came the reply of the rapidly aging Prouty, 'we're not engaged; we're just keepin' company.' They had been going together for fifteen years at that time, so the statement that they were not engaged excited but little comment among the residents of that section of the country.

"People get married too quickly these days. Down in Union county, Ohio, we are opposed to this sort of thing. We don't believe in marrying and repenting afterwards. We believe in getting thoroughly acquainted before sending out the invitations and slipping the parson the tip. That's the reason why Jed Prouty didn't get hitched before. He wanted to be sure he understood the character of the woman he thought of making his wife.

"And so it goes. There are no breach of promise suits; there are few burning epistles asking for the return of the letters and the ring. Everything goes lovely down in Union county, Ohio, after all the folks get thoroughly acquainted."

The question naturally arises why don't the officials of the Northern Navigation company give the tourists more time in Duluth. Why don't the directors of the company show more consideration toward this city. That question has often been asked among the tourists that make this port. No satisfactory answer has ever been made.

The North West gets in here at 8 o'clock in the evening and leaves the same night. Many of the tourists think the stop over time is too short for them to go to the trouble of leaving the boat. As a result, Duluth is robbed of much advertising of its attractions and the tourists are deprived of much pleasure in witnessing the sights that are a credit to Duluth.

A tourist at the Spalding hotel last night, who looked as if he were an Englishman, and who also looked as if he were out to see everything possible, in the way of sightseeing, remarked upon this very subject. He asked the clerk about it, but was unable to obtain any definite reason for the short stop over at this end of the trip.

"It's a beastly shame," exclaimed the tourist. "They don't give you time to see any of the sights in the city. You have to rush back to the boat again without so much as taking a long walk around the town. There are lots of things that I wanted to see here, but I must be content with a short walk up and down the street."

This is an epitome of the sentiment of many other tourists upon this question. There have been many complaints about the short time of the stop over here. The city of Duluth has also a just complaint on this score.

W. T. Shaw, at the Lenox, who has recently made a trip through the dry farming country of Montana, states that the heavy rains of the summer have resulted in raising a bumper crop in the higher dry and arid portions of that state.

In some parts of the state, Mr. Shaw states, that the crop has been almost entirely wiped out, but in the normally dry and arid farming sections, where the farmers are obliged to depend upon artificial means of irrigation, the heavy rains have been a blessing and will be the means of producing a large and bountiful crop.

Up in Fergus Falls, if the statement of a traveling man at the Hotel McKay is to be believed, they have a horse that resembles one of the geysers at Yellowstone National park. He is almost a perpetual spring.

The unfortunate equine had some accident to his thorax in his young and unsophisticated days. He was out with the other colts one night and drank a little too much. Now he has sworn off from all drinking and is obliged to go almost entirely without water. Some people don't think this any particular hardship—but it is, just the same.

As soon as this unfortunate animal gets a good gulp of water it comes out through his nostrils. This is said to be a fact; not a rank out and out nature fake. There is not a question of a bulldog licking a moose in this tale. Dr. Long, please keep quiet.

The only way the horse manages to get a little moisture into his system, is to hang around upon rainy days and breathe deeply of the mist laden atmosphere. At other times he tries to drink through force of habit learned in his younger days, but only on rare occasions does he get a particle of water into his system. Like "old faithful" at the Yellowstone, he can be depended upon to spout every so often.

The horse remains healthy and happy, despite the lack of water. The man owning the unfortunate animal cannot justly be accused of watering his stock. Here's hoping happy days to the horse that goes longer than the camel without taking a drink. You know few people envy the camel.

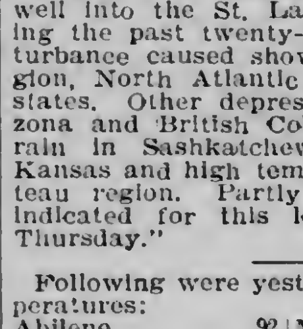
THE WEATHER.



Clear, cool, fine and charming—such was this morning. The heat had been moderated by cool breezes, and the conditions were ideal for almost any purpose imaginable. The weather man looks for partly cloudy weather and moderate temperatures tonight and tomorrow.

Last night's lowest temperature was 58 degs. and yesterday's highest was 76 degs.

A year ago today it was clear, cool and fine.

The sun rose this morning at 4:35 and sets tonight at 7:53, making 15 hours and 18 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "An area of high pressure overspreads most of the region east of the Rocky mountains attended by moderate temperature inland and rather warm weather in the Atlantic Coast and Southern states. The low pressure central Tuesday morning over Lake Superior has moved well into the St. Lawrence valley. During the past twenty-four hours this disturbance caused showers in the lake region, North Atlantic and Central Valley states. Other depressions overlying Arizona and British Columbia caused some rain in Saskatchewan, Nebraska and Kansas and high temperatures in the plateau region. Partly cloudy weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Thursday."

Mr. Bryan's Strength.

New York Times: It would be inexcusable folly to underrate Mr. Bryan's strength. He cannot be disposed of offhand by picturing him forth as a charlatan, a play actor, a demagogue appealing to popular passion and prejudice. All that has been said about him before, and it did not estop six millions and a half people from voting for him. He has strength, unquestionable strength. His almost unquestioned dominance in the Democratic party proves it. He has a hold upon the confidence, upon the affections, even, of an immense number of people in the West and Northwest, and the weariness and distrust of him that have been manifested in the East and in the South constitute a most unsafe warrant for predicting his certain defeat after a walkover Republican campaign.

Summer Simplicity.

Though a soothing, restful feeling from the swish
Of the water as you squirt it on the lawn
May come to you and relieve you of each wish
You'd be into the hurly burly drawn,
Still tranquility becomes your worst of bores,
And there never was much fun in doing chores.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

A few days ago the well-known firm of Mannheimer Bros., of St. Paul and New York, completed the purchase of fifty-four lots in Portland division of Duluth for $27,000 cash, and the money was paid to Gen. Dennison and others of New York, who have owned them for nearly twenty years. These lots are located on Bench, First, Second, Third and Fourth streets. Mannheimer Bros. are now negotiating for the purchase of a lot on Superior street, not far from First avenue west, intending to erect, during the coming season, a magnificent store and office building, to cost between $125,000 and $150,000, to be occupied almost entirely by themselves as a wholesale and retail dry goods store.

The grasshoppers driven out of the vicinity of Perham seem to be turning their attention to Duluth. Never have there been so many hoppers and locusts in the fields around the city as at present.

Miss Lena Gilbertson, formerly of Mankato, and William McCullough were married yesterday afternoon at the Sherman house at the West end. After the marriage, Capt. Randall and wife held a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. McCullough.

The result of the school election was as follows: For directors, F. W. Paine, 847; H. W. Pearson, 841; Hugo Speier, 248; T. O. Hall, 127; E. C. Baumann, 46. In all wards but the First, Messrs. Paine and Pearson, the successful candidates, received a majority of the votes cast. Bonds were authorized by a vote of 991 to 12. Never before in the history of the city has so large a vote been cast on school questions.

Charles Denton, a capitalist of Washington, D. C., with his wife, is spending some time in the city. They are staying at Mrs. Brock's, 124 East First street.

Sam S. Fifield, editor of the Ashland Press and former lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, was in town yesterday, viewing the sights, under the guidance of Capt. T. H. Pressnell.

The engagement of Hon. R. G. Horr of Michigan to speak here, in behalf of the Republican presidential ticket, has unavoidably been canceled.

Duluth has for years been proud of her record as a shipping port, and the record has constantly been broken by the steady increase of business. Last week, however, smashed all previous records to smithereens. During the week there were received here 100,360 barrels of flour, mostly from Minneapolis, and 93,005 barrels of it over the St. Paul & Duluth, an average of 15,000 barrels daily for one road. There was shipped 93,975 barrels, nearly all of which was for direct export to Europe.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Cass Lake Times: The Democrats seem now to be in a quandary about whom to nominate for their standard bearer in the coming election. Twice the people of the state have shown their independence of the political bosses and it is now up to them to show the politicians that "the people rule." The Republicans have named Jacob F. Jacobson to rule the state for the coming two years and he is lauded and boosted by the machine and will probably carry off the vote of a large majority of his fellow countrymen. For that purpose he was nominated, and if elected, race prejudice, not patriotism, will accomplish it. Of the Democratic possibilities, Thos. D. O'Brien is the peer if not the superlative of all the Democrats, and it wisdom prevail in their choice he will probably be their nominee. Other names have been mentioned, but none are so prominent before the independent voter as T. D. O'Brien and a large share of the independent vote will go to him.

Morris Sun: If the Democratic party were to make Bryan their permanent presidential candidate it would save them lots of time, trouble and expense, and it would amount to the same thing.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Republicans of Minnesota are "all set" and ready for the music to begin, while the democrats are yet shy a leader for their orchestra.

Northfield News: Some curiosity has been exhibited as to how Mr. McCleary will interpret his party platforms—whether upward, downward or sidewise.

St. Cloud Times: Mr. O'Day's anticipations having been fulfilled, he will shortly instruct his man Johnson to run for governor again.—Princeton Union.

And there are a lot more who will be just as nervous as Bob Dunn is until the result of the Democratic state convention is announced.

Eveleth News: President Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners has expressed his opinion of the strike inaugurated under the Federation auspices on the Mesaba range last year, saying it was doomed to failure. Furthermore, Mr. Moyer says it worked destruction to every local union in the state, a fact which people of the mining country have pretty well known for some time. This admission is interesting as coming from the official head of the miners organization and as corroborating the opinon of the majority of level headed people living on the iron range last year.

Bass Lake Times: The Socialists, the Populists, the Prohibitionists and the Independent League are still to be reckoned with before any one can be elected.

Kasson Republican (Rep.): When you see a party adopt a platform such as the Republican party did at the state convention it is very evident that some other ruling power held full sway instead of that of the better element in the party. When such important questions as county option are ignored, it is time for the better class of Republicans to show their hands, and any set of delegates who allow themselves to thus be bound and gagged by the liquor interests are certain to return home to find they have fallen far short of representing their constituents.

Two Families, One White House.

New York Sun: Mr. Bryan opens up to us a truly idyllic prospect when he says that in the event of his election he will ask the Hon. John W. Kern to share the White House with him. It is an arrangement of long standing, proposed by Mr. Bryan when both he and Kern were bleeding outside the breastworks, and renewed now that he at least sees the presidency within easy reach. There may be no precedent for it, and again Mr. Bryan may not have the premises at his disposal this year or next, but it shows a neighborly spirit. Moreover, it will introduce into official life at Washington a much needed shirt sleeve simplicity and mark an era of new observances in the higher walks.

New Alignment Is Needed.

Springfield Republican: The revolt against Hoke Smithism and Bryanism in Georgia is clearly indicated by the number of letters which the conservative Democrats of the Empire state of the South are writing to Mr. Taft.—Hartford Times.

A national blessing it would be if those Democrats would go into the Republican party and stay there long enough to burst the Solid South into irredeemable smash. The South is thick with "Democrats," who are at heart Republicans on national issues. Smash the Solid South for keeps and there would be far less difficulty in forming a national party in opposition that would have unity enough to win victories and discipline enough to stay in power for a while after it once got in.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A very delightful thing about humor is when it's your own.

The way to make a girl let you kiss her is to get her to say she won't.

A woman can love a man for loving her, but a man will love a woman because she won't love him.

A man can have a good time visiting his relatives by thinking what fun it will be to be home again.

The trouble with good resolutions is the people who have to make them are the ones who can never keep them.

Hobson!

Independent: We refer—we more than refer—we point to, we inculpate, cite and arraign Richmond Pearson Hobson as a public nuisance, who fails to be a menace to public peace solely because the sensible American people, startled at first by his positive assurances of what he "knows," will not take him seriously. He has been going over the country preaching an unholy war, slandering a peaceable nation, swinging Bellona's torch and outdoing the abuses of Shimei or Thersites. He is a public nuisance and a national disgrace.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

Baltimore American: "A financier ought of all men to be a success on a farm."

"On a farm of all places. Why?

"Because instinctively he regularly waters the stock."

Washington Star: "What should be the highest ambition of every American?" asked the patriotic citizen.

"To become an ex-president and go elephant hunting," answered the ardently admiring youth.

Philadelphia Press: Kloseman—Well, of all things! The idea of his accusing me of making a lie out of the whole cloth—

Peppery—Yes, the idea!

Kloseman—Ridiculous, isn't it?

Peppery—O! very. Evidently he doesn't know how economical you are.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The Manager—I don't exactly like the way you have drawn your tramp. You make him talk like a stock broker.

The Playwright—Well, that's all right this year, ain't it?

Baltimore American: "I don't want my daughter to study grammar."

"Why not?"

"Because it is such a vulgar study."

"Vulgar!"

"Yes. She will have to learn about such common nouns."

Washington Star: "What we want now," said one Prohibition campaigner, "is some picturesque title for our candidate, such as it is now customary to give the head of the ticket."

"Very true," replied the other. "Why not refer to him as 'the beerless leader?'"

Life: "That young man stays until an unearthly hour every night, Doris," said an irate father to his youngest daughter. "What does your mother say about it?"

"Well, dad," replied Doris as she turned to go upstairs, "she says men haven't altered a bit."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Does your wife scold you for battering up your pillow these hot nights?"

"No. She compliments me on my neatness. Only yesterday she said my pillow looked as if I scarcely pressed it."

"Well, I guess if I had a head as empty as yours my pillow would look the same."

Nice Weather.

What do I think of Bill and Bill,
And which will be elected?
Why I suppose that Bill will be,
I always have expected
Since Bryan's nomination
That we'd have, willy-nilly,
After next fall's election
A president named Willie.

What's that? Which one? I hardly know,
I'm thinking altogether,
Or almost altogether, of
This stretch of sunny weather
We've been a-having here of late,
I can't rouse and get fiery
And tear my shirt o'er politics.
While I feel so perspiry.

I feel so sorry for the folks
Wo do not live in Texas
When it comes summer, for the sun
That manages to vex us
Down this way, when it strikes New York
Or Boston tries the metal
Of every man, and makes him hump
Like a crab in a kettle.

And people die up there, they do,
Beneath the summer weather,
Young ones and old give up the ghost
And leave the world together;
Here we get warm, we don't deny,
But dying—don't you think it—
We only push our face into
A julep while we drink it.

And go to get another thirst
Where the sun's rays are pelting,
And, while the fat men in the North
Are saying things and melting,
We say to that old question that
They ask, "There's no denying It's hot enough for juleps, and Too hot for anything."

Preliminary Steps Taken for State Tuberculosis Exhibit.

Citizens, Clubs and the Churches Are Interested in Matter.

Preliminary steps in the work that is under way for the bringing of the state tuberculosis exhibit to this city were taken this morning in the office of Dr. E. L. Tuohy in the New Jersey building. Those present at the conference this morning were Dr. S. H. Boyer, Dr. S. M. Stocker, Dr. D. D. Murray, Dr. Christopher Easton, director of the traveling tuberculosis exhibit of the state board of health; Health Commissioner F. B. Patton, C. W. Erickson, P. S. Anneke, Mrs. Anneke and Miss Anneke, Mrs. F. L. Barrows and Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele.

The steps taken this morning were entirely preliminary to the work that will come before a temporary committee, which will be selected from among the various interests of the city. The clubs will also be represented in the committee, which will take charge of the exhibit, as well as the city council and the churches.

Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele was elected chairman of the committee that will have charge of the preliminary work of preparing for the organization of the exhibit committee. C. W. Erickson was elected secretary.

In the opinion of those present this morning a committee of fifty people should comprise the working body that will have charge of the exhibition. Every interest in the city will be represented upon this committee, according to the present plans. Women will be included among those having the interest of the city at stake, in the bringing of the state exhibit here.

A meeting of those present today will be held at 1:30 Saturday afternoon in the rooms of the Commercial club. At that time the matter will be brought before the members of the Commercial club and further progress made in the work of organizing the exhibit committee.

The effect of the exhibit will not be confined to Duluth alone. Efforts will also be made to interest the people upon the ranges in the educative scope of the state tuberculosis exhibit. The present plan is to bring the exhibit to Duluth some time in October.

STOCKS ADVANCED, BUT SOON DROPPED

Standard Oil Decision Has But Little Effect on Market.

New York, July 22.—Wall street was on the alert this morning for the decision in the Standard Oil appeal from the $29,000,000 fine which was scheduled for Chicago today. The news of the decision was rushed into the financial district by numerous courses and stirred the stock market into decided animation for a time. Trading at the exchange had been halting and irregular partly in waiting for the news and when it became known that the decision of the lower court had been reversed, there was a jump of 1 to 1½ points in the most important trading stocks, such as Union Pacific, St Paul, Reading and some others. Standard Oil, in the outside market advanced 14 points to 660. There was free selling on these advances in the market, and prices dropped back and the market fell into dullness.

BRYAN ASTONISHED

That Verdict Against Standard Oil Had Been Set Aside.

Lincoln, Neb., July 22.—Not in some time has news of such importance reaced here as that containing the announcement from Chicago that the fine of $29,000,000 imposed upon the Standard Oil company by Judge Landis had been set aside by the appellate court. William J. Bryan, when apprised of the decision, seemed astonished and was eager to know the grounds upon which it was based.

He would not, however, permit himself to be drawn into a discussion of the case.

LITTLE CHANGE IN VILAS' CONDITION.

Madison, Wis., July 22.—Col. William F. Vilas, who suffered a cerebral hemorrhage on Monday morning, is still unconscious, and there is little apparent change in his condition this morning. A change for the better or worse is momentarily expected. Dr Frank Billings, a Chicago specialist, has been called into consultation.

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done." Sold by all druggists.

SHOPPING AT HALIFAX.

The shopper in New York takes it for granted that she will not buy at even figures; she pays 98 cents, or $1.43 or $3.87, whatever it may be, and is content so long as she is certain she has made a bargain. So it is a shock to her when she goes to some place where a different system of pricing goods and of offering bargains obtains, says the New York Sun.

"I got my greatest shock in Halifax, N. S.," said a New York woman. "They're the queerest people up there. It's a queer old city anyway. It looks as if it were built in very ancient times; reminded me of an old English garrison town. At every step you took you met a soldier.

"Beautiful old place, though, built on a steep hillside that lovely harbor. But I was telling about the shops.

"You see, I'd been told that it was a good place to buy things much cheaper than in New York, so when my husband and I landed there for a three days' stay I made up my mind I'd do some shopping.

"Well, the shops were lovely—lots of room, attentive saloonpersons and all that. The first thing I got was marked $3, and I thought it was a bargain and said I'd take it. I counted my change and found I'd got $2.30 back for my $5 bill.

"'Guess you've made a mistake,' I said to the young woman who waited on me. 'You've given me 30 cents too much,' and I handed back the 30 cents.

"'Oh, no, that's all right,' she told me. 'Ten per cent off, you know.'

"I supposed it was some special discount on the class of goods I'd bought and went on to another shop.

"The same thing happened again. I began to wonder, then thinking it odd that I'd struck two 10 per cent discounts in one morning's shopping.

"At the third sto—shop, I mean, I nearly forgot myself and said store—you mustn't do that in an English town—I picked out something I wanted for $10. I hesitated a moment over the price and the young woman said:

"'Of course, with the discount it's only $9.'

"'Mercy me!' I said. 'What do you mean by your discount?' If you only want $9 why don't you mark it that?'

"'You're a stranger here,' she said. "Why, we always give 10 per cent discount on everything.'

"'All the shops?' I asked.

"'All of them,' she said.

"'But what good does that do? I burst out. 'Why not mark all goods right in the first place?'

"'The people expect 10 per cent off,' was her answer, and I couldn't get any more out of her.

"Why the people like it I'm sure I don't know, for it reduces shopping to a dead level. Takes all the fun and excitement out of it. Why on earth don't they vary their eternal 10 per cent off and make it 8½ or 9 1-16 once in a while and give the shopper a run for her money?

"Still, if you could see the women dress in Halifax you'd understand. They don't care how their clothes fit, so I suppose they don't care how they buy them."

And the New York woman passed on, in a hurry to get to So and So's department store before all the hats for $9.79 had been grabbed up.

A RESOURCEFUL TRAVELER.

Curator Ditmare of the Bronx Zoo was discussing with a reporter the strange case of "Big Mose," the fasting crocodile.

"Now, with Mose for a pet," concluded the curator, smiling, "the Arizona traveler wouldn't have been able to show his famous piece of economical ingenuity. You have heard, no doubt, of the feat? The traveler and his dog were lost and hungry on the plains. Night fell. It looked as though both must go supperless to bed. But the ingenious traveler cut off the dog's tail, made a nutritious soup of it, and gave the hungry animal the bone."

APPEAL FOR A BIG NAVY

President Makes Stirring Talk to Conference of Officers.

Wants a Fighting Organization or No Navy at All.

Newport, R. I., July 22.—President Roosevelt, after an adventurous night trip in the fog from Oyster Bay, during which his yacht, the Mayflower ran down and sank a lumber schooner, rescuing the crew, arrived here at 9:45 a. m. today, and lather in the forenoon at the naval war college, addressed a conference of nearly a hundred naval officers, representing all branches of the service, to consider plans for new American battelships.

President Roosevelt made a stirring appeal for a hard hitting navy.

"I want a firs class fighting navy, or no navy at all," said the president, because a first class fighting navy is the most eiffective guarantee of peace this nation can have."

amiable and well meaning people," continued President Roosevelt, "who believing in having a navy merely for coast defense. A purely defensive navy would be almost worthless. To advocate such a nevy is like advocating a school of prize fighting, in which no one should do anything but parry.

"I hope this nation will never have to hit. We should do everything that honorably can be done to avoid trouble. But when we go to war, that war is only excusable if the navy is prepared to hammer its opponents until he quits fighting. And you can't hammer your opponent if you wait for him to come to the coast and hammer you first. For the protection of our coasts we need fortifications, so that the navy may be left free to stretch out and destroy the enemy. That is its function."

President Roosevelt declared that even if the United States had no island possessions the need for an aggressive naval policy would still be present. "The Monroe doctrine," he declared, "had almost fallen into disgrace and contempt until the American nation began to build up its navy."

Discussing the question of emigration, the president declared that the American people have a right to say who shall come and dwell among them.

"It is our duty," he declared, "to exercise that right in a way calculated to provoke the least friction. If we choose to say who shall come, however, we must be in trim to uphold that right in case anybody challenges it."

Newport, R. I., July 22.—With the arrival of President Roosevelt here this morning there began at the naval war college the most important conference of naval officers, affecting the future construction of American battleships and cruisers in the history of the sea fighting establishment. For several weeks two score of officers, comprising the staff of the war college, the members of the summer conference and the personnel of the newly appointed "battleship commission," have been struggling with plans for future battleships, without arriving at an agreement. Today a conference of more than 100 officers of the navy, together with a large representation from the army, was addressed by President Roosevelt. The president afterward participated in a discussion of the merits of various plans with the officers and also took up the criticisms that recently have been made upon American naval construction. The conference of today is unique and naval officers who have arrived here say that a few years ago such a gathering for an exchange of professional views, including, as it does, a variance of rank from senior rear admirals to junior lieutenants, would have been impossible.

It is not expected that a definite solution of any one problem will be reached today. Conferences will continue after the president has returned to Oyster Bay late in the afternoon, and it is believed that whatever the consensus of opinion of the boards now here may ultimately be, the whole problem of warship designs will be referred back to the war college, and the board of construction at Washington for determination, with President Roosevelt as the final arbiter. It has been said that criticism of the placing of the five turrets on the new battleship North Dakota, recently laid down as a sister ship to the 20,000 ton Delaware, had to do with the calling of today's conference, but this is denied at the war college, where it is said that the president believed the time to be ripe for a general discussion of battleship problems by all of the leading officers on the active list of the navy available at this time.

DESPERADOES FEAR.

Daughter of Sheriff Faced a Bad Indian Alone.

Clinton, Tenn., Cor. Memphis Commercial Appeal: Seventeen and buxom, Miss Mossie Dagley, eldest daughter of Sheriff H. E. Dagley of Anderson county, bears the unique distinction of being the one woman in the mountains of East Tennessee for whom the desperadoes have a wholesome respect. Her father is not only sheriff, but he is master of his district, and, being without a son, has trained his daughter to carry out the tendency to dominate, which she inherits.

Her training has been adequate, but without the "nerve" of which Miss Mossie is mistress her manipulation of a "six-shooter" would bring her little distinction. Her reputation as a "shooter" is equal to that of her father. Miss Dagley did not win her reputation through exhibition shooting or through firing at burglars, but through actual conflict with "bad men."

In the absence of her father she is the guardian of the Anderson county jail, and on more than one occasion she has satisfactorily demonstrated her ability to care for it and for the neighborhood. Sheriff Dagley is the one man of the section upon whom the law-abiding depend, and for whom the bad men have the greatest respect, but the law-abiding depend upon Miss Dagley almost to an equal degree, and, if anything, the bad men fear her most.

A recent demonstration to cope with whatever situation might arise grew out of the attempt of Albert Stanbury, a city crook confined at the jail on a charge of attempted burglary, to escape. Stanbury had privileges given him in recognition of his meekness and evident pacific disposition, and before he had been in jail long enough to learn what sort of woman Miss Dagley is, he took advantage of an opportunity offered in the exercise of one of his privileges and broke for the woods. Miss Dagley held Stanbury in contempt on several scores, but the most prominent of them was the simple fact that he was a "city crook." Any man of the city who dealt in the ways that are dark was beneath consideration as a foe for the mountain girl, and when she found it necessary to overhaul Stanbury and return him to the jail she was careful to place the bullets fired from her "gun" just where they would have most effect upon his mind, and not upon his body.

She ran Stanbury down, but was forced to trim him in the hand before he woke up to what was after him. His awakening came within two shakes of being too late to help him much. He was making hard for a wood and had ignored Miss Mossie's call to halt and she was on the point of "settling" him when he was struck in the hand and surrendered.

This incident might occur any day, and is accounted a part of the routine for which Miss Mossie claims no particular merit, but she sometimes gets a scrap that is good enough for an act in a Wild West play. Her reputation was the direct cause of one of her most interesting encounters. Bill Bearfield, a half-breed Indian, since killed by a man whom he attempted to scalp with a hatchet, passed through that section several months ago, and in fraternizing with some of the bad men of the county he heard of Miss Dagley. His Indian blood gave him a natural contempt for women, but everything disparaging he would say of Miss Dagley's bravery was countered by an incident told by one of his pals. He was unconvinced and made a wager with one of the men to force Miss Dagley to cook his dinner.

Selecting a day for his dinner when the sheriff was away, the Indian swung Colts to his hip, and, taking a sawed-off shotgun in his hands, he set out for the jail.

Miss Dagley was at the jail alone. Household duties kept her on the back porch, and the Indian was forced to circulate for some time before he ran upon her. He was very fierce in his demeanor, expecting to carry his point altogether through the fear with which he might inspire her. The jail was some distance from any other building, but the Indian knew Sheriff Dagley, and even if he did discount the foundation of the reputation of the daughter he had enough respect for the father not to "go too far."

Miss Dagley looked Bill over, and in the easy way of her people greeted him with a soft "Howdy." The reply she got was gruff and soul-crushing. Bill said "Howdy," too, but he said it loud and snappishly. Miss Dagley looked him over more closely then and inquired what he wanted. She was told that he wanted dinner and wanted it "damn quick." Miss Dagley protested that she had no dinner, but Bill insisted, and that was where he made his mistake.

The girl had left her "gun" in the house, and without it she was at the Indian's mercy. She took advantage of his request for dinner, and under pretext of getting it slipped to the door and into the room. In a moment she was back, and in her hand she had her gun, and the gun was spitting fire at every jump. The Indian saw his mistake before the girl put her hand on her gun, and, anticipating what was to come, he began to slide along the wall toward the wood back of the jail.

He had succeeded in getting within a few feet of the rear of the jail before the girl came into the open, where she could get a line shot, and her first shot was fired just as he turned the corner. The ball split the hair on the back of his neck and he went down as if done for. He rallied a moment, and, getting to his feet, went over the back fence and into the wood and never touched a hand to a rail.

An effort to catch the Indian was made by Sheriff Dagley and his neighbors, but he got clean away without any very serious injury. If he ever paid his wager it was not reported.

Courage in women is not unusual, but the sort of courage Miss Dagley has is that sort of Westerners and all other "fighters" call "nerve," cool and deliberate, and that sort in women is unusual.

WILL EXIST FOR AGES.

Little Prospect of Yellowstone Park Wonders Dying Out.

New York Sun: For several years we have heard from one source or another that the plutonic forces, which give much of its attractiveness to the Yellowstone park, are dying out. Some of the geysers have been said to be drying up, fumaroles to be bubbling more feebly or not at all and terraces to be losing their rich coloring.

These are alarmist reports due to temporary phenomena which the observers did not understand. Geologists have no faith in them. Some time, of course, these crowning wonders of the park will disappear; so will the habitability of the earth, for, according to our present light, our globe will become an inert and frozen mass. But the nations will live long if they survive the glories that have made the Yellowstone park what it is.

Dr. Roland D. Grant, who helped to classify the Yellowstone geysers, has been examining some of the evidences of change and gives the results of his studies in the Bulletin of the American Geographical society. He says that the innumerable small boiling points, or fumaroles, extend for scores of miles from the center, and sometimes one of them appears to go out of action. On examination it is often found that this is due merely to a coating of mud forming a crust too thick for the feeble force to penetrate. The baby geyser may be heard gurgling away beneath. Changes are all the time occurring, and it was this fact that led to the outcry of a dying park. The changes are due not to subsidence, but to diversion of plutonic energy. Minerva Terrace was very beautiful and rich in color one year, and the next it had lost its color and the hot water supply that imparted it. The highly mineralized water, in fact, had gone to beautify the white terraces of Cleopatra Pool, but in the following year Minerva Terrace recovered her own and was as beautiful as ever. The delicate Angel Terrace became a white mass of crackling calcium because the underground flow diverted from it began to form with remarkable rapidity another fine terrace only 100 feet away. We heard in 1899 that the glorious Fountain Geyser was dead and the park would soon be extinct. The fact was that some accident had broken the underground connections and the boiling waters found vent at a little distance, adding a new geyser to the park. Nature repaired the damaged pipes within a year, and Fountain Geyser resumed business on as grand a scale as ever.

There are scores of similar illustrations of the fact that what seems to be a change in the park is only a slight redistribution of the underground forces. For all we know, centuries may elapse before any of these phases of energy in Yellowstone park becomes exhausted.

CENTER OF THE STAGE.

Philadelphia Bulletin: The playwrights over their supper of lobster and champagne boasted.

"I," said the greatest of them, with a complacent glance at the two pure pearls in his shirtfront, "decree the color of every actress's frock."

"That is carrying the regard for detail too far," said a playwright who had failed.

"Not a bit of it," said the other. "If I didn't decide on the color of the dresses the stage manager would. Why, that must always be done. Otherwise in their overmastering desire to draw all eyes to themselves every actress would wear bright red. In my first play the frocks were forgotten in the general excitement, and at the first dress rehearsal all six actresses came on in the discovery scene in scarlet gowns."

ANIMALS ALL AMBIDEXTEROUS.

Chicago Tribune: Right handedness and right eyedness came with genus homo. Dr. George M. Gould has watched for them in squirrels that use their front paws to hold nuts, cats that strike at insects in the air or play with wounded mice and in many other animals, but he is certain no preference is given to the right side over the left.

But in the lowest human savages all over the world choice in greater expertness of one hand is clearly present. One cause for its development is in primitive military customs. In all tribes and countries since man used implements of offence and defence the left side, where the heart lies, has been protected by the shield, and the left hand was called the shield hand, while the right hand was called the spear hand.

Next to fighting came commerce. The fundamental condition of bartering was counting with the low numbers, one to ten. The fingers of the free or right hand were naturally first used, and all fingers today are called digits, as are the figures themselves, while the basis of our numberings is the decimal or ten fingered system. Every drill and action of the soldier from ancient Greece to modern America is right sided in every detail. Firing from the right shoulder and sighting with the right eye brings the right eye into prominence.

It is significant that with the decline of militarism comes the suggestion of schools for ambidexterity and the establishment of a movement for promulgating the gospel of two handedness and its obvious advantages.

AID FOR THE EXPLOYER

"Peary," said a geographer of Chicago, "never starts on one of his exploring expeditions without receiving by mail and express all sorts of packages from cranks—cowhide underwear, tea tablets, medicated boots and what-not.

"Peary once told me that George Ade, a few days before the start of his last trip, wired him to expect an important package by express.

"The package came. It was labeled:

"'To be opened at the furthest point north.'

"Peary opened it at once, however. It was a small keg inscribed:

"'Axle grease for the pole.'"

GIRL TELEGRAPHERS IN INDIA.

Acting upon the recommendation of the telegraph committee, the Indian government has just authorized the employment of women operators, says Harper's Weekly.

The candidates must be between 18 and 30 years of ago, and they must be unmarried or widows. They must undergo a training of twelve months in the telegraph training classes, during which time they will receive $6.65 a month, the same allowance that is drawn by male learners.

Selected candidates on leaving the training classes will be on probation for one year. Upon appointment they will receive salaries varying fromb $10 to $26.65, which are very large upon the scale of living expenses in India. There will be pensions, with no liability to transfer; but resignations will be compulsory in the event of marriage.

What are your "lucky numbers?" Perhaps the number of the classified ads, in today's paper is one of your lucky numbers.

FORGET THE WARNING

Some Automobilists Are Exceeding Speed Limit on London Road.

Complaint That Some Machines Carry No Rear Lights.

Residents of Lakeside, along London road, have begun to complain again that some of the local automobilists are getting careless as regards the warning given them by Mayor Haven about fast running and are beginning to "hit the high spots" again when they think there is no watch being kept on them.

Within the last week, it is claimed by Lakesiders, several automobiles have been driven along London road at a clip in comparison to which an express train would seemed tied to a post. The drivers, it is claimed, seem in most cases to be boys.

One Lakesider claims that a machine passed him on London road at high speed the other evening that contained five or six young people, and two of the young men were scuffling, without regard to the swaying of the vehicle as the driver swerved to avoid bumps in the road.

Within the last few days complaint has also been made that a few autoists are running their machines on London road without any rear lights. This in in violation to the ordinance and is said to be very dangerous, especially when the autos are running at a moderate rate of speed, or speeding, and another rig comes up in the rear at high rate of speed. It is said, also, that the absence of the rear light makes it difficult for anybody to obtain the number of a machine in case of an accident, and some people intimate that the negligence about the lights is with a purpose, that the owner or driver wishes to avoid detection.

"As a rule," said a Lakesider yesterday, "the people in our section of the city have not been inclined to cause the city authorities to restrict the automobiles with oppressive rules as regards their speed, but when a few owners or drivers continue to impose on the good nature of the public and send their high power vehicles along London road, through the residence portion, with the speed of express trains, we think it is time to call a halt. If the practice is not discontinued the chief of police will be furnished with a list of the offenders and there will be plenty of witnesses to back it up."

PRISONERS WANT WORK.

Convicts in Nebraska State Prison on Verge of Mutiny.

Lincoln, Neb., July 22.—"For God's sake, warden, give us work."

This cry repeated in a hundred varying forms has assailed Warden Beemer from all sides during the last month. More than 350 men in the Nebraska penitentiary have implored, wept and cursed. To remain locked in cells day after day is torture more fiendish, the prisoners declare, than the water cure or the cat o' nine tails.

The prisoners are on the point of mutiny. Many of them have no method of earning pocket money. Others have gorged themselves with food during the thirty days of idleness. All are desperate and ready for trouble.

The state board of public lands and buildings increased the price of convict labor from 50 cents a day per man to 75 cents. The Lee Broom & Duster company refused to pay the price. The board remained firm. The company was the only employer of convict labor. June 15 the contractor refused to continue work and the prisoners found a strike on, the employer, however, doing the striking.

For several days the prisoners loafed. Then they became hard to handle. Now the guards have been doubled and night and day men are watching the convicts with loaded rifles.

The recent flood invaded the prison yard and the sanitary conditions are not the best. There is no way of employing the prisoners outside the walls because they cannot be guarded.

MOTHER-IN-LAW OUSTED.

King Alfonso Gave an Exhibition of Kingly Temper.

London, July 22.—Dispatches from Madrid show that mother-in-laws are troublesome even in royal families, as the youthful king of Spain has discovered to his sorrow.

It appears that the mother of his bride, the Princess Henry, of Battenburg, endeavored to keep up with mother-in-law traditions and run the household of the royal couple at Madrid. First the jars in the married life were slight, but daily they increased in violence until the king put his foot squarely down and gave his mother-in-law an example of kingly temper that rather surprised the princess.

The quarrel tempestous, the exchange of compliments being entirely outside the book of court conversation, and the result was that the mother-in-law suddenly packed her baggage and left the palace, vowing she would never return.

LEGISLATOR THREATENED.

For Seeking to Put Ban on Peekaboo Waists.

Atlanta, Ga., July 22.—Representative Gleen, who introduced the bill in the Georgia legislature to prevent women from wearing rainbow stockings, peekaboo waists and other alluring apparel, alleging that, by such devices, men were frequently trapped into matrimony, is being overwhelmed with threatening letters from women in various parts of the country.

Some of the letters are violent in tone. Three letters from this city go so far as to say Glenn might be killed.

Glenn seems to take the letters seriously, and has asked protection of the legislature. He says he has also got into trouble with his own wife by reason of the numerous letters he has been receiving from othr womn.

"I am compiled to seek the protection of the legislature," says Glenn. "My very life has been threatened, and I don't know what moment some vengeful woman may attempt to kill me."

"JACK POT" OF $500

When Georgia Statesmen Were Arrested for Playing Poker.

Atlanta, Ga., July 22.—Detectives raided a room in the Kimball house, one of Atlanta's leading hotels, and arrested five members of the Georgia legislature, who were engaged in a game of poker for high stakes.

When the detectives rushed into the room there was a "jack pot" on the table worth over $500. The legislators "got busy" with the telephone and, exerting their influence, gave bond for $300 each and kept their names off the police records.

The room was fitted up with a poker table and detectives allege that it has been used for gambling by a member of the legislature ever since the session began. They say that this member does not play himelf, but watches the "kity" and gets a good rake-off from the poker-loving members of the house and senate.

The officers also found all sorts of liquors in the room for the refreshment of those who patronized the legislative poker table.

The present legislature is known as the "reform" body, but the recent discovery of a "blind tiger" in the capitol and of a legislative gambling room has caused many to doubt the genuineness of its reform professions.

THREE ELECTROCUTED.

Live Wires Cause Sudden Deaths at Altoona, Pa., Fire.

Altoona, Pa., July 22.—During a fire in the Kline building last night three persons were electrocuted by live wires, which dropped to the street. The dead are:

JOSEPH BYERS, fireman.
JOSEPH FRICK, lineman.
HARRY DESHONG, a lad of 12 years.

Byers and Frick were instantly killed. The wires fell around the neck of young Deshong and nearly burned his head off, the terrified crowd being afraid to render assistance.

While the firemen were at work in front of the building the intense heat melted the wires and they dropped to the street. Byers and Frick became entangled and were roasted to death in an instant. The monetary loss was $25,000.

Watson, the candidate on the Populist ticket, polled 111,373 votes. The Socialist Labor candidate for the presidency, Corregan, received a total of 41,330 votes. The votes of Watson and Corregan and the scattering made a grand total for the United States of 13,538,386. This total was less than the grand total in 1900, which was 13,980,828, and less also than the grand total for 1896, which was 14,073,285. The decrease occurred markedly in the Southern and Southwestern states.

It is, of course, generally known that the election of the president and vice president is determined not by popular vote, but by the votes of the states in the electoral colleges. In 1904 Roosevelt received 336 electoral votes and Parker 140 electoral votes, according to the states carried for each by popular vote.

MUST FILE AGAIN.

Four Norman County Legislative Candidates Made a Mistake.

St. Paul, Minn., July 22.—Four Norman county candidates for the legislature who have paid their filing fee at Ada, the county seat of Norman county, will have to go to the secretary of state and do it all over again if they want their names to go on the ballot for the primary election.

When the legislative apportionment was made in 1897 the Sixty-first district was given one senator and two representatives, and the district was divided so that Norman county candidates thinking that representatives. and the rest of the district, composed of Beltrami, Red Lake and Clearwater counties, was to have the other. But two years ago, Norman was divided into Norman and Mahonmen.

The law provides that when a representative is voted for in only one county, he files fwith the county auditor, otherwise with the secretary of state. The Norman colunty candidates, thinking that Mahomen county would share a representative with the other three counties in the district and that Norman would have a representative to itself, filed with the county auditor. But Secretary of State Julius Schmahl began looking into the matter and secured an opinion from Attorney General Young, who has held that the territory that originally constituted Norman county under the present apportionment, must continue to constitute one representative district, and therefore the candidates, who are to be voted for in the Norman and Mahomen, must file with the secretary of state.

BISHOP POTTER PASSES AWAY

Venerable Churchman Dies at "Fernleigh" His Summer Home.

Cooperstown, July 22.—Henry Codman Potter, seventh Protestant Episcopal bishop of the diocese of New York, died last night at "Fernleigh," his summer home here, after an illness of several weeks. The bishop was unconscious all day, and the end, which came at 8:35 o'clock last night, was peaceful and quiet. The prelate was 74 years old.

Gathered at the bedside of the dying churchman were Mrs. Potter, wife of the prelate, Mrs. Mason C. Davidge, who came from California, and Miss Sarah Potter, his two daughters, Alonzo Potter, his son; Edward S. Clark, Stephen C. Clark and Mrs. F. A. Clark. Mrs. Charles Russell and Mrs. William Hyde, his two other daughters, who are abroad, have been notified.

Death was due primarily to embolism in the right leg, following an attack of the liver and stomach and the end had been foreseen for several days.

No arrangements for the funeral have as yet been made, but it is possible that services will be held here and that the body will be removed to New York, where a public funeral will be held at Brace church.

Bishop Potter's illness first became publicly known early in the spring, when announcement was made that he was unable to take part in the Easter services.

Henry Codman Potter, was a native of Schenectady, N. Y. He has been the head of the New York diocese since 1887, succeeding his uncle, Bishop Horatio Potter. In addition to the heavy duties of the oversight of the largest diocese in point of population in the United States, Bishop Potter took an active part in the movements of national importance. The bishop did much to promote more cordial relationship between employers and employes, and when occasion demanded, lent his efforts to improve the standard of municipal government in New York City.

Bishop Potter caused a great stir throughout the country several years ago when he took part at the dedication of the subway Tavern on Bleecker street, New York. Bishop Potter wrote extensively of his travels abroad and was a member of many well known New York clubs.

TO BE MARRIED NEXT OCTOBER

Preparations for Wedding of the Duke and Miss Elkins.

Rome, July 22.—The marriage of the duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins will take place early in October at Turin. A definite announcement regarding the arrangements for the royal wedding has been issued from a semi-official source in answer to the publication of a story in a Roman newspaper casting doubt on the marriage taking place.

The note states that the duke will leave the battleship Regina Elena Sept. 30, and the marriage will be solemnized in the early days of October at Turin. The duke will not go to Washington again before his marriage.

Important improvements are now being carried out at the Cisterna palace, Turin, in view of the approaching wedding. Immediately after the ceremony the duke and duchess will proceed to Racconigi as the guests of the king and queen of Italy, and will subsequently go to Vienna. The duke, who will be promoted to flag rank, will obtain six months' leave for the honeymoon, part of which probably will be spent in the United States.

The preparations for the entertain- of the royal guests at Racconigi are being pushed forward energetically and are on a most lavish scale. More than $20,000 has already been spent on new furniture, despite the fact that a quantity of the most valuable furniture has been transferred to Racconigi from other royal palaces. Electric lights have been installed throughout the extensive gardens which surround the palace.

DESPERADOES SHOOT UP A BOSTON SALOON.

Boston, July 22.—Three men, armed with revolvers, dashed into a crowded Jamaica Plains barroom, ten minutes before closing time last night and yelling "hands up," began shooting. When they had grabbed the money till and emptied it, finished shooting and made their escape, one man was dead on the floor, another lay dying and a third was seriously injured.

Dashing out of the door, the three men were met by an officer, who began firing on the desperadoes. One was hit, but all escaped.

The saloon is situated in a thickly settled part of the city and was crowded when the desperadoes appeared.

CONFERENCE WITH HITCHCOCK ENDS.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 22.—The inter-mountain Republican conference came to a close last night with a dinner given by Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committee, to the members of the national committee and state chairmen, who have been here for the last three days.

The time yesterday was fully occupied by the Republican politicians During the forenoon they ascended Pike's Peak on a special train. On the trips up and down, Mr. Hitchcock conferred with every politician individually. At the summit, photographs of the party were taken and telegrams were sent to Judge Taft and Representative Sherman.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

It was learned at Philadelphia that Mrs. John B. Stetson, widow of the late millionaire hat manufacturer of that city, is engaged to be married to Count Santa Bulalia, Portuguese consul at Chicago.

In a will disposing of property valued at more than a million dollars, Albert Spencer, a former American, who for many years prior to his death had resided in Paris, directed that his body be cremated, and that "under no circumstances shall the ashes be taken to America."

A brutal murder was disclosed Tuesday night by the discovery of the body of Mrs. Emma Hay Row, 83 years old, gagged and with her throat cut, crushed into a small closet in one of the apartments at 200 Columbus avenue in the Back Bay, Boston.

Struck down by a giant porpoise, three-quarters of a mile off the Tibbe Beach, Ga., Harry, the 15-year-old son of John G. Lovett, was killed by the big fish Monday, and was carried down before the eyes of Wylly, a son of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Brunner, with whom he was swimming. The body has not been recovered.

THREE INDICTED.

New York, July 22.—It was announced late last night by counsel for the race track interests that the three men indicted yesterday afternoon by the Kings county grand jury in connection with the race track gambling investigation are William A. Engeman, principal owner of the Brighton Beach race track; Christopher Fitzgerald, president of the Brighton Beach Racing association, and John G. Cavanaugh, manager of the betting ring.

Ever Realize

That mental or physical exertion uses up tissue-cells that must be rebuilt daily by proper food?

If strength and the power to "do things" are to be kept at highest efficiency, the human body must have Right Food to rebuild brain and nerve cells, and to keep in store the tremendous amount of "energy" required now-a-days to "strike the gait" that wins money and fame.

That's the mission of food. It has stood the test with thousands of sturdy, thinking people for more than a decade, and is in greater favor now than ever before.

Grape-Nuts is scientifically made of wheat and barley; contains the necessary phosphate of potash grown in the grains for cell-building, and soluble Grape-Sugar (dextrose) for energy-storing.

Grape-Nuts

SHORT STORY

Food That Changed His Life.

Many level headed business men pay too little attention to what they eat until sickness attacks them.

Sedentary occupation, improper food and daily resort to drugs, coffee or liquors to "smother" the disease has put many a good man away.

"For many years my labors have been entirely indoors," writes a N. Y. man.

"Naturally, want of exercise, coupled with hasty eating of lunch with more or less greasy food and pastry told on my digestion.

"For a long period I tried scores of remedies without avail, and finally I was compelled to resign my position of an important business association. My weight had run down from 145 to 118 lbs. I was unable to sleep naturally, rose unrefreshed and without ambition, more dead than alive.

"Finally I was advised by a friend to try Grape-Nuts and promised to give it a fair trial. I began the following day, and, to make a long story short, in less than a year I have revolutionized my physical and mental condition, now weigh close to 150 lbs., and can digest all my food, which is eaten with relish. This change is due to Grape-Nuts."

ON THE IRON RANGES

LONG TERM FOR CRIME

Twenty Years for Firing Nashwauk Boarding House.

Matt Boindich Convicted of Heinous Crime Given Severe Dose.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty years in the state penitentiary at Stillwater to reflect over the crime he committed when he set fire to Georg Tomaz' boarding house at Nashwauk, Sept. 1, last, endangering the lives of several men sleeping upstairs was the sentence Judge McClenehan today imposed upon Matt Boindich, the young man who was convicted yesterday of arson in the first degree.

In passing sentence the court intimated that any other verdict by the jury would have been a miscarriage of justice. The gravity of the offense was also commented upon and the court said that in passing sentence he could not be influenced by the comparative youth of Biondich, who is only 21.

Counsel for the convicted man will try to secure a new trial.

Boindich was tried on the charge of setting fire to Tomaz' boarding house during the miners' strike on the range last year. He was a union man while Tomaz who ran the boarding house at Nashwauk was not and was giving board to non-union men. This is said to have angered Boindich to such an extent that he set fire to the building on the night of Sept. 1, using kerosene and various inflammable articles in the kitchen. Fortunately the fire was discovered in time for all inmates of the building to escape.

He was well known at Two Harbors and other points on the Duluth & Iron Range, having worked during summer seasons on the railroad to pay his way through college. His brother, J. S. Chandler of Two Harbors went to Biwabik and later in the day left with the body for Marengo, Iowa, the home of the deceased. Dr. Chandler was 37 years of age and single.

VIRGINIA CITY COUNCIL.

Various Matters of Interest Are Disposed of.

Virginia, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the council meeting last evening the clerk was instructed to accept the conditions asked by the Missabe road for securing a crossing of their tracks so that gravel can be brought into the city from the Commodore mine. The contract written up by the Great Northern road for use of their tracks was referred to the city attorney.

The street commissioner was instructed to grade Beech and Hemlock streets.

The request of the Iron Range road that the city establish electric lights along the road between the Iron Range and Missabe depots, the road and the city each to bear half the cost, was referred back to the railroad company with the suggestion that the railroad take up the matter with Missabe Mountain township, as the territory mentioned is a part of the township. The land along this street is owned by the Steel corporation, which was requested some time ago to permit its annexation to the city, so that lights might be established and other improvements might be made by the city, but as none of the mining companies seemed to favor annexation, the council does not feel disposed to expend city money in making improvements in this territory.

and Tremeer of the United Kingdom.

The sports this morning began with the running broad jump, which event will also reach its final today, and which is going on at the same time as the semi-final of the 200-meter flat race. The Americans were rather unlucky in the draw in the latter event, having but one man, Hamilton, in the first heat, who is opposed to Kerr, Canada; Radoczy, Hungary, and Guttormsen, Norway; while in the second heat no less than three Americans, Sherman, Cartmell and Huff, were drawn against Laaftman, Sweden Again, in the third heat, there was but one American drawn against Reed, George and Hurdsfield of the United Kingdom, while in the fourth heat, Hawkins and Roche of the United Kingdom competed with Halfalt, France. The draw was even worse for the United Kingdom team than for the Americans, as they had their five men bunched in the last two heats.

In the semi-finals of the 400-meter flat, another event in which there is great interest, Merriam and Carpenter, America, meet Davies and Young, United Kingdom, in the first heat, while in the second, Prout, America, meets Halswelle, the English champion, as well as Montague and Nichols of the United Kingdom. Taylor and Ramey are drawn in the third heat against H. H. Ryle, the Cambridge sprinter, and Malfalt of France. White, Atlee and Robbins, America, are in the fourth heat with Sebert, Canada.

In the first heat of the semi-final of the 200 metres flat race, Kerr, Canada, beat Hamilton, America, by the barest margin, only a foot, the judges said. Time, 22 2-5 seconds.

Cartmell, America, won the second heat with Sherman and Huff, America, second and third. Time, 22 3-5 seconds.

The third heat went to Cloughen, America, in 22 3-5 seconds.

Hawkins, United Kingdom, defeated his team mate, Roche, in the fourth heat by a yard in 22 2-5 seconds. No Americans were drawn in this heat.

In the second section of the running broad jump John J. Brennan, Marquette university, was second, with 22 feet 6½ inches; Weinstein, Germany, third, 22 feet 2¾ inches; Ahearne, fourth, 22 feet ¾ inch, and Bellerby, fifth, with 21 feet 1¾ inches.

In the fourth section Murray, United Kingdom, was first with 22 feet ¼ inch; Lukeman, Canada, second, with 21 feet 7½ inches, and Watt, United Kingdom, third, 21 feet ¾ inch. There were no Americans in this section.

In the fifth section Bricker, Canada, was first, 23 feet 3 inches. There were no Americans competing.

F. C. Irons, Chicago A. A., Daniel J. Kelly, Irish-American A. C., and Bricker qualified for the final.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Correze	Mr. Mack
Lord Jura	Mr. Lennon
Prince Zouroff	Mr. Chapman
Duke of Mull	Mr. Farnum
Ivan	Mr. Dunne
Lady Dolly	Miss Meade
Duchess De Sonazo	Miss Cleveland
Fuschia Leache	Miss Blial
Vera Herbert	Miss Holmes

William Stoddart's version of Ouida's famous story, "Moths," was put on at the Lyceum last evening in a very telling manner by the Mack-Leone Players. The selection is a strong one and, if the reception given it last evening was any criterion, "Moths" will be an excellent drawing card the remainder of the week. The scenery is especially good and reflects considerable credit on the efforts of Mr. Fournier.

The story is more or less familiar to the public, dealing with the innocence of a young English girl placed amid the intrigue and dangers of court life in Russia, where her mother is not the least factor among the class of social vultures that would bring the maid into their own class.

As Correze, the handsome opera singer and a marquis in disguise Mr. Mack finds ample scope for his ability. The character is an interesting one and in Mr. Mack's hands it loses none of its force. Miss Holmes in the character of Vera Herbert, the ingenue with whom Correze falls in love nad seeks to save from her mother, is all that could be desired. Her portrayal of hte character from the time that Vera Herbert left her grandmother's care, to the court life and the marriage with Prince Zouroff, who literally bought her from her mother, won golden opinion from those who witnessed the play.

As Lady Dolly, the mother of Vera, Miss Beatrice Meade gives a splendid characterization of a disagreeable part, one which gives Miss Meade the opportunity of showing her ability to appear in the heavy as well as the lighter parts.

Mr. Farnum made a great hit as the duke of Mull and furnished a delightful humorous turn to the story, and Mr. Lennon made a creditable Lord Jura.

As Prince Zouroff, the heavy villian, Mr. Chapman was fully up to his reputation as an actor of the part.

Miss Cleveland did good work as the Duchess De Sonazo, the unscrupulous woman who intrigued with the prince and did all she could to set him against his innocent young wife. Mr. Quigley, as the Chicago millionaire and Miss Blial as Fuschia Leache, his daughter, filled pleasing parts in the story and play.

The Mack-Leone Players will present "Moths" for the remainder of the week, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Closes Its Engagement.

The Innes Band will close itse engagement at Joyland with a performance this evening at which "ragtime" will be the feature of the program, at the request of Manager Getz. The afternoon and evening performances yesterday were well attended, showing the popularity of the celebrated musical organization. A great deal of complaint was made by the people who attended last evening's concert at Joyland by reason of the poor street car service on the point. It is claimed that the service was grossly inadequate and that people had to wait a long time for cars and then ride in crowded condition.

Never can tell when you'll mash a finger or suffer a cut, bruise, burn or scald. Be prepared. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil instantly relieves the pain—quickly cures the wound.

DID HE LIE!

Wittman Said Yes and Proved It

The large crowd that attended Wittman's lecture and band concert last night at Fourth street and Lake avenue was delighted with the free show and music, but more so with the lecture delivered by this young scientist, who speaks what he means, no matter who it hurts, when in the right, and Wittman offers $500 reward for any testimonial that isn't right. He was right when he said he could cure Mrs. Grace McBryde, whom several said had Bright's disease. Wittman said she had kidney and bladder trouble, with an affection of the throat so bad that she could not speak above a whisper, and that was several days ago. Today she can talk as plain as she ever could and is cured of her kidney and bladder trouble. Wittman says he will donate $50 to any charitable institution if this is not true Mr. Tony Pearson, 429 East Fourth street, was relieved of a monster parasite, 100 feet long, after trying eight physicians, who also said they could cure him. Wittman told him he would be cured. Ask Mr. Pearson if he lied. After Wittman called for those afflicted to come up and be treated, Mrs. C. H. Hendrick, 4011 Puleston street, who has suffered with almost total blindness, came up and was greatly benefited in three minutes' time. And to prove that this was no accident, Mrs. R. H. Tobin of 203 Pittsburg avenue was rilieved of the same trouble. Mr. J. L. Davis, 395 Lake avenue, has suffered for four years with catarrhal deafness. In less than three minutes' treatment he was shaking Wittman's hand and thanking him for the great relief. The office continues to receive patients at Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street, from 10 to 12 and 2 to 4. Tonight another free show and band concert at Fourth street and Lake avenue.

MINERS' PICNIC WILL BE HUMMER

Parade, With Six Bands in Line, Sports and Dancing.

Calumet, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Calumet & Hecla miners' picnic this year promises to be the most successful ever undertaken in the upper peninsula. This was demonstrated at the mass meeting held Sunday to complete arrangements for the outing to be held at the Calumet & Hecla park Aug. 1. Six bands will participate in the procession.

With more than 2,000 miners and six bands in the line of march, as well as a number of business men's floats, and features that will be arranged by the miners themselves, the great parade promises to be the very best and largest ever seen in the metropolis of the Copper country.

The miners elected Mart Peterson grand marshal of the day and Mr. Peterson will select a number of aides who will all be mounted.

There will be hammer and drill contests at the park, a Cornish wrestling tourney, boxing bouts, athletic contests and other features.

It was decided to spend several hundred dollars in prizes for the various events, and this is sure to bring out the cream of wrestlers, boxers and hammer and drill men in the county. It is proposed to throw open all of the contests so that everybody may be given a chance to participate.

Attorney William R. Oates will be the speaker of the day and General Manager James MacNaughton will also address the men at the park, besides taking a part in the parade. A committee was named to interview the several business men with a view to securing aid in providing floats for the parade, and the success the committee is meeting with ensures a first class appearance in this one particular feature of the street pageant.

At the park for the entire day the miners have made arrangements to serve dinner, supper and light refreshments.

The evening's doings will conclude with a grand band concert to be given by the Tamarack band, which has been engaged for the occasion. Dancing will take place in the large pavilion, and other amusements are being planned as a windup to the day's festivities.

The whole of the proceeds will be devoted to helping the widows and orphans of former employes of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company.

"LIVE WIRED" FOWL FINE.

Song Writer Solves Age's Greatest Hotel and Chicken Problem.

New York, July 22.—A simple method for rendering the toughest old rooster on earth as tender and juicy as a milk-fed squab has been perfected by Charles K. Harris, the song writer, a summer resident of Central Islip, L. I.

The process, which is destined, Mr. Harris says, to make boarding house life one long dream of joy, was discovered by accident. The song writer recently went into chicken raising. Among the brood he purchased for starting purposes was an ancient cock-a-doodle-doer.

"Why that?" asked Harris, pointing his finger disdainfully. "He can't lay eggs, and no self-respecting hen would take him for a husband."

The farmer said the rooster was a prize fighter, so he was kept.

One night the venerable rooster tried to pick a bug off a live electric wire that ran up the side of the chicken house, and fell dead, a current of several hundred volts having passed through his body.

Harris, as an experiment, cooked the electrified fowl. The result was astonishing. The rooster melted in the composer's mouth. Harris has rigged up a "chair" for tough hens and roosters and has become a regular electrocutioner.

STANDARD SEEKS REDUCTION

Asks to Have Minneapolis Assessment on Credits Cut.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Standard Oil company not only asks for a reduction of taxes in Minneapolis on goods, wares and merchandise, but seeks to have the assessment of $795,000 on credits other than money in banks, eliminated entirely from the list.

Representatives of the oil company appeared before the city board of equalization yesterday and made affidavit to the effect that they have no credits in this state that are assessable under the law. In support of their contention they presented a decision of Judge F. C. Brooks of the Hennepin county district court. The return made by the assessor shows an assesment of $100,000 against the company on goods, wares and merchandise and one of $795,030 on credits.

Reduction was asked on the former item from $100,000 to $68,000.

It was asserted that while Minneapolis is headquarters for several Northwestern states, it is not in reality a shipping point. The office here, it was declared, is maintained more as a convenience in making collections than in distributing goods. It was argued, then, that accounts for oil shipped direct to points in Iowa, North and South Dakota and other states were mingled with accounts for oil shipped direct to Minneapolis; that the city could not, under the law, assess an account as a credit unless it was shown that the oil was marketed in the state.

YOUNG HAGEN'S ESCAPE.

Was in Boiler-room of Nevada When Steampipe Burst.

Crookston, Minn., July 22.—Ole E. Hagen, son of Ole E. Hagen, ex-county judge of probate here, and now candidate for the Republican nomination for auditor of Roseau county, and brother of Attorney Eric Hagen of this city, was one of the midshipmen on the ill-fated training ship Nevada, on which a steam pipe recently burst, and his escape was miraculous. He was in the boiler room when the steam pipe exploded and barely escaped being caught. Seven men are in the hospital terribly burned, and one is not expected to live. The Nevada is now being overhauled, having put to shore off the New London coast, where the accident happened.

MAMMOTH LUMBER MERGER PLANNED

Weyerhaeuser is Principal in Proposed $300,000,000 Combine.

Chicago, July 22.—Twenty-five men, who control the yellow pine lumber market of the world, at the Annex discussed the greatest lumber merger ever planned. At a meeting held in the Auditorium hotel, Frederick E. Weyerhaeuser, the lumber king of America, who has been designated the richest man in the world, was the principal factor. Capitalization at $300,000,000 was suggested.

The committee of twenty-five was appointed two weeks ago at a general meeting of the yellow pine manufacturers, held in St. Louis.

Conditions of the lumber trade and the supplies of material were considered at the meeting, which was preliminary to the convention of the Northwestern Lumbermen's association.

It was agreed that if the supply is not materially protected, a slight advance in raw and finished lumber may be expected.

"Forests which should be protected from needles destruction are allowed to be destroyed simply from non-interference either from the government or owners," declared the lumbermen. "All forests must be protected, cultivated and matured to the fullest, or the price of lumber and building material will go far beyond the ordinary purse."

WILL MAKE WINE.

Grape Juice for Foreign Element in Copper Country is Assured.

Houghton, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The manufacturer of wine for home consumption will shortly be in full blast in the Copper country. It is an industry peculiar to the district, and it has its inception in the fact that there exists a large foreign population which, previous to coming to America, had cultivated an insatiable tasts for the fermented juice of the grape. For the most part, the manufacture of the beverage is confined to Austrians and Italians, on whose tabes wine is never lacking, but many people of other nationalities also engage in the industry. As an illustration of the extent to which wine making is carried on in the copper region, it is estimated that at least 5,000,000 pounds of grapes were put through the presses for that purpose in Houghton county last fall. This is 2,500 tons. The great bulk of the luscious fruit comes from New York state, and it cost $55 to $60 per ton. Probably fully as many grapes will be consumed this yer.

MATERIAL VERY POOR

City Conference Committee Favors More Durable Pavements.

Would Have Wooden Sidewalks Done Away With Entirely.

More substantial sidewalks in the central part of the city and more durable street paving all over town are very badly needed, according to opinions expressed by members of the city conference committee, which held a meeting yesterday afternoon in Mayor Haven's office. The board of public works has in view much street improvement work for 1909, and President Olson told the committee yesterday that he would ask for a fund of $150,000 to defray expenses next year, which is a sum of about twice as large as that allowed for the present year.

Complaint is made that there has been too much of a tendency on the part of property owners to lay cheap paving, instead of them paying a little more to secure a better and more lasting material. The practice of getting cheap material is branded as being false economy, for more money is spent in repairs and renewals than the difference between the cost of low and high-priced pavement. The foolishness of putting in a cheap pavement in lieu of good pavement has been demonstrated on several of the downtown streets, it is explained, and the board of public works will henceforth recommend only the better grades of material for street improvement, particularly in the downtown section.

Criticism was offered yesterday over the fact that sidewalk owners in the central part of the city are allowed to repair old wooden walks with lumber from time to time, instead of beng compelled to do away with the old walks and substitute cement or some equally desirable material for them. There is an ordinance requiring that new walks shall be of cement or some such material, while the use of wood is barred, but it is permissaible to repair old wooden walks indefinitely. Thus it happens that there are many blocks of cement walks in the outskirts of Duluth while in the central portion of the city, there is block after block of unsightly wooden walks.

DIES IN TACOMA.

J. R. Campbell Formerly of Eau Claire Passes Away in Far West.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local Masonic lodge has received a telegram from Tacoma, Wash., telling of the death there of J. R. Campbell, formerly well known here, of heart failure, after an illness of about a year.

He is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter, who reside in Tacoma. The funeral will take place there.

Mr. Campbell left Eau Claire about two years ago. He had made a trip to Washington previously, and finally went thither with his family to make his home. He had been unable, on account of ill health, to engage in business for some time.

The deceased was a member of Eau Claire lodge, No. 112, F. and A. M.; also of the chapter and of the commandery.

Mr. Campbell was the Republican nominee for mayor of Eau Claire in 1897 and was defeated by William H Frawley (Democrat) by 1,849 to 1,687 votes. There was a third candidate in the field that year for mayor—Thorvildsen, Prohibitionist.

Lipps, the Thief River pitcher, proved invincible and was hit safely but once, while Shannon, the twirler for the Forks was touched up for seven safe hits. IS KILLED BY CURRENT Emil Holster is Electrocuted in Sight of His Wife.

Decedent Was in Act of Trimming an Arc Light.

Emil Holter, an arc light trimmer for the Duluth-Edison Electric company, was electrocuted on an electric light pole at the corner of Eighth street and Central avenue, West Duluth, last evening, where he had been called to fix an arc light. He fell to the ground, where his wife sat in a carriage waiting for him to complete his work.

While busy with the light and wires he came in contact with a heavy current of electricity, which passed through his body, causing him to drop to the street. Two doctors were summoned immediately, but they could do nothing. The body was removed to W. H. Richter's undertaking rooms, where the coroner conducted his examination.

Mr. Holter was an old resident of West Duluth, having lived there eighteen years, the past sixteen of which he has been in the employ of the electric company. He was 47 years old, and leaves a wife and ten children residing at 503 North Fifty-ninth avenue west. He was prominent in West Duluth lodge work, being conductor of the Fraternity lodge, No. 8, Modern Brotherhood of America, and also a member of Old Hickory camp, No. 1556, Modern Woodmen.

BOY DROWNED.

Walter Showers Loses Life in St. Louis River.

While bathing, off the foot of Sixty-third avenue west, yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, Walter Showers, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Showers, 325 South Sixty-first avenue west, was drowned within a few feet of his 8-year-old companion, Maynard Bates.

The boy went down without uttering a sound. The first intimation that young Bates had of what had happened was when he noticed the inflated "water-wings" of his little friend floating free on the water. Some boys who were rowing nearby in a boat saw the drowning lad disappear and at the cry of Bates, hurried to the place, but were too late. The boy did not again appear on the surface. It is thought that he was taken with cramps.

The police department were notified, also the coroner and M. J. Filliatrault, and a search was instituted As the water was only four or five feet deep where the drowning took place, no hooks were used to recover the body, which was found by a young man by the name of Morris and John Winton.

Walter Showers was an only son of Mr. and Mrs. Showers and they are completely overcome with grief at his loss. He was a bright, manly little fellow, well liked by every one who knew him.

A Live Aggregation.

The Tigers of West Duluth are rapidly coming to the front as a real live aggregation of ball players. Not a boy on the team is over 12 years old, and they have as good or a better standing than any team of their age in the city. They are anxious to meet any team of their class at the head of the lakes. The team has won five straight games, the last two of which they played with the Young Eagles of Superior. This afternoon they take on the Cubs of Superior. Dalburn and Bolyea are the battery for the West Duluth boys.

A PRETTY COMEDY.

Young Ladies of West Duluth Give Creditable Performance.

In a pretty little one-act comedy, "Mrs. Plodding's Nieces," given last evening at the Great Eastern hall under the auspices of the St. James Catholic church, nine West Duluth young ladies acted their parts in a most charming and entertaining manner. Delia Foucault, as Mrs. Plodding, was a marked success. The following young ladies also performed with credit: Misses Mary Allen, Edith Cashin, Jennie Baudin, Agnes Ehr, Alice Sullivan, Nellie Sullivan, Loretta St. Germain, Anna Campbell.

Following the playlet a program was given of which the address of James P. Boyle was the feature. The others who took part in the program were: Prof. F. W. Riele, Miss Edith Cashin, Miss Effie Brotherton, Miss Emeline Brett, Neil Lauermann, Miss Mary Shessgreen, Miss Clara Kenny.

Changed His Mind.

Mike Sasso, who was arraigned yesterday before Judge Flack of the West Duluth justice court on the charge of having used abusive language to Angle Eputrusha, was given a fine of $5 and costs or an eight-day jail sentence. At the West Duluth police station, though he had $23 in his pocket, he decided to take the jail sentence, but at the jail he changed his mind and paid his fine, with an additional dollar added to the costs.

Murray Holds Maroons to Four Hits and Wins.

Koepping Returns to Game and Gets Two Doubles.

Winnipeg, Man., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Murray, who has been working poorly with a sore arm recently, was in good form yesterday and held the Maroons to four hits, the Sox winning a game by a score of 5 to 4.

S.S.S. THE CURE FOR SCROFULA

Swollen glands about the neck, weak eyes, pale, waxy complexions, running sores and ulcers, skin diseases, and general poor health, are the usual ways in which Scrofula is manifested. The disease being deeply intrenched in the blood often attacks the bones, resulting in White Swelling, or hip disease, and the scrofulous and tubercular matter so thoroughly destroys the healthful properties of the blood that Scrofula sometimes terminates in consumption, an incurable disease. The entire circulation being contaminated, the only way to cure the trouble is to thoroughly purify the blood and restore the circulation to a strong, healthy state. S. S. S. is the very best treatment for Scrofula; it renovates the entire blood supply and drives out the scrofulous and tubercular deposits. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and it not only goes right down to the very bottom of the trouble and removes the cause, but it supplies the weak, diseased blood with the healthful properties it is in need of, and in this way builds up weak, frail scrofulous persons and makes them strong and healthy. S. S. S. is a gentle, safe, vegetable preparation. Book on the blood containing information about Scrofula and any medical advice free.

THEOBALD FOR KRICK

Manager Williams of Sox Pulls off Trade at Winnipeg.

A New Third Baseman Signed and Henderson is Coming.

As a result of the failure of the Sox to make good on the Canadian trip, which has been disastrous thus far, there will be some changes in the team before it returns to Duluth to open with Fargo, July 30, at Athletic park. Manager Dave Williams has notified the owners here that he has traded Pitcher George Krick for Pitcher Theobald of Winnipeg, and has signed a third baseman from the Northwestern league to replace Baker.

Both Krick and Baker have been anxious to secure their release from the club. On account of their dissatisfaction, they have not been playing the game, of which they are capable and, though both are good men, they are of little use to the team. Krick has already been turned over to Winnipeg, but the new third baseman has not yet reported and Baker is still with the club.

Galen Henderson, the Winnipeg man, who was turned over to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast league in exchange for Piper and Theobald, has also signed a Duluth contract and will report to Williams at Fargo the latter part of this week. Henderson failed to make good in the Pacific coast, but he is fast enough for the Northern, can hit the ball, and will be a valuable addition to the Sox outfield. Hopkins, who has not been burning up the league to any great extent, will be let out, it is expected.

Though the chances of the Sox winning the pennant this year are much smaller now than they were months ago, the management is not going to lie down and let either Brandon or Winnipeg take it without a struggle. The Duluth team has already proved that it can beat both Brandon and Winnipeg, and there is always a chance that it will rush to the top. While that chance remains, every effort will be made to strengthen the team and the other clubs will always find the Sox worthy opponents.

The pitching staff is the principal cause for worry at present. Murray has had a sore arm, but yesterday's score indicates that he has come back into form. Brandt's work has been very mediocre all season. Thorsen is holding up well under hard work, and Theobald should win some games for the Sox. Another pitcher will probably be reported soon, so that the club may be on the safe side, prepared for emergencies.

Brandon is getting too far ahead in the race to be comfortable, and it is up to Fargo and Winnipeg to pull the leaders down in the next two weeks. The Sox open at Fargo Saturday for a long series, which should result in a boost for Duluth in the percentage column.

HIBBING WINS IN WILD GAME

Many Bases on Balls Given in First of Virginia Series.

Virginia, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a game in which thirteen bases on balls were issued by the two pitchers, and in which errors were numerous, Hibbing won from Virginia by a score of 10 to 4. The game was the first of a series of three in the summer schedule for the championship of the Mesaba range.

Gilligan pitched for Hibbing and Currie for Virginia. Both were hit hard, but the Hibbing hits were more opportune. Hits, errors and passes in the first inning netted Hibbing six runs, and the result was never very much in doubt after that.

WANT THEIR SALARIES.

Grand Rapids Central League Players Refuse to Travel.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 22.—The six players of the Grand Rapids Central league club, Pitchers Dickson, Sterzer and Hagerman, First Baseman Gill, Second Basean Noblett and Outfielder Moore who refused to accompany the team to Dayton Monday night because they allege Manager Phillip Arnold failed to pay them all their salary due July 15, were still here yesterday awaiting further developments. There was a revival of the effort made some time ago to organize a company to purchase Mr. Arnold's interest in the club. The former attempt failed because the local men considered the price too high.

CLUB OPENS ITS SEASON

"Round Robin" at the Grounds of New Longview Tennis Club.

Drawings for First Tournament to be Made in Few Days.

The new Longview Tennis club, the consolidation of the Endion Tennis club and the old Longview Tennis club, which was known as the Normal district club, is preparing to open its season and drawings will be made in a few days for the first tournament.

The new club will open the season this afternoon with a "Round Robin" at the club grounds, Twenty-fifth avenue east and Fourth street. The committee in charge has prepared a novel program, which will not be disclosed until unfolded to the guests. Every member of the club has been invited to attend and take his friends and a big crowd is expected to gather and give the season a proper opening.

The grounds have been put in fine shape and the courts are the best in the city. From now on, they will be available for private matches and tournament play and the club members believe they have enough summer weather before them to afford an enjoyable season of good sport.

The tournaments, which were features of the Endion Tennis club's activities at Tenth avenue east and Superior street in former years, will be pulled off at the new grounds this season. All of the best players in Duluth are members and they will be entered in the events. The tournament for the club championship will be held first and the open tournament will follow.

THREE YACHTS RACE FOR CUP

Third of Series for Vice-Commodore's Cup at Yacht Club.

The third race in the Duluth Yacht club series for the vice commodore's cup will be sailed this evening over the triangular course starting from and finishing at the clubhouse on Park Point.

There are three entries and each has already scored four points, so one of the boats will take the lead this evening. The boats are Freckles II, sailed by Robert Fisk and Chauncey Colton; Thistle, sailed by Fred Levin and E. A. Pierce; Florence, sailed by Traux brothers. The boats will get away from the starting line about 6 o'clock.

A regular Wednesday evening dancing party will be given at the Yacht club pavilion this evening.

GLEAMS in the SPORTING FOG.

The trading of Krick and the proposed canning of Baker will not make a hit with all the fans. Krick and Baker both have friends in Duluth who believe they have the ability and a howl will probably go up on Williams' letting them get away.

Krick and Baker really have the ability. Baker will not hit very much, but he will field beautifully around third base. Krick can pitch when he is right and will win a majority of his games, even though he has an unpleasant habit of getting clouted freely on the slightest provocation.

But, what good is any man on a club, when he will not give the best he has that his team may be successful? Krick has had a grouch all this season. His salary demands were refused at the beginning of the season, and he was suspended for failing to report, but was later reinstated. He was pitched indifferent ball all year, with but an occasional flash of his proper form. He has wanted his release and when a man wants his release, his club may as well give it to him, for he will never do the club any good. Theobald, though he may not be as good a pitcher, will work harder for the success of the Duluth team than Krick, and Krick will be in more congenial company at Winnipeg than here.

Baker hasn't played his game for the past two weeks. Even before he left here on the trip, he sulked and loafed around third base. It is said that on the trip, he has been lying down continually and also wants a release. The Sox will be better off without him. Unless every man is working with his teammates and trying to win, no team will win games. Williams may as well get Baker out of the way and cement his team more firmly.

Watch the motor boat racers, when they get properly going in the race for the supremacy of the Duluth harbor! Although Duluth has motor boats in greater number than any city of its size in the country, there are only four boats to be considered in the races to decide the fastest craft. Those four will be able to kick up more of a row when they break loose than a whole swarm of contestants in any other sport.

The owners of the North Butte and the Doman had it out last fall. After several races, the results of which were vigorously contested, the Doman was acknowledged by most people to be the winner. Now the owners of the North Butte are back in the field to regain the honors.

The usual course has been adopted again this year. The Doman was beaten last Sunday by Guy Warren's nameless wonder Immediately, Wade claimed that he struck a set-line, thus providing a reason for the defeat. He is anxious for another race and so is Warren, so the merry war is on.

The Robert B, Julius H. Barnes' new craft, and Warren's nameless wonder are both trim lookers and speedy travelers. They are smaller than either the Doman or the North Butte, but size doesn't count much in a motor boat race. The races will be worth seeing when the four boats get together, and motor boat racing will be a fine addition to Duluth's list of summer sports.

The man who hasn't seen Cornish wrestling at its best, has missed a sport treat. It is about the richest thing going outside of a good prize fight. Put the real Cornishmen, who learned the game in Merrie England, the sawdust together, equipped with jackets and egged on by crowds of friends and they can furnish more entertainment in a half hour than any other kind of wrestling can in a whole day. There is science, strength and skill in the game and the best man usually wins. There is nothing like it in the American game and the native American usually enjoys the "Move around there, stickler" of the crowd as much as he does the wrestling itself.

Governor Sarles Wins 2:12 Pace After Sharp Contest.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 2:12 pace in which Governor Sarles and Daniel Webster were the contenders, furnished the feature of the card at the North Dakota state fair yesterday afternoon. The event went five heats and the finish of the last heat was so close that many of the crowd took exception to the decision of the judges giving the race to Governor Sarles.

TRASH'S RUN FEATURE.

Horse Has Hard Luck, But Comes Up and Wins Out.

Brighton Beach, July 22.—Threatening weather kept the attendance down at Brighton Beach yesterday when a very ordinary card was run off, but some interesting sport was witnessed. The feature of the day was the race run by Trash in the second event. She was off none too well and coming to the first turn was nearly knocked down, losing many lengths. When she recovered herself, the boy sent her after the field and at the head of the stretch was on even terms with the leader, Monocle. From there to the finish she gradually drew away by a couple of lengths.

TABLED BY THE COUNCIL

Alderman Tessman Will Have Chance to Amend Milk Ordinance.

Says He Will Present More Stringent Law Next Week.

VOTE WHICH "TABLED" MILK ORDINANCE AMENDMENT.

TO TABLE:	AGAINST:
Bloedel,	Kennedy,
Foubister,	McKnight,
Hogan,	Moore,
Jordan,	Shartel,
Mueller,	Trevillion.
Olson,	ABSENT:
Ribenack,	Fillatrault,
Tessman,	Moe.
Getchell,

Alderman Tessman led his cohorts against the milk ordinance amendment last evening and, as a result, it was laid on the table for a week, while Mr. Tessman and his friends prepare amendments which will make the ordinance more acceptable to "myself, and to the people," as Mr. Tessman put it. The much-discussed provision requiring the cooling of the milk to 50 degrees Fahrenheit within forty-five minutes after milking, and that providing for inspection of milk from outside dairies, were the clauses which Mr. Tessman particularly objected to, stating that the first was too stringent, while the second was inadequate. He expressed a willingness to "spend a couple of days" on the ordinance in order to get it into more satisfactory shape.

Led by Aldermen Moore and McKnight, those in favor of the ordinance amendment as at first proposed made a hard fight to get it passed last evening.

Mr. Moore made a strong appeal for its immediate passage. "The pressure of the special interests upon this council is persistent and it is strong," said Mr. Moore. "The people have to fight for their interest every time. The only interest which is represented persistently seems to be beer. Milk has to fight for it."

In justifying the council's right to regulate the milk dealers, Mr. Moore read from an editorial on the subject which appeared in The Herald, saying that it expressed his views better than he could himself. He asserted that the ordinance would not, as was claimed, create a practical monopoly, for it had been shown that the cost of cooling the milk was trivial. He said that the dairymen's claim that the price of milk would advance to 10 cents per quart was absurd.

Mr. Tessman then proposed an amendment to the amendment, making 60 degs. instead of 50 degs. the point to which the milk should be cooled. He stated however that he would not support the amendment even then.

Dr. Patten then took the stand for his ordinance. He offered in evidence affidavits from his inspectors, showing that the milk could be cooled for 50 degs. in five or ten minutes with the aid of lake water, also with the water from most of the wells and springs in the outskirts of the city. The milkman would not, he claimed, be subjected to much hardship on this score. They would need ice only when milk is carried in their wagons. He also offered in evidence portions of letters from the St. Paul and Minneapolis health commissioners warmly recommending the amendment.

Alderman McKnight took the government reports, and presented to the council their recommendation, showing how they argued for the milk amendment now before the council. He stated that they must outweigh the testimony of any single expert in the country. He claimed that the present ordinance covered the question of the outside dealer and did not discriminate against the local man, because the inspection of milk coming into the city would be sufficient to keep the outside dairyman up to the mark.

Alderman Ribenach had been converted into a doubting Thomas by an expert whom he had talked to Monday. This gentleman told him that the milk should be aerated, and that this process was more necessary than cooling and Mr. Ribenack said that he was not sure that the present ordinance was right.

Upon Mr. Tessman's motion to lay the amendment on the table for one week while changes could be made in it, the vote was as follows:

Yeas—Bloedel, Foubister, Hogan, Jordan, Mueller, Olson, Ribenack, Tessman, Getchell.

Nays—Kennedy, McKnight, Moore, Shartel, Trevillion.

Absent—Fillatrault, Moe.

"Now, said Mr. Tessman, when the milk ordinance amendment had been laid at rest, "I'd like to know what happened to that garbage ordinance. I'd like to see that fixed up, too."

The garbage ordinance was still in the hands of the committee on ordinances and resolutions, however, so could not be taken up.

Alderman Shartel's moving picture ordinance became a law last evening. The law requires certain precautions in the handling of the inflammable films used in the kinetoscope machines, and demands other precautions on the part of these theaters which were not required prior to its passage, because they did not come under the clause of the regular theaters with stages. Upon Alderman Shartel's statement that the ordinance did not require anything which the moving picture men deemed unreasonable, it was passed unanimously.

The council passed a resolution recommending that provision be made in next year's appropriation for a concrete bridge over Tischer's creek. The city engineer was also instructed to report on the cost of a steel bridge over Oregon creek on Third street.

The city engineer was requested to report on the cost of illuminating the aerial bridge, both with simple illumination, so as to bring out the outlines of the structure, and with the words Duluth on each side of the span.

No action was taken on the proposed extension of the franchise of the Duluth telephone company to permit them to charge a toll for Superior service, as the council expressed a desire to have this matter put up to the people in the matter of a special election before action is taken.

President Getchel announced the appointment of Aldermen Tessman, Ribenack and Foubister to the committee which will confer with the conference committee and will report on the improvements necessary for next year at the meeting of the council Aug. 24.

"E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen—In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. In the spring of 1902 I bought a bottle of Kodol and the benefit I received all the gold in Georgia could not buy. Yours very truly, O. N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., Aug. 27, 1906." Sold by all druggists.

LIVES IN MONKEY HOUSE.

Professor Haggerty of Harvard Devoting His Time to Study.

New York, July 22.—Prof. Melvin E. Haggerty of Harvard university has installed himself in the monkey house of the Bronx zoo for a ninety days' study of simian character. The east room of the monkey pavilion has been fitted up with elaborate appointments to assist Prof Haggerty in his observations. There he will spend many hours each day getting a line on the monkey stream of consciousness.

Prof. Haggerty will take phonographic records of monkey chattering, but not with the idea of reducing it to a vocabulary. In the room where Mr. Haggerty will make his headquarters many scientific instruments are being installed. There will be tables for the educated chimpanzees and flying rings for the common baboons.

The Harvard savant desires to get the monkeys' legs at every possible angle of action and repose. He will study them for hours when they seem in a state of profound reflection, and test the development of their attention, the infinitesimal length of their sustained thought, dope out what excites their rage and impels their expressions of joy, try their passion for music with fiddle and bass drum, with cymbals and brass. Also, the monkeys will be given picture books in color and black and white. Mirrors will be set about the room to determine if they are vain or modest.

THE MARKET IS SOLD OFF

Wheat Goes Lower on Bearish Crops News and Liquidation.

Flax is Well Bought and Closes Up in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 22.—Showers in the Northwest caused the dumping of long lines of wheat on the American markets, and in the face of this and other bearish influences prices went off everywhere.

The feeling about the Northwestern crop was bearish during the entire session, and the market had a soft tone from the outset. The foreign markets were weaker at the close as well.

Liberal car receipts at Minneapolis and Chicago were influences for lower prices, particularly in the nearby months at Duluth and Minneapolis.

Liverpool closed ⅛d to ⅞d lower; Paris unchanged to ¼c higher; Antwerp 1⅛c lower to ⅝c higher; Berlin 1⅝c higher—caused by unfavorable weather in Germany—and Budapest 1½c higher.

The July option closed 1c lower in Duluth, ⅜c lower in Chicago, 2⅞c lower in Minneapolis, ¾c lower in New York, 1⅝@1¾c lower in Kansas City and ⅛c lower in Winnipeg. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—There was steady undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening, although values were ⅛@¼d lower. The strength in Americans yesterday was offset by the fact of private cables reporting favorable crop conditions in America, with only slight deterioration in spring wheat states. During the morning, offerings became larger and rather pressed for sale and values further declined ⅛@¼d, due to a small demand for both cargoes and parcels and the activity of the spot market. At midday, the market was dull and from ⅛@½d lower than Tuesday.

"Corn was strong with opening values unchanged. Later, prices advanced sharply, gaining ½d as shorts started covering, owing to the scarcity of contract corn, and the firmness of first hand La Plata offerings."

Car receipts at Duluth were 46 against 126 last year, and at Minneapolis 201 against 143 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 247 against 269 last year. Chicago received 163 against 32 last year. Winnipeg received 45 against 210 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,211,000 bus, last year 601,000 bus. Shipments 469,000 bus, last year 315,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 92,300 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 404,000 bus, last year 421,000 bus. Shipments 447,000 bus, last year 467,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 600 bus.

Wheat was quiet in Duluth and sold at lower prices during the entire session. July wheat opened ½c lower at $1.13½, declined to $1.13, rallied to $1.13¾ and closed at $1.13 nominal, a loss of 1c from yesterday. September wheat opened ¼c lower at 98c, declined to 97⅜c, rallied to 97⅝c and closed at 97⅝c, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed unchanged and cash wheat was selling on a basis of 3½c over July for No. 1 northern.

October flax opened ¼c lower at $1.19¾, advanced to $1.21¾ and closed at $1.21, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. The other flax options were inactive.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Trading in Wheat Dragged, With Moderate Decline in Prices.

Chicago, July 22.—Sentiment in the wheat market today was inclined to be bearish, owing to the continued favorable wather for the crop in the Northwest, and because of a moderate decline at Liverpool. Pit traders were the chief sellers, but offerings were not heavy and trading was of a dragging character. September opened unchanged to ¼c lower at 91@91¼c and sold off to 90⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 410 cars against 260 cars last week and 301 cars one year ago.

Under continued selling September dropped to 90¼c and closed weak, ⅝@⅞c under yesterday at 90⅝@¾c.

The corn market was weak despite a ½d advance at Liverpool the easier tone of wheat and continued favorable weather for the new crop offsetting the firm cables. September opened unchanged at 76½c and sold off to 75¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 114 cars with 11 of contract grade.

The corn market steadied in sympathy with oats and after touching 76c, September closed 1⅛c lower, at 75⅝c.

Shorts and commission houses were again active bidders for September oats, and as a result, themarket in general was strong. September opened a shade to ¼@⅜c higher at 44@44⅛c and advanced to 44⅝c. Local receipts were 84 cars Provisions opened firm on a 5c advance in live hogs, but the market soon weakened on liberal realizing sales. September pork opened unchanged to 2½c higher at $15.82½@15.85 and sold off to [illegible] Lard opened 2½@5c higher at $9.40 and declined to $9.35. Ribs opened unchanged to 2½c higher, at $8.85@8.87½ and sold off to $8.82½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Lower Cables Throw Wheat Off Though Prices Remain Stubborn.

Minneapolis, July 22.—Lower cables threw the market off shortly after the opening. The winter wheat movement had a weakening effect. Prices remained stubborn because there was no rain last night in North Dakota, and fair and warmer weather seemed probable. On the other hand, the news from the spring wheat crop was much better on the whole, even the dry country around Devils Lake holding its own because temperatures have remained low and the weather cool. Minneapolis elevator stocks decreased 300,000 bus for four days. Receipts today 201 cars against 143, and in Duluth 146 against 126. The late report of 100 loads for export was strengthening, but the market was listless all day and not active in either direction. Near the close the tone was easy, notwithstanding the bullish export news. July opened $1.15; high, $1.15; low, $1.13⅛; close, $1.13⅛. Old July, high, $1.15½; close, $1.13½. September opened 97¼c; high, 97⅞c; low, 96⅝c; close, 97⅛c. Old September, high, 98⅛c; close, 97⅛c.

The cash market was quotable at new July prices: No. 1 northern and 2c under for No. 2 and there was a fair demand. Close No. 1 northern, $1.13 spot; $1.10½ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.11 spot, $1.08½ to arrive, No. 3 wheat, $1.07@1.09.

No. 3 yellow corn, 80¼c.

No. 3 white oats, 54⅛@54⅝c.

No. 2 rye, 68⅝@69⅝c.

Barley receipts, 13 cars. New barley is being cut and the expectation of a good early movement is causing buyers to holf off. Prices today were 1@2c lower. Close, 54@62½c.

Flax receipts, 26 cars. Continued steady market, with fair demand at 1c under Duluth September. Close, $1.21.

Bran in bulk steady at $19.20@20, millers' quotations.

Flour is quotably firm at the further slight advance in patents made yesterday. All the millers reported demand a little lighter today. Shipments 33,305 barrels. First patents, $5.75@5.90; second patents, $5.65@5.80; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The firm feeling in the egg market continues, the hen fruit bringing 20c to 21c a dozen on the local market today. Lemons are high, owing to the firm demand throughout the country, and there is a stronger undertone to the peach market. Potatoes are slightly easier.

PHOTOGRAPHS ON APPLES.

It is a simple matter to print photographs upon the ordinary red apple, the tomato and smooth skinned pumpkin if one goes about it in the right way. The skin of an apple, tomato or pumpkin, particularly at a certain stage of its ripening, bears a strong resemblance to photographic plates and printing paper, for the reason that it is sensitive to light. It is the sensitiveness that where a leaf intervenes so as to cut off the light close to the pumpkin, apple or tomato, will print a silhouette as it were in green upon the red or yellow ground.

"I first hunted out an apple having a leaf close to its surface," says a writer in St. Nicholas, "placed a piece of glass beneath the leaf and on it cut my initials with a sharp knife. I then removed the glass and pasted the leaf firmly to the apple so it would not be blown away by the wind, and left it for a week.

"At the end of that time I took the apple, soaked off the leaf and found my initials in bright red on a light green ground having the outline of the leaf. My success prompted me to try an actual photograph, or one printed from a photographic negative.

"I selected some apples of the red variety that were yet green and encased them in bags made of the black paper in which plates and paper are usually packed. These bags were left on for ten days to exclude the light and add to the sensitiveness of the surface.

"At the end of this time the bags were removed and film negatives were pasted in position by using the white of an egg. This white of an egg I found lated to be the only adhesive that would not show in the print.

"In order that all except the image when printed might be green, the apples were again enclosed in the protecting bags, this time an opening a little larger than the portrait being cut opposite the film. This acted much as would a vignetting device over a printing frame and greatly enhanced the results.

"Other apples recorded negatives made by scratching monograms, initials and sketches, in spoiled films with an etching knife and attached in the same manner, and provided with the same protection for the remainder of the surface. The richness of color and wealth of detail that can be secured in this way is astonishing.

"A week was allowed for printing. The fine, deep red of the picture upon the delicate green of the ground must be seen to be fully appreciated. Only nature could give just the exact tones of the two colors that would harmonize so perfectly. The method for printing on tomatoes or pumpkins is the same as for apples."

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Became Animated on the Standard Oil Decision.

Rise in New York Central Feature of Final Hour.

New York, July 22.—The tone of the opening stock market today was very irregular and the dealings quite active. Reading, Colorado & Southern and New York Air brake advanced 1 and Illinois Central and Amalgamated Copper ¾. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred declined 1 and Denver & Rio Grande and Westinghouse Electric ¾.

Prices moved upward after the opening, but with the encounter of realizing sales the tone became irregular again. Westinghouse Electric scored an extreme gain of 14¾, with jumps of 3 points between sales. General Electric was rushed up 4 points, New York Air Brake 5½ and Allis Chalmers preferred 1½. These erratic movements had a rather disturbing effect on sentiment, and Westinghouse Electric relapsed 8¼ points before the expiration of the hour.

The market sprang into animation when it became known that the decision imposing the $29,240,000 fine on the Standard Oil company had been reversed on appeal. The bulge in prices was availed of for extensive distribution of speculative holdings, and prices soon began to run off. Union Pacific, St. Paul, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific and Reading were rushed up 1⅜@1½. Prices steadied and the market was quiet at noon. Bonds were firm.

In the outside market Standard Oil stocks rose 14 points to 660. Prices advanced again on the stock exchange but did not hold.

Prices fluctuated with much uncertainty. Great Northern preferred rose 1; American Telephone 1⅜, United States Pipe preferred, 2; Railway Steel Spring, 3½, and American Agricultural Chemical preferred 5¼.

The market closed strong and animated. A rise of 3¾ in New York Central was a feature of the final hour. National Biscuit preferred rose 3¾; Illinois Central, 3¼; Louisville & Nashville and Amalgamated Copper, 2; Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis preferred, 1½; Atchison preferred, 1¼, and Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, American Locomotive and Anaconda, 1. The general list hardened to about the top level.

Copper Gossip.

Boston, to Paine,, Webber & Co.: The decision in the Standard Oil case gave the market a good life and the strength was well maintained to the close. Amalgamated closed very strong and should be the leader tomorrow. Copper Range advanced to 76 on good buying. Old Dominion was taken in hand and is a favorite amongst the local traders, however, we would sell it on any sharp bulge as it has poor market. North Butte made a new high record for the year.

ENGLAND'S VAST EGG HUNGER.

Raising eggs for the English market offers a great future to French farmers, according to an article by G. Labadie-Lagrave published in a recent number of the Figaro. England consumes 4,400,000,000 eggs a year, he says, and the demand for real new laid eggs is far in excess of the supply. This is where the opportunity for France comes in, he thinks.

The hens of England itself, after reserves have been set aside for new crops of chickens, send 2,270,000 eggs to market every year. The balance of 2,130,000,000 comes from abroad. It is a fiction of London dealers that they come from Belgium and Holland. They don't, Lagrave says, they come from almost any other country, even Egypt, Morocco and Siberia.. They are called Belgian because Belgium is so near they can pretend to be fresh.

As a matter of fact, the African eggs are not imported to be eaten, "even by the poor." They are chiefly sold to bookbinds, who use them, Lagrave says, to make the leather they use more supple. But eggs from Italy and Hungary and vast quantities from Russia, even from Siberia, are sold for consumption as German or Swedish, and are bought at low prices by bakers and confectioners who are not particular.

The fine West end bakeries in London advertise that they use only English eggs and they generally live up to their declarations. But for some classes of confectionery the Spanish egg is in special demand. It has a yolk of deep orange hue and when used in cakes gives them a richness of color and flavor that cannot be attained in any other way. They are the product of the black Andalusian hen and expeditious methods of shipment are used to get them to London.

There are several retail purveyors in London whose trade calls for at least 40,000 fresh eggs a week. The surplus from the British henneries when the rest of the country is provided for is totally unequal to supplying the demand. Sweden, being cold, is not a first rate egg producing country, and the steamer service to England is inadequate. Germany is a great egg eating country and practically uses up all she produces. America can send inferior grades, but of course not newly laid eggs. Holland and Belgium produce only a few millions annually above their own needs. Danish eggs are not popular in England because of their peculiarly pale color.

Thus the consumption of fresh eggs is actually restricted in England by the present impossibility of supplying the market. Lagrave therefore urges the small French farmers within a couple of hundred miles of the Channel ports to go heavily into chicken raising with a view to the production of eggs. He urges them further to raise hens of black or brilliant plumage so as to get eggs with dark yellow shells and yolks, as these sell in London at from eight to ten cents a dozen at wholesale in advance of the pale varieties.

TRICK ON A THIEF.

New York Sun: "A short while before I reformed," said the man who had spent much of his early life in jail, "I had an experience that shook my faith in human nature. Going uptown one night in the Sixth avenue elevated train. I extracted from a man's pocket a letter and $50. I hadn't wanted the letter, but it was so tangled up with the bills that I couldn't help taking it too. After I once got it out of the man's pocket I couldn't very well put it back, so I kept it. Unfortunately I read it.

"It was a pathetic letter. Even a heart of stone couldn't hold out against an appeal of that kind. It had been written by a women who evidently had some claim on the man. She was in deep trouble. The letter related in touching simplicity a story of sickness, want and death. The writer implored the man to aid her and her family, and it was clear that the $50 I had relieved him of had been scraped together to send to her.

"Well, with that $50 in my pocket and that woman's letter on my mind I put through the most miserable night of my existence. I hadn't much of a conscience left, but what little bit I had was hard at work. Even when I dropped off to sleep I was tormented with dreams of that poor woman. By morning the strain had told on me. I couldn't stand it to keep that money in my possession another hour. The man's address was on the letter and I wrote to him, enclosing the $50 and the letter that had brought me to that softened state. I did even more than that. I enclosed $5 of my own. I told the man that I was about as low as they make 'em, but I wasn't low enough to keep money that had been meant for those poor souls.

"For obvious reasons I did not give my name and address. I was satisfied with doing good. I did not want to be thanked. I wanted no notoriety. On account of my obscure position it was impossible for the man to communicate with me if he had wished to do so. However, I did hear from him again, just a week before I went out of business for good. It was what I heard then that made me doubt all mankind.

"I learned that that letter was a kind of financial life preserver. The man always carried it wrapped up with whatever cash he happened to have on hand. A sister-in-law of his out in Indiana wrote a fresh copy and mailed it to him every week, so it would always look nice and new and prevent suspicion of its being a fake. You see, that fellow reckoned the chances were 10 to 1 on even the most hardened jailbird being melted by that appeal and returning the money. He guessed right, too. Is it any wonder that I have been synical ever since? To see a nice, respectable man stoop to such trickery is enough to sour the most trusting disposition."

WITH A BACTERIOLOGIST.

A lawyer who had just returned from a Western city where he was interested in litigation affecting the local water works system was telling his partners his experience, and remarked that he had made a firm resolution never to invite a baterlologist or an analytical chemist to luncheon again, says the New York Sun.

"The thing happened very naturally," said the lawyer. "The chemist, who happens to be one of the leading experts in the West on water analysis and is also professor of chemistry in one of the leading colleges out there, was called by my clients to give expert evidence. We left the courtroom for luncheon at the same time one day, and, of course, I invited him to go with me.

"The chemist accepted and proved to be a delightful sort of person while we were waiting for luncheon to be served. He told me, in his breezy Western way, about things that interested me, and I was certain we were going to become firm friends, when the waiter began to bring on the food.

"We had both ordered oyster soup and I fell to with vigor, because I had been talking most of the forenoon and had worked up an appetite. Without a word of warning the expert chemist opened up.

" 'I have never enjoyed oysters much since my friend Prof. ——, bacteriologist of the —— Medical college, told me the result of some typhoid tests he had been making with oysters,' said the chemist. 'I will spare you the awful truth about oysters, because you appear to be fond of them, but really I think they are very dangerous.'

"Naturally I didn't relish those oysters as much as I expected to, and I sidetracked them as soon as possible for the next course. A perfectly harmless looking piece of roast beef came next, and immediately the chemist commented on how much tuberculosis there was existing in the herds of the cattle throughout the immediate vicinity and said he had been reliably informed that the government inspection of meat was far from what it should be.

"My roast beef immediately took on a peculiar flavor that seemed very suspicious, and I ate very sparingly of it.

"So it went all down the bill of fare. Articles of food that had been favorites from my youth caused the chemist to turn up his nose, because he had expert knowledge of a most derogatory kind about them. I was fast getting the impression that I only thought I was hungry, when I spied the ice cream and congratulated myself that here at least was something I could partake of heartily and be assured that I was safe.

"I had no more than started on the ice cream when the chemist said:

" 'You wouldn't eat that ice cream if you knew what was in it.'

"I didn't wait for any more. I suddenly remarked that I had a lot of work to do on my afternoon's summing up of the water works case, and, grabbing my hat I fled, making a silent resolve that while expert chemical and bacteriological knowledge was very good in its place, I didn't care to have it served with my lunch."

ATTACKED BY BEES.

Rarely has a human being been in a more painful predicament than that in which a young man named Trunkett found himself recently, says the Sydney News.

While robbing a bee hive which was built in the fork of a tree forty feet from the ground in Wungaretta, Australia, Trunkett who was minus his hat, coat and boots, was completely smothered by the enraged insects. For ten minutes he remained thus, unable to help himself, until some friends saw his plight and by means of a rope hoisted up to him a bag.

With this the unhappy victim beat some of the insects off, and then wrapping it round his head slid down the rope to the ground, where he fainted. For half an hour he remained unconscious, during which time his friends by vigorously rubbing whisky into his skin succeeded in drawing most of the poison from his stings, which amounted to several hundreds.

FARMERS UP AGAINST IT.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 22.—With approximately 30,000 men needed, the harvest only a few weeks distant and the railroads offering no special inducement in the way of cheap transportation, the farmers of Minnesota and North Dakota face what may develop to be a most serious dilemma—a bountiful harvest and insufficient help to garner it.

DULUTH DAIRIES ARE IN HORRIBLE CONDITION

Majority of Milkmen Have No Regard for Cleanliness.

Revolting Methods of Handling, Straining and Storing Milk.

Dairies supplying Duluth with milk are in horrible shape as regards sanitary conditions. Inspector R. W Luxon, employed by the city health department, in inspecting fifty dairies found thirty-five in bad condition. He says there are only four establishments in the entire city that can be placed in the excellent class.

"I used to be very fond of milk, but since I became milk inspector in Duluth, three months ago, I cannot drink a drop of the stuff," said Mr. Luxon this morning. "My stomach turns at the thought. Conditions in many of the dairymen's stables are revolting. Some of the milkmen, in handling the product, have as much regard for cleanliness as if they were handling a ton of coal.

"All they think of is getting the money. They give sanitary conditions no consideration. But we are after them now, and many improvements are being brought about. We need a new ordinance, but until we get it we intend to make the dairymen live up to the old ordinance, which the most decidedly have not been doing in the past."

Mr. Luxon never lets a dairyman know when he is coming. He times his visit so as to arrive at milking time, and thus he is able to get first-hand information. He says it is a common thing to see milkmen dipping their dirty hands in a pail of milk as they draw away at the udders of a cow, and that in numerous instances on his present tour of inspection, he has found the hired help, and the proprietors themselves, using so much vaseline on their hands that it dropped in a constant stream from the cows' udders into the steaming pails of milk.

The inspector had one of his chief troubles in trying to get the dairymen to strain the milk properly. He says that in a great many cases metallic strainers are not employed at all, and the cloths which are used in lieu of them are so black with filth that the dirt drops into the cans at every pouring, and leaves a sediment on the bottom of every glass of milk taken from the can. He found cloths that had not been washed or renewed for a week or more, but which had been in use night and morning since being put on the can.

In one place several cats came into the barn while the milkman was at his evening work. The hired men took the tops off of milk cans, filled them with milk and then set them down for the cats to drink.

Mr. Luxon says it is a fact that in the case of one cover which had some milk left in it after the cat had finished, the contents were dumped back into the can with the other milk which was to be sold in Duluth the next day.

He says that in no instance were the covers washed after the cats were through with them. He cited this merely as an example of the general carelessness of dairymen in regard to cleanliness.

Mr. Luxon directs sharp criticism against numerous dairymen whom he found storing marketable milk in sleeping rooms of the house, or in rooms directly adjoining an opening into stables where all the cows are kept, so that all the odors of the stable, and even the breaths of the cows, may enter the milk room. He found other instances where the milk house was used as an all around storehouse for vegetables, and saw cans of milk standing on one side of the room, while a few feet distant were piles of half-rotten potatoes and other vegetables. Oil cans smelling of kerosene, old clothes, etc., were found in the same rooms. Some of these buildings had windows opening on manure piles.

Places where there was no water on the premises, the inspector saw men using one can full of water to rinse perhaps eight or ten cans. The "clean" condition of the last five or six cans in the series set their cans of milk in water until ready for delivery, and some of these pools were found to be so old that they emitted foul odors, and were covered with green slime.

"Ninety per cent of the dairymen supplying the Duluth trade strain their milk in the stable, and leave it standing about in cans until the milking is completed, which may be two hours after the first can is filled," said Mr. Luxon.

SHERIFFS BRING SIX

Two Serious Offenders in Bunch From Range Towns.

Alleged Forger and Knife Wielder Await Action of Grand Jury.

Sheriff Bates and Deputy Sheriff Herman Oppel brought down a bunch of six prisoners from the range, over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern this morning. The lot included two men charged with serious offenses, and bound over to the grand jury by the municipal judges. They were Leonard Korte, who assaulted the Aurora marshall Sunday, and cut him badly with a knife and George Hamilton, the forger who gained notoriety by keeping blank checks concealed in his Bible.

Marshall Knute is still in the hospital as a result of his affair with Korte. He was attempting to arrest Korte for drunkenness when the latter pulled a knife and attacked him. He cut his face badly, and inflicted several ugly cuts in the abdomen. Knute had a gun, but refused to use it because Korte was a married man.

The municipal judge at Hibbing evidently thought that Hamilton was a serious offender of his class for he has placed him under $1,000 bonds in binding him over to the grand jury. It is probable that he will have to remain in jail until the next session of the grand jury as he is not known to have any friends in this section of the country.

The offense with which the complaint charges him is the forging of a check on the First National Bank of Duluth here, and passing it on Lundall & Son of Chisholm. Hamilton's alleged forgeries, are, however, much more extensive than this. He had $350 in cash when arrested.

Joe Rebrovich of Eveleth was in the bunch brought down this morning. He is sentenced to ninety days at hard labor, for having taken $17.50 from the cash register in Joe Gorske's saloon at Eveleth on the night of July 20.

William Hoffman will spend thirty days in the county jail for having obtained $2 fraudulently from M. Feldman of Eveleth.

William Martin and Olga Suomi, drunks, make up the others in the party brought down this morning.

DRAWS A FINE FOR ASSAULT

Frank Hoffman's Word Taken Against That of Hanifen.

"If I am any judge of human nature, you are lying," said Judge Windom in municipal court this morning, addressing Tim Hanifen, arrested on the charge of assaulting Frank Hoffman in the Exchange hotel, on East Superior street. There were no witnesses to the affair, and the court had to form an opinion from the stories told by the two men, which did not agree as to the facts. Hanifen was fined $15 and costs, with an alternative of fifteen days in jail. He paid the fine.

Hoffman dashed wildly into the police station about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, his face covered with blood, and flourishing a revolver about in his hand. He was greatly excited, and had difficulty in telling a connected story of what had occurred. Finally, however, he gained control of himself sufficiently to say that while he was half asleep in the Exchange hotel a few minutes before, Hanifen, thinking he was drunk, started to go through his pockets.

"I opened my eyes and accused him of trying to rob me," continued Hoffman, "and he struck me in the face before I had a chance to get off the bed. He struck me several times more, and then I ran upstairs to my own room and got this pistol, which I loaded. I pointed it at him and tried to make him come to the police station with me, but he refused."

The gun was turned over to the police. Hanifen claims Hoffman was drunk and struck him first becaus he told Hoffman that he had better leave his money with Mrs. Gleason, the landlady, for safe keeping.

It Can't Be Beat.

The best of all teachers is experience. C. M. Harden of Silver City, North Carolina, says: "I find Electric Bitters does all that's claimed for it. For Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles it can't be beat. I have tried it and find it a most excellent medicine." Mr. Harden is right; it's the best of all medicines also for weakness, lame back and all run down conditions. Best too for chills and malaria. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c.

THIEVES GET A SMALL HAUL

Break Into Store and Secure Only Eleven Cents.

Eleven cents was all thieves got as a result of labor expended in breaking into John J. Cullen's cigar store, 109 Lake avenue south, last night. That was all the money there was in the store.

The men gained entrance by prying open a window. They broke open the cash register, but in fear of just such a visit the proprietor had removed practically all the money. To blunt the edge of their disappointment, the thieves took several cigars and some tobacco.

Kodol will without doubt help anyone who has stomach disorders or stomach trouble. Take Kodol today for complete relief. Kodol is sold by all druggists.

SUPERIOR NEWS

FAILS TO ACT.

Council Does Not Consider Tower Avenue Lighting Plan.

From the present outlook, there is small prospect that the proposition of the Pintner Gasoline Lighting company for the lighting of Tower avenue will be taken by the city of Superior. The matter failed to come up last evening in the council, and it is expected that it will die with the publicity committee of the Commercial club, which had the matter in charge.

The Prindle company's proposition was to install the system for a total cost of $22,530. This is to be paid by the city in monthly installments, and at end of five years the city will own the plant. During this interval the Pintner company agrees to take care of the plant.

Under Suspicion.

Under suspicion of robbing the till at the Treadwell Shoe company's store Sunday night, Charles Dixon and William Brown, negroes, were locked up at the central police station yesterday. Both men are strangers in the city, and protest their innocence.

HAS POLITICAL AMBITIONS.

Former Railroad Official Files for Legislative Position.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cal. E. Stone, for many years connected with the passenger departments of the St. Paul & Duluth and the Great Northern roads at St. Paul, but now engaged in the land business, has developed political aspirations and has filed as a Republican candidate for the house of representatives.

Mr. Stone was passenger agent of the St. Paul & Duluth road for a great many years and went with the railroad when it was absorbed by the Northern Pacific. Later he went to the Great Northern, and it was within the last two years that he resigned as general passenger agent of that road to take up his present business. He is a member of the Masons, the Mystic Shrine, the Elks and other organizations.

The thirty-sixth district was represented in the last legislature by Ambrose Tighe, and it has been reported that Mr. Tighe will not be a candidate again, although he has not yet declared his intention one way or the other. Mr. Stone, it is undersood, has been engaged for some time in a quiet canvass among his personal friends.

CROKER WAITED TWENTY YEARS TO PAY WHITNEY FOR COMING TO HIS AID

How the Tammany Boss Helped to Elect Cleveland to Presidency.

Whitney Had Saved Him From False Charge of Murder.

Story in August American Magazine Never Before Published.

New York, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—An extraordinary story of how Richard Croker, the Tammany boss, helped William C. Whitney to elect Grover Clevand to the presidency in 1892, after Tammany had made a bitter fight against him for the nomination, is told in the August number of the American Magazine. The story has never before been published. Mr. Whitney sat in his room in Chicago, wondering how he was going to elect Mr. Cleveland. What if Tammany Hall should bolt? While he was pondering dolefully the possibilities of the situation, a knock came on the door, and Richard Croker stepped into the room.

"Well, Croker," said Mr. Whitney, "we've beaten you, but we had to do it. I hope there is no bitterness. We must all turn in now and elect the ticket."

"Mr. Whitney," said the Boss, "I just come over to tell you that New York is all right. You needn't be afraid about that. Good day."

And he stepped out before there was a chance to thank him.

Mr. Whitney then begn to have confidence and started at once to plan

GUFFEY UPHELD BY DEMOCRATS

State Committee Recognize Him as Pennsylvania's Leader.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 23.—The Democratic state committee yesterday recognized Col. James M. Guffey of Pittsburg as the leader of the Democracy of Pennsylvania, despite the fact that he was ousted from the state chairmanship at Denver, and, while it indorsed the candidates on the national ticket, it voiced in strong terms its disapproval of the unseating of the delegates by the credentials committee at Denver.

The meeting was attended by seventy-six out of the eighty-four members of the committee. They not only proclaimed their fealty to Guffey, by adopting resolutions in which he was praised for his work for the party and his leadership was upheld, but a resolution intended to secure recognition of J. Kerr, the sitting member of the national committee, was laughed at when presented by a delegate who was a personal friend of Kerr.

As a result of the meeting, Kerr's supporters will either have to accept Guffey as state leader or form a state organization of their own. This is foreshadowed in lengthy statements given out by Kerr and Jere S. Black, president of the Bryan league.

British Vessel Brings a Ghastly Story From Interior of Congo.

Sole Survivor Lost His Reason by the Terrible Ordeal.

London, July 23.—The Elder Dempster liner Albertville brought details of the terrible disaster on the river Congo, involving the wreck of the steamer Villa de Bruges and the loss of between seventy and eighty lives.

The vessel was on the voyage from Stanleyville to Leopoldville, and had called at Dumangi. Shortly after the resumption of the voyage, however, the vessel encountered a violent tornado. Capt. Lundgren, who was in command, decided to seek the shelter of the shore, but the tempest increased in fury, and he was unable to carry out this design.

The storm drove the vessel on to a sand bank, and the ship eventually overturned.

In addition to Capt. Lundgren, who

ONE BANDIT IS KILLED

Boston Police Riddle Desperado With Bullets in Cemetery.

Second One Believed to be Wounded, Third Under Arrest.

Boston, July 23.—After three deadly battles between three desperadoes, the police and a small army of citizens, the first encounter being late Tuesday night in a barroom, the second last evening in the peaceful streets of Jamaica Plains and the third early today in the quietude of a cemetery, one of the bandits was riddled with bullets and killed, a second, believed to be wounded, was being searched for in the cemetery at 8 o'clock this morning, while the third was taken last evening at the South station.

The desperadoes left behind them, over their trail of a mile and a half, two dead and eleven wounded. All are believed to be foreigners.

The desperado captured is believed to be Guiseppe Devico. He is charged with murder, having been identified by four men as one of the three who "shot up" the saloon on Tuesday night.

The desperado's career of terror started on Tuesday night by the "shooting up" of the saloon of Winterston & McManus on Washington street. Shortly before the closing hour, when the bar room was full of men, three men, apparently Italians, made their appearance at the door and shouted, "All hands up!"

When the shooting was over it was found that Frank J. Drake had been killed, Patrick Doran had received a bullet in the abdomen, and Thomas Winterston

TIRED OF THE PANICKY TALK

Ingalls Says Whoever Wins Election Won't Upset Business.

Hot Springs, Va., July 23.—Melville E. Ingalls, formerly president of the Big Four and the Chesapeake & Ohio railroads, and still heavily interested in them and in other roads, said in an interview here that it will make little difference to the railroads of the country who is elected president this fall.

"If it is Bryan," he said, "there will be a —— of a time up there in Wall street for a month, and then things will return to normal. If Taft is elected there will not be any disturbance, but in a month after election it will come to the same thing, so far as the railroads are concerned, with either the winner.

"Taft is a wise man, a great man and of judicial temperament. There is no doubt that he will pursue the Roosevelt policies, but he will not talk as Roosevelt has done. After all, it was Roosevelt's talking and no this politics that did harm. It must be admitted that Roosevelt is wild for a president of the United States. He has not yet sobered.

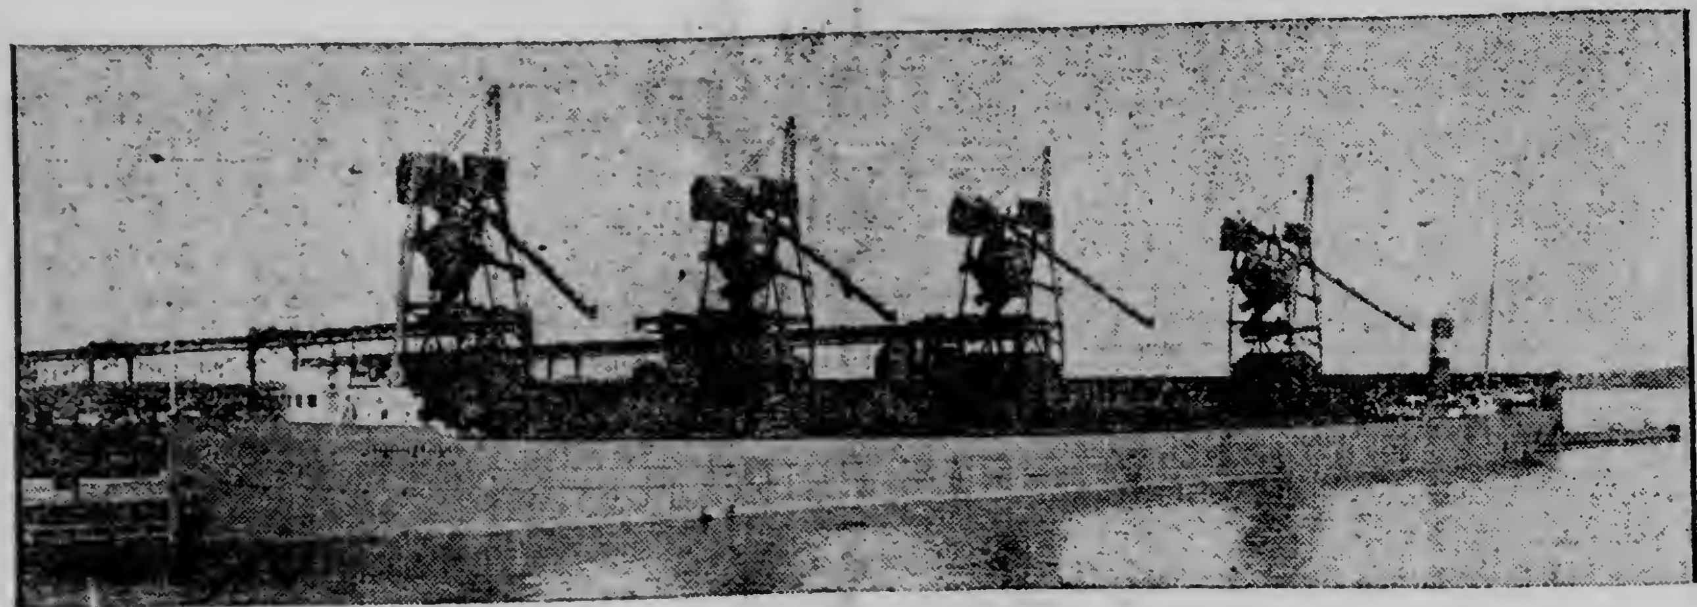
"It is nonsense to say that the election of any man will wreck the country. Andrew Johnson and Theodore Roosevelt put a great strain on it, but they were unable to affect it beyond quick recovery.

'One of my reasons for supporting Bryan is that I am tired of hearing the panicky talk about his election raising Ned with our prosperity. I don't believe it. Anyhow, I am boy enough still to want to try it and see. Besides, I believe that the moment Bryan entered the White House he would become a sober and conservative statesman."

FIRST CARGO OF IRON ORE FROM DULUTH ARRIVES AT GREAT GARY STEEL MILLS

Formal Opening of the New Harbor is Marked by Ceremonies Participated In by Many Prominent Men.

Freighter is Convoyed by Four Government Vessels Which Fire Salute as She Enters With Big Cargo.



BIG FREIGHTER E. H. GARY,
Which Left Duluth July 18 and Arrived at Gary, Ind., Thursday Morning With 12,000 Tons of Ore for the New Steel Mills.

Gary, Ind., July 23.—When the steamer E. H. Gary, direct from Duluth with the first cargo of iron ore, with which the great steel mills of the United States Steel corporation here will soon begin operations, poked its nose today into the new harbor here, a big American flag was run up on a high flagstaff at the harbor entrance.

The ceremony marked the formal opening of the new harbor. Instantly the American gunboat Wolverine, the only war vessel on the Great Lakes, responded with a salute of twenty-one guns. The naval training ship Dorothea and the revenue cutter Tuscarora followed with salutes as the Gary passed to its dock, carrying the ore weighing 12,000 tons.

Convoyed by Government Vessels.

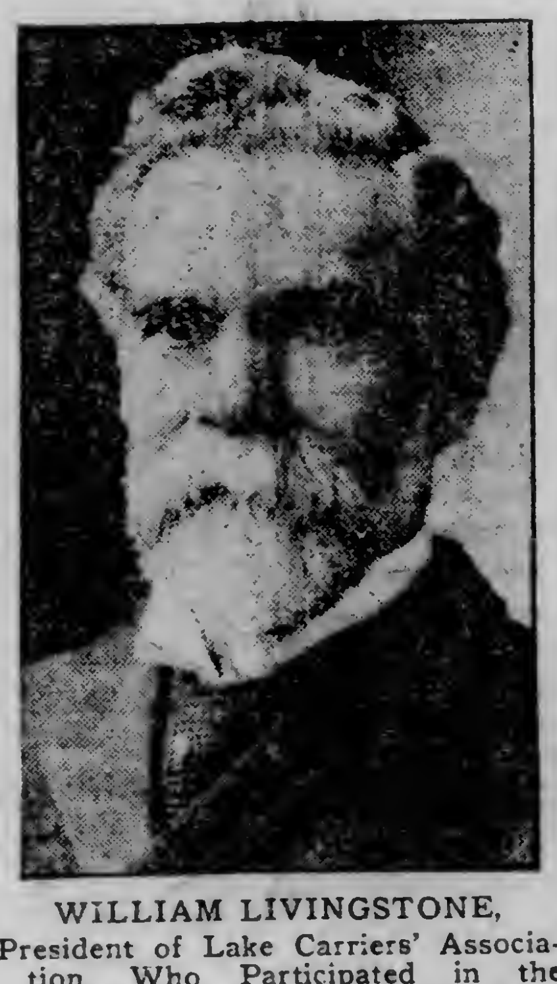
The Gary had been convoyed from the breakwater at South Chicago, fourteen miles away, by the four government vessels in service on Lake Michigan. On board were representatives of manufacturing, commercial and banking interests of the West, the party, in all, numbering about five hundred. Luncheon had been served en route.

As soon as the harbor had been reached the formal exercises began, the speakers talking from the steamer's bridge.

The guest of honor was John W. Kern of Indianapolis, Democratic candidate for the vice presidency. There was much curiosity as to what Mr. Kern would say at the formal opening of the harbor of what is primarily a "trust town," regarded as the very embodiment of trust energies, founded on the opposite principle of that enunciated by the Denver anti-trust plank.

Other Speakers Present.

Other speakers were James R. Mann and E. D. Crumjacker, members of congress from the Calumet region; William Livingstone of Detroit, president of the Lake Carriers' association, and representatives of the town of Gary and of the steel company.



WILLIAM LIVINGSTONE,
President of Lake Carriers' Association, Who Participated in the Events at the Opening of Gary Harbor.

Following the speeches, there was an exhibition of rapid work by the vessel unloaders in handling the cargo of the Gary. An inspection of the mills followed. Then there was a parade, headed by the marine and naval reserves, through the city of Gary, with a reception at the Gary hotel. Here Mr. Kern and others made brief addresses from the balcony of the hotel. All Lake county seemed to have come to the festivities, marking the beginning of the era of production of steel in the mills on which the United States Steel corporation has already spent more than $30,000,000, and with as much more to be spent before the mills are in full operation.

Before the close of navigation this year it is expected that more than 1,000,000 tons of iron ore will be unloaded from the vessels here.

STANDARD OIL CASE

Involving $29,240,000 Fine Will Not Go to Supreme Court.

New York, July 23.—It was learned today through sources identified with the Standard Oil company that the $29.240.000 case is not likely to go to the supreme court of the United States. Nor is it believed the case will be retried before Judge Landis, as the Standard Oil company would protest against it and ask that some other justice sit in the case. The issues as made up do not involve any constitutional questions such as are necessary to take the action to the supreme court.

SIR WILFRED LAURIER,
Canada's Premier, Who Welcomed the Prince of Wales to Quebec.

Will Preside Over the Opening Exercises of Anniversary.

Historical Pageant Representing City's History Feature of Day.

Premier Laurier Promises Unswerving Loyalty in Opening Speech.

Quebec, July 23.—The arrival of the prince of Wales was the signal for the official opening today of the celebration commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of Quebec by Champlain. The prince will preside in person over the opening exercises, receiving the foreign representatives at the foot of the Champlain monument and reviewing the historical pageant reproducing Quebec's history.

A fac-simile of Champlain's ship in which he crossed the Atlantic, the Don de Dieu, has been constructed, and on this the representative of Champlain and his crew, dressed in the costumes of the period, will sail up to the city at the point where Champlain landed and enter the structure reproducing the rough palisade fortress which the navigator first occupied. Champlain and the other historical personages will then file before the prince of Wales. The historical groups take in the romantic period of the French occupation of Canada, beginning with Jacques Cartier and his early adventurers, down to the battle between the armies of Montcalm and Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham. The groups are presented on a scale of lavish mag-

Police Find August Eberhard, Wounded, at Patterson, N. J.

New York, July 23.—August Eberhard, nephew of Ottillie Eberhard, the Austrian woman who was shot to death Saturday evening near Hackensack, N. J., was taken into custody today by the police of Paterson, N. J. Eberhard was found lying on a lawn in front of a farmhouse in the Totowa section of the city. He was suffering from a wound in one leg, which the police believe he might have received at the time his aunt and cousin were shot. The young man, it was said, when arrested admitted his identity. The police are further examining Eberhard, in an effort to get his story of his disappearance from the scene of the fatal shooting.

AMAZING PLOT ACCUMULATES

Another Woman Asked to Give False Evidence Against Gould.

New York, July 23.—With another witness found who alleges she was approached with a proposal to give false evidence against Frank J. Gould, the young millionaire, who is being sued for divorce by Mrs. Helen Kelly Gould, evidence of an amazing plot swiftly accumulates. The district attorney's office promises yet more startling revelations than those already made public. The new witness is Miss Blanche Hale, a hair dresser, who lives at the Hotel Lincoln, and who has a number of fashionable patrons. Miss Hale has been examined by a representative of the district attorney's office and is said to have disclosed details of a proposition very similar to that to which Miss Mabel MacCauslan, the young milliner's apprentice, made affidavit. The latter's statement resulted in the arrest of Ben Teal, Miss Julia Fleming and Detective Henry S. Mousley, who were charged with subornation of perjury, in an alleged attempt to secure evidence against Frank J. Gould, which would enable Mrs. Henry Kelly Gould to secure a divorce and large alimony.

SEARCHING FOR SISTER

Daughter of Late Congressman Babbitt of Wisconsin Missing.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 23.—Arthur Babbitt, accompanied by Police Matron Shannon of Chicago, was here last night, in search of his sister, Edith Babbitt, daughter of the widow of Congressman Babbitt of Beloit, Wis. Miss Babbitt unexpectedly left the Moody Bible institute a month ago.

The searchers learned she was in Clinton, Ind., Monday and Terre Haute later. She had, before going to Chicago, been in a sanitarium in Wisconsin, but on representation of her brother-in-law, Rev. J. D. Whitelaw, a missionary of the Congregational church, that she needed an opportunity to carry out a desire to be a missionary, she was taken to Moody institute.

Mr. Babbitt unknowingly was in the same Clinton hotel with her Monday night. It is thought she discovered her brother was there, for she left hurriedly Tuesday.

Resolutions Affirming Denver Platform Adopted Unanimously.

Madison, Wis., July 23.—The delegates to the Democratic state convention were slow in assembling today. Hoyt brought down his gavel.

The committee on permanent organization presented T. M. Cleary of Platteville as the permanent chairman.

Permanent Chairman T. L. Cleary in his speech declared that William Jennings Bryan had forced a Republican president to seek popularity by abandoning the planks in the platform upon which he was elected to stand on planks borrowed from the Democratic platform.

TO ASK FOR REHEARING

Government Will File Petition in Standard Oil Case.

Will Lay Stress on Two Alleged Errors in Opinion.

Chicago, July 23.—United States District Attorney Sims today announced positively that a petition for a re-hearing in the case of the government against the Standard Oil company of Indiana, decided adversely to the government by Judge Grosscup in the court of appeals yesterday would be filed. No other action will be determined upon, until after Attorney General Bonaparte has read the opinion of the reviewing court. Mr. Sims today received the following telegram from Mr. Bonaparte:

"I feel that you and your assistants have done everything possible to protect the interests of the government and promote justice. I will write fully as soon as the opinion comes to hand."

That the petition for re-hearing will lay stress on two alleged errors in the quoted portions of the opinion of the court is the generally accepted opinion of attorneys interested in the case.

Local newspapers today print parallel statements taken from yesterday's decision and from the record of the original trial.

This from Judge Grosscup's opinion:

"And carried out in the ruling excluding certain proferred testimony, including that of one Edward Bogardus, who being in absolute charge of traffic affairs of plaintiff in error * * * offered testimony that * * * he did not know anything about the 18-cent rate over the Alton road; that his attention had never been called to any such rate by any person, or by the examination of any document; and that it was his understanding and belief, based on what he was told by one Hollands, tariff clerk for the Alton railroad, that the rate over the Alton road was 6 cents; and that such rate had been filed with the interstate commerce commission."

Testimony of Bogardus.

Following is the testimony of Bogardus before Judge Landis as taken from page 423 of the printed record:

"The witness, in response to questions by counsel for the defendant, was permitted by the court, over the objection of counsel for the United States that the evidence was incompetent, and immaterial and merely the conclusions of the witness and not the facts, to testify as follows:

"During the years I have mentioned 1901-1905 I did not know anything about an 18 cent per hundred rate on oil over the Chicago & Alton railroad between Whiting and East St. Louis in any tariff whatever. My attention had never in any way been called to such a rate by any human being, or by the examination of any document of any kind or character, or otherwise. During the period of time mentioned it was my understanding and belief that this 6-cent rate regarding which I have testified was filed with the interstate commerce commission; that understanding and belief was based on what I was told in the Chicago & Alton office by Mr. Hollands. During all that period of time in connection with the shipment of oil over the Chicago & Alton railroad by the Standard Oil company of Indiana as its representative in that particular work I had no intention to violate any lawfully established rate of the Chicago & Alton Railway company. During all that time I believed absolutely that I was shipping the oil under a lawfully established and filed rate issued by the Chicago & Alton Railroad company."

The newspapers also print an excerpt from the record to show that where Judge Grosscup states that Judge Landis referred to the Standard Oil company of New Jersey as no "virgin" offender, Judge Landis really referred to "the defendant" namely, the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

The two points given it is believed, will form the groundwork of the petition for a re-hearing.

When dscontent seizes upon the mind it is like the deadly cancer, reaching out with its tentacles for sound flesh to feed upon. CUSTOMERS INDIGNANT

A Lively Stir is Created by the Milk Exposure.

Dairymen Are Put on the Grill by Their Patrons.

Not much milk was drunk in Duluth today. Alleged facts regarding the filthy condition of the dairies supplying the city with milk, as set forth in The Herald last night, proved too much for the stomachs of the general public. It has been a long time since any sort of an exposure caused such consternation, indignation and discussion locally. Almost everybody has something to say about the situation, and Health Commissioner Patton's office force was kept busy answering telephone calls this morning, replying to questions relative to the milkmen doing business in Duluth.

The milkmen themselves are stirred up over the affair. About twenty of them climbed the city hall stairs before noon today to protest against the exposure. They seemed to think it unfair that the customers should be told what kind of milk they were buying. The visitors didn't get much consolation, however, for Dr. Patton has announced that it is his intention to camp on the trail of all offenders until conditions are what they should be. He says dealers in the lacteal fluid will be forced to live up to the existing ordinance and the state law until the city council gets around to adopting a more effective milk ordinance. Work of inspecting dairies is going merrily on. As reported yesterday, fifty already have been investigated, thirty-five being found in horrible shape, from a sanitary viewpoint. Nearly fifty more are yet to be inspected and, when the department has finished with them, it will begin on hotels, restaurants and other places about town selling milk. Samples of the product will be analyzed, and keepers of these places will be compelled to supply their customers with a pure and healthful article.

It has been an unpleasant day all around for the milkmen themselves. They were so busy making explanations to customers that they hardly had time to get over their routes. Nearly every housewife took occasion to express her indignation at reported conditions, and to ply the dealer with an embarrassing line of questions. A good many of the milkmen had to promise to put their dairies in first-class shape, and then get a card from the health department, proving that things were all right, so they might show the card to customers and convince them that they were getting milk that didn't contain filth from stables, and dirt dropped from foul-smelling hands.

Some of the aldermen are also busy answering questions about the milk ordinance. People are asking them about the measure as it stands at present, and why a new ordinance is not adopted, if the old one does not answer the purpose.

ARE REPAIRING THE ELEVATORS

Building Owners Are Rapidly Complying With City Ordinance.

Elevators in the down-town buildings, both passenger and freight, are rapidly being placed in good shape, so as to meet the requirements of the building inspector's department. The report of Assistant Inspector Anderson, recently made, concerning the conditions of the elevators, and the recommendations resulting from it, are meeting with results.

The report showed that the majority of the elevators did not comply with the city ordinance. In cases where improvements and changes were needed, the matter was referred to the city attorney, and he notified owners of buildings to get busy and make necessary improvements. The last few days there has been a rush of men at the building inspector's office, after information about required changes. In nearly every case they seem to be cheerfully complying with the orders, and at the present rate of improvement it will not be very long before all the elevators in town live up to the city ordinance.

OFFENSE IS A SERIOUS ONE

William Arnperk Arrested Under Difficulties on Thomson Road.

William Arnperk, charged with ruining Olga Lahasonen and then deserting her, was arrested under difficulties by Court Officer Jensen and Lieut. Wilcox at an early hour this morning. When arraigned in police court this morning he pleaded not guilty, and his examination was set for June 27. He was unable to furnish $500 bail required for his release.

Miss Lahasonen is at present an inmate of the Bethel home for girls. At the time the complain against Arnperk was made it was learned that he was living with a family on the Thomson road, ten miles back of West Duluth. Jensen and Lieut. Wilcox started for the place shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, in a downpour of rain. Somehow it became noised around West Duluth that the arrest was to be made, and a friend of Arnperk's is said to have sent his son, Arvid Johnson, to warn the man. The boy went to the house on Thomson road last night, it is claimed, and gave nis warning, but the man did not expect the officers before this afternoon, and decided to remain in the house over night, in view of the disagreeable weather conditions.

When the officers arrived on the premises early this morning, the family residing in the building in question denied that Arnperk was living with them. Even two little daughters bore out the story. Jensen and Wilcox started away, but decided to return and search the premises. They found Arnperk and young Johnson sleeping together in the attic.

Judge Ensign Refuses New Trial in $14,000 Damage Case.

For a second time, the case of Peter F. Akin vs. the Oliver Iron Mining company and the Roberts-Kingston Contracting company will probably be before the supreme court. Judge Ensign this morning denied a motion for a new trial, or judgment in spite of jury's verdiot, and an appeal is expected from the defandant's attorneys.

This is the second time that the big damage case has been submitted to tho suprme court. In the first trial before the district court here, Akin was awarded $10,000 damages for injuries received in falling into an uncovered pit near the Pillsbury mine at Hibbing.

The verdict cleared the contracting company, but held the Oliver company. Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer, the mining company's attorneys, moved for a new trial, and upon denial of the motion, appealed to the supreme court. The supreme court granted the motion and it was tried again, a verdict for $14,000 being returned for the plaintiff in the second case.

The alternative motion, which followed, was denied by Judge Ensign this morning.

RETIRES FROM THE COMMONER

Bryan Relinquishes Active Work on Paper for the Present.

Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—William J. Bryan has retired from active work on the Commoner and will not personally be responsible for matter appearing in it during the present campaign.

Charles W. Bryan will be the publisher, and Richard L. Metcalfe the editor during the campaign. The following statement was issued by Mr. Bryan relative to this change in the editorial staff of the paper:

"My candidacy makes it necessary for me to suspend editorial work, and I desire to have it known that I should not be held responsible for matters appearing in the Commoner during the campaign, except that which appears over my signature.

"My brother, who has had charge of the publication since its establishment, will assume control until November, and the associate editor, Richard Metcalfe, will, during that time, be editor.

"The Commoner will publish such speeches, letters, etc., as I may prepare for the general public, and the readers of the Commoner will have full and accurate information as to issues discussed. I bespeak for the paper the cordial support which, from the beginning, has made my connection with it so pleasant.

"All profits from the Commoner, over and above actual expenses, from now until election will be turned over to the Democratic national committee, for the benefit of the campaign.

"WILLIAM J. BRYAN."

NOTICE OF AN APPEAL

State to Contest Judge Dibell's Decision on Tax Amendment.

Supreme Court Decision Will Raise Interesting Legal Question.

With barely a week before the time limit for an appeal expired, Assistant Attorney General George F. Simpson this morning filed with the clerk of the district court here a notice of an appeal by the state from the court's findings in the good roads and tax amendment case. This appeal was not expected at this time, and it raises some interesting questions.

The appeal is from a judgment of Judge Dibell's, handed down last February after the report of the board, which recounted the votes on the two constitutional amendments last fall and winter, was submitted. Judge Dibell held that a mistake had been made by the state canvassing board, and that the good roads amendment was not confirmed by the people and was lost.

The legislature at the last session ordered that the tax amendment be resubmitted to the people this fall.

Some interesting legal points are thus raised which may have to be threshed out. If the supreme court affirms Judge Dibell's decision declaring that the tax amendment was rejected, it will be necessary to pay back the mortgage taxes which have already been collected throughout the state under the special taxation provisions of the amendment in question. All special taxes were unconstitutional before the amendment was declared a part of the constitution.

If, on the other hand, the supreme court reverses the local court's decision, and declares that the tax amendment passed, there is some question as to what will be the result if the people should turn down the tax amendment when they vote on it this fall.

It is the opinion of many that such a ruling of the supreme court, by making the amendment a part of the constitution, would place it where a special vote on the question of repealing it would be necessary to make it void, and a vote turning down a similar measure would not affect it.

As the decision was handed down Feb. 1 last, the time limit for an appeal expires a week from tomorrow, Aug. 1. The arguments will be submitted and the supreme court will rule on the case during the September term.

AGAINST MAIL ORDER HOUSES

Chicago Grand Jury Returns Indictments Charging Fraud.

Chicago, July 23.—The Federal grand jury today completed an important sitting, having returned indictments against twenty-nine mail-order houses, whose illegal profits are alleged to have been between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, for using the mails to defraud; twenty-eight indictments in the crusade against the white slave traffic, and ten indictments against the Illinois Central and Rock Island roads for issuing passes to fruit shippers.

Among the indictments charging illegal use of the mails was a joint bill against Birch F. Thomas and Edward Rhodus, promoters of the alleged fraudulent operations of the Central Life Securities company, the Republic Life Insurance company, the Mercantile Finance company and a number of other concerns said to have been used in swindling operations.

CASE IS DROPPED AGAINST REYNOLDS

Electrician, Accused of Crime of Larceny, Has Cleared Himself.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank T. Reynolds, a well known electrician, who was arrested about threee weeks ago and brought here on the charge of being implicated in the robbery of the store of Mrs. R. C. Payne at Ball Club several months ago, has been released, the state having failed to make out a case against the accused.

Mr. Reynolds established to the satisfaction of the court that he was not in anyway implicated in the robbery of Mrs. Payne's store and that his arrest was a mistake on some one's part.

Reynolds, who follows the trade of an electrician and is well known in this section of Minnesota and North Dakota, naturally is wrought up over his arrest on such a serious charge, and it is understood that suits for damages may result. It was stated, when he was arrested in the western part of the state, he had a kit of burglars' tools in his possession. He established that the "burglars' tools" were his electrician's tools with which he earns a living. At the hearing Reynolds conducted his own case and soon convinced the justice before whom the hearing was conducted that the wrong party had been arrested.

PATIENT ON DEATH BED

Angermeier Charged With Ignorant Usage of Poisonous Drugs.

Daniel Donavon Claims Father Was Mistreated by Doctor.

Three complaints have been sworn to in the case brought against E. Angermeier, manager of the Herbaqueen Manufacturing company, by Daniel Donovan, who claims that his father is lying at the point of death because of poisonous drugs and injurious appliances administered to him by Angermeier while acting in the capacity of a physician. It is alleged that the man is not licensed, that he has no knowledge of disease or medicine, and that he injures rather than benefits patients.

The first case, a civil action, asking judgment in the sum of $211.75, is being given a jury trial in municipal court today, before Judge Cutting. The sum of $211.75 is said to have been paid the company for treatment of Daniel Donovan, Sr. In return for the money, medicine and electro-mechanical devices were supplied the old gentleman. As a result of their usage, it is claimed that Donovan is lying at the point of death, and that his end will be hastened considerably.

The complaint states that while Donovan was in a desperate and weakened state of mind, after regular physicians had given up all hope of his recovery from a cancerous growth, he applied to Angermeier and was promised a complete cure. It is claimed that the so-called doctor worked upon his fears to such an extent that he consented to take the prescribed treatment, and paid over $200 for the same. It is alleged that Angermeier is not authorized to prescribe medical treatment, and that he has no special knowledge of the proper treatment of disease. All his representations regarding his ability in this line and the promised cure are declared to have been false and untrue. The treatment was applied between March 4 and June 3.

Trials on the other two complaints, charging Angermeier with the ignorant usage of poisonous drugs, and with applying the electro-mechanical treatment when he knew it would be more apt to work injury than benefit, will be held later in the week.

SITUATION IN SOUTHEAST

Discussed by Bryan and National Committeeman Daniels.

Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—The political situation in the southeast was the subject of a prolonged discussion today between W. J. Bryan and Josephus Daniels, national committeeman from North Carolina. In view of the claims of the Republicans, as reflected from Hot Springs, Va., that they were counting on the states of North Carolina, Georgia and Virgina in the coming election, considerable importance was attached to the visit. The conclusion was reached, however, that those three states were impregnable against Republican assault.

The chairmanship of the national committee, also, was talked over, Mr. Daniels being a member of the subcommittee which will select the man who is to conduct the campaign. Former Governor William L. Douglass of Massachusetts continues to be looked upon as the new chairman of the committee, but the selection is being guarded with such secrecy as to make it impossible to get a confirmation of the report that he will be chosen.

NOT SUICIDE.

That Theory in the Hazel Drew Case is Abandoned.

Troy, N. Y., July 23.—The suicide theory which has been revived from time to time since Hazel Drew's body was found in Teal pond on July 11, has been dispelled by the statement of District Attorney O'Brien, following a conference yesterday with the physicians who performed the autopsy. The district attorney says the phyicians agreed that the girl was dead when the body was thrown into the water; that death resulted from a blow on the head, and that nothing would be gained by exhuming the body for a further examination.

The coroner's inquest will be held at Averill park next Monday.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

For the Notification of William H. Taft Next Tuesday.

Cincinnati Citizens Preparing for a Great Celebration.

Cincinnati, July 23.—Indications are that an immense crowd will be here next Tuesday when W. H. Taft will be officially notified of his nomination for the presidency of the United States by the Republican national convention. A large number of room reservations have already been secured at the hotels.

Robert H. Byson, chairman of the committee on arrangements for Indiana, and L. G. Rothschild of Indianapolis have secured the rooms of the Roosevelt club, opposite the Sinton hotel, which will be the headquarters for the notification committee for Indiana.

All of Cincinnati's over the river neighbors are going to join in the celebration and fireworks display in the evening. Six historic flags will be among those decorating the platform on which the notification ceremony will take place. They are of different sizes and more or less faded and will be returned to the owner with one of the new flags immediately after the exercises. They belong to a collector who has collected one flag from each national notification ceremony and inaugural for the past twenty-four years. The oldest of the flags formed part of the decorations which James G. Blaine was notified of his nomination.

Official Program.

The following official program for notification day, which differs in several details from the one originally proposed, was announced today:

7 a. m.—Salutes from the hill tops; music in public places during the day.

9:30 a. m.—Flag-raising in grounds of Charles P. Taft; ceremony to consist of invocation, singing, presentation, raising and acceptance of flag, singing and benediction.

10:45 a. m.—Escort notification committee from Hotel Sinton to residence of Charles P. Taft; William H. Taft informally meets notification committee.

12 m.—Notification ceremony at residence of Charles P. Taft; William Howard Taft will be escorted to a platform erected on the lawn of Charles P. Taft's residence, where he will be officially notified of his nomination; speech of acceptance by W. H. Taft.

2 p. m.—Review of the marching clubs by William H. Taft.

3 p.m.—Daylight fireworks on Government square.

3:30 p. m.—Automobile ride for the notification committee through suburbs.

5 p. m.—Releasing of thousands of balloons in different parts of the city.

5:30 p. m.—Informal luncheon at Country club for the notification committee.

8 p. m.—Fireworks display and concert at Eden park, with notification committee viewing same from steamer Island Queen.

CANADIAN WINS RACE

Kerr Victorious in 200 Meter Flat Race, Cloughen Second.

Carpenter First in 200 Meter Event But Not Allowed.

London, July 23.—The final in the 200-meter flat race in the Olympic games today was won by Kerr, Canada. Cloughen, Irish-American Athletic club, was second and N. J. Cartmell, University of Pennsylvania, was third. Time, 22 2-5 seconds.

In the final of the 400-meter flat race, J. C. Carpenter, Cornell university, came in first.

A sensation was created when the officials declared that it was no race. This decision was reached on the ground that Carpenter had "bored" Halswelle, the English runner. Boring is the English term for "pocketing."

W. C. Robbins, Cambridge university, was second; Halswelle, third, and J. B. Taylor, Irish-American Athletic club, fourth.

The first heat of the semi-finals in the high diving resulted as follows: Stanberg, Sweden, 72.3 points; Mastrom, Sweden, 67 points, and Aro, Finland, 67.7 points. In the second heat Johansen, Sweden, was first with 80 points; Anderson, Sweden, second with 67.8 points, and Galuzik, Chicago Athletic club, third with 61.3.

The Hurdle Race.

The first heat of the 110-meter hurdle race was won by Healy, United Kingdom. Time, 15 4-5 seconds, no Americans competed. In the second heat J. C. Garrels, Chicago Athletic association, won easily. Time, 16 1-5 seconds.

The third heat was won by Groenings, United Kingdom. Time, 16 2-5 seconds.

Fourth heat, Keily, United Kingdom, won. He had a walk-over.

Fifth heat, W. M. Rand, Harvard university, won. Time, 15 4-5 seconds.

Sixth heat, Waltes, United Kingdom, won. Time, 17 3-5 seconds.

There were no Americans in this heat. Lemming, Sweden, fell at the second hurdle.

Seventh heat, Knidett, United Kingdom, won. He had a walk-over.

Eighth heat, Halburt, Belgium, won. He had a walk-over.

Ninth heat, Ahearne, United Kingdom, won. He had a walk-over.

Tenth heat, C. F. Smithson, Multnomah Athletic club, won. Time, 15 4-5 seconds.

Eleventh heat, Hussey, United Kingdom, won. Time, 16 4-5 seconds. No Americans ran.

Twelfth heat, Kinahan, United Kingdom, won. Time, 16 4-5 seconds. No Americans ran.

Thirteenth heat, L. W. Howe, Yale university, won. Time, 16 4-5 seconds. Howe beat Leader, United Kingdom.

Fourteenth heat, A. H. Shaw, Dartmouth, won. A walkover.

This was the last heat of the hurdles.

Standing High Jump.

Things moved very slowly at this morning's session of the Olympic games at the stadium and only the semi-finals of the standing high jump had been completed when the luncheon hour arrived.

The first section of this event was carried off by T. S. Iclitaras, a lanky Greek, who figured in the previous jumping events. He cleared 5 feet 1 inch. Platt Adams, New York A. C., was second with 4 feet 10 inches. Ray C. Ewry, New York A. C., equalled the Greek's jump in the second section; he could not improve upon it. J. A. Biller, Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., was the only other competitor who came near Ewry. He did 4 feet 11 inches. Martin J. Sheridan, Irish-American A. C., failed at 4 feet 7 inches, after clearing 4 feet 6 inches. Henderson, United Kingdom, and Blystad, Norway, each beat Sheridan by two inches, clearing 4 feet 8 inches. The third section was won by F. Leroy Holmes, Chicago, with 5 feet. R. C. Irons, Chicago A. A., and Gallwitz, Germany, each made 4 feet 9 inches.

Drawing to Close.

London, July 23.—As the Olympic games draw toward a close, interest increases, and fine weather, although late in arriving, is now favoring the great international contest for athletic supremacy.

Yesterday was to the meeting what Derby day is to Epsom racing week, the final of the 100-meter sprint in the eyes of the general public being considered the most important event of the meeting. Those who follow athletics, however, are just as keenly interested in the finals of the two races which are to be run off today. The first of these is the 200-meter flat, in which Cartmell and Cloughen, America, run against Kerr, Canada, and Hawkins, United Kingdom. The Americans have feared Kerr more than the Englishman, but, after two grilling runs yesterday, he may be slightly stale.

The other final is in the 400-meter flat race, in which Carpenter, Taylor and Robbins, America, meet Halswelle, a lieutenant in the British army, and described as the greatest quarter-miler the United Kingdom has had in recent years.

The semi-final of the 1,500-meter swim is on the program for today, and, more important to America, the fourteen heats of the 110-meter hurdles, which is one of the events the American team expects to win.

The Graeco-Roman wrestling, lightweights up to 147 pounds, and the catch-as-catch-can matches, between heavyweights up to 161 pounds, going on at mats at either end of the arena, kept the adherents to that form of sport entranced all day long.

The only American entered in these events was Lee J. Talbot, and he was defeated in the first bout at catch-as-catch-can by O'Reilly, United Kingdom.

The tribute the Americans at the stadium paid to Walker yesterday, when the young South African won the 100-meter dash, appears to have appealed strongly to English sportsmanship and is likely to do much to dispel the soreness caused by the American protests earlier in the games, which was much discussed.

Dark Horse Wins Race.

Comparative gloom pervaded the American camp last night. The athletes from over the seas had strongly cherished hopes of repeating Tuesday's grand record making clean sweep in the track events, but a dark horse in the person of the South African youth, R. E. Walker, upset the calculations. Walker broke the tape in what is considered the most important event in the Olympic games, the 100 metres dash, a short two feet in front of J. A. Rector, the University of Virginia crack, thereby putting an end to the astonishing succession of American triumphs which had begun to sadden the Britons.

Shoulder and shoulder, Walker, Rector and the Canadian star, Kerr, ran down the straight, with Cartmel, the Pennsylvania sprinter, close behind. At the half way mark, Walker forged slightly ahead, but at the tape, less than a yard separated the first three men, with the Canadian only inches behind the Virginian, in third place.

Counting all the events held within and outside of the Stadium including many games in which the United Kingdom alone competed, the score up to Wednesday night, stands:

United Kingdom, 32; America, 17; Sweden, 5; Norway and France, 2 each; Canada, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Finland, South Africa, 1 each.

The score in the field and track events in which the American team came over to participate, was as follows: America, 75; United Kingdom, 56 1-3; Sweden, 12; Greece, 6; South Africa, 5; Canada, Norway, Italy, 3 each; France, Hungary, 11 1-3 each; Australia, Germany and Finland, 1 each.

Visions of Wealth From Iron Land Come to Farmers.

Akeley, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives of the United States Steel corporation are in the country north of Akeley seeking for iron ore and reliable reports say several hundreds of acres of land have been sold to its representatives. Settlers have been recently asked to put a price on their lands and have been offered very fancy prices for the mineral rights. Near Lake George a diamond drill is busy at work in hopes of finding iron. In the vicinity of the lake, large deposits of iron ore have been found and it is represented as of sufficient quantity and of good quality to make it worth money to mine. Farmers are excited over the find and are encouraged also over the very good prospect of an abundant harvest.

BOMB EXPLODED

In Tent in Chicago While Governor Deneen is Making Address.

Chicago, July 23.—A bomb was exploded in a tent in which Governor Deneen was addressing a political meeting at Garfield boulevard and Princeton avenue last night. Women in the audience screamed and a number fainted. Men and women made a rush for the tent doors and Governor Deneen and others on the platform tried to stop the panic. When it was seen that no damage had been done by the explosion, the excitement subsided and most of the auditors returned to their seats.

It is thought the perpetrators intended to take advantage of the excitement to rob people in the audience. Policemen made a number of arrests, but later all the suspects were released, as there was no evidence to hold them.

GILBERT SALOONS RAIDED.

Nine Saloonkeepers Arrested and Slot Machines Confiscated.

Eveleth, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gilbert was treated to a surprise yesterday when four deupty sheriffs swooped down and took out all the slot machines and money in site from the saloons. Nine saloonkeepers were arrested, to appear in Duluth today on charges of gambling and "lidlifting." Without any warning the arrests were made, and some of the saloonkeepers had not emptied out their slot machines for some time, they lost large sums of money by the move of the county officers. Strict orders from the county officials had been given to take out slot machines, but as this had not been done, the action taken yesterday was the result. The machines were taken to the depot, loaded on two cars and sent to Duluth.

In Eveleth very few efforts have been made to lift the lid, and all the slot machines are turned to the wall, though they are still in the saloons.

KENNILA IS FINED.

Costs Him Pretty Sum for Resisting an Officer.

Virginia, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—It cost John Kennila $25 and costs for resisting an officer at the time Chief of Police Walsh shot and killed Matt Terkija, Kennila's partner, when trying to arrest the pair. The fine was imposed in the police court yesterday.

Olga Suomi was sentenced to thirty days in jail at Duluth on the charge of disorderly conduct. It was while arresting this woman that Kennila and Terkija interfered and attempted to prevent Chief Walsh from performing his duty.

THIEVES ROB BOX CAR.

Break Into Missabe Cars and Take Shoes and Cigars.

Biwabik, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Missabe road has detectives and the county has some officers searching for the thieves who broke into a boxcar of the road here Tuesday night and stole several pairs of shoes and about 200 cigars. The shoes were consigned to Max Cohen and the cigars to Louis Pagnucco, both of this place.

HAVE CLOVER-HULLER.

Machine Needed by Experimental Farm Has Been Received.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A clover-huller, a machine that, as its name indicates, is used in threshing clover and separating the seeds from the stalks, has been received by Supt. A. J. McGuire at the state experimental farm, and will be used at the state fair.

Mr. McGuire has long been contemplating getting one of these machines, so that a fair test of the yield of clover seed from clover grown in this section could be made. Clover seed is very expensive seed, the market price ranging from $6 to $12 per bushel, and it is thought that with the proper kind of machinery to take care of the seed, a very profitable source of income to Northern Minnesota farmers can be secured. The huller will be at the disposal of local farmers who have clover to thresh, and there is no doubt but that many will take advantage of the opportunity offered to see what they can do in the way of raising clover seed for the market.

He will complete his test today, but refuses to say anything in regard to his investigation other than he will send in a report to the council next Tuesday evening.

HELD FOR ASSAULT.

Virginia, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a hearing in municipal court, Tom Schuster who was arrested at Gilbert on the charge of stabbing John Kraker was held to the grand jury on the charge of assault, bonds being fixed at $300 which he furnished. Schuster runs a resort at Gilbert and the stabbing is said to have grown out of a row in which a woman, the wife of one of the principals, figured.

SPARTA GOT A SCARE.

Sparta, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Spartans got a scare yesterday afternoon when a funnel-shaped cloud, very dark in color and generally foreboding in appearance, passed over Lake Ely and started wild rumors of an impending cyclone. The dread of such danger was soon passed, although many people got a bad fright. So far as known no damage resulted in this section, although considerable rain fell.

CHISHOLM IN BRIEF.

Chisholm, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Hamilton, the alleged forger, who passed several worthless checks on the business men of this place, had a hearing before Judge Freeman yesterday, and was bound over to the grand jury. He was taken to Duluth by Deputy Sheriff King.

The dance given by the National band of Chisholm Tuesday night was a success. A large crowd attended. The music was furnished by the band.

The Chisholm steam laundry has installed all machinery necessary for the running of their laundry. It will be open for business Aug. 1.

Mrs. J. Hallock and Miss Rose Behr left yesterday for Virginia, where they will visit relatives for a week. They will also spend a couple of days at Mt. Iron.

S. Melavitz of Virginia has started the erection of a two-story brick building on his lot on Lake street. It will be 25 by 70 feet.

THE PRINCE OF WALES IS CENTER OF ATTRACTION AT QUEBEC CELEBRATION

nificence, with 5,000 persons costumed as historical figures.

The arrival of Champlain on the Don de Dieu is set for 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the review by the prince will occur later in the day. Meantime his highness has spent the morning returning naval visits and the calls of the foreign representatives. He is attended by a field marshal's escort in his drives about the city, and is received with clamorous demonstrations by the crowds wherever he appears.

Prince Lands.

The prince of Wales landed from the British battleship Indomitable yesterday amid the deafening roar of guns from the international fleet of British, French and American warships and the tumultuous demonstrations of 50,000 persons massed upon the wharves and the terraced heights of the city. It was a spectacle of truly royal splendor for the latest type of British Dreadnaught, with the royal standard flying, came to anchor among the double column of foreign warships and the prince was welcomed ashore by Earl Grey, governor general of Canada, Premier Laurier and the assembled dignitaries flanked by thousands of soldiers and a multitude of people.

At 4 o'clock the battleships again roared a salute as the prince disembarked from his ship and came ashore. He wore the uniform of an admiral with waving white plume and dark coat faced with gold embroidery. His face wore a pleased smile at the echoing shouts of the people, the rattling of the saluting arms and the strains of the British national anthem.

Premier Laurier delivered to the prince an address of welcome in which he assured him of the unswerving loyalty and devotion of Canada to the king and its united resolution to promote the interests of the empire. The prince responded in a happy vein, speaking both English and French, extending the good wishes of his royal father to Canada and making pleasant allusions to the loyalty of English and French Canadians alike. The ceremonies concluded, the prince was driven in an open carriage through streets lined with soldiers and packed with people to the citadel, where the royal quarters are established during his week's stay. Naval experts are much interested in the Indomitable, known in England as "The Mystery Ship," owing to the secrecy with which her recent construction has been surrounded. It is the first time one of the Dreadnaught ships has been seen in North American waters.

CANNIBALS EAT CREW

was a native of Sweden, there were six Europeans on board, Belgians and Swedes, the rest being natives. Capt. Lundgren and a friend, with much difficulty, succeeded in swimming ashore, but directly they did so were seized by natives, many of whom had gathered in menacing attitudes on the beach. Some, it is understood, clamored for the lives of the captives, while others, more fearful of the consequences, counseled the chieftains not to bring reprisals on them by slaying the white men.

Speared to Death and Eaten.

The chieftains turned deaf ears to the latter's supplications, and after much parleying Capt. Lundgren and his friend were speared to death.

The engineer of the Ville de Bruges, who had managed to keep himself afloat and was a spectator of this terrible tragedy, succeeded later in the day in escaping the natives' clutches, and in a terribly exhausted state was able to communicate to the commandant of the nearest station the ghastly story. As far as can be ascertained he is the sole survivor of the disaster.

Measures were at once taken to investigate the affair, a search was made for the bodies of Capt. Lundgren and his friend, but without avail, and there seems little doubt that they were eaten by the natives.

Many arrests have been made in connection with the affair, and when the Albertville left Congo ports two chieftains were awaiting trial. The engineer of the Ville de Bruges had lost his reason through the terrible ordeal he had undergone, and was lying in a hospital.

D., died here yesterday afternoon, while being taken to hospital to receive treatment for the loss of two legs, resulting from being struck and run over by a car of the Moorhead & Fargo Street Railway company. The car was going to the state fair. The man lost both legs and died from the loss of blood and resulting shock before he could be taken to the hospital.

had been shot at the base of the skull and left arm.

The police made a careful search all night long without result. Early yesterday two of the men made their appearance at a house on Bourne street and at the point of a revolver demanded that they be given food.

Discovered in Cemetery.

About 7 o'clock last night they were discovered in Calvary cemetery. When the desperadoes found that they were pursued they drew their revolvers and with a yell, began firing on all sides. The first person hit was Mrs. Delia Fallon, who was walking down South street. Officer Ingliss then received a bullet in the leg. The men passed through Cunningham field, Lee street and into New Keyes street, down which they ran directly into Washington street. On Washington street, where electric cars are passing almost incessantly and hundreds of people were walking the two men fired shot after shot. They commanded everybody to hold up their hands and even the motorman of an approaching car to stop. The motorman dropped behind the dashboard and Conductor Thomas Moore, who stepped off the ar to see what was the trouble, received a bullet in the leg. Michael Flynn picked up a stone to hurl at the bandits and received one bullet in the head over the right ear, and another passed over the left ear, knocking off his hat. Patrick McGinn was shot in the wrist. Thomas Flemming in the hand and John Nolan received a bullet in the arm, while John H. Wrightman carries two bullet holes in his trousers to show where the bullets grazed the calf of his leg.

Reloaded Automatic Revolvers.

The men continued on through New Keyes street to a sand hill, where they stopped and, according to some men and boys who watched them, loaded four automatic revolvers with rolls of cartridges. Through Williams street, the men entered Franklin park and thence passed into Forest Hills cemetery.

Herbert E. Knox, the watchman who had been on the lookout for the men, came upon one of them unexpectedly and before he was able to use his pistol was shot through the abdomen. Knox died three hours later.

About daybreak the officers who had been guarding the cemetery to prevent the outlaws' escape, were given the order to advance towrad the center of the cemetery. Scarcely a quarter of an hour later a man sprang up in front of the officers at the south side of the cemetery and started off on the run. The man was barefooted, a broken derby covered his head, a torn and ragged coat was on his back and in one hand he carried a heavy revolver, while from the other dangled a reel of cartridges.

Shrubbery Riddled With Bullets.

For more than a mile across the cemetery the man raced madly over graves, around shrubbery, through gulleys and over mounds, an ever increasing mob of policemen following in his wake. All at once he disappeared in a ravine not two hundred yards from the main Morton street entrance to the cemetery grounds. But one bit of shrubbery marked the lower level of the ravine and into this the man sprung to make his final stand. In a moment the sides of the ravine were lined many deep with the blue coats, revolvers were brought to bear upon the bush in the gulley, and shot after shot was poured into it.

When the rain of shot was over officers approached the bush, and parting the leaves, found the desperado's body pierced by a hundred bullets.

Almost at the same time another commotion was created on the opposite side of the man gate within the confines of the main cemetery, and a man who refused to throw up his hands had been seized and disarmed. Both the dead body an the captive were taken to the Jamaica Plains station.

Some doubt arising, however, as to the identity of the captured man, officers were again marched back into the cemetery to continue the search.

At 8 a. m. the police were tracing large splashes of blood in the cemetery in the hope of locating the third bandit.

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS

are the willing tools of special privilege; that its policies brought destruction to industry, privation to labor; banished the full dinner pail; brought on a terrible panic, while good crops and plenty of money were in the country; closed factories and banks, while congress adjourned with nothing adequate attempted, nothing done, confessing its incapacity to cure the sick man, and by its acts practically confessing the absolute necessity of calling in a physician from another school of medicine, with new remedies."

He referred in detail to the planks adopted at the Democratic national convention.

Issues Born of Great Wrong.

"It has been well said that a political issue is born of a great wrong. Is the reduction of the tariff an issue founded on great wrong? The billions of dollars of tribute wrung from the farmers and toilers of this nation during the last twenty years to build castles in Scotland, libraries in many of the states, and to make thousands of quick-rich millionaires is the proof of the great wrong created by laws to plunder the whole people for the benefit of the few.

"Are not the wrongs endured because of the arbitrary power exercised by the present stand-pat speaker of the house in favor of special interests an issue born of a great wrong?"

He referred to the controversy between Roosevelt and Parker on the subject of campaign contributions in the last national campaign. Touching on the interstate commerce commission, he said that there was no possible basis for fixing a transportation rate for railways until a physical valuation is made.

He advocated the election of United States senators by direct vote. He advocated a guarantee fund to protect bank depositors. He spoke for an income tax and for the extermination of trusts and monopolies, instead of regulation.

Taft's Nomination.

"The candidate at Chicago," he said, "was elected by the president as his heir apparent. Federal patronage and the full power of administration, besides a subsidized press, succeeded in securing his nomination. But the fear of Bryan did not prevent the selection of a stand-patter, one of the big four in congress, as his running-mate—and the platform is absolutely a stand-pat platform.

"The Wisconsin delegation at Chicago presented a minority report on the platform. Each plank was rejected by a very large majority. I read with pleasure and pride the report of that minority. I was proud of the work of the Republicans of my native state. Those planks as a whole contain patriotic, practical principles that can well be applied to existing evils. But they are none of the stand-pat order or in favor of special privileges."

At the conclusion of Mr. Cleary's speech, the report of the committee on resolutions was called for.

J. J. Cunningham of Rock county, chairman of that committee, read the report, which he said was unanimous as coming from the committee. The report reads as follows:

The Platform.

We, the Democratic party of Wisconsin, in convention assembled, heartily indorse the platform adopted by the national Democratic convention and pledge to the platform and candidates our active and enthusiastic support; and we especially commend the planks of the national platform, with respect to the reduction of tariff duties, the control of trusts and combinations, the physical valuation of railway property and the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

We favor the enactment of such legislation in this state as will guarantee deposits in state banks.

We favor the amendment of the primary election law so as to authorize political parties to call state conventions for the purpose of adopting a declaration of principles which shall be binding upn their candidates for office.

We favor an economical administration of state affairs, to the end that taxation shall not be unnecessarily burdensome.

We earnestly invite the co-operation of the electors of this state, irrespective of past party affiliations, in support of that eminent commoner, William Jennings Bryan, and of the distinguished John W. Kern, and the policies of the Democratic party.

The report of the committee on resolutions was adopted by a unanimous vote.

After the adoption of the platform, short speeches were made by Thomas M. Kearney of Racine, National Committeeman T. E. Ryan of Waukesha and State Chairman H. H. Manson of Wausau, in which they urged the Democrats of the state to get out and work for success at the coming election.

The convention adjourned sine die at 11:20 o'clock without making any nominations. Candidates who wish to seek nominations at the primaries were urged to place their names in the hands of the state chairman who will circulate the necessary papers that will insure their names being placed on the election ballot.

GUILTY OF FOUL DEED

mated in the flames which consumed the postoffice building and home of the unfortunate official.

The murder of Seidel and his niece was one of the most horrible in the criminal annals of North Dakota. Committed at Somber, a postoffice at the foothills of the Turtle mountains, far from other settlements, the murderers had all the time necessary for the commission of their crime, the ransacking of the building and the ravaging of the body of the child. Afterwards the building was set afire, and the remains of the two victims were almost entirely consumed. The murder occurred on June 20, and immediately upon its discovery, late the same day, posses were organized. For two days they scoured the surrounding country, finally capturing the Peltier brothers and the Indian, Little Rising Sun. Upon being taken to Bottineau one of the Peltiers made an alleged confession, claiming to have knowledge of the murders, but placing the blame on the Indian.

Trial Lasted a Week.

On Tuesday of last week the trial of the half-breeds was commenced. It took three days to secure a jury, after which the taking of testimony was commenced. Evidence was brought out to show that the two defendants had been about the place during the day of the murder. It was shown that they were directly connected with the affair, and facts tending to show that the men ravaged the body of the little girl, whose name is unknown, were also brought out. Feeling among the people of the county has run high during the entire time of the trial, and as the revolting facts were brought out there was danger for a time of mob violence.

The last testimony was introduced Tuesday evening, the case going to the jury Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. At 3:45 o'clock a verdict of guilty in the first degree was returned, the jury recommending death by hanging as the punishment. Judge Goss immediately pronounced the sentence.

The trial of Little Rising Sun promises to be equally as interesting and as sensational as that of the two convicted men. The Indian admits being with the Peltiers on a part of the day of the murder, but claims to have left them before the commission of the crime. He also saw them later, when they swore to kill him should he say anything about them being in the neighborhood that day.

With the conviction of the two brothers in Bottineau yesterday, there are now three men awaiting the gallows in this state. Some time since Robert Noah was convicted of murder in Ward county, also before Judge Goss, and he was sentenced to death. He is now at the state penitentiary, to which place the Peltiers will be taken Friday.

RACE WAR IN LUMBER TOWN

Natalbany, La., is Divided Into Two Hostile Camps.

Natalbany, La., July 23.—Daylight today found this town divided into two armed camps, with race hatred strained to a dangerous pitch. During the night preparations were made for a race war of threatening proportions, but the passage of the night without actual fighting is believed to have averted further danger.

One of the hostile camps consisted of Italians and other foreigners gathered beside blazing fires on the outskirts of town and said to number, including their wives and children, about 500 persons. All day yesterday these foreigners gathered in camp, after moving out of their homes here and in the vicinity, in the fear of reprisals by Americans for the wounding of Walter Simmons on Tuesday, and subsequent shooting between Americans and Italians yesterday. Some of the foreigners claimed to have been warned to leave this section of the country.

Threatened to Wipe Out Town.

The opposing camp was made up of about seventy-five residents of Natalbany, under command of Sheriff Saal. Early last night an Italian came into town and said that the men at his countrymen's camp intended to attack and "wipe out the town" before morning. The sheriff sent out scouts, picketed the town and ordered every available man to be ready to fight. At intervals the scouts approached the foreigners' camp fires and reported that excited men were holding continuous debates.

Natalbany is a lumber mill town, and the race trouble is in part the outgrowth of the rough rampant among mill employes, such as has in the past year resulted in exoduses of foreigners from the lumber communities in other parts of the state.

The authorities here believe they have the situation under control and that any Americans who have threatened to lynch Italians will be forced to keep the peace, allowing the foreigners to return peacefully to their homes.

Blind Fear of Foreigners.

Blind fear on the part of the foreigners is partly responsible for the situation and led to last night's crisis. Yesterday two Italians, Joseph Ansalome and Vincenzo Lueuto, who claimed to be innocent of wrong-doing, fired upon a sheriff's posse and were wounded when they refused to allow their house to be searched for Italians accused of attempting to murder Walter Simmons. Simmons interfered in a fist fight between an American and an Italian boy. He was shot by older Italians during the ensuing altercations and was taken to a New Orleans hospital, where he died early today. The wounded Italians, who are not dangerously hurt, are under treatment at New Orleans.

BIG VOTE FOR BRYAN

In Illinois is Assured, Says Roger C. Sullivan at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—Roger C. Sullivan of Chicago, the Democratic national committeeman for Illinois, together with John P. Hopkins of Chicago and D. L. Lanigan and W. H. Kennedy of Buffalo, were in St. Paul yesterday afternoon. They were on the return trip from Denver, and left for Chicago last evening. After the Denver convention they had taken a pleasure trip through Colorado and Yellowstone park.

"I am not sure that we can carry Illinois for Bryan," said Mr. Sullivan last evening, "but I know that we will give him a much larger vote than we have given the Democratic candidates during the last few campaigns. The party is more harmonious than it has been for years, and all are working for the election of Bryan. In the West it looks fine. In the part of the country we have traveled through everybody seems to be satisfied with the action of the convention, and Bryan will be given an unusually big vote."

While in St. Paul, the party were guests of R. T. O'Connor.

TO FIGHT DISEASE

War Upon "White Plague" Discussed by Doctors at Walker.

Interesting Statistics That Show Ravages of the Dreaded Disease.

Walker, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over seventy doctors and nurses interested in the fight on tuberculosis met at the Minnesota sanitarium for consumptives here yesterday and listened to several interesting papers and discussions. Dr. Roberts of Little Falls presided and Dr. Lowthaus of Akeley acted as secretary.

While New York state spends some $1,000,000 in fighting tuberculosis, Minnesota only spends $70,000, according to Christopher Easton of the Minnesota state board of health. Is costs the wage earners in Minnesota nearly $500,000, besides social loss, breaking of family life and sympathetic relations. It also greatly decreased the wage earning power of men and women. Thirty-two years was the average life of consumptives, and it costs between 80 cents and $1 a day for each patient. Out of 26,000 cases of tuberculosis in Manhattan, N. Y., only twenty-five recovered permanently.

That tuberculosis was not a burden on this state, but on the wage earners, was clearly shown when out of a total of $2,000,000 loss, the state only paid $70,000 or less.

"This was Minnesota's disgrace," said one doctor, which was loudly applauded. The burden of this plague is borne by the home and family.

The awful ravages of the disease was shown on a large card as follows: Deaths in Minnesota in 1905 from all other preventable causes, 1,955; from cancer, 897; from pneumonia, 1,576, and from tuberculosis, 2,002. Another chart showed Minnesota deaths in 1905 as, measles, 31; whooping cough, 76, scarlet fever, 109; typhoid fever, 294; diphtheria, 353; a total of six preventable diseases of 871, and from tuberculosis, 2,002. Dr. James W. Bell of Minneapolis, speaking on "Home Treatment of Tuberculosis," said it might as well be candidly stated that the disease could not be cured where it had fully developed. He recommended early diagnosis, careful nutrition, exercise, pure air, food and absolute control of patient. Only three meals a day of four kinds of food, milk eggs, bread and meat. The patient should live in a tent with tight floor and high sides. Dr. McKenna made an attack on private sanitariums, which roused the ire of Dr. H. Longstreet Taylor of St. Paul. Dr. McKenna said the reports of sanitariums run chiefly for profit were unreliable, but under state control they would get reliable statistics. He also said that patients needed more treatment than the sanitariums could give, because the sanitariums did not reach the great mass of consumptives. He condemned the great expense of the state or of spending public money, if the sanitariums failed. It was in an experimental state. The problem would not be solved in fifty years. He also condemned drugging the patients. The whole treatment meant nutrition.

Dr. Longstreet Taylor, St. Paul, strongly denied that private sanitariums were not reliable. He said that private sanitariums were condemned by the profession, but they were mostly successful. They did not "cook up statistics," he said. He thought cases could be both cured in incipiency and after a long period of time. Dr. Longstreet Taylor's defense of private sanitariums was loudly applauded.

Dr. Marclay, superintendent of the state sanitarium said a board shanty was not a tent nor as good for patients. He thought sanitariums best because of their control over patients and better than home treatment because of superior supervision.

Dr. Burnside Foster, St. Paul, in speaking of skin tuberculosis, illustrated his remarks with several gruesome pictures, which he kept, saying, "beautifully illustrated" what he was saying. The cures best suitable were surgical, chemical, by light and radiation. He spoke of marvelous cures by radiation and the X-rays.

Several prominent physicians said the disease was local and recommended the X-rays. The cure by radium left the skin quite normal. Several doctors said tuberculine had almost been given up as a cure and was unsatisfactory.

E. R. Swan, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, said that schools, homes and railway cars were badly ventilated and caused tuberculosis. Doctors recommend pure air for sick persons. Why did they not say to their patients it was a preventive. More tuberculosis was caused by bad air than by milk. Health was more valuable than education. Nation and state should legislate on ventilation. He never met an architect of school or home who knew the science of ventilation. Forty per cent died of impure air. Pulman cars are ill ventilated, and they do not inject pure air into cars. The government should investigate ventilation of Pulman cars at once.

Dr. Walter Courtney, Brainerd, gave one of the most practical papers on "Surgical Tuberculosis." Surgery did cure when medicine had failed. Tuberculosis was not as bad in infection as generally feared. Surgery had entirely cured patients in the skin, bone, joints, muscles, internal organs. It cut disease short, saved lingering sickness and the spread of the disease in the patient. He showed several samples of tuberculosis.

Dr. Switzer of Minneapolis said the tendency of tuberculosis was also to recover under proper conditions, but tuberculosis with mixed infection did not tend to recover. To take away tuberculosis abscess and seal it from infection, it would heal. He spoke of transplantation of joints and of reconstruction of joints with excellent functional results.

In discussion it was stated that the eye diseased was best treated by a surgeon.

Dr. H. Longstreet Taylor, St. Paul, speaking of after-treatment of sanitorium cases, said · gular injection of toxine should be gi n. The patient should be compelled to visit the doctor regularly. Eternal vigilance was the price of life to the patient. The treatment only began in the sanitorium, and must be completed in the home.

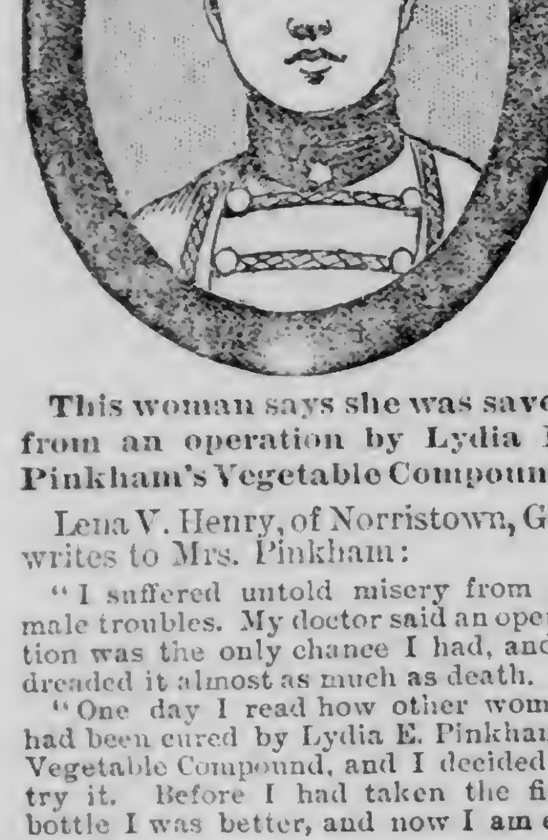
Dr. Marclay said home treatment often lacked personal touch and supervision, and also emphasized early diagnosis.

Dr. Frank F. Westbrook, Minneapolis, read an excellent paper on the tubercle bacillus and its mode of action.

The doctors took part in the discussions, and were shown the state sanitorium, which has fifty-five patients. It was in splendid condition.

Dr. Charles F. Coulter, Wadena, experimented with tuberculin on four patients, putting one drop in the eye of three men and one woman. One man showed decided signs of disease, though the patient's doctor had diagnosed him as free from tuberculosis. Doctors differed on its value for diagnosis.

The sessions were presided over by Dr. Roberts of Little Falls, assisted by Dr. Lowthian, secretary, Akeley.



This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Ga., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death.

NORTHERN WISCONSIN CROPS.

Mayor Thielman of Merrill Says They Will be Large.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 23.—"Everything is looking fine up in our section of the state," said Mayor Julius Thielman of Merrill. "Crops are fine and the farmers will have nothing to complain about in that regard this year. I took a man who did not believe some of my statements regarding the crops we can raise up in that country down to a place I have near the city and showed him some oats there.

"Then he admitted that Northern Wisconsin was good for something besides timber. Those oats are up as high as a table and strong and well headed out. I want to tell you that we can grow ust as good crops up there as you can see anywhere in the state. People used to think that nothing could be raised so far north, but after they were shown some of the products at the state fairs there was a quick change of belief. We do not take a back seat to any of them when it comes to good crops."

INCENDIARY FIRES BARN.

Fine Structure of Peter Sullivan is Destroyed by Flames.

local mines, has gone direct to the Herald.)—An incendiary set fire to a large barn belonging to Peter Sullivan of the town of Nesbit, shortly before midnight Monday night, and before the fire was extinguished a loss of $2,500 was sustained.

The daughter of Mr. Sullivan was aroused from her sleep, and going to the window saw a horse and buggy driving from the barn. She was about to cry out, when flames broke forth from the barn.

At once she aroused her father and the rest of the household and every effort was made to save the structure and the live stock which was in the barn. The flames had secured too good headway, however, and all efforts were futile. Fortunately all the stock with the exception of a valuable farm horse was removed from the burning building.

It is rumored that Mr. Sullivan has a well defined idea who is responsible for the crime and that in a very short time he will have the evidence that will result in an arrest. The Sullivan farm is well known throughout this section of the country and was considered one of the best farms in Polk county.

Another theory is advanced that he has returned, or is on his way to his native home in Austria. Be that as it may, it is safe to assume that no effort will be spared in endeavoring to trace the fellow, and bring him back here to his just punishment, provided he is guilty.

Red Wing., Minn., July 23.—William M. Ericson, county attorney, who was with Coroner Allen at the time investigation was made of the death of James Ryther, who was found dead in the river at Cannon Falls, said:

"There were no marks of violence on the body to show that he had been assaulted, but the body was in a badly decomposed state. In order to secure his effects it was necessary to cut out the pockets of his clothing with a knife, and this was done in the presence of Dr. Haisley of Cannon Falls, the chief of police of that place, and the county coroner and myself and Undertaker P. N. Allen.

"That a young girl was assaulted at the time and is in a hospital at Cannon Falls is news to me, and I made a very careful investigation. Furthermore, no one in Cannon Falls knows anything about it, and there is no hospital there."

P. N. Allen, county commissioner, said that he cut the pockets out for Coroner Allen as the latter did not wish to touch the body owing to a scratch on his hand. He also corroborated the county attorneys statements.

PREACHER BUILDS BOAT.

Princeton Minister Constructs Sailboat for Himself.

Princeton, Minn., July 23.—Besides guiding humanity in this section into the straight and narrow way Rev. J. W. Heard has put in his odd moments at boat-building and has turned out a sailboat upon which he did practically all of the work.

The boat is of cypress, eighteen feet long with a beam of forty-three inches and is painted white. It carries a mainsail of 115½ square feet, a jib, and is fitted with modern steering apparatus and center board. It is a pretty model with symetrical curves and has every appearance of being speedy. On the bows of the craft in silver letters appears the word "Emerol," the boat's name.

The boat has been conveyed to Elk lake where it was launched, and where Mr. Heard will demonstrate what he knows about sailing.

WILL DEBATE ISSUES.

Republican and Socialist Advocates to Discuss Politics.

Minot, N. D., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A check of $25 has been handed to Attorney Sutton, by Attorney Arthur LeSueur during a debate on Republicanism and Socialism. The Socialists have challenged the Republicans to a public debate to take place in Minot on the 27th of July.

Mr. Sutton will take the Republican side, while Mr. Brower, one of the National organizers, will take the Socialist side, and as both gentlemen are familiar with their subjects there is no question but what the debate will prove one of the most interesting ever held in Minot.

The Socialists through Mr. LeSueur offered $25 to any one who would meet Mr. Brower and publicly debate the question with Mr. Brower, and Mr. Sutton immediately accepted the offer.

WILLIAMS TO GET IT.

Reported He Will be Appointed to Williston Land Office.

Williston, N. D., July 23.—(Special to Herald.)—It is generally expected that Minor S. Williams of Minot will be appointed receiver of the United States land office here. The land department at Washington has recommended Mr. Williams to President Roosevelt and the appointment will undoubtedly be made within a day or two.

The selection of a successor to the late Victor Chaffee has been rushed as rapidly as possible. During the seven weeks of Mr. Chaffee's illness, and since his death, the land office has been practically tied up. Only the receiver is allowed to take any money from homesteaders, and while the other work of the office has been going on as before, no one has been able to pay the government any money through the office. The work has been piling up and it is imperative that a receiver should be appointed and placed in office as soon as possible.

The appointment of M. S. Williams will meet with almost universal approval. Mr. Williams is well known throughout the state, and especially in the western portions of North Dakota, where he has been identified with the business and political interests for a number of years.

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE.

It is to be hoped that the citizens of Duluth and St. Louis county will permit nothing to interfere with the selection of the best available men to represent the three St. Louis county legislative districts in the legislature which convenes in St. Paul next January.

As The Herald has often pointed out before, this section of the state has peculiar need of strong men in the legislature. Its legislative needs are greater than those of any other part of the state because of the problems of development that confront it, and the inferiority in numerical strength in the legislature which handicaps this section must be overcome, if possible, by increasing the individual strength of the representation.

This is a problem not only of picking the best men among the candidates that present themselves, but of prevailing upon the strong men who do not voluntarily seek such duties to take them up, even at personal sacrifice of time and trouble.

In this corner of the state a member of the legislature must represent twice as many citizens as a member from the southern part of the state, thanks to an antiquated legislative apportionment which was outgrown years ago; therefore, obviously, there is need that the men sent from here be twice as strong individually as those from other parts of the state.

In many cases the kind of men needed in this peculiar situation not only do not seek legislative honors, but shun them. This is wrong. These men should be willing to sacrifice their own interests to some extent for the sake of the community. The sacrifice is not so great, perhaps, as they imagine. The opportunities for performing great services to the state, county and city are large. The legislative work is not unpleasant, and to strong men who have confidence in their own powers the prospect of doing battle for their home community should even be attractive.

In the time that is left before the last day for entering candidates in the primary election campaign it is the duty of the citizens of St. Louis county to see that the best men obtainable become candidates for the legislature in each of the three St. Louis county districts. When public opinion centers upon men whom everybody can see are just the men for the place, every possible effort should be made by their fellow-citizens to make them see their duty to their city and county. In many instances the prospect will be distasteful to these men, perhaps, but they should remember that as citizens they owe a high duty to their state, and that they should not, without long consideration, refuse to accept the opportunities that may be offered to them to be of service to St. Louis county and to Duluth.

Duluth and St. Louis county will need strong men in the legislature next winter. Much may depend upon the character of the representation. Duluth's interests are so different from those of the rest of the state that much always depends upon its representation in the legislature, and the importance of this consideration is growing every year.

Let St. Louis county pick its best men and elect them without regard to considerations of partisanship or of anything except citizenship and the best interests of the state, county and city.

ANTI-PASS LAW IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Campaign managers, in figuring up their needs for the coming campaign, have had to take into consideration one item that is almost entirely new—for one of the parties at least—in the campaign account books. That item is railroad fare. Since the 1904 campaign the federal and state anti-pass laws have come into being, and they will make a very marked difference in campaign expenses.

Somebody has figured out that this item will amount to $500,000. We do not know who figured it, or what were his facilities for getting at the facts, but it does not seem an exaggerated estimate. It applies, be it remembered, only to the actual campaigning expenses of the two great parties, and does not take into account the cost of transporting delegates to conventions.

In the old days, when the people seemed content to let the railroads and other corporations contribute as much transportation and money to the support of the parties as they desired, this item of transportation was of little account to the campaign treasurers. The railroads very gladly provided transportation for delegates from their homes to the conventions, for campaign workers and speakers from one part of the country to another, and even for the candidates themselves.

Now, under the anti-pass laws, the delegates have to pay their own railroad fares or stay home; the campaign committees have to buy tickets for their workers and speakers; and the candidates themselves find it better to pay full rates for all their traveling.

This is one chance for which the people should be very thankful. Of course every recipient of a pass from a railroad always denied with heat that it was a bribe; but what else was it? Was the railroad giving free passes to candidates, campaign workers and delegates because they were "good fellows" or through a spirit of benevolence or patriotism? Not exactly. The man that accepted a pass might not have admitted, even to himself, that it would influence his vote or change his attitude, but certainly the railroad that gave the pass hoped that it might "help some." And in the long run it most assuredly helped a great deal—helped the railroad, that is.

The present system, introduced for the first time in this campaign, is the only honest one. It increases the campaign expenses, but that is because a part of the burden is taken from the corporations, which do not assume it without expecting returns to which they are not entitled. If the party members can be induced to support their parties, instead of leaving it to the corporations, politics will be sweeter and government cleaner than ever before.

Campaign passes from railroads were every bit as bad as campaign contributions from railroads. The former evil is gone, and the latter evil, it is to be hoped, will soon pass away. The rank and file of the parties, if they believe in their party principles, should be willing to contribute according to their means. A party with a campaign fund of a million dollars, contributed by a million voters, is more likely to serve the people than a party with the same amount, given by ten men with axes to grind.

THE STANDARD OIL DECISION.

The people have almost as much to fear from their fool friends as they have from the open enemies. It is unpleasant to say it, but the Judge Landis decisions in the suit against the Standard Oil company provide a case in point.

Judge Landis, reflecting the bitter hostility of the public toward the oil trust, richly merited by its high crimes and misdemeanors, seems to have brought about a conviction by arbitrary rulings, and to have imposed a spectacular penalty more for its moral effect than for its justice. While the moral effect of the conviction of the company a year ago and the stupendous fine that followed was temporarily good, where is the moral effect now that the circuit court of appeals, by a unanimous vote, has not only reversed the Landis decisions but severely castigated the judge for holding his personal opinions higher than the law itself? The cause of the people is not advanced a step; indeed, since the obvious injustice of the conviction and sentence of a year ago will have a tendency to win sympathy for the criminal and bring suspicion upon the prosecution, it is a question if the cause of the people against the greedy interests is not actually injured.

It is needful to remember that if order is to be observed, if there are to be any rules of practice that will work permanent justice, an offender before the bar of justice must be judged and sentenced upon the offense for which he is on trial, not upon his reputation for past offenses. The reputation of the Standard Oil company is bad; its past offenses are many and heinous: and if the Landis sentence was designed to punish the oil octopus at one blow for all its infamies, the penalty of a $30,000,000 fine was ridiculously low. Yet the oil trust was on trial only for the particular offenses involved in certain definite shipments of oil from Whiting to East St. Louis at 6 cents when there was a published rate of 18 cents, and it should have been punished only for these particular offenses, if offenses they were. Judge Landis refused to receive testimony showing that parallel and competing roads were openly giving this same rate, and as this bore directly upon the question of intent, always a vital element of a criminal prosecution, the higher court holds that he erred in rejecting this testimony.

At the worst, the offense in this case was technical. There is no evidence anywhere that competitors were injured by the acceptance of concessions by the oil trust, and in judging the enormity of the offense it is unjust to take into consideration the fact that in former offenses, running back for a generation, competitors were ruined and a monopoly perfected by such methods. The public may do this, but the court cannot if there is to be any order or justice in court proceedings.

The Herald holds no brief for the Standard Oil company. That concern is an ancient and hoary offender, and if punishment for all its misdeeds could be crowded into one judgment, the greater part of its wealth would be confiscated and its chief conspirators would go to prison. But justice is not served and the cause of the people is not advanced when a judge produces rulings so certain to be overturned as were those of Judge Landis. The spectacular and amazing punishment of this enemy of the people is thus turned into a farce, and the just prosecution of a common enemy delayed and discouraged, if not defeated.

THE PROHIBITION OUTLOOK.

The New York World, which opposed the nomination of Mr. Bryan very strongly and which has not yet settled down with any clear indication of where it will take its stand in the coming campaign, is discussing the prospects of the Prohibition ticket. This probably does not mean that it will take refuge from the perilous choice between two evils by supporting Chafin and Watkins, but in a recent issue it says of the Prohibition ticket: "This ticket has often appealed to voters dissatisfied with both political parties. It made such an appeal in 1884 and again in 1892. The platform adopted at the recent convention in Columbus contains much that is sound and popular, particularly the plank favoring a graduated income and inheritance tax. Many discontented members of the great parties may feel in supporting it that they are not altogether 'throwing away their votes,' but affirmatively urging principles, entirely apart from prohibition, which are entitled to be treated with respect."

For all this respectful treatment of the Prohibition ticket and platform, the World is not likely to devote its energies to the cause of Prohibition. It does not hold with Bryan or Bryanism, it gags at some things in the Democratic platform while approving others, but it can with no better grace support Taft and Sherman and the Republican platform, and if we had to bet upon it we should lay a small sum that before the World supports either the Republican or the Prohibition ticket, it will be found advocating the Democratic ticket.

The World's speculations about the vote that will be commanded by the Prohibition ticket are probably rather too optimistic from the Prohibition viewpoint, in spite of the spread of prohibition in this country in recent years. It should be remembered that while the Prohibitionists individually have done their share, the real work has been done largely by the Anti-Saloon league, which is content to go a step at a time while the real Prohibitionists will not compromise short of universal aridity. The Anti-Saloon league includes thousands of members who would not think of voting the Prohibition ticket. Thousands of voters who favor prohibition support neither the Prohibition party nor the Anti-Saloon league. It is doubtful, on the whole, whether the Prohibitionists will cast a very large vote this fall, and it would be very surprising if they accomplish a total as large as the 258,536 votes cast for Swallow and Carroll four years ago. The Prohibition platform is a good one, and many people in this country favor the abolition of the saloon; but the encouragement to vote the Prohibition ticket is small when the Anti-Saloon league is doing its work so much more cunningly and effectively than the Prohibition party could do it. To elect a Prohibition administration would be to abandon practically all other social, political and economic issues in favor of the one issue of crushing the saloon, and that will never be done. If prohibition ever comes, it will come gradually because the people demand it, and not through the success of the Prohibition national ticket at the polls.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

James T. Harding, who has more than a passing knowledge of atheletics, was discussing at the St. Louis last night the results thus far attained in the Olympic games. In the opinion of Mr. Harding, the American team will capture the majority of events, or at least prove that America possesses the greatest athletes in the world.

The success of the Americans in most of the events that are recognized as legitimate field and track events proves, in the opinion of Mr. Harding, that Uncle Sam's domain produces the greatest sprinters, hurdlers, short distance runners and weight men in the world. He says the reason that we have the greatest athletes in the world is not because we have all the native ability for such things, but we have the right system of training and keep forever at some event until we become proficient in it.

Take for instance, John Flanagan of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association. In the opinion of Mr. Harding, it was a case of hard work that made this man the premier hammer thrower of the world, as it was native ability.

"When Flanagan began training," said Mr. Harding, "he had about as much form as a gin-filled Georgia coon celebrating emancipation day. He was a big, powerful chap who was strong enough to shunt a trust loaded freight car, but he was about as graceful as a bear afflicted with rheumatism.

"He was taken in hand by the American trainers and soon began to heave the 16-pound record-breaking distances. Here it was simply a case of persistent training, coupled with native ability. It was the same way with Matt McGrath, the man who took second to Flanagan in the hammer throwing contest in England the other day. He was even more awkward and clumsy than was Flanagan.

"Flanagan took this raw product of Ireland in hand and began to teach him the rudiments of the hammer heaving game. At first it didn't look as if the big Celt would ever make a world's champion. But Flanagan kept at his protege until finally McGrath captured about all the records held by the mighty Flanagan. Flanagan finally came back and defeated his pupil, but not until he had trained for over six months in the most thorough and careful manner.

"It is the same way with other members of the American team. Many an athlete in this country owes his proficiency to the ability and knowledge of a trainer. Mike Murphy has done more to turn out champion athletes than any other man in America. It is also to his knowledge of conditioning an athlete that the American team is taking practically all events that are worth taking at the Olympian games.

"Melvin Shepard, the star of the games thus far, is one of the many pedal pounders in and around New York city, who has come to the front through persistent and intelligent training and is today one of the speediest men in the world, the winner of the 800 and 1,500-metre events. At one time he was looked upon as a mediocre performer.

"Not that I wish to convey the idea that these athletes who have turned out to be world's champions did not possess the ability to make them the greatest performers in the world. I simply mean that by reason of our superior methods of training and our habit of specializing men for one or two events, we are able to beat any team of athletes in the world. Over in this country, when a man shows that he possesses any athletic ability, this ability is developed to the highest possible point. In Europe they might have a world's champion and never become aware of the fact. They don't train along intelligent lines, and until they do, they will never secure the results that are accomplished by the Amrican athltes.

"They have great distance runners in England, simply because the boys of England run from the time they are in kilts until the time they graduate from college. Hare-and-hounds and cross-country running is responsible for the great distance runners that England has turned out in the past. They have great oarsmen because the Englishman, as a rule, is upon the water much more than an American.

"We have a higher type of nervous athlete in this country. In England it is more a case of plugging it out. They have not produced any great sprinters since the great Bradley was beaten by our Bernie Wefers. They invariably have a great bunch of distance runners, but seldom does a great sprinter develop in England. Their athletes are not built along those lines. England has produced few great weight men, because they won't put the time in long and arduous practice, as did Flanagan and McGrath.

"In my opinion the American team will carry off the championship. This result will be due almost as much to our intelligent training and persistent effort as it is to the native ability of our athletes."

The good old American plan of dining was, after all, invented for healthy appetites. The European plan of dining appeals to the lover of delicate dishes. Let some one with a Beaver Bay brand of appetite hit the European style of feeding, and you would have a bill that would cause the easily-plucked tourist to protest in enraged amazement.

Some of the rangeites, who so often stop at the St. Louis, discovered shortly after that house put on the exclusive European plan of dining, that they would spend fabulous prices for meals. Their appetites had been trained for the good old American way, and they were at a financial disadvantage when they played the a la carte itemized food game.

One time the athletic management of a big Western university sent its team down to Chicago to do valiant gridiron battle. They were sent to one of the best hotels in Chicago. The manager of the team, a youth fresh from the hayfields and used to the free style of food wrestling, made arrangements with the manager of the hotel to charge the hotel bill until the end of the week, when it would be paid in a lump sum.

Well, that cafe was upon the European plan and the way those hungry football men tore into the sirloins rare and the other things that stood out in monogram type upon the menu card, would have made a pessimist out of John D. Rockefeller. The rosy cheeked manager from the alfalfa fields never suspected that this kind of dining was slowly depleting the athletic treasury. He was a pretty good feeder himself.

Two days before the game one of the college professors, a member of the appropriation committee, with an appetite like a minnow that has lived in the Missouri river all its life, came down to the hotel where the team was staying. He scented a financial scandal after the first meal. He ate about s much as Percivl the morning after and received an individual check for $1.95. Investigations were immediately instituted.

The amount of the bill staggered even the student members of the board of financial control. The faculty members of this auditing committee and the committee of control nearly had the pip. The rosy cheeked boy from up the state nearly got fired and the Mandolin and Glee clubs were asked to give a benefit performance for the Athletic association later in the year.

So, when you are really hungry, George, and have hardly enough lucre to purchase an installment on a clay pipe, don't hit the European style of dining. The American plan—an omnibus bill covering all appropriations—is the best plan when you are rapacious in the mid section.

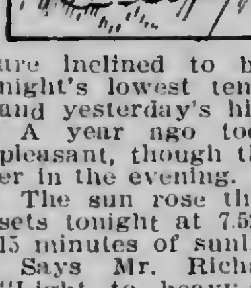
THE WEATHER.



Smart showers, accompanied last night by some thunder and lightning, have kept up most of the time during the past few hours, and the weather man says that local showers are likely to occur tonight and possibly Friday, though it will be warmer tonight. The winds are inclined to be northeasterly. Last night's lowest temperature was 54 degs. and yesterday's highest was 68 degs.

A year ago today the weather was pleasant, though there was a hard shower in the evening.

The sun rose this morning at 4:37 and sets tonight at 7.52, making 15 hours and 15 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light to heavy showers fell over the Middle Atlantic states, the upper lake region, Red River valley, the plateau region and the Southwestern districts during Wednesday or last night, due largely to the influence of low pressures in the West and Far Northwest. An area of high barometer overlying the lake region is attended by northerly to easterly winds in that section. Indications favor a continuance of showery weather in this locality this afternoon, tonight and perhaps Friday."

THE NEW JACOBSON.

Preston Times: Some thought it funny when Frank Eddy, in nominating Jacobson, threw out the suggestion that he ate pie with his knife, but Jake himself and his more intimate friends will have cause to regret this flippant remark a thousand times. Already the papers all over the country are taking up the refrain, and the impression will go out that Jacobson is a mere backwoodsman whose chief recommendation is that he does not conform, either through ignorance or indifference, to the customary usages of polite society. This is unfortunate. The Times cannot vouch for the manner of Jake's pie eating, not knowing whether he eats pie at all; but Minnesota is an enlightened and well-behaved commonwealth, and Eddy had no right to insinuate that anybody within her borders eats pie other than in the regulation fashion. Jacobson has been slandered in the house of his friends.

Elk River Star-News: "Jacobson's election is absolutely assured," triumphantly asserts the Preston Times. It looks like Jacobson, sure enough, but all the same we venture to say he would be greatly pleased to be authoritatively assured of the fact at this time.

New Ulm Review: The fact that Jim Martin is to be secretary of the Jacobson campaign committee does not augur any too well for the man from Madison. Jim has tried his hand at electing two or three candidates for governor, and in every instance he has proved a "hoodoo."

Red Lake Falls Gazette: There are a good many people who eat pie with a knife who do not enjoy the prospect of their governor doing it.

Sauk Center Herald: If Jacobson does not do something for Frank Eddy and Bob Dunn, after he's elected, he may get himself disliked.

St. Cloud Times: The Union here and now refuses to support Ira B. Mills for railroad and warehouse commissioner, because he is the tool of the railroads and against th people. Such men need to be spotted.—Anoka Union.

And what about the head of the ticket, Bro. Pease? Why not be consistent and admit the truth about him too?

Lanesboro Journal (Rep.): Jacobson will be elected governor of Minnesota. But—if he desires to obtain an old-time majority, he will be obliged to break the silence he has maintained during the campaign for the nomination. The voters desire to know—and have a right to know—where he stands today on county option and other important questions.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Now that we know that Jake eats 'em with a knife, we are interested in finding out what kind of pies they are.

New Ulm Review: For the benefit of Candidate Jacobson, it might be remarked that the people living and voting in this day and age are not going to concern themselves to any great extent over how Jacobson stood on any proposition ten or twenty years ago. What they want to know is how he stands now. They are fully alive to the fact that the past attitude of a politician is by no means a guarantee of his present or future leanings.

Acquirement and Loss.

Lippincott's: There was once a jester who was tired of his job, so he resolved to go to his august master, who was his master during the other months of the year also, and beg to be released, so that he could seek fresh fields and pastures new. When the king and his courtiers saw him approaching they began to titter, but the jester went straight to the throne and sank upon one knee.

"Sire," he said, "for many years I have capered and grimaced to amuse you, and now I fain would rest."

"He fain would rest!" repeated the monarch, his sides shaking with mirth.

"Sire, I have a family in far-away provence"—

"Ho, ho!" laughed the king. "Ha, ha!" echoed the courtiers. "He, he!" giggled the courieresses.

"And I beg of your majesty permission"—

"Isn't he the funniest thing?" said the king.

"To let me go and see them," finished the jester.

The king was wiping his eyes, which were full of tears of merriment. "Take him away, somebody," he said, "or I shall die of laughing. He grows funnier every day."

Attendants surrounded the jester and forced him kindly but firmly from the royal presence.

And he is still the king's jester.

Moral: It is sometimes harder to lose a reputation than to acquire one.

The Wise One.

He knows just what the nation needs to guide it safely back Unto the prosperous days of old, and put it on the track
That leads to riches, and he knows just what should now be done
To curb the trusts, and he can tell, if he
if he were asked to run,
Just what he'd do; his methods he is very proud to state;
But then, of course you understand, he's not a candidate.

If "Big Bill" Taft would list to him and take his good advice,
He'd have the presidential job already packed on ice;
The platform no one would decry, if he had written it,
For every plank that he'd have used would be a perfect fit;
To hear him talk you'd think that it was easy to be great,
It's hard to figure out just why he's not a candidate.

In problems of finance he's versed, quite plainly you can see;
Most fluently he can discuss elastic currency;
All diplomatic questions he will settle right offhand,
There's nothing in the government that he can't understand;
And so, when hearing him discuss the grave affairs of state,
Somehow you have to wonder why he's not a candidate.

ROOSEVELT A REACTIONARY?

New York World: Mr. Roosevelt—in his speeches—is still a firm believer in the doctrine of curbing wealth and chastising malefactors. Mr. Roosevelt—in his platforms—is willing to meet the reactionaries on common ground.

In his address at the unveiling of the Underhill monument the president reiterated some of his well-known views in the following familiar language:

"When a private or corporate fortune of vast size is turned to a business use which jeopardizes the welfare of all the small men, then in the interest of everybody, in the interest of true individualism, the collective and common power of the community must be exercised to control and regulate for the common good this business use of vast wealth; and while doing this, we must make it evident that we frown upon envy and malice exactly as we frown upon arrogance and oppression."

Yet only a few days before Mr. Roosevelt had taken occasion to congratulate Senator Hopkins on the platform adopted at Chicago and express his gratification with the work of the committee on resolutions.

That platform says nothing about the restriction of swollen fortunes. It says nothing about an income tax. It says nothing about an inheritance tax. It says nothing about publicity of campaign funds. It says nothing about enforcing the criminal clause of the anti-trust law. It says nothing about sending the one responsible man to jail.

In his message of Jan. 31 Mr. Roosevelt made a tremendous fuss over his belated discovery of the principles of common honesty:

"We do not subscribe to the cynical belief that dishonesty and unfair dealing are essential to business success, and are to be condoned when the success is moderate and applauded when the success is great.

"The methods by which the Standard Oil people and those engaged in the other great combinations of which I have spoken above have achieved great fortunes can only be justified by the advocacy of a system of morality which would also justify every form of criminality on the part of a labor union, every form of violence, corruption and fraud, from murder to bribery and ballot-box stuffing in politics."

There is nothing in Mr. Roosevelt's platform which seems to distress "the Standard Oil people and those engaged in the other great combinations of which I have spoken." Indeed, H. H. Rogers returns to the city to declare that he is an optimist, and Edward H. Harriman is so well satisfied with Mr. Roosevelt as a reactionary that he is engineering a combination to increase freight rates. The Standard Oil fine of $29,240,000 has not been paid, and Harriman has not answered the questions asked seventeen months ago by the interstate commerce commission.

If there are any malefactors of great wealth who are dissatisfied with the new Roosevelt principles, we have yet to hear of them. Wall street is practically a unit in sharing Mr. Roosevelt's enthusiasm over a platform that smothers so many of Mr. Roosevelt's professed policies.

SCHWAB SEES GOOD TIMES

Steel Magnate Predicts Permanent Prosperity for United States.

New York, July 23.—Charles M. Schwab, chairman and president of the Bethlehem Steel company and former head of the United States Steel corporation, in an optimistic interview yesterday predicted a period of prosperity such as the country has not known for several decades.

Mr. Schwab recently returned from Europe, where he studied trade conditions and noted the pulse of trade in the countries he visited, and was assured that America is stimulating trade all over the world. When he consented to talk of trade conditions and the country's hope for permanent prosperity, it was after he had given the subject his best thought. He said:

"The financial panic was a healthy check and it will redound to the health and business interest of the country. There is nothing ahead of this country but a period of permanent prosperity. This is being felt in trade circles today, and the feeling has gradually been growing stronger for several weeks. The state of the stock market and the strong reports dealing with many commercial enterprises indicate that the confidence of the people of the United States has been restored, or is being restored with every hour.

TO LAY CONCRETE WALK.

Commonwealth Avenue, New Duluth, to be Greatly Improved.

New Duluth, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald)—The appearance of Commonwealth avenue is to be greatly improved by a new concrete walk, which is to be laid between Second and Third streets. A crew of workmen began to tear up the old walk Tuesday, and the foreman says the new walk will be ready for use by Sunday. It will be eight feet wide, only half the width of the old walk, and the remaining space will be sodded. Two engineers of the city engineering crew laid out the work Tuesday.

TRAINED FLEA HAS BEEN FOUND

Insect Artist, With Injured Leg, Discovered at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 23.—There is rejoicing at Wonderland.

Prof. Braun, who conducts the flea circus, is sounding the loud timbrel after his own Teutonic manner and indulging in other manifestations of gratification.

For Heinrich, the truant; Heinrich, the juggling flea whose disappearance over a week ago caused consternation, grief, despair and things, has returned.

And yet it is a rejoicing that is tempered with sorrow and apprehension.

One of his legs, the pride and joy of his trainer, has been fractured in some manner during his wanderings, and Heinrich, unable to juggle the ball as accurately as of yore is an occupant of the flea hospital, where he is being assiduously attended in the hope that the injured member may be restored.

The disappearance of Heinrich occasioned much interest throughout the city, which was augmented by the offer of $100 reward for his safe return. Several persons who thought they had found him were disappointed when they returned their captures to Prof. Braun.

But yesterday morning, as one of the park attaches was going over the scenic railway tracks, giving them their daily inspection, he espied a small and dejected looking speck sitting on one of the rails. He examined the apparition and to his intense joy discovered that it wore a gold collar. The tiny chain which had been attached to it, however, had been broken off in Heinrich's wanderings. But the collar identified the long lost artist.

Seizing Heinrich, the finder rushed to Prof. Braun and restored the flea to the arms of his master. There was an affecting scene. The professor hurriedly produced the ball with which Heinrich was wont to juggle and gave the familiar command to pick it up.

Heinrich was wrapped in cotton wool and placed carefully in hospital, where every care will be given him.

Prof. Braun, with characteristic prudence, paid but $50 to the finder of Heinrich because of the damaged condition of the flea. If Heinrich recovers and is able to resume his artistic duties, the other $50 will be paid.

GOOD SHOWING BY HIBERNIANS

Order Has Made Satisfactory Increase During Past Year.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—The excellence of the report of National President Matthew Cummings of Boston to the biennial convention of the Hibernians, yesterday afternoon, was the chief topic of discussion among the delegates.

The report of President Cummings shows a total membership in July, 1908, of 140,173, an increase since the last convention. The ladies' auxillary had a membership on July 1 of the present year of 55,000, an increase of 6,132 since the last meeting. The total assets of the A. O. H. are $1,860,099, of which amount $847,986 is in the division treasuries.

The report urges close relations with the Catholic church.

"In the years to come," reads the report, "the Catholic church will be the main-stay of this republic, and battling in the front ranks in defense of Catholic principles and Catholic education will be found the strongest of all Catholic organizations, the Ancient Order of Hibernians."

The report is against federation with the A. O. H. organizations in Ireland until the latter can agree among themselves to affiliate the different factions in Ireland.

An independent policy for the order in America and against allliances with any other American Irish society is strongly advocated. The report declared for the absolute independence of Ireland.

On the question of insurance, which is the most important topic before the organization, the report says:

"After an exhaustive examination of the question of a national insurance system for our order by a committee, we are firmly convinced that such a system is not advisable and, if adopted, will bring a great deal of trouble on our order."

SCHUTTE TO COME HERE

St. Paul Man Will be Grain Weighmaster at Duluth.

Gets Post Made Vacant by J. B. Sutphin's Death.

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—Fred M. Schutte of St. Paul, who has been for a number of years chief accountant at the state grain inspection and weighing department, has been appointed state weighmaster of grain at Duluth, a position made vacant by the recent death of J. B. Sutphin of that city.

Mr. Schutte's knowledge and experience of all phases of the department work, taken in connection with his faithful services in the past, makes his appointment one in the line of promotion, and seems generally accepted as a fitting recognition of his past services, and in accordance with the policy followed by the railroad and warehouse commission whenever practical.

DELINQUENTS PAYING FAST

Only 300 Out of 1,800 Have Not Paid Personal Tax.

The sheriff's notice has a most beneficial effect on the delinquent taxpayer. On April last a list of something more than 1,800 names was turned over to Sheriff Bates and his deputies for the collection of long over due personal property taxes. Since that time there has ben a fairly steady procession of delinquents to the sheriff's office, and Deputy Sheriff Herman Oppel stated today that over 1,500 of the 1,800 delinquents had now paid up.

It is not until the latter part of September that any more radical action will be taken by the officers, and it is expected that by that time the list of delinquents will be down to but a little more than a score.

ELMER FRYBERG CAN'T BE FOUND

New Duluth Boy Comes Here Then Drops Out of Sight.

New Duluth, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Fryberg went to Duluth Wednesday to see if he could find his son, Elmer, who left home Tuesday morning and has not been heard of since. Elmer went to West Duluth to get some supplies for his launch. He intended to return home Tuesday evening and when no word came from him his father became greatly worried, as the boy has never left home before for any length of time.

Property That is "Ours."

To the Editor of The Herald:

Of course you believe in property. So do I. Everybody does. Property that belongs to you is yours. Property that belongs to me is mine. The whole question of property has always been treated as a matter of mine and thine, but the question of the division of property into mine and yours does not cover all property. It leaves out of the question the property that is "ours." The question of what is ours is the great disturbing question of today. The statesmen of our time are afraid of the irrepressible conflict over what is ours, rather than what is yours and mine. Just think of it, the great fortunes of today are based on monopoly by a few men of things that are neither theirs nor yours nor mine, but "ours." The Bible says the earth was made for all, and common sense says, amen. A too great stubborn resistance to this truth is likely to bring hell fire! on our country as it did in '60-'61. Justice must be done. SAMUEL NIXON.

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY

Duluth People Are Doing All They Can For Fellow Sufferers.

Duluth testimony has been published to prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to others in Duluth who suffer from bad backs and kidney ills. Lest any sufferer doubt that the cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills are thorough and lasting, we produce confirmed proof —statements from Duluth people saying that the cures they told of years ago were permanent. Here's a Duluth case:

Mrs. C. M. Bradley, dressmaker, of 109 East First street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Since giving a testimonial for publication some six years ago, which has appeared at intervals in our Duluth papers, and in which I told of the gratifying benefit I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, my faith in this remedy has only increased. Not only myself, but numerous friends, have found that Doan's Kidney Pills are a remedy that can be relied upon. I used to suffer from aching pains in the small of my back so that I couldn't stoop over nor rest at night. This trouble is now a thing of the past, and the action of the kidney secretions has also been regulated. I unhesitatingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Only One Way

Don't expect the stomach to do work it can't do. That is unreasonable. While you need help let Kodol do it for you. Kodol digests all the food and it's the only preparation that does

Don't expect the stomach to do work it can't do. That is unreasonable. While you need help —let Kodol do it for you. Kodol digests all the food and it is the only preparation that does. If the stomach is unable to digest food—

There is only one way. It must have help.

Don't expect it to do work it can't do. That is unreasonable. Help restore its abilty to act for itself. It soon puts it in condition to do its work unaided. When that condition is reached—

You don't need help.

You don't need digesters.

You don't need Kodol.

But while you do need help let Kodol do it for you. Then note the physical improvement that only comes with perfect digestion. And perfect digestion supplies sufficient nourishment.

Kodol is not a cure—Nature alone cures. But Kodol assists the stomach by doing part of its work. Then nature completes its cure. A little help from Kodol makes the burden lighter and easier to bear.

There are tonic properties in Kodol that cause the stomach and whole system to respond. That is what you want. That's what you get in Kodol.

Lack of nourishment is not generally caused by lack of food. It is because you don't assimilate what you eat and because it don't digest.

Eat good food and all you want

Don't avoid this nor that because it dosen't agree with you. That only shows the stomach needs help. If your appetite craves certain things your system requires them.

Here is where Kodol benefits you.

It not only digests the food you have eaten, but tones up and puts the stomach back to a healthy and normal condition.

As long as part of the food remains undigested, the stomach is not at rest. All food must be digested. Only part means that the stomach must go on working at an impossible task.

Some things are a partial help and do part of the work. But that is not enough. The part they do is not the most essential part. Just what they fail to accomplish is what is most required by the body. Part way will not do. "Part way" will never take you to a journey's end. All or none should be the demand.

That is why Kodol is so successful.

It digests all food as quickly as a healthy stomach will do it.

If it fails it costs you nothing.

Fairness cannot go further.

SCARCITY OF WATER

Six Rainless Weeks Nearly Cause Water Famine in Gotham.

Uncle Sam's Winnings in Olympic Games Arouse Interest.

New York, July 23.—Water of any kind for every use is today seriously near the famine point in the heart, as well as on the outskirts of this city. Six long rainless weeks, under a torrid sun, have parched every inch of ground for miles around and pinched to far below normal the great water sources upon which a half a dozen millions of souls depend. Day by day each square foot of dying lawn and sun-baked pavement has been lavishly deluged from every main and hydrant in town, and foot by foot the big reservoirs have been sunk under the strain. To meet the force of the sun in this record hot spell, enough water has been tapped to fill the entire bay. If days of steady rain do not soon set in, it is expected that the authorities will call a halt to the threatening drain on their treasured water resources. Already water famine has touched Staten island, and the pressure in the pipes at other spots has lowered alarmingly. St. Swithin's day has just passed clear, but no one likes to think what a forty-day drought must mean.

After Athletics.

The news of Uncle Sam's winnings in the course of the Olympic games across the Atlantic has roused athletic interest to fever heat throughout town. In ordinary times the talk of the track is left largely to the regulars of the big athletic clubs, who are always intent on developing a crew of record performers. Since the American team has gone into the heart of Britain to wrest athletic honors from all the world, however, every man, woman and child here has appeared to pick up the furore of the sport. Day and night every foot of space in all the enormous clubhouses of the athletic associations has been jammed with eager rooters, hanging on every word of cable news from the stadium in London. No championship baseball series; no college contest, has ever called forth an enthusiasm greater or more general. Every branch of athletic sport has for several years boomed steadily here, and this meet of the nations will do much to advance track athletics with the public.

Platt's Place.

For the first time in the memory of the old guard, Tom Platt has failed to pass his birthday on the piazza of his favorite hotel at Manhattan beach, surrounded by a retinue of old-time friends. Last week the retired veteran of the political ring was discovered in a secluded Long island cottage, on the eve of his seventy-fifth anniversary. If any of the hundreds of public men who always flocked to pay their respects on these occasions came down to shake the trembling hand of the dethroned boss they were not seen. Time was when these very men begged to have their names printed as delighted to honor the "easy boss" at these birthday celebrations. Today no one of all of them apparently cares to be quoted as remembering the once-memorable date. As a lesson in the bitterness of politics, a look at Tom Platt's birthday solitude last week would have been well worth while to any of the younger blood of aspiring politicians.

Chorus Cloister.

As the sensation of the silly season about Broadway, the rumor that a regular hotel is to be bought and opened exclusively for ladies of the theater chorus is today startling all actordom. Stripped of the many embellishments of half a dozen theatrical press agents, the basis of the story appears unusually near fact. A real firm appears to be backing with $100,000 real money the purchase of this "Hotel Mary Anderson," where 300 rooms will always be at the sole disposal of members of the "merry-merry." That just such accommodation is needed by hundreds of theater working girls is undisputed, but whether or not the subjects themselves will see the need is as yet much in doubt. The promoters assert that the bachelor girls who require such surroundings are numbered on the stage by the hundred. Every one is anxious to watch the scheme work out.

Real Relics.

Half a dozen burros are today plodding the pavement of the East side, under the direction of thousands of the children of the Tammany henchmen, for whom they were brought from Denver. While the alkali-stained leaders have by this time settled back to the simple life once more, these living Democratic emblems bid fair to form a perpetual relic of the strenuous days of the convention by Pike's Peak. A donkey is a rarety in the Bowery districts, and crowds follow every step of the ambling little brutes. Tammany has been much taken by the West, and the little burros find equal favor with the younger generation.

Over Thirty-Five Years.

In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by all druggists.

IMPROVEMENT IN IRON BUSINESS

Very Apparent Although It is Coming Slowly.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 23.—The Iron Trade Review says: The prosperity of the farmer continues to be strongly reflected in the improvement of the iron business, which is shown not only in such products as wire, which go directly to the farmer, but also in bars used by implement manufacturers and, in the increased activity of railroad shops, which are preparing cars to move heavy crops. The improvement is very slow, but nevertheless real, and considering that it comes in midsummer, when there is almost always a considerable diminution in demand for iron and steel products, and decreased activity of mills, is very encouraging. The signing of the wage scale by the Amalgamated association by a number of important manufacturing concerns has removed the cause of some anxiety and furnished further reason for believing that there will be few, if any, serious wage controversies this summer. The strike of miners in the South is causing some trouble, but has not resulted in the banking of any furnaces.

While there are few noteworthy sales of pig iron, there is a strong undertone in the market for foundry grades in the Central West, and prices are for the most part being well maintained. Some sale of basic have been recently made in the East, and a transaction involving 10,000 tons of Bessemer in the Pittsburg district, privately negotiated some time ago, is now announced, but steel making iron is extremely dull and lower prices are named on basic. In the South a number of interests are beginning to sell on a basis of $11.50 Birmingham, for No. 2 foundry, but some companies are still holding for $12. The leading pump interests has completed its high iron purchases to the limit of its requirements.

The demand for light rails has improved in nearly all parts of the country. An Eastern manufacturing interest has purchased 3,500 tons of billets for early delivery. The more liberal policy of the railroads in making repairs is shown in the improvement in the demand for boiler tubes. The demand for wire products is again active. In structural material, a considerable number of orders of fair size have been placed, but business is still far below that of last year.

SOTHERN WILL CONTEST WIFE'S DIVORCE SUIT.

Reno, Nev., July 23.—Edward H. Sothern will contest his wife's suit for divorce, which was filed in the district court yesterday by her attorneys. The fact that the case will be contested was evidenced when attorneys for Sothern filed, in behalf of the actor, a demurrer to the complaint filed by his wife's attorneys.

The demurrer, like the complaint, is a sealed document, and nothing could be learned of the contents or on what grounds a contest would be made. Owing to the fact that a demurrer has been filed, it is probable that the case will be placed on trial within a short time.

Mason City, Iowa, July 23.—At the age of 70 years, Capt. S. J. McKinley died yesterday at Charles City. He served in the Civil war from beginning to end. Sixteen times he was shot, four times in one battle. On different occasions, as a result of wounds, he has had seventy bones taken from his body.

LEWIS LIONS IN TOILS AGAIN

Lewis Lions, who served a sentence at Stillwater eight or ten years ago for the theft of numerous overcoats in Duluth, was arrested today for the first time since his release from the state's prison. He was charged with taking a saw, valued at $3.

At the time of the overcoat thefts Lions mystified the police. For nearly a month he stole one garment a day regularly, from boarding houses along the hillside, for the most part. He made a practice of entering the houses while the boarders were at supper, and took one coat from the row hung in the hallway. He was not caught until he had stolen about twenty-five coats.

RAILROADS

TO ADVANCE THE RATES

Western Passenger Association Confirms Decision for Increase.

Duluth Territory Affected by the Decision of Eastern Roads.

James Maney, assistant general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, who returned late yesterday from the meeting of the rate committee of the Western Passenger association at Chicago, states that the increased rate from New York to Chicago has been confirmed by the rate committee, and that all other rates to the Eastern, Canadian and New England territory will be figured on the basis of the increase between New York and Chicago.

Duluth territory will be directly affected by the decision of the Eastern roads to increase the $10 tariff between Chicago and New York to $16. The tariff from Duluth to New York has been $18.50, second class, since the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic reduced its tariff from $24, some time last winter.

Under the basis of the increase from Chicago to New York, the fare will be increased to $24. The tariff to New York, via St. Paul, will also be increased by the additional fare from Chicago eastward.

The roads of the Western Passenger association have determined to play good ball for a while. In other words, they have determined to adopt a harmony plank. They gave out that it costs too much to quarrel among themselves, and the traveling public will lose in dollars and cents. When roads are in harmony over rates they generally boost the rates. When they disagree the rates go down.

The Erie was the cause of the decrease in the New York-Chicago rate. The officials of that road stated that the officials of the Grand Trunk were not playing fair over the matter of ticket sales, so they resolved to get down to a basis where no commissions could be given upon ticket sales. The $10 rate was the result. Other roads were compelled to follow suit, and the Duluth territory was one of the first passenger territories to feel the effects of the rate war.

Now, under the "get together" platform, the Duluth passenger rates will go up. Not only the New York rate will be increased, but also the rates to New England and Canadian points. The change in rates will become effective Sept. 1.

WRECK OCCURS NEAR DULUTH

Northern Pacific Freight and Passenger Trains Come Together.

Northern Pacific train No. 4, due here at 7:55 a. m., was wrecked shortly before 7 o'clock this morning two miles east of Wrenshall, a station on the Duluth, Fargo and Winnipeg branch of the Northern Pacific.

A freight train, propelled by two engines was backing onto a siding. The train did not get off the main track in time to permit the passenger to pass, the engine of the latter train crashing into the two engines that were attached to the freight.

The mail car of the passenger train was derailed, the engineers and firemen of the three engines severely shaken up, though it is stated at the division superintendent's office that no one was hurt. Another report from an outside source stated that two women, one of the engineers and the porter were hurt. The officials would not admit that this was true.

All three of the engines were badly demolished. The mail car was also badly damaged. None of the freight cars were derailed. Whether the collision occurred as a result of a mistake in the running time, the officials would not state.

Work Progressing.

Iron Mountain, Mich., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Contractor John Marsch has nearly completed the work of grading the right of way for the extension of the Wisconsin & Michigan railway from Cundy to the St. Paul tracks in this city and it is only a question of a few weeks now when the company will be opertaing trains over its own line all the way from Peshtigo, Wis., to the Menominee range metropolis. The steel is being laid, and the work of ballasting the track is progressing rapidly.

Have a Special.

A special train will arrive from the Twin Cities over the Great Northern road at 6:30 o'clock this evening, bearing the members of the Minnesota Bankers' association, who will attend the annual convention here Friday and Saturday.

EWRY WINS FINAL IN STANDING HIGH JUMP.

London, July 23.—The final of the standing high jump in the Olympics was won by Ray C. Ewry, New York A. C., with 5 feet 2 inches.

Matthew P. Halpin, manager of the American team, says the Americans will not run the 400-meter race over.

As soon as the decision of the officials was made known, the grand stands were in an uproar, the Englishmen cheering the announcement and the Americans hooting. The "boring" is alleged to have occurred at the corner coming into the stretch. To the spectators it seemed impossible. They could not see how Carpenter, who had the post, could avoid coming out a little, as the men already had started to sprint.

LIBEL ON TWO TUGS

Gilchrist Company Claims Record and Adams Caused Collision.

Nearly $8,000 Damages Claimed on Merida and Antrim.

The tugs Record and A. C. Adams, owned by the Union Towing & Wrecking company in the local harbor, were libeled today in the United States court by the Gilchrist Transportation company. The company claims faulty navigation of the tugs was responsible for a collision between the steamer Merida and barge Antrim, both owned by the Gilchrist company, in the Duluth harbor June 17, 1906. The amount of the damages is placed at $7,891.88.

The libel sets forth that on the day of the collision the Antrim was in tow of the Record, with the Adams holding a tow line, it being taken to the Missabe dock for a cargo of ore. The steamer Merida was bound down from the docks with an ore cargo. The libellant claims that the Record failed to properly answer the signals of the Merida and also failed to pull the Antrim out of danger of a collision, the port bows of the boats coming together and injuring plates on both. The libellant claims that the Adams was also improperly handled, contributing to the collision.

Ten days were consumed in repairing the Antrim and twenty days in repairing the Merida and for the damages, delays and pay of the crews during the repair period, the company claims $7,891.88. The motion is returnable Aug. 18. John H. Norton is the attorney for the Gilchrist company.

I consider it one of the best medicines of its kind in the world, and had I used it in 1902 believe it would have saved me a hundred dollar doctor's bill." Sold by all druggists.

CAPTAIN'S WIFE TAKES HER LIFE

Dies in St. Paul Hospital From Overdose of Morphine.

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Investigation by Coroner Arthur W. Miller and the police, into the mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Ida Lewis, who was found unconscious in the Euclid hotel and removed to the city hospital Tuesday evening, where she died without gaining consciousness, leads to the opinion that death resulted from an overdose of morphine taken with suicidal intent.

The woman came to the hotel late Monday afternoon and her name was inscribed upon the register as "Mrs. Arthur Keller," the hotel book bearing the inscription "Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keller, Duluth, Minn."

Just who the man in the case is has not developed or has been kept from the press. After the woman's companion for whom the police are now searching has been apprehended, an inquest will be held. Investigation showed that "Mrs. Keller" was the wife of Capt. William A. Lewis of the steamer F. B. Wells, a freight and passenger vessel that plies the Great Lakes between Duluth and Cleveland. They have been married about two years, and judging from the tone of the letters found among the young woman's effects, their married life has been a most happy one and the husband had the utmost confidence in the woman. The letters from the woman's husband, aside from showing a great affection and contentment, spoke in endearing terms of the time the couple could settle down and live in their home that was nearing completion near that of her brother-in-law, John B. Burkhard, 143 Brompton place, this city.

The theory advanced by the police that the young woman met death at her own hands in swallowing the deadly morphine poison, either by overdose or suicidal intent, is substantiated by the fact that the woman was addicted to the use of the drug. This latter fact is borne out by statements made by former friends of the girl.

It is presumed by the police that the man with whom the woman was infatuated met her at the Euclid Monday night by appointment and the two talked over their difficulties in the woman's room the major portion of Monday night.

Whether or not the suicide pact was contemplated by the two still remains a mystery, but the police believe that the woman could secure no decided answer from her male companion and deliberately swallowed the deadly drug with suicidal intent.

It is asserted by the police that the young woman was at one time a resident of Stillwater, Minn., and that during the past several months she had visited places of bad repute in that city. She is declared to have been intimate with a business man in the prison city, although she succeeded in concealing this fact from her husband, whose duties as a sailor kept the two apart for weeks at times.

Coroner Arthur W. Miller has been assisting the police in their endeavor to advance a possible clew for the woman's demise and yesterday held an autopsy over the woman's body, which revealed the fact shown by the superficial appearance of her body, that she had taken an excessively large portion of the fatal drug which resulted in her death. Both Coroner Arthur W. Miller and Dr. A. B. Ancker, city physician, emphatically deny that the autopsy revealed any grounds for the report that had been given out, that the woman was about to become a mother.

The authorities are firm in their belief that the woman met death at her own hands and accordingly have turned the body over to an undertaker to await disposition by her husband, who has been notified of his wife's tragic death by Coroner Arthur W. Miller.

Hugh Cameron Arrested and Sent to Police Station.

Utterly regardless of the fact that his father has been lying at the point of death alone in his home at 1795 West Superior street, Hugh Cameron has been getting drunk day after day for some time past, according to the police.

Lieut. Drannen and Patrolman Sass heard of the illness of the old man last night and started to search for the son. He was found drunk in one of the West end saloons and sent to police headquarters. He is the only support of his father.

QUESTIONABLE FUNDS BARRED

Jacobson Wants "No Campaign Funds With Strings on."

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—"No campaign funds with strings on" was the dictum of J. F. Jacobson to the executive committee of the Republican state central committee, which met yesterday afternoon at the Merchants hotel. Mr. Jacobson's sentiments were heartily seconded by the committee members and candidates at the meeting.

The meeting had been called for the morning, but Mr. Jacobson and A. D. Brown, chairman of the state central committee, were delayed by a wreck on the Minneapolis & St. Louis road and did not reach here until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. They found the committee waiting for them. The two had neither sleep nor meals since Tuesday, yet they went in and started the meeting immediately.

There were a number of subjects up for discussion, including headquarters, help at the headquarters, assessments upon the candidates for a campaign fund, plans for the speaking campaign and several other matters. The candidates were called into the meeting and the general talk indicated that they would have to dig up heavily for the campaign fund. Some one remarked that each candidate should contribute, and also get his friends to contribute to the fund.

At this moment Jacobson broke in and, in his characteristic way, told the committee clearly that no contributions must be accepted with any strings to them; that the committee must not accept funds from questionable sources, or from any sources that would leave the party under any obligations to any special interests.

The candidates agreed that this was the right stand, and the committee members had the same idea. They found that they may have to make rather heavy assessments upon the candidates in order to cover the legitimate campaign expenses, but the candidates were all willing to contribute.

JEALOUS MAN SHOOTS TWO ON FLOOR OF BALLROOM.

New York, July 23.—In view of more than a hundred persons in the ballroom of the Fort Lowry hotel at Bath Beach, L. I., late last night, John Hanna, 30 years old, shot 16-year-old Augusta Walsh, with whom he was in love, and Ralph Manz, 20 years old, with whom she was dancing. When he saw his victims fall to the floor he turned the revolver on himself, firing a bullet into his head and one into his breast. He died almost instantly. The bullet aimed at the girl struck her in the mouth, but inflicted only a slight wound. Young Manz was wounded in the left side, near the heart, and may die. Hanna had been attentive to Augusta for some time, and was exceedingly jealous of her.

"THREE WEEKS" ON STAGE.

Elinor Glyn Will Play Role of Heroine Herself.

London, July 23.—Mrs. Elinor Glyn is preparing to spring a surprise upon London, and if the results are all she hopes for, it is understood she later on will favor New York in a similar way. It was announced a few days ago that she was going to give the initial performance of her own dramatization of her novel, "Three Weeks," and that she had engaged a company of capable performers, who are hard at work rehearsing.

Only today did a select few learn that the heroine was to be played by Elinor Glyn herself.

The hero will be Charles Bryant, who will be remembered in America as Mrs. Patrick Campbell's leading man on her first American tour. Bryant is a handsome six-footer and is said to realize Mrs. Glyn's ideal Paul, so far as the physical qualities are concerned.

COULD NOT STOP IT.

Rider on Motorcycle Finally Ran Into a Stone Wall.

Great Barrington, Mass., July 23.—John Gilpin's ride of poetic fiction was duplicated in real life yesterday with all the modern improvements.

Charles McCarthy, a collector for the telephone company, bought a motorcycle to make his business easy. He didn't know how to ride it, but he got on it and a friend who knew all about machines turned the speed on full and gave him a shove.

McCarthy and his motorcycle gave a jump and darted up the main street, going at forty miles an hour. Great Barrington soon was in the background.

Sheffield, six miles away, then Ashley Falls were passed, and McCarthy dashed over the state line into Connecticut. A town marshal near Canaan ordered him to stop.

"Stop it yourself," shrieked McCarthy, and he sped past the guardian of the law.

After five hours McCarthy finally ran the "thing" into a stone wall.

the campaign. He decided that the way to make the Democracy sit up would be to tender the nomination to Mr. Cleveland in Madison Square Garden, and to hold the meeting under the direction of the very people who were supposd to resent most Mr. Clveland's nomination. When he reached New York he met difficulties. "The word had not come down." Tammany was indifferent. The mayor wasn't sure that he "could see his way." Whitney saw Croker and told him his plans. Then the Boss said, "Let us go and see the mayor."

"Do What Whitney Says."

At the city hall, Mr. Whitney stated his mission.

"But, Mr. Whitney——" the mayor began.

"You'll do what Mr. Whitney says," said Croker, looking at the clock.

"I am——" began the mayor again.

"Whatever Mr. Whitney says you'll do," said Croker. "Will we be going up-town, Mr. Whitney?"

On the way up, Mr. Whitney turned to the Boss and said: "Croker, I want to thank you for the way you have behaved. I wouldn't have thought it possible. I know you don't like Mr. Cleveland. You fought the nomination and I beat you; and now you do me a very great personal service. Will you tell me why?"

"Mr. Whitney," said Croker, "do you remember when I was tried for killing that man?"

Mr. Whitney's mind traveled back over twenty busy years. He had not forgotten the incident. He knew that the Boss of Tammany had been indicted and tried for murder. Mr. Whitney himself had been an active member of the committee that worked for his release. Croker, in those days, was an aggressive but inconspicuous politician. To the leaders of his faction he was comparatively unknown, but in his own neighborhood he was a figure full of menace, a silent, savage, rough-and-tumble warrior. When a man fell dead with a pistol-shot in his heart during a fight at the polls, it was a perfectly reasonable process, in the minds of his enemies, to "swear it onto Croker." The identity of the murderer was well known. The man was never tried, held a position of some trust afterward and may still live. But you will never drag his name from the lips of those who know.

Charged to Croker.

But Croker was charged with the crime, indicted and arraigned. Meanwhile the report that an humble and outlying, but worthy supporter was in danger got up to headquarters, and with it the assurance that "Dick hadn't done it." Mr. Whitney was then a young leader and the matter was passed on to him. He went to work at once and raised the money necessary for Croker's defense. It was $3,000—not much later, but much then. He took personal charge of the case as far as he could, and Croker eventually came off free, although beset by enemies on the witness stand and by patrons, perhaps, beset by enemies on the bench.

Of course, Mr. Whitney had not forgotten. But he had never thought of his work on the defense committee as done for Croker. It was part of his business as an organization man to save an organization man. It never occurred to him that Croker should be grateful, and when he undertook to nominate Mr. Cleveland he did not see Croker or attempt to influence him in any way. He didn't think there was any good in trying.

"Yes—why, yes," said Mr. Whitney; "I remember it very distinctly."

"Well," said Croker, "I've been waiting these twenty years to get even with you."

FARMERS CRYING FOR MORE HELP

Men Badly Needed in North Dakota to Harvest Crop.

Minot, N. D., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Soo line has issued a circular showing the harvest hands needed this year along the line in Minnesota and North Dakota. Farmers in the vicinity of fifteen stations on the Soo in Minnesota need 1,225 men, some at once and others beginning at dates ranging from now until Sept. 1. They are willing to pay from $1.50 to $3 per day if they can get the men.

From farmers at sixty-four stations in North Dakota the cry goes up for 10,070 men and many of them are urgently needed at once. North Dakota farmers offer from $1.50 to $3 per day.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific also report that thousands of men will be needed along their lines. Haying is progressing in many sections and has taken about all the available men.

The railways report it very difficult to get the men needed for section work at many stations. A few weeks ago there were thousands of idle men traveling over the Northwest looking for work. The situation is changed at the present time. All who want work can secure it without difficulty.

EAU CLAIRE BOY DROWNS.

Member of Tough Juvenile Gang Perishes in Reservoir.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Glenn Tribbey, aged 12, one of the alleged members of the juvenile robber and burglar gang that so long mystified the local police by their operations, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the reservoir.

Tribbey was swimming with a number of other boys at the rear of A. D. Chappell's place. While the boys were disporting themselves in the water, Tribbey was seen to sink, but as his comrades thought he had gone down intentionally for a few seconds to scare them, they did not pay any immediate attention to the boy's disappearance, but when he did not reappear above the surface the boys realized that something had occurred; but it is claimed that none of the boys made any effort by diving or otherwise, to rescue him.

The police statian was notified by 'phone of the occurrence, as was the sheriff's office, and the work of dragging the river was commenced.

Little Falls, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has reached the city that the 3-year-old daughter of Joseph Moroski, living in the town of Pulqski, is dead as the result of being kicked in the head by a horse.

The little girl was playing about a watering trough where a number of horses were drinking. The horses were in a playful mood and in theor kicking and jumping, one of them struck the child in the head, causing death almost instantly. The child's home was about nine miles north of Pierz.

The election of new officers will take place Friday afternoon.

Rydholm, Marquette, Mich.; medical director, O. W. Holcolm, M. D., St. Paul; councilor, Edward Peterson, St. Paul; auditors, John Axelson, Menominee, Mich., and Arvid Ekstrand, North Branch, Minn.

BARLEY BEING CUT.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Barley cutting is quite general in North Dakota this week. Reports indicate that the barley is of fair quality and promises a good yield. Barley cutting was reported in the vicinity of Gilby, Inkster, Manvel and other points yesterday. The grain promises to be profitable as the price is excellent.

M. Byrnes, who has a fine crop of winter wheat on his farm, a few miles from Grand Forks, will start cutting it tomorrow. It promises a yield of about thirty-five bushels.

WORKMEN FALL AT FEET OF PRIEST.

Cincinnati, July 23.—As children were singing a requiem during mass, at the new St. Francis de Sales church, two workmen fell fifty feet to the ground, near the feet of Rev. Dr. Holweck, who was celebrating the mass. One workman was killed, and the other probably injured. Joseph Bahan, 30 years old, died instantly. His skull was crushed. Robert Powers, 24 years old, sustained serious bruises and internal injuries. The two men were plasterers and their scaffold broke.

KILLS HIS WIFE.

Chicago, July 23.—Santo Purquoo, a laborer employed by the city, last night shot and killed his wife and probably fatally wounded Frank Retrando, whose attentions to Mrs. Purqueo had aroused the husband's jealousy. The shooting of the woman occurred in the hallway of the Purqueao home at 908 West Huron street. Retrando fled, but was found by Purquaeo and overtaken after a short chase. A bullet passed completely through his body.

FARMER KILLS HIMSELF.

Fergus Falls,, Minn., July 23.—Loeys A. Moody, a farmer of Star Lake township, shot himself in a fit of despondency. He left home with a shotgun, saying he was going for a hunt, and when a few rods from the house found a tree with small stub branches, which served to catch the trigger. SOX LOSE AT FINISH

Maroons Pull Game Out of Fire by Hitting the Ball.

Five Runs, Scored in Last Inning, Lose for Duluth.

Winnipeg, Man., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—After teasing the Sox by letting them get a lead, which apparently meant a victory, the Maroons jumped on Brandt in the last inning yesterday, clouted out five runs and won the game by a score of 10 to 9.

It was a heart-breaking finish for the Duluthians. They had hit the ball and fielded beautifully all the way through. In the sixth inning, they got to Gienecke for a bunch of hits and six runs, and when the ninth came around had the game by a 9 to 5 score. They hadn't reckoned with the Maroons' hitting ability, for they pulled the game out of the embers handily. Beatty's two-base hit with two down clinching the result.

GLEAMS in the SPORTING FOG.

The Northern league with St. Paul and Minneapolis in the circuit, once considered the fantastic vision of the space filling pipe dreamer, but now regarded as more than a possibility, bobs up again to command the attention of Northern league fans and to excite opponents of the league to scathing paragraphs belittling the proposition.

The playing of a Wisconsin-Illinois league game between Madison and Green Bay in Milwaukee one Sunday recently, when the American association team was abroad, resurrects the Northern league scheme, which came close to going through last fall. When the smaller league invaded the Beer City some people seemed to think President Joe O'Brien of the American association would rear up, wave his arms frantically and put seven stenographers at work getting out a letter to Secretary Farrell of the National commission with all possible dispatch.

Not so Joseph.

The grand mogul of the biggest of small leagues in the West sat calmly by when he heard the report, let an expressive sniff through his nostrils and President Moll of the Wisconsin- Illinois organization didn't hear a peep.

Joseph has an iron in the fire, which he cannot afford to cool by jumping on the smaller organization. The invasion of Chicago by the American association, which was planned last year, will surely come about this season. O'Brien and his cohorts want to make the invasion under the protection of the national agreement. If they can't get the protection, they will invade anyway, but they are playing for the sanction of the powers that be in baseball just at present. O'Brien can't very well protest to the national commission against a small league invading his territory, while he is planning to invade the territory of the major organizations.

So there you are!

If the American association invades Chicago the Northern league will invade the Twin Cities. T. J. Bryce, who died recently, was practically the only magnate in the American association, who was opposed to the Northern going into St. Paul and Minneapolis last season. This year, there will probably be none. St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fargo, Winnipeg and Brandon will make a grand circuit and the old Northern will hold its own for a good many years if the scheme goes through. But there will be troublous times in baseball circles in the West before the season of 1909 rolls around.

Tex Rickard has failed to make good.

The man, who startled the fight world by the size of the purses he offered for top notchers to get together in Nevada has pulled in his horns, dropped a thousand and declared that Battling Nelson and Joe Gans will not fight Labor day, at least with him putting up the money. A good sport knows when to pull out of a losing game and Tex was never accused of being a poor sport.

Rickard very probably has saved Gans from another beating. If Josephus is wise, he will hie himself back to storied Baltimore and lie very close to the ground. He is an old man beside the lightweights, who are coming to the front. Nelson battered him down and beat him at San Francisco more decisively than he beat Nelson at Goldfield two years ago. The strongest physique cannot stand up under the weight of years and the beatings Gans has received. George Dixon's end should be his example. Let him retire and leave the field to the younger men, while he still has some of the honors he won in his glorious career.

Because Brandon and Winnipeg have something of a lead, it doesn't necessarily follow that this Northern league race is over. There are nearly seven weeks of the season remaining and much can happen in seven weeks of a baseball schedule. The Sox are going badly, but they have had their share of the hard luck. Perhaps the other teams will strike a few snags in what has hitherto been a smooth and easy road. Watch for the boom and, when it comes, let all whoop it up for Williams and the Sox. If one must die, it's better to die fighting gamely than to lie down like a whipped cur and shuffle off the coil. Brandon and Winnipeg will have their troubles before this season is over.

FREEMAN MUST RETIRE.

Buck of Minneapolis Cannot Play Again This Season.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—Physicians attending John Freeman of the Minneapolis American association team, who was injured in an Indianapolis game while sliding to the home plate, informed him yesterday that one of the bones in his right shoulder is broken and he will be compelled to retire from baseball this year, and possibly permanently. Freeman has a reputation as a home run hitter. He is known as "Buck" Freeman.

Dives From Bridge.

St. Louis, July 23.—To prove an assertion he had made, C. W. Fisher, a local swimming instructor, late yesterday, successfully dived from the middle span of Eads bridge to the muddy waters of the Mississippi river, a distance of 100 feet.

COURTS ARE COMPLETED

Tennis Will be Popular at the Duluth Boat Club.

Cracks of the City Will be Entered in Tournaments.

The tennis courts, constructed on the Osborne property, purchased last spring by the Duluth Boat club adjoining the main clubhouse on Park Point, have been completed and are now ready for use.

The tennis playing members of the club have been rather anxiously awaiting the completion of the courts and will turn out in numbers to try them out as soon as the weather permits. The equipment is the finest that could be obtained, the courts are constructed so as to give the best opportunities for play and they promise to be immensely popular. There are three courts, so that there will be little confusion in the use of them.

Some of the best tennis players of the city are members of the Boat club and they will be enlisted in the efforts to boom the sport at the main house as well as at the Spirit Lake branch. Several tournaments will be arranged before the end of the present season. One will be for the club championship and that will probably be followed by an open tournament, in which the other clubs of the city will be allowed to enter contestants.

The tennis courts at the Spirit Lake branch of the club have been in use for some weeks and club members find tennis a fine means of enjoying a visit to the branch.

VIRGINIA WINS SECOND GAME

Bunch Hits on Freeman and Hibbing Champs Lose.

Virginia, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing errors and bunched hits by Virginia gave the home team the second game of the range championship series here by a score of 4 to 1.

Freeman and Graham engaged in a pretty pitchers' battle, in which the Virginia man had a little the better of it. Freeman was poorly supported in the pinches, while the Virginia boys backed Graham up well. Olmstead's home run with a man on base in the fifth was the feature of the game.

FROLIC WINS CLOSE RACE

Eighteen-Footers Have Garrison Finish at Yacht Club.

In the third race of the series for the Vice-Commodore's cup of 18-footers, at the Duluth Yacht club yesterday, Frolic, sailed by H. A. Pierce and Fred Levins won, with Thistle, sailed by Trux brothers, second, and Freckles, sailed by Robert Firke and E. Mogford, third.

The race was sailed in an uncomfortable northeast wind and a driving rain, which put the skippers to the test. They sailed from home to the aerial bridge buoy, to the dyke, to the Imperial mill buoy and home again, covering the course in good time, despite the handicaps of weather. There was but forty seconds between the first and last boats, and the Thistle beat out the Freckles by four seconds. Frolic now leads in the series, with ten points, Thistle having nine and Freckles eight.

Young America, by virtue of its two victories over Minotaur in the series for 32-footers, has been designated as the yacht to represent the Duluth Yacht club in the Interlake Yachting association regatta on Lake Minnetonka in August. The crew to sail her will be made up of J. A. Roth, Sibard McDonald, Lester Phelps and C. S. Roulo. It is possible that the winner of the 18-foot series will also be entered in the regatta from Duluth.

TREMBLE TO MEET PARRES

Iron River Fighter to Get Back in Ring at Chisholm.

Several Other Bouts to be Staged on Range Soon.

A boxing match, which will attract some attention among Duluth followers of the fight game in this much-harrassed district, is to be pulled off at Chisholm tonight between Jack Parres of Iron River, Wis., and Ben Tremble of St. Paul. It will be for fifteen rounds, clean breaks and will be preceded by a six round go between Gust Chandler of St. Paul and young Connors of Saginaw.

The match should never go fifteen rounds. Parres is under the weight he once fought at, while Tremble is a big fellow with a wallop and plenty of courage in the ring. It should be his fight from the tap of the gong.

There are several other bouts in the air hereabouts that will be pulled off within the next few weeks. Walter Whitehead will probably be matched with the winner of tonight's fight and Curley Ulrich and Whitehead have still a little matter to settle between them. The range fans are fight mad and while they are in the mood, some good bouts will be presented for their approval.

GOOD RACES AT FARGO

Two Events at State Fair Races Go Five Heats.

Bookmakers Warned to Cease Operations, But Refuse to Obey.

Fargo, N. D., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crowd at the state fair races here yesterday afternoon was given plenty of excitement. Both big events on the card went five heats before a decision, and every heat was a race. The 2:17 pace went to H. L. Beck's Shamrock of Superior, and the 2:25 trot was captured by Hybrid, owned by J. F. Collins of Page, N. D.

Hybrid's victory was a surprise. The horse has never been counted a winner, but went in yesterday and won handily. Hybrid took the first heat, but came to the front again in the fourth and fifth. Shamrock ran beautifully in every heat, finishing second twice and then pulling to the front and taking the last three heats straight.

The bookmakers had trouble with the authorities. Warnings were of no avail, but if they continue their operations, it is said arrests will be made for violations of the anti-gambling laws.

The summary of yesterday's races follow:

2:25 Trot—Purse, $500.

The wedding will take place in Augusta, Cobb already having obtained a leave of absence from Manager Jennings for the purpose of entering into the life contract.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The dancing party given last evening at the Spalding hotel by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wolvin, in honor of Miss Richardson and Joseph Harrison, was one of the prettiest and most elaborate affairs that Duluth people will remember. The floral decorations in the ballroom were exquisite, a fitting background for the stunning creations worn by the dancers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolvin, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Miss Richardson and Mr. Harrison stood just within the doors of the room to receive the guests. Mrs. Wolvin wore yellow satin, fashioned in the empire style, with embroidered panels in back and front. Mrs. Richardson wore blue satin.

Miss Richardson looked charming, as usual. The utter simplicity of her light green crepe gown, made after the Grecian models, with the low knotted girdle, showed to advantage her delicately classic beauty. Her hair was arranged in puffs, bound by bands of green.

The decorations in the ballroom were entirely in green and white, carnations and sweet peas being used with ferns and greens. The ceiling and walls were entirely paneled in white, as a background for the fine designs in ferns.

The music for the dance was perfectly played by Flaaten's orchestra, and never before has a finer program been heard at a dance in Duluth. The orchestra was screened from view by a wall of green, brightened with clusters of white blossoms, while the balcony was hung with white, garlanded with green wreaths, white doves and floral wedding bells, hung from all the chandeliers, adding to the bowerlike effect of the room.

During the evening refreshments were served downstairs in the ladies' cafe in a very novel manner, the tempting viands for the supper being arranged in an adjoining room on a buffet, from which the guests were rapidly served. The small tables were daintily decorated with pink sweet peas and greens. Stately palms and tall vases of flags finished the artistically elaborate decorations.

FOLLOW CLASSIC IDEA

Paris Elegantes Seek Grecian Effect With Ribbon on Coiffure.

One who has recently visited the opera in Paris, the birthplace of fashion, reports, "The elegantes, following closely the classic idea, have left off all flashing jewels and for adornment year only a single string of pearls around their throats, while a ribbon binds the coiffure," says the North American. It is quite a number of years since this was the fashion, but the prevailing style of coiffure affords ample opportunity for just such artistic ornamentation.

The manufacturers, quick to note the change in fashion, have made a special bodkin to thread the ribbon through the pompadour—a first aid to the accomplishment of the rather difficult feat.

The ribbon used must not be too wide, nor too narrow—a standard width is impossible, for it much depends upon the size of the pompadour and the head.

A purely Grecian effect may be acquired by parting the hair in front, allowing it to puff at either side and arranging a low knot at the back of the head. A wide ribbon or a good braid brought across the front and fastened round the knot in the back gives the effect of the fillet of Ulysses' time.

Almost the same idea is shown where a soft ribbon is brought round the pompadour and finished at each side of the head in two little bows.

If the hair is parted on the side, a tiny bow may start the decoration in front, whence it is carried back and Psyche knot.

When the hair is arranged in many puffs, the ribbon may extend across the back and finish at either side in a low, while the puffs may be pinned across the ribbon here and there, so it will have the effect of being woven through the hair.

In selecting a ribbon for the hair, do not let it be white. White is too startling a contrast and takes the color out of both brown and blonde hair. On rare occasions, when a complete white costume is necessary, the hair decoration may be of white tulle, but when wearing a white dress, it is far better to select either gold or silver ribbon. If the gown is pink, blue or yellow, the ribbon for the coiffure may match it, but if the gown be violet or mauve, the decoration would be charming in silver gauze ribbon.

When choosing ribbon for the hair, satin is better than taffeta, for the sheen of the satin is always dressy and pretty, particularly at night.

Never, under any possible circumstances, wear any decoration in the hair—necessary combs and barrettes excepted—till dressing-up time, or 6 o'clock. Just as evening dress is inappropriative for daytime wear, so are hair ornaments out of place in the light of day. Such things need the soft radiance of artificial light to heighten the effect and make the costume both suitable and desirable.

This latter rule does not, of course, apply to young girls, for they, at all times, suitably wear hair ribbon, fastened at the back, either under a figure 8 or to hold a "clubbed" pigtail in place.

Any more complicated arrangement should be avoided, except for dress-up occasions. The ribbon should be black or of a dark color for everyday wear.

LYCEUM. — Mack-Leone players in "Moths."

Play Finds Favor.

Both performances of "Moths" by the Mack-Leone players, at the Lyceum, were well attended yesterday. The production is one that seems to have found great favor with the local theater-goers. Those who have already witnessed the excellent performance by the company pronounce it one of the best plays that the Mack-Leone players have put on here during their engagement. Many complimentary things are being said, about the staging and the scenery, all of which is new and specially designed for the production. "Moths" will be played this evening. Friday evening the Minnesota Bankers' association will have the Lyceum for their convention, but the Mack-Leone players will produce "Moths" Saturday afternoon and evening. The bill for next week will be "Captain Swift," a romantic drama that made the late lamented Maurice Barrymore famous.

G. B. Burhans Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burhans of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble." THE MILK ORDINANCE.

Suggestion for a Conference of All Parties Interested.

To The Editor of The Herald:

As one who believes that Duluth should have a clean and pure milk supply, we can not help saying a few words concerning the recent and now pending upheaval concerning the dairy business in the city.

What strikes an outside observer, first of all, is that all are in great excitement. And while we are in that condition we can neither pass judgment nor measures. While all parties interested are in a furore, extreme measures are bound to result. There are three kinds of pride with which we have to contend. There is, first, the pride of the city council, whose pride is the pride of authority; they are the "city fathers" and like most parents they resent any great opposition from their children. Second, there is the pride of acquired knowledge on the part of the health department. The department feels that it knows from study more about what constitutes a sanitary dairy and thorough cleanliness than any one else can know. And, third, there is the pride born of experience on the part of the local dairymen. Their resentment has been aroused by what they consider excessive interference in a business they have been peacefully, though not alway wisely conducting, for a considerable number of past years.

Now between all this stands—rather, is crushed—the public. But before the public can get its just dues these conflicting "prides" must be reconciled. Either force left to itself will pass or have pushed through an ill-advised measure. And it is in view of that fact that I beg to offer a suggestion.

Three assumptions we may make: The council has the interest of the public at heart; the health department has the necessary medical knowledge, and the dairymen have an experience of years behind them. Now why not combine all three forces and write an ordinance acceptably to all concerned? A conference committee from all three interested could easily be gotten together. The dairymen now have an association. Not only would this conference produce an acceptable ordinance, but it would also reconcile forces now hostile. For communication, not separateness, produce amity. At least, wouldn't it be worth trying?

It is in hopes that something may be done to allay the furore aroused over the milk question that these words are written. Peace let us have, even if we must fight for it, as President Northrop once said. And fighting with pen and word is always allowable within certain limits.

AN INTERESTED OBSERVER.
Duluth, July 23.

TO MAKE IT AN EVENT.

Dedication of New Building at Crookston Experimental Farm.

Crookston, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The plans for the dedication of Stephens' hall at the state school of agriculture on the experimental farm here have been broadened to include one of the best agricultural exhibits ever made in this section. The dedication, at which James J. Hill will be the central figure, will include a display of grains, vegetables, dairy products, etc., and stock parade, which will be as near as possible a realization of the application of the advice of the railway king given to the farmers of the Northwest every time Mr. Hill delivers an address in the Northwest.

ST. PAUL MAN FALLS DOWN EMBANKMENT.

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Patrick McGray, proprietor of the American hotel, at University and Prior avenues, received probably fatal injuries last evening by falling down a steep embankment while riding a horse. He received a fracture of the skull and was badly lacerated about the head and body and is thought to be internally injured.

MARINE NEWS

MOVING THE WINSLOW

Old Hulk to be Towed Up the River and Beached.

Passenger Steamer Burned in Harbor Some Fifteen Years Ago.

The old steamer Winslow, which burned in the harbor near the old Northern Pacific dock some fifteen years ago and was later buffeted about the harbor for years, has been dug out of what was thought to be its last resting place and will this afternoon be towed up the river and beached, where it is thought it will not be reached by the march of progress until its old timbers are rotted and it falls to pieces.

For about five years past the old hulk has been beached in the harbor near the Osborne property, which was purchased by the Duluth Boat club last spring. In the course of the improvements at the club it was found necessary to move the boat and the Northern Dredge company undertook the work. Diver John Wanless was put to work patching up the hull and, with dredge, pumps and scows, it was dug from the sand, in which it had become imbedded. This afternoon it floats between two scows, and with the pumps working to keep her free from water, it is thought she can be kept afloat until the point where she is to be beached is reached.

The first plan was to tow the remains of the Winslow out through the channel to the open lake and then to beach her on the lake side of Minnesota point, where she would not be likely to trouble anybody until buffeted to pieces by the waves. The United States engineers were rather skeptical of the plan, as they feared that the old boat would sink in the channel and tie up navigation. When yesterday's northeaster came up they put their seal of disapproval on the proposed proceeding, as it would have little chance of success in rough weather. As the Boat club wanted the obstruction removed, the dredge company decided to take the boat up the river.

The Winslow was considered a palatial passenger steamer in the early days of lake navigation. In the early '80's she ran between Buffalo and Duluth in the same line as the Fountain City, Badger State, India, China and Japan, which were at that time the finest on the lakes. They were all about the same size and held their supremacy until the United Empire was launched, to be followed by the truly palatial steamers of today.

While unloading freight at the old Northern Pacific dock, about fifteen years ago, the Winslow took fire and, with the inadequate means of fighting them, the flames conquered and ended the sailing days of the boat. The burned hull was first towed to the bar, where the burned hull of the Winnipeg also lay, but was later purchased by Capt. Inman, who towed her to the Northern Pacific slip, where the forward end was cut off. The part which is being moved today lay in the slip for some years, and about five years ago was purchased by James Osborne.

Mr. Osborne intended to use the hull as a dock, but the plan to fill her with sand and cover her never materialized. Instead, she lay neglected, sinking farther into the sand, until dredged out this week.

COMPLETING NEW DRAW.

Interstate Bridge Will be Open Again in Ten Days.

That the new draw of the interstate bridge will be in commission in ten days is the opinion of those working on the structure today. There is still considerable work to be done, but a large force is employed and good progress is being made.

When the bridge was first swung, it was found to be slightly too long on the Minnesota side, but the defect was quickly remedied and it is swung several times daily now, fitting in perfectly. The operators' tower is under construction and will be finished in the time stated.

It is necessary to plan the entire roadway yet, lay the rails and string the trolley wires for the street cars. The company has a force of men on the work and in every other department the finishing touches are being put on as quickly as possible.

The Northern Pacific bridge has not yet been opened to railroad traffic, although the draws are swung regularly for the passage of vessels. The difficulty is in locking the draws after they have been opened and the mechanism will have to be adjusted before trains can pass over the bridge.

LUMBER TRADE SLACK.

Owners Have Difficulty in Securing Cargoes for Their Boats.

Detroit, July 23.—Just three boats have been chartered during the past week, by the Parker reporting agency at Detroit to carry lumber. The boats placed were the steamer Sickens and her tow and the Emma Thompson.

"Not a charter is in sight for the coming week," said Parker. "All of the dealers have reported nothing doing. All of the lumber craft here are laying up and I understand many of the boats which recently went to the Head of the Lakes, are stranded there, unable to secure anything to carry on the return journey."

The lumber trade has been slack, marine men say, from the beginning of the season. At the start a few boats got away, but the list in operation has dwindled since until the trade in lumber rivals that in ore for stagnation. It is estimated that not yet half of the ore carriers are in motion, and many of the independent iron boats which have been running have not carried one ton of ore so far.

UNIONS DISSATISFIED.

Officers Say That Men With Cards Are Discriminated Against.

Officers of marine unions are skeptical of the statement of President Livingston of the Lake Carriers, that the owners are hiring no college men on their boats, because they want to give the men who follow the lakes regularly any work they may have to give. They say the college men do not fill the bill, and the captains will not sail with them.

The unions charge that the Lake Carriers are discriminating against union men, and that union men are often ordered to give up their books or accept the alternative of discharge.

As the result of charges from the men that attempts have been made on some of the boats forcibly to rob them of their union books, Vice President Olander of the union has put into effect a new scheme. Each man is presented with an identification slip. If his book is lost, the slip takes its place, and the man can secure all the rights of a union seaman at any of the port offices.

Situation Unchanged.

Cleveland, July 23.—The freight situation is unchanged all around and the outlook is for a very dull market for the next few weeks. Many of the big freighters will spend considerable time in port, and some of them will have to be sent to the dock.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Duluth and Minneapolis Lead in a Strong Market.

Distant Flax Options Show Slight Losses at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 23.—Wheat was in good demand today, and the closing prices were higher. Car receipts at Chicago and Minneapolis were good, but the crop news from the Northwest had a bullish tone and prices went up. Duluth and Minneapolis showed the best gains.

Argentine shipments are expected to be light this week, the estimate being 1,600,000 bus. This was a bullish influence and the cables were strong.

The strength in the coarse grains made the wheat sympathetic, too.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅛d higher, Budapest ⅜c lower and Berlin ⅛c lower.

The July option closed ½c higher in Duluth, ⅝c higher in Chicago, ⅞c higher in Minneapolis, ⅜c higher in New York, ⅝c higher in Kansas City, and ¼c higher in Winnipeg. Comparison is impossible on the St. Louis July close. The September option closed ⅞c higher in Duluth, ⅜-½c higher in Chicago, 1c higher in Minneapolis, ½c higher in New York, ⅛-¼c higher in St. Louis, and ⅜-½c higher in Kansas City. The October option closed ⅞c higher in Winnipeg.

September corn closed ¾-⅞c higher in Chicago and ⅛d higher in Liverpool. September oats closed ¾-⅞c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat opened inactive, with a steady tone with light offerings. The weakness in American cables was offset by the fact of lighter American offerings and reports of wet weather in Argentina. During the morning prices gained ⅛@¼d on the small cargoes awaiting orders, and the fact of there being no arrivals off coast. At midday, the market was very dull with values ⅛d lower to ⅛d higher than yesterday.

"Corn opened firm at ⅛d higher, followed by an additional advance of ⅛d. Shorts were nervous owing to scarcity of spot and the fact that light La Plata offerings were 1½@3d higher."

Car receipts at Duluth were 37 against 89 last year, and at Minneapolis 169 against 119 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 206 against 208 last year. Chicago received 142 against 53 last year. Winnipeg received 101 against 142 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 912,000 bus, last year 608,000 bus. Shipments 728,000 bus, last year 659,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 175,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 278,000 bus, last year 298,000 bus. Shipments 145,000 bus, last year 729,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 690 bus.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market. July wheat was inactive and closed ½c higher than yesterday at $1.13½. September wheat opened ⅛c higher at 97¾c, advanced to 99c and closed ½c higher than yesterday at 98½c.

Durum wheat closed 1c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3½c over July for No. 1 northern.

Flax was fairly well traded in. July flax sold as low as $1.22¾, rallied to $1.23½ and closed there, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday. September old opened ¼c off at $1.22, declined to $1.21½, rallied to $1.22¼ and closed ¼c off at $1.22. October flax opened ¼c off at $1.21, went down to $1.20¾, rallied to $1.21¼ and closed at $1.21, a loss of ¼c from yesterday.

Oats closed 2c higher.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.18. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.17; No. 2 northern, $1.13; July, $1.13½; September, 98½c. Durum on track, No. 1, 94¼c; No. 2, 93¼c; July durum, 93¼c; September durum, 88c; Flax to arrive, $1.23¾; flax on track, $1.23¾; September, $1.22; October, $1.21; November, $1.20; December, $1.18¾. Oats to arrive in July, 55c; oats to arrive, 42¾c; oats on track, 57c; rye, 70c; barley, 55-65c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Liberal Receipts and Good Weather Sends Wheat Prices Down.

Chicago, July 23.—Liberal receipts of new crop wheat in the Southwest and good weather in the Northwest more than offset firm cables at the opening of the wheat market today. September opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 90⅝c to 90¾c, sold to 90⅞c and then declined to 90⅛@90¼c. The volume of trade was small. Northwest receipts were 348 cars against 349 cars last week and 261 cars a year ago.

Later damage reports came from the Northwest and cash wheat was reported higher in the Southwest. The market turned strong, September rallying to 91⅜c and closing at ⅜@½c over yesterday at 90⅞c.

The corn market was dull and easy on good weather. September opening unchanged to ¼c up at 75⅝c to 75⅞c in sympathy with oats, and selling between 75¾c and 75⅞c on early trading. Local receipts were 134 cars, with 5 cars of contract grade.

Corn advanced in sympathy with wheat and oats. September closing firm ¾c up at 76¼c.

Oats were strong and active on the small stocks. September opened unchanged to ⅛c over yesterday at 44⅝c to 45c and held close to the top figure for some time. Receipts were 106 cars.

The provisions market opened steady and active in sympathy with an advance in hogs but the early range of prices was narrow. September pork opened 2½c up at $15.80. September lard unchanged at $9.35 and September ribs 2½@5c up at $8.87½.

Close: Wheat—July, 90⅝c; September, 90⅞c; December, 92½c. Corn—July, 76⅜c; September, 76⅛c; December, 62¼c; May, 61⅛@61¼c. Oats—July, old, 56½c; July, 56¼c; September, 45⅛@45¼c; December, 44⅝c; May, 46⅜@46½c. Pork—July, $15.55; September, $15.67½; October, $15.75. Lard—July, $9.25; September, $9.32½@9.35; October, $9.40. Ribs—July, $8.67½; September, $8.82½; October, $8.90. Rye—Cash, new, 77c; old, 80c. Barley—Cash, 65@68c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 91½@92½c; No. 3 red, 91@92c; No. 2 hard, 92¾@96½c; No. 3 hard, 91¾@94½c; No. 3 spring, $1.05@1.15. Cron—No. 2, 76½@76¾c; No. 3, 76@76½c. Oats—No. 3, 55½@56c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Export Business Has Sustaining Influence and Sends Wheat Up.

Minneapolis, July 23.—Fargo, N. D., had a rain last night which continued throughout the night and started in again this morning. This made the crop situation look much better, and brought in some selling orders from the country. The Liverpool market had opened practically unchanged, which was a little disappointing. The fact that export business is running so heavy, with 105 loads confirmed for yesterday's business, made a sustaining influence, and although the news otherwise was against the price, the market was very strong, advancing 1c early. Minneapolis elevator stocks decreased 350,000 bus for five days. Receipts today, 169 against 119; Duluth, 37 against 89. Near the close a local milling company sold 250,000 bus September in the pit, which weakened it somewhat. July opened at $1.13; high, $1.14; low, $1.13; close, $1.14. Old July, high, $1.14½; close, $1.14½. September opened at 97⅝c; high, 98¾c; low, 97@⅛c; close, 98⅛c. Old September, high, 99¼c; close, 98½c. Cash demand was fair but there was no snap to it. No. 1 northern sold at new July price to 1c over, and No. 2 northern went about 2c under July. Millers are getting some high-grade winter wheat, and will not bid up for anything at all common in spring wheat. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.14 spot, $1.12¾ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.11½@1.12 spot, $1.09¾ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.07½@1.09½.

No. 3 yellow corn, 79¼@79¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 54⅞@55⅝c.

No. 2 rye, 68¾@69¾c.

Barley receipts were 11 cars. Samples of new barley were in from Minnesota and South Dakota and first bids were made for the new crop at 55c. All the new samples looked good. The old stuff was affected by this and was weaker and fully a cent lower. Close, 53@60c.

Flax receipts were 20 cars. Demand was about fair at 1c under Duluth September. Close, $1.20¾.

Millstuffs were firm and in good demand at $19.50@20.00 for bran in bulk.

Flour demand is moderate. Of the twenty-one mills there are fourteen now in operation. Quotations are steady at the recent advance, but the market is without snap and inclined to be dull. Shipments, 39,117 barrels. First patents, $5.75@5.90; second patents, $5.65@5.80; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

John Inglis writes from Fargo, N. D.: Crop through the valley very uneven. Some is promising, but much unpromising. Fields are more or less spotted from weather conditions, but is all heading out. Some is shorter than others, but with favorable weather will even up. Filling is well under way, but it would be presumption to state yields. Oats, as a rule, are not a large crop, even in the valley, and out of the valley they are very poor. The weather is perfect for filling. Some rain would be beneficial, but really the farmers in the valley would rather have a continuation of the present weather, as they dread hail. The crop will not reach an average with any kind of weather, and there is still room for a large shrinkage.

C. A. Marshall Returns.

C. A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum theater, returned from New York today, where he has been arranging bookings for the coming season. Mr. Marshall has secured some of the best shows that will go out this fall for Duluth and feels justly elated over his success in getting the very best attractions for the Duluth theater patrons.

Mr. Marshall stated that while not so many shows would go out this fall, owing to the unfortunate outcome of the theatrical season last year, the shows that would be sent out from New York would be of a uniformly high grade of production.

The presidential nominations seemed to have cleared the financial atmosphere, according to Mr. Marshall, who stated that there was a returning confidence among theatrical managers and producers. The outlook for a profitable theatrical season has brightened perceptibly within the past two weeks, and Mr. Marshall is of the opinion that Duluth people will be given the opportunity of seeing some of the big New York productions the coming fall and winter.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Brisk Selling Movement Broke Prices Sharply After Noon.

Rally Followed and Close Was Irregular and Active.

New York, July 23.—Opening dealings in stocks were on a large scale and prices made fractional gains throughout. In Illinois Central the advance reached 1½.

Transactions were heavy during the first hour and the price movement irregular, but with an upward tendency. The demand began to sag towards the expiration of the hour and prices fell back a fraction.

The market became very active again with another advance in prices, which was moderate for the stocks most largely dealt in. In special stocks there were wide gains. Wisconsin Central preferred rose 4⅛ and the common 3. Bonds were strong.

New points of strength kept coming up amongst the stocks not usually active, and the whole list made further moderate gains. Rock Island preferred rose 1⅞ and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, Great Northern preferred, Ontario & Western, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred, Brooklyn Union Gas, Utah Copper and Pressed Steel Car 1⅜ to 1¾.

St. Paul's advance was extended to 2⅛. Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred rose, 2 Pressed Steel Car 2¼, and Sloss Sheffield Steel 1¾. The movement of the general list showed some hesitation and irregularity.

The market closed irregular and active. A brisk selling movement carried prices downward sharply, some of the previous gains being almost wiped out. A rally followed and bidding up of new stocks furthered the recovery. Ontario & Western rose 3⅛; Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, 2@; the preferred, 2¼, and Chesapeake & Ohio, 1⅝.

WEATHER BROKE UP THE PICNIC

The unfavorable weather conditions today put a crimp in the plans of the retail grocers for their annual picnic, which was to have taken place today at Lincoln park.

This morning the grocers closed their stores and, in spite of the foreboding skies, hied themselves, with their wives and families to the proposed scene of their day's annual outing. All the morning they waited in vain for the skies to clear before starting on the extensive program of sports and games they had planned. But at noon they gave it up, all except the dance, which will be held as previously arranged, this evening, in the Lincoln park auditorium. It was also decided to postpone the picnic until next Wednesday, when the program that was planned for today will be carried out and, also, another dance given in the pavilion that evening.

SETTLERS MAY SECURE TITLE

The United States land office officials today received plats of towns 61-6, 62-6, 61-7 and 62-7, which will be opened for entry, under close restrictions, at a date to be set later. It will probably be in September.

The opening will be little more than a mere formality to allow bona fide settlers in the towns to establish title to their claims. The towns were withdrawn for forestry purposes in 1904, and no application will be received when the towns are opened except those of people who can show bona fide settlement prior to the withdrawal.

The lands are at the extreme eastern edge of Lake county, and a number of settlers in that district will be able to avail themselves of the opportunity to secure title to their lands.

ALL QUIET AT NATALBANY, LA.

Natalbany, La., July 23.—Everything was quiet here today, with Italians scattered through the settlements of their fellow-workmen in this vicinity, and Sheriff Saal left for the parish seat, turning the town over to several deputies.

An incident which came near causing more serious trouble, occurred several hours after the sheriff had left. Nick Tessatoia, an Italian, rode through the town on horseback with a shotgun under his arm. He was followed to his home on the side of the railroad by a deputy and several citizens, who censured him for an act that was likely to cause another outbreak. A clash then ensued between Tessatoia and the duputy and shots were fired, Tessatoia escaping during the melee. Shots were also fired at the deputy and his companions from a store nearby. The store was forced open and Charles Parino, another Italian, found inside. He was placed under arrest.

Following this incident Sheriff Saal was requested to return to Natalbany and remain here until all signs of trouble disappeared. It is not thought there will be another outbreak. The authorities have sworn in a number of deputies and have the situation well in hand.

RENO BANKER LAUDS NEVADA

E. C. Harris, banker and mine owner of Reno, Nev., is in Duluth today enroute to Reno after spending some time in New York city. While here Mr. Harris had a business conference with Judge J. T. Hale and Thomas A. Merritt and N. B. Merritt, who are interested with Mr. Harris in a mine at Rawhide, Nev.

Mr. Harris states that the recent money stringency, while working a hardship upon legitimate investments in the Nevada mining centers, had the beneficent effect of wiping out the wildcat speculators in mining stocks that consisted largely of imagination. These men have been entirely wiped out, according to Mr. Harris, and the mining business will receive a boom from the fact of their leaving.

Mr. Harris further states that Nevada is booming in every way. Business is developing, the government is constructing irrigation ditches which have proved a boon to agricultural pursuits. Sheep raising is also attracting many ranchers from other states.

It was extremely difficult to induce Eastern capital to invest in the mines during the financial stringency, according to Mr. Harris. At the present time, he states that Eastern capital is being invested more freely in the Nevada mines. The wiping out of the fake mining propositions has been instrumental in increasing the confidence of the Eastern money investors.

Mr. Harris compares the geographical location of Reno, in relation to the industrial situation in Nevada, with the location of Duluth to the great mining industry of Minnesota. He says that Reno is the gateway of the great mining operations of Nevada and that the industries of Nevada have hardly begun to develop.

STATE CAMPAIGN OF REPUBLICANS

St. Paul, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Republican state campaign will be formally launched Tuesday, Aug. 4, when a meeting will be held in St. Paul of the Republican state central committee, with the candidates on the Republican ticket and the Republican congressional committees.

The meeting was arranged for at an adjourned meeting of the executive committee of the Republican state organization, held at the Merchants hotel today.

At the meeting of the committee today, it was decided not to open full working headquarters until after the general gathering called for Aug. 4. In the meantime, however, A. D. Brown, chairman of the committee, and James A. Martin, the secretary, will maintain rooms in St. Paul, and the preliminaries will be cared for by them. It is the inention to put a full list of speakers out in the state, and the selection of available material will be commenced at once.

Correspondence will also be had with the national committee with a view of securing noted Republican spell-binders for Minnesota.

As things stand now, A. D. Brown will be chairman of both the general organization and the executive committee, while James A. Martin will be secretary. Mr. Martin was talked of as chairman of the executive committee, but J. F. Jacobson, the gubernatorial candidate, insisted that he be continued as secretary instead. The detail work of the campaign will be left with him and Chairman Brown.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Kewanee, Ill., July 23.—John H. Pierce of this city died at Mercy hospital, Chicago, last night, following an operation two weeks ago. For a quarter of a century he had been prominent in the iron and steel trade, and long was president of the Western Tube company of this city. Four years ago his name was presented for the Republican nomination for governor at the state convention in Springfield. He was 65 years old.

Kankakee, Ill., July 23.—Charles Holt, veteran editor and publisher, died at his home here Tuesday night, aged 91 years.

Mr. Holt was born in Herkimer, N. Y., March 5, 1817. He commenced work in a newspaper office in his home town when 13 years of age and has been actively engaged in the newspaper business ever since. He worked on the Albany Evening Journal, under Thurlow Weed, and on the New York Tribune, under Horace Greeley.

He came west in 1846, locating at Madison, Wis., and reported for the Milwaukee Sentinel the first constitutional convention in Wisconsin, and later the first state legislature. Later he started the Janesville, Wis., Gazette. In 1864 he went to Illinois as editor of the Quincy Whig. In 1868 he purchased the Kankakee Gazette, which he, with his son, C. E. Holt, has managed ever since.

La Crosse, Wis., July 23.—The biennial saengerfest of the Saengerbund of the Northwest, comprising the German singing societies of the states of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and the Dakotas opened here today with 2,000 singers present from sixty-seven societies in the seven states comprised in the bund. Thousands of visitors in addition to the singers have been coming in all day and before the end of the fest it is estimated that 35,000 strangers will be here for the event. Among the singers here are 350 from Milwaukee, 500 from Chicago, and large delegations from Davenport, Dubuque, Des Moines, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Cedar Rapids, Rock Island, Elgin, Peoria, Freeport, Burlington, Eau Claire, Madison and Manitowoc besides smaller delegations from two score of other cities.

The formal opening of the fest is set for tonight when an address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor Anderson, to which Theodore Behrens of Chicago, president of the bund will respond. After the addresses the welcoming concert will be put on. On this occasion the local singers will entertain the visitors with a male chorus of 500 and a mixed chorus of 250.

On subsequent days one of the leading symphony orchestras of America and several vocal soloists brought especially from abroad will appear.

IS STRUCK BY TRAIN

Anton Gronski of Superior Was Tossed Into a Ditch.

Escaped With a Few Slight Cuts and Bruises.

Struck by a passenger train, which hurled him several feet to one side of the tracks, Anton Gronski, a laborer who resides in Superior, had a narrow escape last evening. Barring a few slight bruises on his left side, and shocked nerves, he sustained no injuries.

Gronski was walking the tracks in the cut near the Zenith Furnace company, about 11 o'clock, when he was overtaken by the train and tossed into the ditch at the side. Other than that it was a very dark, foggy night, he can offer no reason why he did not notice the train before it was on him. He was taken to the St. Mary's hospital, where an examination showed that no bones had been broken, nor any internal injuries received. Today he is cogratulating himself on his miraculous escape from death.

ARE PRESSING WORK.

New Postoffice May be Ready by Aug. 1.

Every effort is being made to complete the new quarters for the West Duluth postoffice by Aug. 1, and there seems to be little doubt but that mail will be distributed from Dr. Graham's new building on Bristol and Central avenue by that date.

The southwest room on the ground floor of the building is the one to be used by the postoffice, and it is there that all the work is being concentrated, even at the expense of the other parts of the building. The walls are all plastered, a vault has been installed, hardwood floors are being laid and, if the fixtures arrive in time, there is no reason why the room should not be ready for the post office in a very few days.

The fixtures were ordered from a firm in Chicago sometime ago, and were promised for this month. It is expected that they will arrive some time the first of next week.

Win Another Victory.

The West Tigers yesterday added another victory to their already long string, by defeating the Superior Cubs on the West Duluth grounds, by a score of 7 to 0. This makes the sixth straight game the West Duluth boys have won. The lineup of the team is as follows: Catcher, William Anderson; pitcher, Fred Delbern; first base, Lile Baker; second base, Emil Gerlack; third base, Frank Wade; left field, Earl Edwards; center field, Herbert Cavanaugh; right field, Joe McDonald; S. S. Charles Wilson. The battery for the Superior Cubs was White and Christensen. The teams will play again Saturday.

Will Reorganize.

Tribe No. 25, Improved Order of Red Men of West Duluth, will be reorganized and reinstated at a meeting to be held this evening in the Great Eastern hall. On Friday evening, July 31, a large class of candidates will be initiated into the order at the Great Eastern hall. At this meeting work will be exemplified in all three degrees, and there will be several of the great chiefs of Minnesota present, besides a delegation from Tribe No. 17, and the three tribes of Superior.

Workman Have Rally.

At a special rally of West Duluth lodge, No. 145, held last evening, J. F. McGuire of St. Paul, grand receiver of the A. O. U. W., explained the new rates which were recently adopted. Owing to this change in rates, a number of members had previously dropped out of the order, but last evening after Mr. McGuire's explanation, several expressed their intention of renewing their membership to the order. To the members who had left the order, following the change in rates, a special invitation had been extended last evening. The Degree of Honor, which is the ladies' auxiliary, also took advantage of the invitation extended to them and were in attendance. William Berdick, past master workman, who had been appointed deputy for the occasion, initiated a class of eight candidates. Following the business of the evening were a number of speeches. Refreshments were served.

Emil Holter Funeral.

Th funeral of Emil Holter, one of the West Duluth's best known residents, who was electrocuted Tuesday night, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence, 503 North Fifty-seventh avenue, at 1:30 o'clock, and from the Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street, at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. Bjerke, the pastor, will officiate. The services will be in charge of fraternity lodge No. 860, Modern Brotherhood of America, whose members will meet at Gilley's hall at 1:15 and march to the house in a body. The members of Old Hickory camp, No. 1555, Modern Woodmen, of which order Mr. Holter was a member will attend. He was also a member of Fram lodge, No. 5, Sons of Norway. The body is now at the residence, having been removed from Richer's undertaking rooms, and many friends of the decedent may view the remains there. The interment will be at Oneota cemetry.

SUPERIOR NEWS

LOSES BIG WAD.

E. L. Davis of Duluth Drops $435 in Railroad Yard.

While crawling under a freight car in the Omaha yards, about noon on Tuesday, E. L. Davis of the Tomlinson company of Duluth, dropped a roll of $435 in bills and some papers. He did not discover his loss until arriving at the Great Northern flour docks. Upon returning he could discover no trace of the big roll of money. The police are working on the case, and claim that they are watching a party who will be arrested within a day or two unless an explanation is made.

Work is Rushed.

Over 200 men are at work on the new canal piers at the Superior entry and the work is being rushed. The work will differ from the Duluth piers when finished, in that there will be but one parapet, so that the piers will not furnish a promenade when there is any sea running. The engineers are setting the concrete foundation directly on the sand bottom, where the water is shallow, as it has been determined that this is sufficient. Several tugs and two small traction engines are being kept constantly at work.

Small Cars Again.

Though the opening of the big Interstate bridge will mean the resumption of street car traffic between Duluth and Superior, it is probable that patrons of the interstate line will have to content themselves with small cars for a time. The Superior city engineers have condemned the wooden bridge on Lamborn avenue as unsafe for big cars, and while the street car company's engineers agree with these findings, the traction company is not willing to put any repairs on the bridge, claiming that it is the duty of the city to keep it in repair. The city officials have, however, ruled that they have done enough in putting the bridge in shape for ordinary traffic and for small cars. They condemned the bridge for the big cars yesterday, and they cannot be run over it until repaired.

Leaps From Window.

August Smith, a teamster, has a very strenuous form of nightmare yesterday morning, about 2 o'clock, and as a result he is in the hospital today. Smith worked till midnight with his team and then went to bed. Before he had been asleep long, companions in adjoining rooms heard him shouting to his team. Suddenly there was a loud yell and then silence. Realizing that something was wrong, his companion rushed into his room to find it empty and the teamster lying on the stone sidewalk, some fifteen feet below. He had imagined his team were running away and made the dive from the window to save them. He was painfully, but not dangerously, injured about the body by his fall.

Railroad Buys Brewery.

A deal involving about $60,000 is pending between the Northern Pacific company and the Klinkert Brewing company of Superior, for the purchase of the Klinkert plant. The Northern Pacific has acquired a lot of land in the vicinity of the brewery of late and the brewery site is needed for switching purposse, it is said.

Boy's Life Saved.

My little boy, 4 years old, had a severe attack of dysentery. We had two physicians; both of them gave him up. We then gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy which cured him and believe that saved his life.—William H. Stroling, Carbon Hill, Ala. There is no doubt but this remedy saves the lives of many children each year. Give it with castor oil according to the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

PARDONED BY GOVERNOR.

Logan Lambert, Assailant of Father Schell, is Set Free.

Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—Governor Sheldon last night pardoned Logan Lambert of Winnebago, the convicted assailant of Father Schell, missionary to the Omaha and Winnebago Indians of Thurston county. Lambert was sreving a term of one year in the penitentiary. The pardon was made on the recommendation of Attorney Tom Sloan, a member of the Omaha tribe of Indians. At the trial of Lambert it was alleged that Schell was conducting a campaign against the sale of liquor to the Indians on the reservation, and had thereby gained the enmity of Lambert. The assault occurred at Dakota City, two years ago. The judgment of the lower court was affirmed by the supreme court of Nebraska.

THE WILDEST NIGHT AT GETTYSBURG SINCE THE MEMORABLE DAYS OF '63

Terrific Electrical and Wind Storm Sweeps Guardsmen Camp.

Lightning Kills Three Persons and Over 100 Are Injured.

Innumerable Tents Blown Down and Many Occupants Stunned.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 24.—An all-night search throughout Camp Hays, where the 10,000 men of the National Guard of Pennsylvania has been in camp for a week, and which was last night visited by a terrific electrical and wind storm, shows that three soldiers were struck dead by lightning and that nearly a hundred other persons were injured by the electrical bolts or otherwise hurt. It was probably the wildest night the historic battleground has experienced since the memorable July days of 1863.

Those killed were:

Corporal C. Milton Garver, Company C, Tenth regiment, Uniontown.

James A. Barke, Company K, Tenth regiment, Waynesburg.

Private Clyde Morrison, Company D, Sixteenth regiment.

The dead were members of the Second brigade, composed of regiments from the western part of the state, most of the storm damage occurring in the section of the field occupied by that brigade.

The cots of the hospital tent are filled with the injured, some of whom are women and children, who had been visiting the camp.

The tent which Governor Stuart had been occupying during the week's encampment was blown down by the terrific wind, and the governor and those who were his guests at the time were buried under the canvas. With the governor were Charles B. Mann of the state railroad commission, Col. Good of the First regiment, Philadelphia, and Capt. P. L. Weaver, formerly of the First regiment. They were all thrown to the ground by the falling canvas, but managed to crawl out into the open. In the tent adjoining that of the governor were the sisters of Governor Stuart, Miss Cora Stuart of Harrisburg, and Mrs. Lechler of Philadelphia and Mrs. Charles B. Mann of Philadelphia. They were there for the usual evening band concert and

ELOPE IN SKIFF: DROWN.

Romantic Love Story Has Tragic Ending Near Lesina.

Vienna, July 24.—A tragic ending to a romantic love story is reported from Lesina, a well-known health resort along the coast of Dalmantia. Florina Brini, aged 18, fell in love with Alberto Conti, a visitor, the girl's parents would not hear of the match, and the lovers decided to elope. They took a small boat and put out to sea, with the intention of boarding a passenger steamer to Venice. Unfortunately they were overtaken by a violent storm, the boat upset, and the lovers were drowned.

McMILLAN READY FOR HUNT.

St. Louis Man, Now Living in Africa, Will be Roosevelt's Host.

St. Louis, Mo., July 24.—Friends of William N. McMillan, the St. Louisan who will be the host of President Roosevelt during the latter's visit in British South Africa, where he will hunt big game, yesterday received letters from him in which he speaks of arrangements being made for the entertainment of the chief executive. McMillan is the owner of 20,000 acres of land near Bambasa, on which is a rubber plantation.

"We have had the president's room all fixed up," write McMillan. "There won't be any luxuries here, but President Roosevelt is used to roughing it, and I think he will be pleased with the accommodations. I am making arrangements to have some of the most competent guides in the country at the disposal of the president's party. In addition, I am having the natives bring reports of the best spots for shooting big game."

DISGUSTED DEMOCRATS TO NOMINATE BY PETITION.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 24.—Disgusted over the failure of the state Democratic convention to accomplish anything, fifty or sixty delegates from various parts of the state got together yesterday afternoon and agreed to circulate nomination papers for a state ticket to be led by A. J. Schmitz of Milwaukee.

The ticket agreed upon at the caucus is as follows: Governor, A. J. Schmitz, Milwaukee; lieutenant governor, Burt Williams, Ashland; secretary of state, Miles T. Gittings, Monroe; insurance commissioner, William Guillieme, Hartford; treasurer, William Pierstoff, Middleton; attorney general, Evan Evans, Baraboo.

Those at the caucus promised that they would take immediate steps to put out nomination papers for the men mentioned in the above list.

SHIPS IN COLLISION; PASSENGERS DROWN.

Christiana, July 24.—The steamer Bakkelaget, engaged in the local passenger trade, was in collision yesterday with the steamer Goteborg. She was cut through amidship and sank in a few moments. From ten to twenty of the Bakkelaget's passengers are believed to have been drowned. Twenty-three of them were rescued by the Goteborg.

WORKMEN TAP SUBTERRANEAN RIVER WITH DRILLS AND TWENTY-THREE OF THEM ARE DROWNED

Berne, Switzerland, July 24.—There was a frightful accident early this morning in the Loetschberg tunnel, in the Bernese Alps, which resulted in the deaths of twenty-five workmen.

The men were drilling inside the tunnel. Without warning their tools pierced the wall that separated them from a subterranean river, or lake, the existence of which was not known. The wall gave way with a crash and a torrent of water and mud rushed into the tunnel and filled it. All of the workmen were drowned. They were Italians. Fortunately, owing to the early hour, only comparatively few men had entered the tunnel. The disaster occurred 2,400 yards from the northern entrance. It is believed that the men tapped the Cander river, which flows through the mountains above the tunnel. The water now chokes the tunnel within 1,000 yards of the entrance.

Chicago, July 24.—Republican political leaders from eight Middle West states will meet at the Auditorium Annex tomorrow to confer with Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committee. The states to be represented are Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri and Kentucky, and it is expected that each of them will send the national committeeman, and the chairman and secretary of the state central committee.

Mr. Hitchcock arrived here today from Colorado Springs, where a similar conference was held with the leaders from the Western states. On the journey from Colorado to Chicago the national chairman arranged by telegraph to have representatives from Central states come here at this time for the reason that he found it impossible to go East before attending the notification ceremonies to be held in Cincinnati on Tuesday.

Taft to Return to Hot Springs.

After Mr. Taft has been notified of his nomination he intends to return to Hot Springs, Va. He will be accompanied by Mr. Hitchcock, who will remain a day in consultation with the Republican candidate and then go to New York to superintend the opening of Eastern headquarters on Aug. 1. The principal headquarters of the Republican campaign management, which are to be in Chicago, will not be opened until Aug. 15. The contract for furnishing the rooms was awarded today.

Soon after the New York headquarters are opened there will be held a third big conference which will take in most of the Eastern states. These gatherings are a part of Mr. Hitchcock's scheme for the division of campaign work into sections and the utilization of the political assets of a region, including a number of states, instead of observing the state lines as has been done in past national campaigns. The situation in the South will be taken up at some later day in accordance with the determination of Mr. Hitchcock to make a fight for the electoral votes of certain of those states.

Twenty Thousand Mill Hands Commence Rioting at Bombay.

Bombay, July 24.—The 20,000 mill hands, who went out on strike yesterday, started to riot this morning and a detachment of British infantry was called out to put down the disorder. It was found necessary to fire, and as a result one native was killed and six were wounded. Several members of the European and native police forces sustained injuries. The rioters were quelled for the moment and dispersed.

The mill hands went out yesterday to demonstrate their sympathy for Tilak, the nationalist leader, and editor, who was sentenced a few days ago to transportation for six years on the charge of sedition.

STEVENSON'S HOUSE SOLD.

Widow of the Novelist Gives Up San Francisco Home.

San Francisco, July 24.—Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson has sold the house which she built on Lombard street hill, overlooking the Golden Gate, and will remove to Santa Barbara, where she has purchased a country home. Mrs. Stevenson received $25,000 for her house, which was richly decorated with Samoan tapestry and weapons.

The house was filled with South sea curios, and the library contained Stevenson's books, as well as many manuscripts of his stories and novels. It was saved during the great fire by member of the Bohemian club, old friends of Stevenson, who carried the water for the purpose in buckets.

THE SULTAN OF TURKEY IS FORCED TO YIELD TO THE DEMANDS OF MACEDONIA

Constitution of 1876 Restored and Parliament Will be Convoked.

Ruler by Stroke of Pen Grants Young Turk's Demands.

Message Creates Consternation Among the Palace Clique.

Constantinople, July 24.—The sultan of Turkey has restored to Macedonia the constitution of 1876, by an imperial firman issued this morning.

The grand vizier immediately took steps to carry out the orders of his imperial master. He addressed to all the provincial authorities concerned, a circular telegram, convening the chamber of deputies, in which he pointed out that the method of forming the chamber is determined by an organic statute, which, according to the official communication, is "an illustrious institution of the sultan."

Startling as was the sudden dismissal of Ferid Pasha from the grand viziership and the appointment of Said Pasha in his place, this step was as nothing compared to the sensation created in all quarters this morning by the official announcement that the sultan had decided to convoke a parliament.

Revolt of Army Causes Change.

It was felt, in view of the general revolt in the army, unprecedented in the history of the Turkish empire, some change was inevitable and that far-reaching measures of reform in the central government were bound to be inaugurated. But the drastic action of the sultan, who took the reins into his own hands and by the stroke of a pen suddenly yielded to the demands of the young Turks and restored the constitution of 1876, has taken the palace clique, the members of the diplomatic corps—in fact, the entire population of Constantinople, completely by surprise. Although it was thought that the long-sustained agitation might possibly bring about some form of parliamentary administration, nothing so dramatically abrupt was regarded as possible.

Sultan Raises White Flag.

The immediate cause of the sultan's raising of the white flag was the receipt of a telegram addressed to him from the Albanians of Uskub, informing him that they had taken their oath to favor the re-establishment of the Constitution. This message landed like a thunderbolt at the Yildiz Kiosk. The sultan had been under the impression that he could depend upon the Albanians under all circumstances. Ferid Pasha, who is an Albanian, had fostered this conceit. When the facts became known, the wrath of the sultan immediately fell upon his favorite, who was summoned to the palace and dismissed on the spot.

HAD TO CURL HIS MUSTACHE

And If She Did Not, Husband Would Beat Her.

Chicago, July 24.—A silky mustache, jet black in color and generous in length, confronts Mrs. Clara Black every morning at 5 o'clock. That dark and flowing mustache represented duty—the duty of curling it—according to the matrimonial doctrines held by John E. Black, owner of the mustache and husband of Mrs. Black.

But Mrs. Black, after she had faithfully curled the mustache for some time, by the light of the dawn, decided that her husband was wrong and that curling a mustache was no part of the obligations of a wife. The result was the appearance of the wife as complainant in a divorce suit.

"I want a divorce on the ground of cruelty," said Mrs. Black, "because my husband treated me badly. When he did not like things he became angry and struck me. He would upset the table and throw dishes all around the room.

"And not only that, but every morning at 5 o'clock I had to get up and curl his mustache. If I did not get up and curl it he would get mad."

The owner of the mustache which required such assiduous attention is said to be the Beau Brummel of conductors on the Metropolitan elevated railroad. Mrs. Black said that her matrimonial experiences with her husband included two wedding ceremonies and one previous divorce trial.

President C. D. Griffith Scores the Mortgage Registration Tax Law.

Guaranty of Bank Deposits or Postal Savings Banks Coming.

Joseph T. Talbert of Chicago Talks on "Commercial Paper."

The nineteenth annual convention of the Minnesota Bankers' association opened this morning in the Lyceum theater, with an attendance of representative financial men from every section of the state in attendance. Bankers from places outside of the state were here also, and the officers of the association did not hesitate to state that, in point of attending delegates and interest shown in the work of the convention, the present meeting gives the promise of being the most successful convention in the history of the association.

Bankers are here from almost every town in Minnesota. Many of them have brought their wives and families. The official register shows over 430 names, and every one who has registered is either a banker or a member of a banker's family. In view of official attendance, the present convention is the largest in the history of the association.

If one thinks there is a financial stringency in the country he should meet and talk with the delegates that are in the city. They will tell you that the finances of he country are at the present time in a healthy condition, and, moreover, they will tell you with vigorous emphasis that business conditions are steadily improving. An optimistic opinion of the business situation the country over, and an abiding faith in the increased prosperity for the coming year might be taken as an epitome of the convention.

Terrific Electrical and Wind Storm Sweeps Guardsmen Camp.

Lightning Kills Three Persons and Over 100 Are Injured.

Innumerable Tents Blown Down and Many Occupants Stunned.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 24.—An all-night search throughout Camp Hays, where the 10,000 men of the National Guard of Pennsylvania has been in camp for a week, and which was last night visited by a terrific electrical and wind storm, shows that three soldiers were struck dead by lightning and that nearly a hundred other persons were injured by the electrical bolts or otherwise hurt. It was probably the wildest night the historic battleground has experienced since the memorable July days of 1863.

Those killed were:

Corporal C. Milton Garver, Company C, Tenth regiment, Uniontown.

James A. Barte, Company K, Tenth regiment, Waynesburg.

Private Clyde Morrison, Company D, Sixteenth regiment.

The dead were members of the Second brigade, composed of regiments from the western part of the state, most of the storm damage occurring in the section of the field occupied by that brigade.

The cots of the hospital tent are filled with the injured, some of whom are women and children, who had been visiting the camp.

The tent which Governor Stuart had been occupying during the week's encampment was blown down by the terrific wind and the governor and those who were his guests at the time were buried under the canvas. With the governor were Charles B. Mann of the state railroad commission, Col. Good of the First regiment, Philadelphia, and Capt. P. L. Weaver, formerly of the First regiment. They were all thrown to the ground by the falling canvas, but managed to crawl out into the open. In the tent adjoining that of the governor were the sisters of Governor Stuart, Miss Cora Stuart of Harrisburg, and Mrs. Lechler of Philadelphia and Mrs. Charles B. Mann of Philadelphia. They were there for the usual evening band concert and

Romantic Love Story Has Tragic Ending Near Lesina.

They took a small boat and put out to sea, with the intention of boarding a passenger steamer to Venice. St. Louis, Mo., July 24.—Friends of William N. McMillan, the St. Louisan who will be the host of President Roosevelt during the latter's visit in British South Africa, where he will hunt big game, yesterday received letters from him in which he speaks of arrangements being made for the entertainment of the chief executive. McMillan is the owner of 20,000 acres of land near Bambasa, on which is a rubber plantation.

"We have had the president's room all fixed up," write McMillan. "There won't be any luxuries here, but President Roosevelt is used to roughing it, and I think he will be pleased with the accommodations. I am making arrangements to have some of the most competent guides in the country at the disposal of the president's party. In addition, I am having the natives bring reports of the best spots for shooting big game."

DISGUSTED DEMOCRATS TO NOMINATE BY PETITION.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 24.—Disgusted over the failure of the state Democratic convention to accomplish anything, fifty or sixty delegates from various parts of the state got together yesterday afternoon and agreed to circulate nomination papers for a state ticket to be led by A. Gittings, Monroe; insurance commissioner, William Guilliemo, Hartford; treasurer, William Pierstoff, Middleton; attorney general, Evan Evans, Baraboo.

These at the caucus promised that they would take immediate steps to put out nomination papers for the men mentioned in the above list.

WORKMEN TAP SUBTERRANEAN RIVER WITH DRILLS AND TWENTY-THREE OF THEM ARE DROWNED

Berne, Switzerland, July 24.—There was a frightful accident early this morning in the Loetschberg tunnel, in the Bernese Alps, which resulted in the deaths of twenty-five workmen.

The men were drilling inside the tunnel. Without warning their tools pierced the wall that separated them from a subterranean river, or lake, the existence of which was not known. The wall gave way with a crash and a torrent of water and mud rushed into the tunnel and filled it. All of the workmen were drowned. They were Italians. Fortunately, owing to the early hour, only comparatively few men had entered the tunnel. The disaster occurred 2,400 yards from the northern entrance. It is believed that the men tapped the Cander river, which flows through the mountains above the tunnel. The water now chokes the tunnel within 1,000 yards of the entrance.

AMERICAN GIVEN RACE

John F. Hayes Winner of the Great Marathon Event.

Dorando, the Italian, Finished First, But Received Assistance.

London, July 24.—The American protest against Dorando for receiving assistance at the finish of the Marathon race has been upheld. This makes John F. Hayes, I. A. A. C., the winner of this world-famous event.

Dorando, the Italian, finished first, but as soon as he came into view it was seen that he was in very bad shape. He tottered brokenly toward the right, when he should have turned to the left to make the circuit of two-thirds of the track necessary to reach the goal. Several men jumped in front of him and, with difficulty, pushed him around and got him going in the right direction. He half-walked and half-tottered for a hundred yards along the cinder path, and then swerved, stood still a moment and the next went down in a heap. A crowd of officials and followers, who were cheering him along, then surrounded him, and for a few minutes he could not be seen. After two or three minutes the group parted and a great cheer went up as the Italian, who was on his feet, staggered on for perhaps one hundred yards more. He made a pathetic attempt to trot, but this was too much for him and he fell again to the ground. The spectacle was too much like the torturing of a human being for many of the spectators.

John F. Hayes of America came in second without any assistance whatever. A. R. Welden, American, was fifth. Longboat, Canada, returned to the Stadium in a motor car.

Fifty-five Men Start.

Fifty-five men toed the starting line, Wood, Canada, and Nettlebeck, Germany, withdrawing at the last moment.

The men were lined up in four rows close behind one another, like a file of troops. It was impossible to string out the huge field in one line, so the start was made in this way.

At 2:33 o'clock, three minutes after the advertised time, the crack of the pistol sent the men off on their long run of over twenty-six miles. Leaving the Castle Printz, Longboat, the Canadian Indian, led the field with the rest bunched close up.

A great crowd, probably a record gathering, went out to the Stadium this afternoon to witness the finish of the Marathon.

The arrangements for the control of the crowd were good and the police, some 2,000 of them, scattered along the course, kept the track clear.

Longboat in the Lead.

The man went down Castle Hill at a good pace, and on through High street, Windsor, where Longboat and two other Canadians led the van, with the seven Americans and a number of other competitors close up. The windows and house-tops, all decorated with flags, were filled with cheering enthusiasts, who gave the athletes an inspiring send-off as they sped on their way towards Eton. Here the college boys had gathered by the hundreds, and excitement reached a high pitch as the successive groups of runners swept by. The official time for the first two miles was 10 minutes 11 seconds, and for the first three miles, 13 minutes 42 seconds.

The final in the high diving competition resulted as follows: Johamnson, Sweden, first, with 83.7 points; Malstrom, Sweden, second, with 78.7; Stanberg, Sweden, third, with 74 points; Anderson, Sweden, fourth, with 68.3, and George W. Gaidzik, Chicago A. A., fifth, with 56.3 points.

In the final of the Graeco-Roman heavyweight wrestling, Welsz, Hungary, won, defeating Petroff, Russia.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Joseph T. Talbert Talks of the Present Situation.

Says Country's Business is 66 Per Cent of the Normal.

Joseph T. Talbert, vice president of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago, who delivered an address at the morning session of the bankers' convention, states that the business of the country at the present time, as near as can be gained from statistics, is approximately 66 per cent of the normal industrial situation.

At the present time Mr. Talbert's bank is making an annual investigation into the crop situation, the industrial situation and the condition of the manufacturing and commercial houses of the United States. On the information received thus far Mr. Talbert bases his estimate of the volume of business of the country.

The area taken in by the investigation extends from Duluth to Galveston, Texas, and from Pittsburg to the cotton district upon the south. It delves into the crop condition, including wheat, corn, the coarse grains and the condition of the cotton crop. The standing and business condition of the big mercantile and manufacturing firms are thoroughly gone into. The reports and figures are coming in to the officials of the bank daily, so that a criterion of the business of the United States can be gained from them. The detailed report of the investigation will be given to the country later, says Mr. Talbert.

Mr. Talbert states that he does not look for much shaking up of business because of the presidential elections. He also states that he believes that business is improving. He predicts that the improvement will be steady and gradual, but that it will require some time for the business of the country to resume its normal tone.

V. H. Van Slyke, president of the Metropolitan State Bank of Minneapolis, states that business is improved and that in his opinion it will continue to improve. Mr. Van Slyke states that business has shown a very good improvement within the past two months and that if the crop conditions are good business will show a rapid improvement.

Florence Luptovzik Recovers Her Watch Through Herald Office.

H. S. Dooley, who is connected with the German American bank of Minneapolis, arrived in the city this morning from a vacation trip on the North Shore as far as Port Arthur, Ont. That Mr. Dooley has keen powers of observation in the matter of valuables other than cash was demonstrated this morning when, on his way to the baggage room at the union depot, he picked up from the steps a lady's belt to which was attached a handsome gold watch, fob and charm, the whole thing being worth about $50.

Knowing that the loser would be anxious about the article Mr. Dooley brought them to The Herald office where Miss Florence Luptovzik, of the Duluth Business university had a few minutes before left a "lost" advertisement. Through the medium of this "ad" the watch and belt were returned to their rightful owner.

THIS ONE IS SO DIFFERENT

Another Ohio Man Has Sure-Enough Flying Machine.

Niles, Ohio, July 24.—Like all inventors, August Bartel is an optimist. He thoroughly believes he has a flying machine that has them all skinned a dozen ways, and maybe he has. Anyway this humble machinist has secured the necessary financial backing to perfect his machine. And that is going some.

Not much is known about the Bartel flying machine, but it is declared to be entirely different from anything yet designed, because it does not require wings or a balloon to keep the machinery afloat.

For more than three years, Bartel has been at work, secretly, on his airship model. For want of funds a short time ago, he was compelled to let his secret be known to Pittsburg men of money. They saw merit and the possibilities of great wealth in the invention of Bartel, and decided to back him in further experiments.

The Bartel airship is made up principally of the combination of a series of aeroplanes normally in the plane of a middle one, and having the rest of its series capable of elevation and depression into plans at angles with the normal plane. It has no rudder and no balloon arrangement.

Before he secured the present model, Mr. Bartel had made three different ships, working along the lines laid down by other inventors. These included balloons, wings and propelling fans. A few months ago he abandoned all these plans and hit upon one he is now developing, with apparent ultimate chances of remarkable success.

Mr. Bartel's airship when completed to hold two men will not weigh more than 500 pounds. A small one has already been tested. This was raised without difficulty. Bartel's ship will have practically unlimited speed. A mile a minute can easily be made with the ship without any strain or danger from accident.

While the main idea of Mr. Bartel and the wealthy men backing him in the development of airship plans is to solve the problem of aerial navigation and reap a great financial reward, they will also bend their energies to winning the $300,000 offered by the United States government for the best airship. Three machines already in use are declared by experts to be inferior to the Bartel model.

Patents on the Bartel ship have already been secured, and a large machine fully equipped for use, would have been constructed some time ago had the inventor not been so mysterious about his plans

ANCIENT COIN RETURNED.

"Specialty Hunter" Sends Stolen Sixpence Back to Owner.

London, July 24.—A souvenir collector with a conscience has been found, but not identified. When the queen recently made a private visit to the Franco-British exposition she paid sixpence at the turnstile in an old London coin, which was framed and placed on the outside of the show. Monday the glass was broken and the coin stolen.

A reward was offered for information which would lead to the conviction of the thief. Yesterday the sixpence was returned from the Hotel Cecil, with a note, apologizing for having given any trouble. The sender said he had no idea that the coin was so valuable. He signs himself "a specialty hunter," and asks to be excused from inclosing his card. Private marks prove that the sixpence was the original royal coin.

GOLF BALL WAR IS ON.

English Outfitters, in Wild Competition, Cut Prices.

London, July 24.—This is the time to buy golf balls. The sellers are engaged in a wild competition to cut prices. A week ago a golf ball of recognized quality, rubber cored, cost 50 cents. It could be bought this week for 37 cents. Doubtful whether the reduction has come to stay, players are laying in stocks to be on the safe side. The man who usually buys a dozen at a time is now investing in three dozen.

"We have never had a busier day," said the manager of a large outfitting firm, "and our stock of golf balls is becoming low. But I do not think the boom will last."

Nearly half a million golf balls are used by British players in the course of a week. That being so, the difference in price is a serious matter.

CONFESSES TO MURDER

Eberhard Tells Police Story of the Killing of His Aunt.

Wanted Her Money That He Might Marry N. Y. Girl.

New York, July 24.—Drawn back to the scene of his crime by a force he could not resist, August Eberhard, self-confessed murderer of his aunt, Mrs. Otillie Eberhard, a Viennese widow, whom he lured to a lonely spot in New Jersey, a few days ago, and shot to death, was captured near Paterson, N. J., yesterday and is now a prisoner in the Hackensack jail.

What interested the authorities most in the confession he made to them late today was the reason he gave for committing the crime. Eberhard said that he was in love with a New York girl and that he needed the money to marry her, so, knowing that his aunt had $2,500, he plotted to kill her and steal the money.

Eberhard says he also intended to kill his pretty cousin, Otillie Eberhard, to whom he was engaged, so that nothing would stand in the way of his marriage to the New York girl.

Hollow-eyed, cheeks drawn and with the look of a hunted animal on his face, Eberhard was found lying on a lawn of a residence just outside of Paterson. There was an ugly looking wound on his right leg, which the murderer first said had been inflicted by Italians who attacked him, but which he afterward confessed was inflicted by himself so as to make the police believe he had been wounded on the night his aunt was killed.

Told Ingenuous Story.

Eberhard did not immediately confess to the police. He told a most ingenuous story to account for his disappearance after the shooting of his aunt, to the effect that on the night of the murder he had tried o defend his aunt from the attack of a party of Italians.

The inquisitors did not believe this story, and they kept Eberhard on the grill until he weakened and made a confession. The murderer seemed to feel relieved when he had finished his remarkable narrative of the murder. He asked the prosecutor, to whom he had confessed, for a cigar, and when it was given to him he smoked as if he had no other care in the world.

Says He Had Accomplice.

An important point in the confession was the statement by Eberhard that he had an accomplice in the murder plot. He said, however, that his accomplice had no hand in the killing of Mrs. Eberhard. This man, who was one of Eberhard's friends, has fled to the West and the police are looking for him. They have his name.

Eberhard told the police that he had planned the murder two months ago. He wrote many letters to his aunt in his efforts to induce her to sell her home in Germany and come to this country to live. He even promised he would marry her daughter Otillie and make a comfortable home for her here.

Then Eberhard recounted the arrival of his aunt and his cousin Otillie, of his finding room for them in a hotel in West Twenty-third street, of the trip to New Jersey and the fatal walk up to the railroad tracks. A blinding rain storm came up while they were walking up the Susquehanna tracks and this aided the murderer in his purpose. As the unsuspecting women were plodding along in front of him, he drew his revolver, took careful aim, and fired.

Mrs. Eberhard fell at the first shot, but to make sure, the assassin fired another shot into her body as it lay on the tracks. Then he went in pursuit of his cousin and tried to kill her. The poor girl believed he was trying to protect her, and up to yesterday she had insisted that he did not murder her mother. She accounted for his disappearance by the theory that he probably was shot by the murderers.

Buried the Money.

When Eberhard was searched not a penny was found in his pockets. Eberhard said that he had buried the money he had stolen from his aunt. He led the detectives to a tree near Little Falls, and there dug up a bundle of bills. There was $2,400 in the bundle, which is the amount that was stolen, as the murderer left a small amount of money in the bosom of his aunt's waist, so as to give the impression that she had not been robbed. Eberhard had also buried his pocketbook containing $26, so as to bear out his story that he had been attacked by Italians and robbed.

Eberhard says that he and his accomplice escaped from the scene of the crime on a westbound train. He declares that he passed through Albany, Troy and Buffalo into Canada and on to Detroit and Chicago, without being recognized by the police. When he reached Chicago, he says, that an irresistible power compelled him to return to the scene of the crime and then he planned to wound himself and surrender to the police in the belief that he could convince them that he had not murdered his aunt.

When Otillie Eberhard was told of her cousin's confession she was astounded. She is living in Hackensack and has been receiving the attention of a young steward, named Held, who was on the steamship on which she and her mother came to this country. It is believed that she will marry Held as soon as the present trouble is over.

NIGHT DRESSES AT $3,250.

Court Sympathizes With Count Who Was "Stung."

Paris, July 24.—The Chevalier Vincent Florio, one of Italy's wealthiest men and founder of the Targa-Florio automobile race in Sicily, has been contesting a Paris dressmaker's bill for 435,000 francs for articles supplied within three years to his friend, a divorced Russian princess. The chevalier acknowledges his liability in principle, but protests that some of the charges were exorbitant. The simplest gowns were charged for at $10,000 to $12,500. Ball dresses cost $25,000. There was an item of a dozen night dresses at $3,250 each. Stockings were charged for at from $675 to $900 per pair, and mittens at $5,000 per pair. The court sympathized with the chevalier to the extent of reducing the bill one-fifth.

MONEY IN WATERMELONS.

Illinois Growers Clear From $80 to $100 Per Acre.

Carmi, Ill., July 24.—The watremelon crop in White county will be two weeks earlier than last year, and the first picking will be made in two or three weeks. The growing of melons marks a new epoch in White county farming, and is the most profitable of all. Last year many farmers cleared over $80 per acre and some over $100. The melons are grown on the sand, and are earlier than the Indiana melons.

GREENBACKS WERE HUNG ON CLOTHESLINE TO DRY.

Ansonia, Conn., July 24.—Two hundred dollars in bills hanging on a clothesline was the sight which attracted attention in Woodbury. William Wilhelmy of this city, drove to Woodbury to visit his brother. He was caught in a thunderstorm, and when he reached his brother's, his trousers were wringing wet. He borrowed another pair while the hired girl washed his.

Wilhelmy went calling on friends, and when he returned he found a crowd in front of his brother's home. The sight of his roll dangling on the clothesline was too much for him, and he collapsed with laughter.

After the girl had washed the trousers she found the roll of bills, and with clothespins fastened each on the line and left them unguarded.

SPINNER OF GOOD YARNS

Democratic Nominee for Vice President is a Story Teller.

Tells Some Politicians Why He Wears Chin Whiskers.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 24.—Ask anyone around here about the Democratic vice presidential candidate and you will learn that John W. Kern has a fine reputation as a story teller. He tells funny stories and clean stories. He can also be most satirical. His friends recall one of his sarcastic utterances indulged in on an occasion when he was dining with W. J. Bryan not long ago. At the time Mr. Kern was being discussed as a vice presidential possibility. Some one jocularly remarked that that a few years in Washington as vice president of the country ought to please Kern greatly. The question arose as to the expense of living in Washington.

"Yes," said Kern, "I understand that it is costing Vice President Fairbanks about $50,000 a year. Now, at any rate, considering the state of my physical fortune, I could live in Washington about one day."

Mr. Bryan was greatly amused at the utterance, it is said, and often alludes to Mr. Kern's remark.

As long as somebody doesn't organize a Curran club, John W. Kern can go happily through the campaign. Curran is a good enough name and all that, but it does not happen to be his name. And many people, since he has been one of the big guns in Indiana politics and his name has been often spoken, have used it Curran.

Not long ago Judge Pritchard of the criminal court received a letter from a man concerning the trial of Harry P. Brunaugh, then in progress, and the man spoke of "Mr. Curran," meaning Mr. Kern.

"Such is fame," suggested the judge, "through two campaigns for governor and still Mr. Curran!"

"Yes, such is fame!" sighed Mr. Kern.

John W. Kern has always been proud that he was once a school teacher. Before he was 16 years of age he taught district school in Howard county. He was a slender youngster at the time, weighing little more than 100 pounds.

Many of Kern's pupils were more than twenty years of age and in size were grown men. He taught one school for two terms with much success and gave up the occupation of "schoolmaster" to become a lawyer.

While getting his earlier education, Mr Kerr. attended what was called the Indiana normal school of Kokomo. He rode to school each morning on horseback and carried his luncheon. He has often admitted that he recited his lessons to his horse during the noon hour and that frequently on the way to and from school he indulged in flights of oratory that made the old horse prick up his ears.

Kern has for years worn chin whiskers. It is his habit softly to caress his beard when he is at work. Often his political friends have made jokes about "John Kern's whiskers."

"Don't you mind them," Mr. Kern has frequently replied. "They are a comfort to me."

"One day two or three politicians called to see Mr. Kern at his office. One of them, who was jocularly inclined, remarked: "I'd like to see Mr. Kern without those whiskers." Turning to Kern, he said: "Why do you wear them, anyway?"

Kern stroked his beard thoughtfully for a moment, and turning to his caller remarked:

"Well, I think I wear them chiefly because they belong to me."

DUAL LIFE IS REVEALED WHEN PENSION IS ASKED.

Shelbyville, Ind., July 24.—A remarkable case of dual existence was revealed in this city when a woman arrived from Fairview, Ohio, claiming to be the widow of William Reed, who died four weeks ago. Twenty-seven years ago, William Reed left his wife and five children. Mrs. Reed was led to believe he procured a divorce in Indianapolis, and until the second Mrs. Reed arrived, did not know differently. Twenty-three years ago, William Reed arrived at Fairview, Ohio, and since then was recognized as the husband of a Fairview woman. Reed represented himself to her as a bachelor soldier. Four weeks ago he died, and the Ohio Mrs. Reed made application for a pension.

The pension department notified her of the other marriage and declared the Shelbyville Mrs. Reed was entitled to the pension unless a dissolution of the marriage by divorce or death was certified.

No divorce was found and the Shelbyville wife will now apply for the pension.

IS DROWNED IN THE LAKE

Body of Andrew Wendell Found Floating in Water.

Believed That It May Have Been a Case of Suicide.

The body of Andrew Wendell, a section hand on the Northern Pacific railroad, found found floating in the lake along the sea wall on St. Croix avenue, just below the railroad tracks, at 9 o'clock last night, by Walter L. Taft, a Minneapolis traveling man. It is not known whether the man committed suicide or whether the drowning was accidental. Wendell was about 45 years old, and so far as is known was unmarried.

After tieing the body so it could not float away, Mr. Taft notified the police, and the remains were ordered removed to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms. Two cards were in Wendell's clothing. One bore the name of Evelyn Levins of 118 Hammond avenue, Superior, and the other was a business card of Gust Melen's saloon, 120 Garfield avenue, over which the man lived.

Wendell was last seen at his rooms on Wednesday.

DROWNS AT BAYFIELD.

CARBOLIC ACID ROUTE

Mrs. Frank C. Dunn Commits Suicide at Her Home.

Leaves Husband and Children With Smile on Her Lips.

Mrs. Frank C. Dunn, 206 East Fourth street, drank an ounce of carbolic acid at her home about 7 o'clock last evening, and died shortly afterwards in terrible agony. Her husband and two children were at the supper table in an adjoining room at the time she drank the poison. They had absolutely no indication that she intended to commit suicide. She made an unsuccessful attempt to end her life three years ago, but was saved at that time by the efforts of Dr. Taylor.

Mrs. Dunn left her husband and children at the supper table last evening, and, going to the Le Richieux drug store, purchased an ounce of carbolic acid, returning to her home immediately afterwards. The three other members of the family were still at the table when she re-entered the house. As she passed them and went into the next room she greeted them with a smile. Pausing at the door, she turned to her husband and said:

"I have just telephoned to some friends, who will visit us tonight."

Mr. Dunn did not reply, and continued his meal. A few minutes later he heard the sound of a falling body, and rushing to his wife's room he found her stretched at full length on the floor, clutching an empty vial which had contained the acid. She already had lost consciousness.

Dr. A. C. Taylor was summoned, who administered antidotes, but the poison had already gotten in its work, and within half an hour after drinking it the woman was dead.

Mr. Dunn says he does not know why his wife wished to end her life. She was 30 years old, and had lived in Duluth several years. It developed that she really had telephoned some friends, inviting them to spend the evening at the Dunn home. The telephone message was sent from the drug store, and immediately afterwards she turned and bought the acid. She told the clerk it was for medicinal purposes.

M'GILLEN IN DULUTH

May Have Been Responsible for Mysterious St. Paul Suicide.

Police Believe He Came to Head of the Lakes.

John McGillen, a foreman in the employ of the McGrath Lumber company of Stillwater, and believed to be in Duluth at present, is thought to have been responsible for the suicide of Mrs. Ida Lewis, in St. Paul, Tuesday. The woman's husband is an engineer on the steamer Wells, which is now somewhere on the lakes. As yet the local police have been unable to locate McGillen.

A man corresponding to McGillen's description registered with Mrs. Lewis at the Euclid hotel in St. Paul, Monday. Tuesday he summoned a doctor to the woman's bedside, and immediately afterwards disappeared. It is thought the two had formed a suicide pact, and that the man's nerve failed him at the last moment. Mrs. Lewis died of morphine poisoning. A description of the man was obtained from sources which led the police to believe him to be the same man with whom the woman was reported to be infatuated, and who is said to have followed her from Stillwater Monday afternoon, an hour after her departure from that city. The two were seen in each other's company by friends an hour before she appeared with a man at the Euclid hotel and registered as "Mr. and Mrs. Keller, Duluth, Minn."

McGillen was traced to Duluth, but as yet he has not been apprehended. The police have no charge to prefer against the man, but believe he may be able to throw some light upon the mysterious death of the woman. It is claimed he has been intimate with Mrs. Lewis for years, and that she was an inveterate morphine fiend at the time she was an inmate of a resort near Stillwater. The police assert that Mrs. Lewis spent the major portion of her time, while her husband was absent from home on his lake trips, in frequenting places of bad repute, in which she went under the name of "Louise."

It is understood that Mr. Lewis had the utmost confidence in his wife's fidelity and loved her dearly. Regardless of this fact, the woman is said to have constantly lived a life of dissipation during his absences from home during the season of navigation.

The police are satisfied in their belief that the woman met her death at her own hands, either by an overdose of the deadly drug, or took it with suicidal intent, after a quarrel with McGillen.

CERTAINLY WAS ABSENTMINDED

Groom Forgot to Get Preacher to Perform Ceremony.

Absentmindness is usually regarded as a serious fault in a man, but there are times when it is excusable. One of those times is the occasion of his marriage.

According to reliable reports there is a young business man of this city who entered the ranks of the benedicts recently and who had a rather trying experience by reason of the nervous strain that is said to accompany a groom through a wedding ceremony and cause him to forget important details connected with the attendant festivities.

The ceremony in question took place at the home of the bride's parents, a distance of about ten or twelve miles from the central part of the city, and arrangements were made for the bridal party to go there in an automobile. The arrangements also included the transportation to the scene of the ceremony of a number of those things necessary for the feast that follows the ceremony.

After the automobile was well on its way, some seven or eight miles from the city, the groom decided to take stock. He checked over the load carefully and found that he had the bride, the attendants and sundry packages consigned to the bride's parents, but discovered that in the bustle to get away from the city they had forgotten the ice cream. It would not do to go on without this very essential factor for the wedding dinner, so the automobile was turned about and the trip made to Duluth. The ice cream procured, the party made another start for the country, the groom satisfied that all his troubles were over. When the automobile had gone about two miles, however, somebody in the party called attention to the fact that there could be no ceremony without the preacher. Consternation reigned. The groom had forgotten to take the minister aboard. It was getting close to the hour set for the wedding, but there was no alternative, and the machine was again headed toward the city and driven to the parsonage.

It is rumored that the third start for the country was successful and that nothing else was missed until the wedding party reached the house, when it was discovered that the flowers had been forgotten. The time set for the ceremony had arrived so the flowers had to be dispensed with.

It would seem that the groom's troubles were over after the nuptial knot was tied, but such was not the case for the wedding party had proceeded but a short distance on the way toward the city, to catch a train, when another automobile bearing a number of the groom's friends hove in sight. Then followed a lively cross-country chase in automobiles and there are rumors afloat that the automobiles hit a number of the high places in the country roads back of Duluth for about an hour, the bridal party doing its best to shake off the pursuers by doubling back, running into the brush, backing around corners and dodging stumps on the cross roads. The pursuing party had stationed pickets at all the avenues, however, and the groom worked under a heavy handicap. He finally lost his pursuers, however, and started for the depot arriving there to find that his friends were a little ahead of him. The bride and groom were compelled to sprint the last quarter under a heavy shower of rice. It is supposed that one of the happiest moments in their lives was when the train pulled out of the station, leaving their tormentors behind.

LOSS OF LOVER AFFECTS MIND

Of Iowa Woman Who Furnished Recreant One With Money.

Crookston, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A touching story of years of patient labor for love, a recreant lover who did not remain true when fortune smiled upon him, and the sad result, the flight of reason, was told here by the presence of W. A. Breedlove, who was taking Miss Mary Lindsey from Argyle, Wash., to her home at Epworth, Iowa, the former home of the families of both.

Mary Lindsey left for the West many years ago for Washington, with several others from near Epworth. Among them was a young man to whom she had plighted her troth. The two built air castles about a happy home when sufficient money had been saved up. She was a school teacher and saved every dollar, and her young lover was ambitious and a hard worker and also saved every cent he made.

When the wonderful tales of gold in the Klondike startled the world they had saved up enough to buy a farm and were about to get married. The young man caught the fever and taking what money he had earned, with her consent, though reluctantly given, he headed for the gold fields.

Luck went against him. He ran out of money. His sweetheart furnished him with more. Again and again she sent him money from her little hard earned hoard.

Then his luck changed. He made a small fortune, and wrote glowing letters of a bright future and an early return to his faithful sweetheart. Then came another big strike and a bigger fortune.

Then came a change. His letters were farther between and less fervent. Then they ceased altogether. He returned from Alaska, but he did not return to his affianced at Argyle.

The light began to fade from her eyes, the bloom from her cheeks. She grew despondent, morose and finally was incapacitated for work. Then came the total nervous collapse, and it became necessary to send her back to her old home at Epworth, and Breedlove, a friend of both families, undertook the task. By missing a connection they had to remain in Crookston all day. At intervals a shadow of the light of reason crosses the brain of the unhappy woman, but most of the time she is childish. It was with difficulty she was induced to get on the train for the journey to relatives.

The recreant lover is said to be enjoying his wealth in Seattle.

TYPHOID EXAGGERATED.

Conditions at Mankato Are Not as Bad as Reported.

Mankato, Minn., July 24.—The story telegraphed broadcast that there are 1,500 cases of typhoid fever in Mankato exaggerates the true condition here. Up to date 167 cases have been reported to the health officer. There are a number of cases that have not been reported to that officer. The situation is not so serious as has been reported. There is no cause for alarm. Every precaution is, and has been taken to stem the outbreak.

MARINE NEWS

NEW LINE TO DULUTH

Canadian Pacific to Compete With Northern Navigation Company.

Next Season Will See Two Canadian Lines to Duluth.

It is said in marine circles that another Canadian railroad line will run its boats to Duluth next season. The Canadian Pacific, operating the Assiniboia and another fast passenger and freight boat between Port Arthur and other Canadian port at present, is said to be contemplating such a move and it will probably come about at the opening of next season.

At present, the Northern Navigation company, the Grand Trunk boat line operates the steamer Huronic between Duluth, Port Arthur and Sarnia, enjoying fine business during the passenger season. The Huronic is a well appointed modern boat and is popular among people traveling to and from Canadian ports. The Northern Navigation company has another boat of the same type as the Huronic under construction at the shipyards at Collingwood and that also will be put in operation on the same run next season.

The C. P. R. boats are also palatial steamers, having accommodations for large crowds, and next season will see sharp competition between the two lines for the business to and from Duluth.

Harbor is Quiet.

Quieteness prevails in the harbor today, but few boats moving. Coal cargoes continue to arrive quite freely and some of the docks are crowded, so that a few boats are lying in the anchorage basin waiting for berths. Ore shipments continue about normal this week, with a slight increase in sight for the Allouez docks, at which there will be something of a rush during the coming week.

SATURDAY'S LINGERIE DRESS SALE

MADE POSSIBLE BY

ANOTHER FORTUNATE PURCHASE

Last week our New York representative secured for us, at an enormous sacrifice on the original cost, something over 200 Ladies' (and a few misses') white, ecru, blue and pink Princesse and Two-piece Dresses.

The goods have arrived, and owing to the fact that we bought them so cheaply, we have necessarily had to take all of our regular stock of goods—of similar character (some of them only in the house for a few days)—and slaughter the prices to meet those of the special lot, thus making a grand total of nearly 300 dresses.

This entire lot will be divided into three sub-lots—and we will say that they are amongs the best bargains we have ever offered to the public through our Cloak and Suit Department.

Lot 1 Ladies' White Swiss Dresses, embroidery trimmed, worth up to $5, your choice for $1.98
It's worth that to launder them.

Lot 2 Ladies' Princesse and Two-Piece Dresses of nainsook, silk mull and dimities; all beautifully trimmed with wide lace flouncings and skirting embroideries, in white and assorted delicate colors, worth up to $15. Saturday's price........ $4.98
Three times your money's worth

Lot 3 THE BANNER LOT—The lot in which quality, style and finish are superior. In this lot there are beautiful Princesse Robes made of wide panel skirting embroideries over mull, Swiss and nainsook materials. There are suits in the lot worth as high as $34.50. Saturday's price $9.98
"He who hesitates is lost"—Don't hesitate!

Now; "A Word to the Wise"

Last week we gave you Ladies' Tailored Street and Dress Suits in wool, silk and wool and some all silk materials. The season for those was over, while the season in Duluth for White Dresses has just commenced. Consequently we consider ourselves very lucky to be able to secure these goods and to present them to you at this, the opportune time.

And Remember

There are not as many in these three lots—by nearly 100—as in the Suit Sale of last Saturday, and then everything, practically speaking, was sold out by noon. So if you wish to avail yourself of this golden opportunity—Be Here Early!

Millinery Opportunities

Thud! - The prices have reached rock bottom, we can hardly place them any lower without giving the goods away. The Panton & White Company's standard of excellence in Millinery is well known. The fact that our advertising is truthful, has long appealed to the people. Just compare former and present prices on the items below, and come on Saturday, prepared to carry away the biggest bargains in Dress and Street Hats, ever offered in Duluth.

LOT 1—Ladies' Dress and Street Hats, worth up to $6.00 —Saturday's price.. $2.25
LOT 2—Ladies' Dress and Street Hats, worth up to $12 —Saturday's price.. $4.75
LOT 3—Pattern, Dress and Street Hats, worth up to $25 —Saturday's price.. $7.50

Just a look at these splendid values, to the economists, that's all that's necessary. The goods sell on sight. The price asked, would not, in most cases pay for the frames alone!

GETS LONG SENTENCE

Court Gives Mattich Limit for Second Degree Manslaughter.

Claims That Jury Extended Him All Possible Leniency.

"The evidence of the state has been overwhelming. In your own case your testimony has made the charge of manslaughter beyond a doubt. Taking your own version of the affair, the man you killed gave you no provocation. He uttered no words, committed no acts, which could be construed as such provocation. If as you claim, he had a weapon it is very strange that others present did not see it.

"The result of your action is that a man has been killed and the punishment for such an act as that should be sure and certain. And it is just and right that you should be confined in the state penitentiary at Stillwater for a period of twenty years at hard labor."

These were the words used by Judge Ensign in sentencing Eli Mattich, murderer of Don Jonovitch at the Croxton Mine location outside of Chisholm last March. The penalty is the extreme one for the crime of first degree manslaughter, of which the petit jury found him guilty. He was indicted by the grand jury for first degree murder.

The crime was, according to the testimony, a cold blooded and deliberate one. Only the fact that it was committed during a drunken brawl saved the prisoner from a murder conviction. The fatal shots were fired while Don Jonovitch was running away, and struck him in the back. Though Mattich claimed that Don Jonovitch had a weapon, all the other witnesses said that this was not the case, or that he did not use one.

The prisoner is but 23 years of age, and, on account of his youth, his attorney, C. A. Teare, made a plea for a reformatory sentence. It seemed to the court however, that the jury had extended all the clemency to which the convicted man was entitled in reducing the crime from murder to manslaughter, and he gave him the limit.

Mattich came to this country from Austria in 1907. He is accused of seriously wounding a man in Westphalia, Germany, and robbing him of 600 marks, but this he denies. The only trade he ever learned was that of a stone mason, and he worked at that only about six months. His father lives at Duquesne, Pa.

JACOBSON TO MAKE CAMPAIGN IN AUTO.

St. Paul, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—An automobile campaign with a whirlwind finish will be a feature of the campaign which the Minnesota Republicans are planning for this fall.

According to the present plans J. F. Jacobson will tour the state in an automobile during the latter months of the campaign. While this has not been decided definitely, it has been talked of, and Jacobson and his friends agree that it would be the best conveyance they could get and would permit him to meet more people than in any other way.

IRISH TOBACCO GROWING REVIVES

English Radicals Refuse Rebate on Duty, But Grant Bounty.

Dublin, July 24.—Irish tobacco growing has again been occupying the attention of the British parliament, and it has afforded another typical instance of the curious mental attitude of the British Radicals who refuse to compromise openly with what they are pleased to call their "principles," but who are perfectly willing to do the thing if they can find a decent excuse for calling it by another name. The period for which a rebate on the excise duty was allowed to Irish grown tobacco as an experiment, is near its expiration, and the Irish members naturally demanded that the rebate be granted permanently, as it has been amply demonstrated that with the small preference allowed—25 cents a pound—Ireland could compete with the world in growing tobacco. At this proposal, however, the British Radicals held up their hands in holy horror. It would be compromising with the sacred shibboleth of free trade. When some one suggested, however, that the same end would be attained by a grant of money to the Irish agricultural department, which will disburse it in the shape of bounties to the Irish tobacco growers at the rate of so much a pound of tobacco marketed, the Radicals accepted the proposal joyfully, and a bill to that effect will be passed before the end of the season.

Another Irish town is to be sold, lock, stock and barrel. Last year it was Limerick, and this time it is Tramore, which, if not so famous as Limerick, is one of the most picturesque places in Ireland. It possesses a race course, a fine old town hall and a fine market. Any one who wants to own a town can not do better than have a look at Tramore, and then bid at the auction.

A graceful compliment has been paid to a patriotic Irish priest by the bishop of Raphon, in appointing the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Charles McGlynn to the deanery of Raphon, rendered vacant by the death of Mgr. Hugh McFadden, whose patriotism led to his appointment thirty years ago. By this appointment Bishop O'Donnell has identified the deanery with the Irish national cause. Mgr. McGlynn is parish priest of Stanorlor, the birthplace of Isaac Butt, Parnell's great forerunner.

BATTLE WITH BIG SNAKE IN THE DENSE DARKNESS.

Waynesboro, Pa., July 24.—Frank Stouffer, who lives on the Thomas Rhone farm, near Roxbury, in Letterkenny township, Franklin county, awoke the other night and, reaching out his hand, grasped a snake just back of the head. Owing to the darkness he was unable to see the nature of the reptile, and dared not release his hold.

A hard struggle ensued, during which Stouffer's side and arm were severely lacerated. Stouffer at last managed to roll out of bed, when the snake coiled around his legs and tripped him. After wriggling for several minutes, the unwelcome visitor managed to get away from Stouffer and escaped through a window. It is believed the snake entered the house by climbing up a grape arbor, which reached very near a window. A physician was called. It is believed that the reptile was a blacksnake.

$35 black suits now $15. "Fitwell."

GREER FOR POTTER'S PLACE.

Coadjutor Bishop Will Head New York Episcopal Diocese.

New York, July 24.—By the death of Bishop Potter, Coadjutor Bishop David H. Greer becomes the head of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York. Dr. Greer is a man of 64 years, of pronounced scholarly attainments, and what is known as a "broad churchman," a leader of the liberal school of the Episcopal clergy.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Threatened Captain.

Four men unable to get work on the steamer Francis L. Robbins, unloading coal at dock No. 3, yesterday started in to abuse the captain, threatening him bodily harm. The police were called, but when two of them arrived the men fled.

Delegates Return.

The Douglas county delegates who attended the Democratic state platform conference at Milwaukee, returned to Superior this morning. Though the meeting was held to frame a state ticket, no definite agreement was reached between the two factions that ruled it. C. M. O'Hare, chairman of the delegation, said this morning that there was a strong Bryan sentiment among the delegations from all over the state, and that everywhere there seemed to be the greatest confidence that Bryan will carry Wisconsin.

People Want Ferry.

The people of Billings Park want a ferry from the foot of Eighteenth or Twenty-first streets to West Duluth. At a meeting held last evening at the Eighth ward fire hall, a committee was appointed to take the matter up with Capt. Jeffrey of the Interstate ferry line. Next Sunday the committee will make a special trip of inspection about the bay to see where the best landings can be made on the Superior side. The people of Billings Park claim that their need for a ferry, which will carry passengers and vehicles to West Duluth is more pressing every year, that a great many of the residents of that portion of the city work in West Duluth.

Robber Was Bold.

In one of the boldest robberies that has taken place in Superior for several months, $15 was taken from the residence of C. H. Shong, 1415 Cummings avenue, Wednesday evening at about 9 o'clock. Mr. Shong had left the money on his dresser and had gone to the grocery store near by. It is thought that the burglars from out of doors saw him place the money on the dresser, and, after he left the house entered by the use of a skeleton key. The electric light was burning in the kitchen all the time Mr. Shong was away. On his return he saw a man hastily leaving by the front door, but the night was so dark he soon lost track of him.

Hurt in Runaway.

While driving along Winter street, between Tower and Ogden avenues, this noon, Oscar Maaki, a coal wagon teamster, was thrown from his wagon by the sudden bolting of his horses which in some way became frightened. He struck on his head and was dragged for nearly a block by the reins. It was feared for a time that he was dead. He was removed in an unconscious condition to the hospital where it was discovered that his skull had been fractured. Though the man is suffering from concussion of the brain, there is a chance of his recovering. Besides a fractured skull, Maaki sustained a badly broken shoulder blade.

Ironwood, Wis., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unknown man was found dead on the Chicago & Northwestern tracks, between Ironwood and Hurley, Monday, by some laborers going to work. The man's head was severed from his body by the early freight train passing over it. The man was either intoxicated or overcome by sleep and had lain down with his head on the rail.

SUFFERED WITH AN ITCHING RASH

On Hands and Arms in Blisters as Large as Hazelnuts—Face Became Badly Swollen and Could Not Work—Grew Worse But Was

SOON CURED BY THE CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Last summer I was troubled with an itching rash on my hands; some people called it poison ivy. I guess I must have scratched it during the nights for it got worse. The hands and forearms got all full of little blisters as large as hazelnuts, so I went to a doctor. He gave me a salve and talcum powder and told me to take a needle and open the blisters, but instead of getting better it still got worse. Then he gave me some medicine and my hands and face got all swollen. I could not work any more. After lingering around for three weeks I thought I would try the Cuticura Remedies. I bought a set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent Pills, and in one week I saw that I was no longer as bad. I kept on using Cuticura and the trouble continued to grow better. In five weeks it was entirely cured. I had suffered four weeks before I tried the Cuticura Remedies and I can recommend them as the best for all skin diseases. I use the Cuticura Resolvent Pills now and then as the best blood purifier. Matthew Ganter, 21 Fayette St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Apr. 8 and 13, '08."

TO BRING CASE TO TRIAL AGAIN

President Instructs Attorney General in Standard Oil Matter.

Oyster Bay, July 24.—President Roosevelt last night announced in unmistakable term the determination of the administration to proceed with the prosecution of the Standard Oil company case despite the decision adverse to the government handed down by the United States court of appeals. The decision the president thinks, in no way affects the merits of the case, and he makes known his decision based upon the actual issues involved. The statement in the matter, made public by Secretary Loeb follows:

"The president has directed the attorney general to immediately take steps for the re-trial of the Standard Oil case. The reversal of the decision of the lower court does not in any way touch the merits of the case, except in so far as the size of the fine is concerned. There is absolutely no question of the guilt of the defendants or of the exceptionally grave character of the offense. The president would regard it as a gross miscarriage of justice if through any technicalities of any kind, the defendant escaped the punishment which would have unquestionably been meted out to any weaker defendant who had been guilty of such offense. The president will do everything in his power to avert or prevent such miscarriage of the ends of justice. With this purpose in view, the president has directed the attorney general to bring into consultation Frank B. Kellogg in the matter and to do everything possible to bring the offenders to justice."

PRESIDENT REVIEWS THE SPEECH OF TAFT.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 24.—William H. Taft, the Republican presidential nominee, was the guest of President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill for several hours yesterday. During Mr. Taft's visit the speech of acceptance which he will deliver at Cincinnati next Tuesday was discussed with the president and Secretary of State Elihu Root, who was also a guest at the president's summer home.

Judge Taft took lunch and dinner with the president and Secretary Root and at 9 o'clock left Oyster Bay in an automobile for New York city. No statement on the conference was given out.

MARKED FOR THE REAPER

About three years ago Mrs. L. Hetkes of 819 Kirkham street, Oakland, Cal., called at our office with a girl thirteen years old, the latter weak and listless. She stated that she had lost a daughter through kidney disease and the doctors now told her this one was in the same fix and that she could live but a short while.

The mother was nearly distracted. We told her that kidney disease was really inflammation of the kidneys and that it was in fact incurable under the old diuretics, all of which were kidney excitants, but that an emollient for kidney inflammation had been discovered and that the child would probably recover. The mother took the treatment with her.

We skip three years.

A few months ago Mrs. Hetkes called with a beautiful young girl who was the very picture of health. She introduced her as the dying patient of three years ago, and told us to refer anybody in the world to her. She stated the recovery was complete about the eleventh week.

For the only emollient for inflammation of the kidneys, the world has ever seen, ask for Fulton's Renal Compound. Literature mailed free.

ATTACKED BY WATSON

Populist Candidate Begins Campaign by Assailing Bryan.

Urges the South to Awake From Apathy and Get Busy.

Macon, Ga., July 24.—Thomas E. Watson, Populist candidate for president, opened his campaign here last night in a speech of one hour to an audience that taxed the capacity of the Grand Opera house. He asked for Georgia's electoral vote and said that, if necessary, he would give it to Bryan to defeat Taft.

His assaults were all directed at Bryan, however, and his praises were for Roosevelt and Taft. His charge against Bryan of refusing to vote for Crisp for speaker in the Democratic caucus because of his being a Confederate was heard in silence, but his attack on the Nebraskan for his attitude in giving the negroes comfort in the Brownsville matter was repeatedly applauded. Mr. Watson spoke as follows:

The greatest purpose of my life is now to put the South back into the position of national influence which she held before the Civil war and to bring back the reign of Democratic principles as they were practiced in the forties and fifties. The greatest obstacle in the way is the apathy of the South itself. If the Southern people would arouse themselves, they could easily throw off the domination of the Eastern capitalist, who exploits the Southern states through the machinery of the Democratic party.

You call yourselves Democrats—Andrew Jackson Democrats; Thomas Jefferson Democrats—and you have never stopped to inquire what the principles for which Andrew Jackson and Thomas Jefferson stood, were.

Would Have Spurned Platform.

You are asked to vote for Mr. Bryan and yet Mr. Bryan's platform is one which Andrew Jackson would have spurned, and Thomas Jefferson despised. It represents a disgraceful surrender of principle. In 1896 Mr. Bryan claimed to be as good a Populist as Watson. For eight years he wore every shred of clothing which Populism had in its wardrobe. In 1904 he abandoned his Populist raiment and entered zealously into the Parker campaign which he himself had denounced as a sell-out to the Wall street element of the Democratic party. In Denver he was absolutely in despotic control of the Democratic party. Whatever he wanted done was done. Whoever he wanted thrown out was bounced. The platform is just what he made it, and that platform is one of the most shameful abandonments of principle that political history presents.

What right has he to demand the support of the citizens who are Democrats in principle upon such a platform as this? And particularly, what right has he to expect the support of the South? Upon one principle can he hope to get it, and that is upon the idea that the South is compelled to vote the Democratic ticket, no matter how offensive in principle the platform may be, nor how much the candidate may instruct her.

Bryan's Views of South.

Mr. Bryan understands the helplessness of the South and exploits it to the very utmost. From the Southern states he must draw 156 of the 242 electoral votes that are necessary to his success, and yet he has treated the Southern states as a purely negligible quantity. In turn for her 156 electoral votes she gets nothing—absolutely nothing. The platform recognizes no interest of hers.

If the South will follow me in this campaign, revolting against the odious conditions under which she is expected to serve Mr. Bryan, she will at once resume he old place in the sisterhood of sections. Being now a Democratic asset, which can be counted on with certainty, nobody regards her, pay any attention to her interests or thinks of her feelings. Let the South become politically uncertain and she will again become politically great.

It Can't Be Beat.

For Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles it can't be beat. I have tried it and find it a most excellent medicine." Mr. Harden is right; it's the best of all medicines also for weakness, lame back and all run down conditions. Best too for chills and malaria. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c.

JAMES M'CAHILL BUYS PROPERTY

Pays $33,000 for Old Y. M. C. A. Building and Ground.

The Young Men's Christian association has disposed of the building formerly occupied by it at 18 East Superior street, to James McCahill of Duluth for $33,000. A warranty deed transferring the property was filed with the register of deeds late yesterday afternoon.

The property in question comprises a 25-foot lot, with the old association building, a two-story brick structure, with basement and sub-basement. The lot has a frontage on both Superior and Michigan streets. The building is about 20 years old and, until May 27 had been the home of the association. Mr. McCahill stated last evening that he had purchased the property merely as an investment.

WOMAN DROWNS CHILDREN.

Newark, N. J., July 24.—Mrs. Maud Dozette, 26 years old, drowned her twin daughters, Edna and Lena, 11 days old in a tub of water last night and then caused her own death by asphyxiation. She evidently intended to cause the death of her two other children by asphyxiation but they escaped from the gas which killed their mother. She is believed to have become suddenly insane.

SUPPLIES ARE AMPLE

Commission Men Declare the Fruit and Produce Prices Reasonable.

Eggs Continue to Soar, Advancing Two Cents This Week.

The local produce market is well supplied with about everything the country affords at this time of the year, and prices are considered reasonable by the trade.

Green stuff continues to pile into Michigan street at a lively rate, but there is a good demand for it and commisison men declare themselves well satisfied with trade at the present time.

The strength of the egg market is one of the features of the local market at the present time, the hen fruit bringing from 21 to 22 cents, practically an advance of 2 cents over last week. Eggs are ordinarily rather high at this time of the year, but they are displaying an unusual firmness at present.

The sour variety from Michigan are about the only cherries in the market now, the season for the others having terminated. The Michigan cherries are wholesaling at $2 a box.

The first grapes of the season are in the market. They are white, seedless affairs and are coming from Arizona. Prices for the Arizona grapes are $2.50 a crate. Receipts of grapes will increase shortly, as the season for them is at hand.

Georgia has sent about the last of her peaches to the local market, but the season for Arkansas and Missouri peaches is at its height. They are selling for $1.10 a crate. Large crates are $1.75. California peaches are coming in somewhat different packages, at $1.10 per box.

The demand for lemons has been so firm lately that an advance in the price of the fruit was recorded this week. The California lemons are $5.50 to $6 a box. Grape fruit is still in the market, but the demand is rather light, prices have fallen to $4.50 per crate.

Blueberries and raspberries are quite plentiful and are selling freely at prices unchanged from a week ago. Strawberries have vanished entirely from the row.

The banana market is unchanged, the price remaining firm at 4 cents a pound.

Bartlett pears are still selling at $3 a box.

Cantaloupes are coming in large quantities and the demand for them has been very good, so that prices have been maintained on the same level as a week ago. Watermelons are selling at 20 to 25 cents, according to size.

The green vegetable list displays no fluctuations from a week ago. Receipts have been keeping up well and so has the demand. Duluth appears to be very keen about radishes, lettuce, cucumbers, tomatoes, celery and the like.

Cabbages are cheaper than they were a week ago, the price having fallen from $2.75 and $3.50 to $2.50 a box.

There is an easier tone to the potato market. Digging for Minnesota spuds has begun and when receipts from nearby points increase, a gradual decline in prices is expected. The spuds are now selling at $1.25 a bushel.

New roots are in the market. Turnips are selling at $1.25 a bushel and rutabagas may be had for the same amount. Beets and carrots at $1.50 a bushel.

Butter and cheese prices remain steady and unchanged. Creamery butter prints are 22 to 26 cents and other grades are on the same basis they have been for several weeks past. In cheese, full cream twins are quoted at 12 to 14 cents.

The market for poultry, fish and meats of all kinds remain about the same as a week ago. There is a stronger undertone to the market for pork, but prices have not advanced here yet.

LYCEUM — Mack-Leone Players, in "Moths," Saturday evening and matinee.

Continues in Favor.

The continued popularity of "Moths," by the Mack-Leone Players at the Lyceum theater, was shown last evening by another good attendance. The production is a strong one and its staging is being favorably commented on by all that have seen it produced this week. The play will not be repeated this evening as the state bankers' convention will have the Lyceum, but "Moths" will be put on at the Saturday matinee and Saturday evening.

CRUISE OF THE AMERICAN FLEET

Cause of Much Speculation by the German Press.

Berlin, July 24.—The German press has resumed its speculations with regard to the political aspects of the cruise of the American fleet in the Pacific. The Marine Rundschau, which is the subsidized organ of the German imperial marine department, considers that the "concentration of the American fleet in the Pacific" marks the beginning of the new epoch in the world's history which was foreshadowed by Count Yorck von Wartenburg, Count Waldersee's chief of staff in China in 1900, when he expressed tho opinion that the trend of events lay in the direction of a union on the part of the Continental and Atlantic powers against the "Pacific hemisphere." In the opinion of the German semi-official organ, the United States has given proof of the determination to take an active part in shaping developments in the Pacific, and, whether the American battleship fleet remains in those waters or returns to the Atlantic, the cruise will exert a political influence. This influence ought to be emphasized as much as possible, since, in view of the long intervening expanses of ocean, America has no other weapon or instrument of pressure except her navy. It is added that "America's political wishes will only be recognized if they are backed by the guns of her fleet, but the scope of her desires will be bounded by the navy's radius of action."

The conservative Kreuz Zeitung indorses these observations with the remark that the American navy must not only be ready to strike, but "ready to strike where strategy demands." Gen. Von Zepelin, who is responsible for the article in the Kreuz Zeitung, then proceeds to consider the lines of communication and the harbor accommodation on the west coast of America and in the Pacific, which he pronounces to be inadequate and insecure for a fleet "designed for offensive purposes." The organ of the Chauvinist Pan-Germanic league, the Alldeutsche Blatter, earnestly adjures the United States to station the battleship fleet permanently in the Pacific, upon the ground that "both now and more especially in the future an arrangement of this kind would be of quite exceptional importance for Germany, in view not only of Japan's predominance in the Far East, but also more particularly because in the end England could not help finding herself compelled to divide her naval forces, which are now concentrated in European waters."

SHOT DURING BRAWL.

Austin, Minn., July 24.—In a drunken free-for-all fight here Wednesday "Blackie" Brand was shot by a man who is said to go under the name of "White Line" and is in a dangerous condition. With the two men were three others who were following a carnival company showing in this city and all have been arrested. The men were intoxicated and during the fight knives were used in addition to the revolver. All were too drunk to give their versions of the trouble and are being held for further examination.

Summer Tips for Women.

Next to the white, pale shades with a very light shrimp pink as one of the leaders, are extensively used in the Eastern resorts.

This is surely the age of the slender woman. She predominates at all the resorts this season. Over at Atlantic City it is said all the fat women stayed away. At any rate, they are few, as is plain to be seen; what is the secret?

Stout ladies of the 400 have found a new way to quickly take off the extra fat and hold it in check without inconvenience. They have thankfully given up dieting, exercising and the miscellaneous drugging so long in vogue among the overfat, for a simple mixture that is said to give remarkable results, owing to its control of the fat-forming operations of the system. The formula is: Marmola, one-half ounce; Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, one-half ounce; Syrup Simplex, three and one-half ounces; dose a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. Enthusiastic users claim that this mixture will reduce fat at the rate of a pound a day without causing wrinkles, and has the additional merit of being perfectly harmless. The ingredients are inexpensive and obtainable at any drug store. In order to get the best results, however, the Marmola must be fresh, and so care should be taken to get it in the original unbroken half-ounce package.

LANDS SEA MONSTER.

Maine Fisherman Brings Strange Giant Fish to Shore.

Orr's Island, Me., July 24.—Lying on the beach here is a wonderful sea monster.

Albert Richardson went out in his naphtha dory to pull his four mackerel nets and soon found that something was the matter with them. He signalled to another fisherman. The two naphtha dories were three hours towing the monster in shore. The fish got into the nets and in his efforts to get out had wound the nets around his body and literally drowned. One mackerel was in his mouth, but most of the others had disappeared.

The catch is a fish thirty-five feet long, which even the oldest fisherman was unable to name. While it resembles a shark, it differs from that fish by not having teeth. The skin looks like the skin of an elephant. The tail is four feet long and six feet wide. Around the gills are bristles about four inches long which seem like black wire. Even the fishermen are cutting these off as souvenirs. The fish weighs about 10,000 pounds.

The liver was cut out and cut up, and it just filled a good-sized dory. It weighs 1,500 pounds and will be tried out for oil.

NEW BOOK OF JOSHUA.

It Has Different Version of Fall of Jericho's Walls.

London, July 24.—Dr. Moses Gaster, chief rabbi of the Spanish and Portuguese Jews in England, recently discovered, while traveling in Samaria, a new book of Joshua, which furnishes a novel version of the fall of the walls of Jericho.

According to this account, Joshua was attacked by King Shobach, and his army trapped or encircled by seven walls of iron, made by the wizards and enchanters in the service of Shobach. Joshua prayed to God. A dove came to him; he tied a letter to its wings and it bore a message to King Nobah, who, with his tribes, came to Joshua's rescue. The priest Phineas blew a trumpet once, the walls fell down, and Joshua defeated Shobach.

This new book starts with a definite date of the era of creation, the year 2794, from the creation being given as the date of the death of Moses, and from that year starts the new calculation of the jubilee. That, Dr. Gaster explained, was omitted from the Bible. It then describes how Joshua was commanded to proceed to the entry of the Promised Land. Joshua ordered the counting of the people, which also did not appear in the Bible. Then it states that the spies went to Jericho, and on their return gave a report to Joshua and the High Priest Eleazar. They crossed the Jordan, preceded by the ark, and put up the stones in Gilgal, but there was no mention of the "reproach of Egypt."

DOUGLAS OUT OF POLITICS.

Monument Beach, Mass., July 24.—"I am out of politics forever," declared Former Governor William L. COUNTY IN HARD LUCK

Koochiching Cannot Build Courthouse Because of Legal Block.

Injunction Has Been Dissolved, But Case Has Been Appealed.

International Falls, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new county of Koochiching is having its portion of hard luck in the way of issuing bonds for the purpose of building a new courthouse. It was proposed to issue $42,000 in bonds to raise the necessary money, and the loan was approved by the state board of investment.

Suit was brought some time ago to secure an injunction to prevent the county commissioners from issuing the proposed bonds. This injunction was dissolved by Judge W. S. McClenahan at a session of court held this week at Brainerd, but an appeal will be taken from Judge McClanahan's decision

The petitioners in the injunction proceedings are Erik J. Swedback and George Robinson, both residents of Koochiching county. It is based upon an assertion that the board of county commissioners could not legally issue bonds, because the board consists of four instead of five members, as the law provides.

One of the men elected as county commissioners, Charles M. Bowman, did not qualify, and he never has acted as a member of the board. This leaves the board consisting of only four members, Nels J. Olson, Ronald McDonald, Fred Smith and U. T. McIntosh.

The appeal from Judge McClenahan's decision will still further delay the bond issue, and now it is considered doubtful if any building work can be done this year.

TWO CONVICTS SUED.

Eloping Couple, Doing Time, Defendants in Divorce Suits.

Stillwater, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Even if they do wish, Clayton C. Sheldon and Myra Harrell will not be received by their former families when they are discharged by due process of law from the state prison, about a year hence.

They are a couple who deserted families in Salida, Colo., more than a year ago, where they lived in the same house, and took up their home together on a farm near Rush City, in this state. They were indicted, found guilty and sent to the state prison for a year each. After conviction, Mr. Sheldon turned over to his former wife the larger interest in his property near Rush City, the whole being valued at about $3,000.

Suits for divorce have been commenced by J. D. Markham, an attorney residing at Rush City, but the cases were brought in the court at Salida, Chaffee county, Colo. The papers in the divorce cases were served in the prison by a local deputy sheriff.

Lizie Sheldon asks for a divorce from Clayton C. Sheldon, to whom she was married less than a year when he deserted her. They have a young son, born after the desertion.

J. H. Harrell seeks a divorce from Myra Harrell, to whom he was married eight years. They have no children. Neither complainant asks for alimony or suit money. In each case desertion for more than a year and convictions for felonies are alleged as the grounds for divorce.

BIG CROPS, SAYS HILL.

Railroad Magnate Takes Optimistic View of the Outlook.

St. Paul, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—"There will be more grain of all kinds throughout the Northwest, as conditions stand today, than there was last year," said James J. Hill.

"If some unfortunate condition does not arise the increase will be from 5 to 10 per cent over last year's crop. The Red River valley which, during the past few years, has not made a very good showing, will do much better this year. West of the mountains the crop will be light."

When asked what the Canadian farmers would have to offer for the market, Mr. Hill said their crop will undoubtedly be larger than ever.

"They have a virgin soil, so their crop will be large. Our farmers have not taken care of their land and, consequently the yield will be proportionately light."

While Mr. Hill said he would not venture an estimate at which the farmers would sell their crops, he discussed the situation as to the grain market at some length.

"Last year we exported grain very heavily, perhaps more heavily than we ought. The result is that there is little on hand and our surplus this year will not be large for export purposes."

The railroads, said Mr. Hill, are well able to handle all the grain which will be offered to them.

"The trouble lies in the terminal facilities. If we could only unload the grain when it gets to the terminals it would be all right. Three trips for our grain cars will move all the grain along our line," he said, illustrating the preparedness of the road to take care of the business.

NEW DULUTH WOMAN IS OPERATED ON HERE.

New Duluth, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John Smith, mother of Miss Sarah Smith, is at St. Luke's hospital, Duluth, where she underwent an operation on her shoulder, which was dislocated by a fall about two months ago. The shoulder had to be broken over again and an incision made, so that the bone could be scraped to remove a growth which had formed in the socket. Then the shoulder bone was again slipped into place.

The operation was very painful and of a serious nature, but Mrs. Smith stood it bravely and is resting comfortably.

INJURED IN ALBERTA.

Stearns County Man Breaks His Back While Plowing.

Melrose, Minn., July 24.—A dispatch received from Shelby, Alberta, conveys meager information of an accident in which John Klapperich, formerly of Melrose, was probably fatally injured. The unfortunate man was working with a steam breaking plow outfit, and in some unknown manner he lost his balance and fell among the moving plows. He was dragged into the machinery with terrible results. His back and his body was fearfully bruised. At the present time he is in a paralyzed condition, and there is no hope for his recovery.

KAUFFMAN CASE ARGUED.

New Trial Asked for Woman Accused of Killing Her Servant.

Pierre, S. D., July 24.—Arguments in the application for a new trial in the Kauffman case were made in the supreme court yesterday. George Rice, Jr., counsel for Mrs. Kauffman, opened the case and was very radical in his statements in regard to the manner of conducting the case by George W. Eagan, charging that conviction was largely due to the dramatic manner in which the case was conducted and that the court erred in not compelling Eagan to confine his dramatic posings to the testimony in the case.

INJUNCTION IS SOUGHT.

Claimants Over Land Argue Difference Before Court.

Bemidji, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—In chambers yesterday, Judge Stanton heard of the case of Christ Wraggee against Henry Mullenmeister, both of Cass Lake, in which Mullenmeister asked for an order restraining Wraggee from cutting timber from a certain tract of reservation land near Cass Lake.

George B. Edgerton of St. Paul represented Mullenmeister, while Wraggee had C. C. McCarthy of Grand Rapids and R. M. Funk of Cass Lake for his attorneys.

The argument was on an order to show cause in which Mullenmeister sought to restrain Wraggee from cutting timber.

It appears that Wraggee was allowed by the United States land office at Cass Lake to file on the land in controversy at the opening of the land in the Cass Lake land office on Aug. 15, 1906. In the argument of the case Mullenmeister's attorney brought out that Mullenmeister claimed to have been on the public highway running through the land prior to 9 o'clock on the day of the land opening; he stepped on the land at exactly 9 o'clock on the day of the opening and claimed right to file prior to Wraggee because of having been on the land. The department of the interior has already ruled that Mullenmeister had no legal right on the highway prior to the opening of the land.

Judge Stanton took the case under advisement and will probably render a decision this week.

LEONARD'S BIG FIRE.

North Dakota Town Sustains $50,000 Blaze Thursday.

Fargo, N. D., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four buildings were totally destroyed by fire yesterday in the destruction of the village of Leonard, on the southwestern branch of the Northern Pacific, about twenty-five miles from here, involving a loss of about $50,000, with less than one-half insured.

The fire started at 2 o'clock, when the Moran, Boos & Porter general stock was struck by lightning. The fire was not discovered until 3 o'clock, when smoke was seen pouring out of the windows and doors of the two-story block. Fire fighting apparatus in the little village is limited, and some time was consumed in sounding the alarm and arousing the citizens, who were powerless in staying the flames, which spread rapidly to the adjoining buildings, and it was only by heroic work that the entire village was saved from destruction.

Four buildings were totally destroyed, including the Moran, Boos & Porter block and stock of general merchandise, value about $40,000; the Boos residence, value about $3,000; the Oakide harness shop, value about $15,000, and the office of Dr. Soper, value about $2,000.

RAILROAD MAN TO HELP.

Great Northern Official to Assist Farmers Getting Hands.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. H. Griffin, traveling freight agent of the Great Northern, has agreed to get all the help that may be necessary for North Dakota farmers. He asks that he be notified how many laborers will be needed and he will agree to supply them. It is expected that there will be a lively demand for men. There are few idle men in North Dakota at the present time, and more will be needed this year than last. Farmers can reach him by addressing letters to Grand Forks.

KESLER REFUTES CHARGE.

Valley City Man Denies He is Short in Accounts.

Valley City, N. D., July 24.—H. A. Kesler, charged with having a $1,000 shortage in his accounts with the Northern Pacific company here, has been brought back. Some three months ago he secured leave of absence to visit St. Louis and other points. It was charged that he was from $1,000 to $10,000 short, but a warrant was issued alleging $1,000 shortage.

Kesler has been living at Cincinnati since he left, and was joined a few weeks ago by his wife. He says he was in communication with the railroad officials all the time, and never made any attempt to get away. He came back without requisition papers and without a warrant. Kesler declares he never took a cent of the company's money, and that, after proper checking, the books will be found all right.

CLOQUET WOMAN ACTING QUEERLY

Appearing on Street With Musket, is Sent to Asylum.

Cloquet, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Katherine Mongovan of this city was judged insane yesterday afternoon by Judge of Probate F. A. Watkins and taken to the state hospital by Deputy Sheriff Flynn. Mrs. Mongovan has been acting queerly for more than a year, but not until recently has her conduct been such as to necessitate an inquiry as to her sanity. On Tuesday evening she appeared on the streets carrying an old army musket and threatened certain persons with whom she had had some trouble. She was also uttering strange remarks, and when Chief McSweeney arrived on the scene and took the weapon away from her, trouble was narrowly averted.

Mrs. Mongovan is about 60 years of age and has been a resident of this city for about twenty-seven years, she and her husband being among the first to settle here. Mr. Mongovan was a veteran of the civil war, and died a number of years ago. Her son Thomas is somewhere on the range, but has not been heard from for some time. Since the death of her husband Mrs. Mongovan has lived alone in her house on the island, and recently rented the lower floor to saloon merchants. The noise of constant wrangling from below seems to have added somewhat to her already weak frame of mind.

The physicians say that she is not hopelessly insane, but prospects for her recovery are doubtful.

AGED MAN IS KILLED.

Run Down by Limited Train Near North Branch.

North Branch, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fritz Falkenheim, an aged man who had made his home at the county poor farm last winter, was run down and killed by the Limited train shortly after 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The tragedy occurred about two miles north of Stacy, the old man being on his way to the home of a friend near Stacy.

The old gentleman had been here in the afternoon and was returning to Stacy by the railroad route and as he was very deaf was unable to hear the approaching train. His body was found beside the track and it is believed that death was instantaneous. The remains were brought here Tuesday night after Coroner Zelen had pronounced death accidental.

Mr. Falkenheim had been a resident of North Branch for many years and at times had worked at his trade as a blacksmith, both here and at Stacy. He was about 68 years of age and little was known of his relatives in this country if there are any. The remains were buried in this village.

The Duluth Consignment is no More!

We wish to notify our patrons and the public in general that hereafter this store will be known only as

Kris & Pass Company

The words "Duluth Consignment Store" will not be used by us any longer.

There is something cheapening about the word "Consignment." A great many people had the wrong impression that a store called "Consignment" cannot offer reliable, up-to-date goods to their customers, and while we, as well as our patronizers, knew that this idea is entirely erroneous, the name used as above kept a good number of people from coming to this store.

Low Prices Prevail

While we have discarded the name "Consignment," the prices of our goods remain just as low as before. Our motto shall and always will be: "The same goods for less."

DRUG CLERK IS WOUNDED

David Widing Attempts to Batter Down Door.

Gets Charge of Shot in His Right Shoulder.

David F. Widing of 1004 East Second street is at St. Luke's hospital with an ugly wound in the shoulder, caused by a charge of shot fired at close range, and Charles Morrison is a prisoner at the county jail as the result of a shooting affair on Park Point at an early hour this morning.

Morrison was on the other side of a closed door from Widing when the gun was discharged. While in an alleged intoxicated condition, Widing entered Morrison's house, about half a block below the canal, and refused to leave, after having been repeatedly ordered out, according to Morrison's story to the police.

"I was awakened about 3 o'clock this morning by a pounding and kicking on the door of my house," said Morrison. "I sleep in an upstairs room, and my mother sleeps in a room on the lower floor of the house. I couldn't imagine what the trouble was at first, but when I looked out of the window I saw a man trying to get through the outer door. I asked him what he wanted, and he said he lived there and was trying to get to his room. I didn't know whether he was drunk or crazy, or whether he was intent on robbing the house, or whether he had some other design. I ordered him away, and he refused to go, but kept on pounding and kicking at the door. Finally he managed to effect an entrance to the hallway, but all the doors inside had been locked by this time, and he was unable to get into any of them.

"I climbed through a window and went around to the front door, again ordering Widing to leave. He was inside the dark hallway and refused to come out. By this time he was half undressed. I did not care to go in and grapple with him, for I was afraid he might be armed, and, judging by his actions, he was liable to do anything. He climbed the stairs and began kicking and pounding at the doors on the upper floor. Seeing I could not get him out by remaining on the outside of the house, I climbed back through the window and got my shotgun.

"By this time Widing was down on the lower floor again, trying to break down my mother's door. There seemed but one way to get the man out of the house and, in self defense, I fired a charge of shot through the door he was kicking. I didn't even know whether the gun was aimed at him or not, for I fired only by the sound of his pounding and kicking."

The full charge of shot struck the man in the shoulder. It seemed to sober him up somewhat, and he left the house. The police were notified, and both Morrison and Widing were taken into custody. The wounded man was taken to St. Luke's hospital at 6:30 o'clock this morning. He was still able to walk when taken into custody, although he was considerably weakened from loss of blood. Most of the shot were removed from his shoulder at the hospital this morning. He will recover.

Widing is a clerk at Smith & Smith's drug store on West Superior street. He has a wife and child living at 1004 East Second street.

FILES HIS ANSWER

Dr. McAuliffe Makes Strong Counter-Charges Against Wife.

Claims She is Unfit Person to Have Boy.

The hearing in the habeas corpus proceedings, before Judge Dibell of the district court, instituted by Dr. J. McAuliffe, to gain possession of his 8-year-old son, now held by the boy's mother, Mrs. Lucia E. McAuliffe, was adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

When the matter came up this morning, the boy was not in the courtroom, but W. E. Culkin, attorney for Mrs. McAuliffe, offered to produce him. Hugh McClearn, attorney for Dr. McAuliffe, said it would not be necessary to bring the boy into the courtroom until afternoon.

Mr. Culkin applied to the court for a jury trial, claiming that the habeas corpus proceedings in the present case differ a great deal from the usual proceedings, but Judge Dibell denied the application.

Mr. Culkin then moved for a dismissal of the proceedings, on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction, that the proceedings were started while the boy was still in the custody of his father. Mr. Whipple, who is assisting Mr. Culkin, argued that there had been no confinement of the boy, as yet, merely a threatened confinement, and that the proceedings were not regular.

Mr. McClearn claimed that the proceedings were necessar to prevent a repetition of the so-called "kidnaping" act in the Phoenix building, when Mrs. McAuliffe secured possession of her child.

The court took no action in the matter of the motion for the dismissal, but adjourned the proceedings until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. McAuliffe, this morning, filed his answer to the charges made by his wife, that he was cruel and abusive in his treatment of her. The doctor makes some strong counter charges of alleged misconduct on the part of Mrs. McAuliffe, among other things that she frequents cafes and other places with men about town, and has habits that make her unfit to have the custody of the child. The charges are made on information and belief, and the answer is sworn to by Dr. McAuliffe.

AT WORK ON THE PLANS

School Board Busy With Specifications for Ensign Building.

Hillside Residents Well Pleased With the New Name.

The committee on the maintenance of buildings and grounds of the board of education is hard at work upon the plans for the new J. D. Ensign school, which is to be the name of the new structure to replace the Horace Mann building at Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street.

The specifications will be ready for the inspection of the board at the next meeting, which will be held on the first Friday in August, and work will begin immediately thereafter, as the contract for the work will in all probability be let at that time.

Residents of the Mann district are said to be well satisfied. The action of the board in deciding to build on the old site pleased them, it is claimed, and they are well satisfied with the new name chosen for the institution.

TRADE SCHOOL COURSE.

Addition to Work at the Menomonie State School.

Menomonie, Wis., July 24.—A new course is to be added to Stout institute. The trade school, a cherished plan of Senator Stout, which has been in existence experimentally for two years as a part of the high school course, has become an assured fact.

In September four new courses will be offered to pupils, consisting of machine shop work, forging, drafting and plumbing. The latter course has been made especially strong by arrangements with the practical school of plumbing and heating of Minneapolis, whereby this school will move to Menomonie and become a part of the Stout institute.

Prof. H. W. Jimerson, director of the former school, will have charge of the new department.

Which will hereafter be located at 1801 East Fourth street, will begin its fifth year on September 7th. MUCH WORK BEING DONE Forty-Five Miles of Drainage Ditches for This County.

State Will Spend $48,885 in Completing the Work.

The state expects to finish work on forty-five miles of drainage ditches in St. Louis county alone this year. The aggregate cost of this improvement work will be $48,885, and 398,553 cubic yards of earth will be moved. Drainage work is going on on a large scale all over the northern portion of the state, and as the value of these drainage ditches is coming to be more generally recognized, plans for even greater improvements in this direction are being laid out.

There are over fifty large excavating machines now at work on ditches in this state. Some are of the floating dredge pattern, and others are steam shovels for dry work. They have an average capacity of 40,000 cubic yards a month each, which means about 2,000,000 cubic yards a month moved by machinery, to say nothing of large quantities that are excavated by team in scores of smaller operations. The season of work lasts about six and one-half months, and it is safe to say that 13,000,000 cubic yards will be moved this season. The cost is much lower this year than last, as bids have been closer than ever before.

Money spent by the state on drainage work is really a revolving fund. As state land is sold the money spent on drainage comes back into the general fund. All land owned by private parties is assessed for the benefits and bears its proportionate share of expense. State drainage operations really cost the taxpayers nothing. Even the expense of the state drainage board and the work of the engineers is assessed to the land. There are several different methods of getting the work done.

First—There are ditches constructed by the state drainage board, under authority of the court, to benefit state land. All private lands benefited by such ditches are assessed for their proportion. The counties pay the cost by selling bonds, and collect assessments from the land in fifteen annual instalments.

Second — There are co-operative ditches, constructed by counties, with state aid. These are cases where state land is not benefited, but where land has been damaged by water drained off higher land; in these cases the state donates its share of the cost outright. Out of the $200,000 appropriated by the legislature for the biennial period, only about $40,000 will be spent on this class of work.

Third—Comes work by counties to improve the channels of streams which are clogged or so winding as to cause overflows. The counties may appropriate money and pay half the cost of such work, the other half being paid by the land benefited.

Fourth—There are "judicial ditches," paid for by the property benefited, whether it belongs to state, to railroads or private citizens. These are ordered by a district court judge upon a petition and a report from an engineer. Damages and benefits are fixed by appraisers and approval of the court, and under his orders the counties may issue bonds and collect the cost of the work from the owners of the land in fifteen annual instalments.

Fifth—There are county ditches, put in by order of county commissioners on much the same plan as the judicial ditches. All lands that receive benefit are assessed to pay the cost of the work, and pay in ten equal instalments. As a rule, ditches that drain land in more than one county are built under the judicial ditch law, while small ditches entirely within a county are ordered and managed by the county commissioners.

HOUSES OF PRESSED STRAW.

One of the Novel Exhibits at North Dakota Fair.

Fargo, N. D., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—One exhibit at the state fair which is attracting great attention, especially among Fargo people, is a small cottage in one of the booths of the merchants' pavilion which is made entirely of manufactured lumber. The boards are all made of straw, and it is possible that Fargo may be made the site of a factory for the manufacture of the product.

The boards are made in any size and are as strong as wooden boards, the straw being mixed with certain ingredients and subjected to high pressure. The exhibit is in charge of W. R. Wilcox, who says that this material can be profitably made and put on the market at half the price of lumber. Mr. Wilcox also states that the material is water-proof and rat-proof and a non conductor of electricity.

"This material can be sawed, planed and nailed into place with the same ease that these results are accomplished with wood and it is much more durable," said Mr. Wilcox. "Lumber is becoming very scarce in this country and the prices are exhorbitant, but we can make this material and put it on the market at half the price of lumber. This would be a great country for a factory, as each year thousands of tons of straw go to waste which would be sold by the farmers at a profit."

WELCOME TO THE BANKERS.

Duluth is entertaining the members of the Minnesota Bankers' association today, and it is very glad to be thus honored. It hopes with all its heart that the bankers will have a pleasant and profitable stay in this city, one that will tempt them to come again and that will keep alive in their breasts cordial memories of Duluth.

It seems unnecessary to state that the bankers perform functions of peculiar responsibility and importance, and that more depends upon their standing and integrity than upon that of almost any other public or semi-public functionary in the community. Standing between the depositor and the borrower, guarding the trust funds of the public while devoting those funds to keeping the lifeblood of credit circulating through the veins of industry, the banker's responsibility is one of unusual delicacy, and it speaks volumes for the character of the men engaged in the business that so few mistakes are made and that banking conditions in this country are so sound and secure.

One way to tell a good banker is to listen around until you hear somebody say that he has a heart like a stone, or that he has less warm blood than a turnip. When you hear that about a banker, you needn't hesitate a moment in going to his bank and depositing all your cash. And a splendid thing about it is that you will hear that said about pretty nearly all of the bankers of the state; which means that the standard of banking integrity is high in Minnesota, and that the banks are doing their share to promote and conserve the prosperity of the commonwealth.

The reason it is a sign of a good banker to hear it said that he is hardhearted is that such stories spring from the men who come to the banker with an armload of stock certificates, including shares in the Nonesuch Gold Mining company, the Universal Airship company, the Duluth-to-Kokomo Underground railway and the Seabeach Gold Reclamation company, and want to borrow 90 per cent of their par value upon them. The good banker quizzically surveys the exhibit, mentally estimates its value at 30 cents a bushel, and "turns down" the loan. Then the hopeful investor in wildcat securities goes out and declares that the blood of that banker is like the blood in a turnip, and the story goes down the line. Meanwhile a solid merchant comes into the bank to borrow money to discount his bills, presenting ample security and demanding what is really his due and what the banker is there to provide, and he gets any reasonable sum he desires. The merchant does not go out and proclaim that the banker has a soft heart and that his blood pulses warmly through his veins; for both the merchant and the banker have been engaging in a piece of legitimate business, and in business it is the head and not the heart that counts.

In short, the banker takes the money of his depositors, sees that it is not risked in loans upon shaky securities, and at the same time sees that the community's money is kept circulating in the form of credits, without which business would be paralyzed and payrolls would wither. He is the custodian of the people's spare cash and the author of the community's volume of credit without which business could not exist; and when we hear that his heart is of flint we may know not only that he is attending strictly to business and that our money is perfectly safe in his hands, but that he is there to make money for the bank, and the only way he can make it is to loan out a part of the deposits to those who are sure to pay them back; in both of which operations, as custodian and as moneylender, he is performing functions of vital necessity to the community.

A DISGRACE TO THE CITY.

At a meeting of the city conference committee held the other afternoon criticism was made of the fact that owners of property in the central portion of the city are allowed to repair their old wooden sidewalks indefinitely, instead of being compelled to throw out the plank walks and replace them with respectable and sightly material.

These criticisms were fully justified, no matter in how hot a form they came.

The condition is a shameful disgrace to the city, and a wretched discredit to the city authorities who permit it to continue.

For instance, there are board sidewalks on Fourth avenue west, between Superior street and First street. These walks are old, and only the other day workmen were taking out rotten planks and putting in new ones, when they should have been engaged in tearing out all the planks and putting in cement.

Property along this block is worth from $500 to $800 per front foot, and it is bordered by disgraceful plank walks; while in the remoter residence portions of the city, where 50-foot lots cost little if any more than each foot of property costs on Fourth avenue, property owners are required to put in cement walks. This later requirement is proper enough; but the failure to compel owners to put in cement walks in the central part of the city, where the old plank walks are a standing advertisement of civic sloth and official negligence, is little short of infamous.

This condition shows mighty poor headwork somewhere. The Herald is not attempting to locate the blame, but somewhere between the board of public works and the city council somebody has grossly neglected his duty to the city.

Naturally the owners of property in such places, particularly as many of them are non-residents who care nothing for the looks of the city but only for making the most they can out of their property and for having their ownership cost as little as possible, will not substitute cement walks for plank walks until they are compelled to do so. A home-owner in a residence district seldom needs to be urged or forced, but will put in sightly and durable walks as soon as the example is set in his neighborhood. Yet good sidewalks are not nearly so essential—except for the looks of the thing—in residence sections as they are upon the busy downtown streets and avenues, where thousands walk daily.

Plank walks are all right for a country village, but they are all wrong for a city, and Duluth is a city. In the downtown business districts every foot of board sidewalks should be ripped up and cement or other similar material substituted at once. The regulations which provide merely that new walks must be of cement, but that permit the indefinite repairing of rotten board walks that are a disgrace to the city and a constant menace to life and limb, are lamentably weak and antiquated; and the official conduct of public officials who neglect to remedy this condition is shockingly neglectful.

THE YEAR'S COMMERCE.

The figures on the foreign commerce of the United States for the past five fiscal years, the years ending June 30, are significant. The last year includes the worst part of the panic period, the months during which business men everywhere held on tightly in fear of what might happen; yet the figures compare very favorably with those of last year, and exceed those of the previous three years, in every one of which "good times" prevailed.

The exports for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, amounted to $1,860,799,097, only $20,000,000 less than those for 1907, and $117,000,000 more than 1906, $342,000,000 more than 1905, and $400,000,000 more than 1904. This in spite of the setback of last fall and winter, which was more or less worldwide, though more acute here than elsewhere.

The reduction in imports, which makes a marked showing for the economy that the panic period produced, is much greater; yet even our imports for 1908 were above the average for the past five years. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, the imports were $1,194,341,994; for 1907 they were $1,434,421,425; for 1906 they were $1,226,562,446; for 1905 they were $1,117,513,071; and for 1904 they were $991,077,371.

Says the New York Sun, discussing these figures: "While the setback of the year just closed is deplorable, there is no reason to think it is anything but temporary. Our oversea business gives every assurance of expansion, and further growth will undoubtedly follow recovery from the present conditions. Trade movements are more clearly shown by the averages of periods of years than by returns for or comparisons of individual years." Upon that basis the Sun shows that the average imports for the last four years were $1,243,000,000 as against $919,000,000 from 1900 to 1904, $757,000,000 from 1890 to 1899, and $680,000,000 from 1880 to 1889; while the exports for the last four years averaged $1,750,000,000 as against $1,429,000,000 from 1900 to 1904, $971,000,000 from 1890 to 1899, and $763,000,000 from 1880 to 1889.

The "balance of trade," upon the virtues of which economists differ, has been growing steadily in our favor during the past five years. It was $459,900,000 in 1904, $301,000,000 in 1905, $517,000,000 in 1906, $477,000,000 in 1907 and $667,000,000 in 1908, the greatest in our history.

Export statistics for last year do not show any serious loss to either producers or wage earners. Import statistics, however, showed marked declines, and about one-half the shrinkage of $240,000,000 in that account is due to decreased importation of raw materials. About 80 per cent of it is represented by decreased purchases of raw materials and merchandise entering directly into our industrial processes. This, therefore, is not so reassuring as our showing of exports.

"THIRD PARTY" CHANCES.

While no third party in this country has ever come within hailing distance of victory, there have been several occasions when the growth of the third party vote, evidencing dissatisfaction in the ranks of the two great parties, has seriously complicated the issue; and it would not be surprising to find that this year is one of those occasions.

There will be more "third parties" in the field this year than ever before. In numerical strength the Socialist party will lead, and it would not be at all remarkable if it should cast a million votes. This would be only a little more than doubling its vote of four years ago, and would not be an increase proportionate to the advances it has made in the last three presidential elections.

Hearst's Independence party, which promises to have a presidential ticket in the field, is a more doubtful quantity than the other minor parties. It has never before appeared in a national campaign, and nobody can foretell how many votes it will gain. The Herald knows of no members at all in this section; in fact those who were loyal to Hearst four years ago when he was a candidate for president are disgusted with him now because of his treachery to a man whose only fault in Hearst's eyes is that he has a greater hold on the affections of the Democrats than Hearst was able to get. The probability is that the Independence party vote will not be large, though it may have some bearing on the outcome in New York, Massachusetts and Illinois.

The People's party, whose thinning ranks will rally around the standard of Tom Watson of Georgia this year, will probably not cut a very great figure, Populists not being numerous in any of the so-called doubtful states. The Prohibition party, in spite of the strides that prohibition has made in recent years, will hardly equal its vote of 1904, when it cast more than 250,000 votes. The Social Labor party, an offshoot from the Socialist movement, is not like to cast any more votes than it did four years ago, when its total was insignificant.

Of course none of these parties stands the remotest chance of victory, yet it might easily be that in the confusion of party lines one or more of them may draw enough votes from one of the great parties to affect the result. Herein lies the only interest in the prospects of the five minor parties.

It wouldn't do the country a bit of harm if the Socialist party should cast an unexpectedly heavy vote. Whatever one's view of the Socialistic program may be, the great parties are taking on more and more of its fundamental principle that society has in the past neglected duties to its members that it should take up at once, and if the Socialist party could receive a million votes or more, the effect would be to stimulate this process. In the strictly individualistic attitude of government in the past—though its giving of special privileges to special interests has been anything but individualistic—too much power has been surrendered by society to a few great interests which have used it selfishly and to the injury of the people. Society, through its government, must regain much of that power and use it wisely for the common good; and if the fear of Socialism drives the old parties to declare for this resumption of abandoned power by society, great good will result.

Now the local candidate blossoms out in affability and good humor, insisting that he is every man's friend and that he would like to have every man's friendship—and vote.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Y. S. Hattell, at the Lenox, states that all is harmony in the Illinois Democratic wigwam. He is of the opinion that Roger Sullivan of the anti-Bryan faction, has come into the fold and at the present time is one of the active workers in the interests of the great commoner.

Mr. Hattell states that Illinois will very nearly go Democratic at the election in November. While the state would have given hearty support to Johnson, in the opinion of Mr. Hattell, if the Minnesota candidate had been nominated upon the Democratic ticket for the office of president, he is sure that Bryan meets of the approval of a majority of the voters of the state. Mr. Hattell states that, although there is a great deal of suspicion of the methods of Mr. Sullivan in coming into the Bryan fold, the good people of Illinois believe that the harmony act between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Sullivan was inspired by the most loyal wishes toward party success.

Mr. Hattell is certain that Mr. Bryan will receive a heavy vote from the people of the West. He believes that the commoner will be elected, and he bases his belief upon what he has seen after a trip through many of the states in the western part of the country.

Mr. Hattell believes there is general dissatisfaction with the tariff throughout the western states. There is a general demand for revision, he states, and, as the Democratic platform has the most specific assurance upon this vital question, the voters of the West are in line to look upon the Democratic party with more favor than any time in the last six years.

Mr. Hattell says that despite the reports that have gone abroad, there is no factional fight in the Democratic party of Illinois. He says they are united for the good of the head of the national ticket and that the vote of Illinois will be the heaviest in years. Mr. Hattell also gives the opinion that Iowa will cast a strong Democratic vote this year. He believes that the farmers of that state are dissatisfied with the protection the Republican party is affording to the trusts, and he believes the voters will show their dissatisfaction in a vote that will surpass any Democratic vote ever polled in Iowa.

He states further that the western states are in just the mood to respond to the candidate and the platform indorsed by the party at Denver. He even goes as far as predicting that Uncle Joe Cannon may not be returned to congress.

Mr. Hattell, however, is firm in his opinion, and he also states that in Chicago the sentiment is that Bryan will make one of the most effective presidential campaigns in the history of American politics. He takes it that Bryan will make a far more effective campaign than Taft and that the effort of the Nebraskan in the behalf of his party will be productive of thousand of votes that are now counted either on the Republican side or in the doubtful list.

D. A. Fultz, at the McKay, states that harmony is far from being the byword in Wisconsin. Mr. Fultz says that many of the Republicans will not vote for W. H. Taft for president. They are grievously upset by the way the Republican convention stamped on the resolution offered by the Wisconsin delegate, headed by the stalwart senator, La Follette.

Mr. Fultz states that the Democrats are preparing to make the greatest fight in the history of the state organization to capture the state. He states that it is not so much Bryan in Wisconsin, as the platform adopted by the Denver convention. Mr. Fultz states that had Johnson been nominated he would have carried the state by a handsome majority. He thinks Bryan has no great following in Wisconsin, for they have a valiant reformer and progressive statesman in that state, but he does not believe that the voters are disgusted with the Republican party and are ready to support a ticket that offers relief for the western states from a system of protection that caters only to the needs of the industries of the East.

Mr. Fultz is of the opinion that the sentiment in Wisconsin is an epitome of the sentiment existing in many western states.

A Political Forecast.

There will be a lot of efforts to fill
people's eyes with dust;
There will be a lot of scolding of the wicked, shameless trust;
We shall hear that Taft's a puppet,
that he has no sense of shame,
But we think that he will carry Pennsylvania,
all the same.

There will be beclouded issues; we shall hear spellbinders roar,
Hidebound partisans will tremble, as
they've trembled heretofore;
We shall hear that Bryan's reckless,
that he's dopey, that he's daft,
But we think he'll carry Texas and win
Florida from Taft.

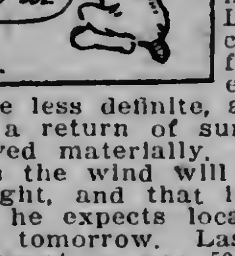
THE WEATHER.



The northeast wind, joined with the cloudiness and dampness, caused a faint imitation of fall weather yesterday and last night, and early this morning it looked like more of the same. Later, however, the clouds and mists faded away, the easterly wind became less definite, and the prospects for a return of summer weather improved materially. The weather man says the wind will shift to southerly tonight, and that it will be warmer; but he expects local showers tonight and tomorrow. Last night's lowest temperature was 50 degs. and yesterday's highest was 58 degs.

A year ago today it was clear, cool and charming.

The sun rose this morning at 4:38, and sets tonight at 7:51, making it 15 hours and 31 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions central over Alberta, Arizona and New Mexico caused further showers Thursday or last night in the Rocky mountains, the Southwest and South, the lake region and Atlantic states. The temperature continued warm in the Ohio valley states. The barometer remains high over the lake region and Western Canada. Indications favor a continuance of showery weather in this locality during tonight and Saturday."

Convention Conveniences.

New York World. At his farm in Lincoln, Neb., Mr. Bryan listened over the telephone to the speech putting him in nomination at the convention at Denver. At a distance of several hundred miles he could hear the proceedings almost as distinctly as if they were in the Lincoln town hall.

Mr. Taft enjoyed similar telephone and telegraph facilities while the Republican convention was going on. So did President Roosevelt, who at the White House was able to direct what was going on at Chicago as quickly and as literally as if he were on the ground.

One of the first uses to which Morse's invention of the telegraph was put was for Silas Wright to telegraph his declination of the nomination for vice president from Washington to Baltimore, getting it there in time for the convention to nominate George M. Dallas in his place. Prior to the telegraph there was no opportunity for speedy consultation between an absent candidate and his friends and floor managers at a national convention.

The telephone brought the convention and the candidate even closer together. Telegraphing took some time. The messages had to be written out, and with a politician's aversion to committing himself fully in writing, consultation by telegraph even over special wire had its restrictions. The long-distance telephone gives the candidate the same opportunity of consultation as if he were explaining from his office to his wife at his house why he would not be home to dinner.

When the long-distance telephone is fitted with visual attachments, so that the man at the receiver can see as well as hear whoever is talking to him, then the necessity will be lessened for national conventions at all. Each delegation can meet its own state and the proceedings be conducted without special trains or six-in-a-room hotels.

Twickenham Ferry.

"Ahoy! and Oho! and it's who's for the
ferry?"
(The brier's in bud and the sun going down);
"And I'll row ye so quick and I'll row ye
so steady,
And 'tis but a penny to Twickenham
Town."
The ferryman's slim and the ferryman's
young,
With just a soft twang in the turn of his tongue;
And he's fresh as a pippin and brown as a
berry,
And 'tis but a penny to Twickenham
Town.

"Ahoy! and Oho! and it's I'm for the
ferry;"
(The brier's in bud and the sun going down);
"And it's late as it is, and I haven't a
penny;
Oh! how can I get me to Twickenham
Town?"
She'd a rose in her bonnet, and oh! she looked sweet
As the little pink flower that grows in
the wheat,
With her cheeks like a rose and her lips
like a cherry—
"And sure, but you're welcome to Twickenham Town!"

"Ahoy! and Oho!" You're too late for the
ferry;
(The brier's in bud and the sun has gone down);
And he's not rowing quick and he's not rowing steady—
It seems quite a journey to Twickenham
Town.
"Ahoy! and Oho!" you may call as you
will,
The young moon is rising o'er Petersham
Hill;
And with love like a rose in the stern of
the wherry,
There's danger in crossing to Twickenham
Town.

Don't Be Rude.

Cleveland Leader: Remember now, if you send more than $10,000 to the Democratic campaign fund it will be firmly refused, and we are sure that you don't want to be rude.

Railroad Reasoning "As Is."

Chicago Inter Ocean: Demand for transportation having declined, certain railway managers wish to increase prices of it. They appear to believe that consumption of what they have to sell may be stimulated by making it more difficult to buy.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

At the chamber of commerce meeting this morning there was a review of complaints made regarding street improvements and a general hauling over the coals of Duluth's unfortunate engineers since the time of A. B. Patton. John Rakowski and R. C. Mitchell were the orators. The chamber resolved to appoint a committee of five taxpayers to investigate the complaints regarding the quality of the work performed on street improvements and the extravagance of expenditures entailing useless burdens on taxpayers.

An average of 1,000 tons of coal daily is being sent west over the Northern Pacific road alone.

The Pioneer Exploration & Mining Company of Duluth has filed articles with the secretary of state. The capital is $1,000,000 and the incorporators are James T. Gregory, J. S. Ellis, Ashland, Wis.; William H. Shipp, J. A. Humbird, Hudson, Wis., and James H. James, Duluth.

Emil Schmied, formerly connected with the News as advertising manager, is visiting friends in Duluth.

James W. Fowler, formerly city engineer, returned to Duluth today and will be engineer for McArthur Bros. in their big city contracts.

The signal office has taken another freak and has ordered the removal of Sergeant Fitzmaurice, who has been in charge of the Duluth station for ninety days. He will go to North Platte as soon as his successor arrives.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon a blast at the West Fourth street rock cut sent four large stones, one of them about a foot in diameter, crashing through the side of the dwelling of Peter Anderson, about 190 feet from the scene of the blasting. Gusta Anderson, aged 11 years, was thrown across the room. Her collar bone and two ribs were broken, and she received serious internal injuries which, Dr. Slaughter believes, will render her a cripple for life.

A lamp exploded in the City hotel about 2 o'clock this morning, and William Murray, who was asleep in the room, was badly burned. The building was only slightly damaged.

Knute Nelson has signed a three years' contract with the Manitoba railroad, at a salary of $15,000 a year, as legal adviser.

Blondin is going to walk over Niagara Falls on a tight rope and will receive $10,000 from one of the Kiralfys if successful.

Miss Flodul, who has been sick at St. Mary's hospital for several weeks, died last evening.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Zumbrota News, (Rep.): The men who drew up the Republican state platform were evidently anxious to get back to the floor of the convention as they forgot to incorporate anything of importance in it.

Aitkin Age: It is not a crime to be without a trade but it comes pretty near it. The records of American prisons show that the overwhelming majority of our criminals are young men. They show, moreover, that about 75 per cent of felons are untrained in any honest and useful trade. In our reformatories more than 90 per cent have never learned a trade.

Anoka Herald: Newspapers in various sections of the country continue to discontinue because the merchants in the towns where they are published use the short sighted policy of refusing to advertise when business is dull. The time to go after business with advertising is when business is a laggard and not when you have more of it than you can handle.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: A casual reading of that interesting paper, the Northfield News, leads to the suspicion that Bro. Heatwole is not entirely, wholly and unreservedly pleased with the action of the recent Republican state convention. Of course it is somewhat annoying to have some thousand odd delegates disagree with Joel P., but he has been in the game long enough to know that the public has mighty little interest in the sore toe of a politician. Brace up and cheer up, Joel, and you will be a heap happier and more useful.

Rochester Bulletin: The attitude of the New York World toward W. J. Bryan does not appear to be so hostile as it was anterior to the Denver convention. That newspaper now admits that the committee on resolutions is entitled to great credit and that Mr. Bryan himself is entitled to great credit for a definition of party policies.

Hendrum Review: If the Democrats intend to make a fight against Judge Mills they would do well to look up the qualifications of Ole Sageng—the Populist senator from Otter Tail county—as a candidate. And then there is our own Jason Weatherhead—who could eat a railroad or two before breakfast most any morning. Between these two the Democracy should have no trouble in selecting one that would make Mills grind some.

Virginia Virginian: About the only opportunity the "interests" now have to nominate a presidential candidate is by getting on the right side of Mr. Willie Hearst's Independence league.

Bemidji Pioneer: Providence has been very generous to those living in the Northwest. They are not aware that they are in a "Slough of Despond." The farmers and merchants all are enjoying the bounty acquired during years of plenty and thrift. Their prosperity has too much depth to be seriously affected by surface disturbance. The wave that engulfed Wall street last fall was nothing more than a ripple when its effect reached Minnesota.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Be careful not to stumble over your own bluff.

When women argue they like to argue that they don't.

It doesn't pay to borrow trouble even on a friend's account.

A talking machine is all right if it does not talk machine politics.

How can a man have undying love for a woman who dyes her hair?

The way a girl likes to be kissed best is the way she pretends she doesn't.

Nothing makes a woman feel so little as the refusal of a man to argue with her.

The next best thing to knowing how to get a thing is knowing how to get along without it.

Children come into the world heavily handicapped because they are not permitted to select their own parents.

After a man has moved heaven and earth to acquire a certain thing he is surprised to discover how little he cares for it.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A child can be a great economy to its parents by not being twins.

A man gets so rattled when a girl proposes to him that she can make him believe he did it.

The best way to get along with a red-headed woman's temper is to let some other fellow be married to it.

Men are fools to object to visits from their wives' relatives when it's such a good excuse to dine at the club on business.

Some people are so lucky that when they are going on a church picnic they miss the start and are obliged to stay home and have a good time instead.

The "Two-Weekers" Vacation.

Appleton's: The two-weekers have to begin their vacation enjoyments the minute they get off the train, in order to make the most of the time. In ten minutes the trunk is unpacked, a pair of flannel trousers and a rakish hat from the year before are dug out, and the vacationer is ready to saunter out in search of the attractions mentioned in the "ads.' In an hour he is playing a game of tennis, in two hours he has explored the entire region for a mile around, and in three hours he is writing post cards to the luckless ones who were left behind. The next morning he is down at the postoffice inquiring for letters from home, or briskly reading papers descriptive of yesterday's ball games back in town.

Then there are many who go to a camp in the woods. Of all vacations, there are few that have an appeal to the tired city slave like that of a vacation in "the woods." The piny woods! What a picture of wholesome out-of-door life the woods suggest. A picture of untrammeled freedom, of "roughing it," of majestic forest aisles, and velvety floors of pine needles. A long log cabin with bunks and a big general eating room, with a great fireplace about which to sit in the evening! A silver lake and a golden moon that shines down on you as you drift with some one, very pretty and temporarily very dear, in the boat with you. That is the picture that entices the shop-worn denizen of the busy place.

Judge—I never did, but I dare say they deserve it.

Philadelphia Press: Village Lounger—Mr. Jinks seems unremitting in his correspondence with his wife up here.

Village Postmistress—Yes, I don't notice he sends her many money orders.

Washington Star: "You rich men are very liable to be criticised for your campaign expenses."

"No," answered Dustin Stax, "there is no objection to our making contributions. What we're criticised for is trying to find out what we get for our money."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "They say the sun has enough heat to last for 37,000,000 years."

"How long?"

"For 37,000,000 years."

"Then what's the use of me taking a two weeks' vacation?"

Brooklyn Life: Departing Guests—We've had a simply delightful time!

Hostess—I'm so glad. At the same time I regret that the storm kept all of our best people away.

St. Louis Times: Visitor—I say, landlord, your food is worse than it was last year.

Landlord—Impossible, sir!

Philadelphia Press: "Did I understand you to say that all rum selling has been stopped in your town?"

"Not at all. I merely said it was strictly prohibited."

The Near-Famous.

Shake hands with my friend Mr.
Riley, John Doe—
He's a cousin of Jim's.
A man it will do you some honor to know—
He's a cousin of Jim's.
Used to play with Jim often when he was a lad,
They shared all the playthings the two of them had;
Before Jim wrote verses to make the world glad—
He's a cousin of Jim's.

Shake hands with my friend Mr. Taft,
Mr. Doe—
He's an uncle of Bill's.
Used to bait fish hooks for him a long time ago—
He's an uncle of Bill's.
He remembers Bill well as a frecklefaced chap,
Who wore his suspender tied 'round
like a strap,
Whom he often helped set a figure-four trap—
He's an uncle of Bill's.

My friend Mr. Ade—Mr. Tom Ade, John
Doe—
He's related to George.
Their mothers' first cousins were brothers, you know—
He's related to George.
Used to visit George Ade's folks back
in the old days,
Before any one dreamed he'd be writing
plays;
He looks like George, too, in a good many ways—
He's related to George.

My friend Mr. Cannon—a mighty bright boy—
He's a nephew of Joe's.
He was raised near Joe's farm down in old Illinoy.
He's a nephew of Joe's.
You've heard of Joe Cannon—the Speaker—well, he,
Is uncle to all of his nephews, you see;
In fact they are all of the same family—
He's a nephew of Joe's.

Overconfidence.

Baltimore American: Governor Fort of New Jersey has begun a somewhat unique sort of political campaign; he has called the political captains of his state together for the mapping out of "a war against the too-suredness which frequently costs a political party a victory." The New Jersey governor is taking a most wisely conceived precaution. Other states, Maryland included, should take note of the New Jersey campaign against "too-suredness," and the Republican leaders generally should follow the example which Governor Fort has set.

Hark!

New York Herald: Press of the land is vehemently urging the populace to support the candidates standing on a sound platform. Trouble is that there is considerable sound about all platforms.

Real Enthusiasm.

New York Sun: The Roosevelt demonstration at Chicago lasted forty-nine minutes, and the Bryan burst of noise at Denver lasted eighty-six minutes. Stout John Flanagan, the Irish-American A. C.'s curly headed hammer flinger who at Shepherd's Bush yesterday boosted the Olympic figures for his event to 170 feet 4½ inches, got thirty minutes of flag waving, singing and cheering.

Not in all the uproar of Denver and Chicago was there one-tenth the genuine joy and spontaneous enthusiasm evoked by Flanagan's fine performance.

WELCOME TO THE BANKERS.

Duluth is entertaining the members of the Minnesota Bankers' association today, and it is very glad to be thus honored. It hopes with all its heart that the bankers will have a pleasant and profitable stay in this city, one that will tempt them to come again and that will keep alive in their breasts cordial memories of Duluth.

It seems unnecessary to state that the bankers perform functions of peculiar responsibility and importance, and that more depends upon their standing and integrity than upon that of almost any other public or semi-public functionary in the community. Standing between the depositor and the borrower, guarding the trust funds of the public while devoting those funds to keeping the life-blood of credit circulating through the veins of industry, the banker's responsibility is one of unusual delicacy, and it speaks volumes for the character of the men engaged in the business that so few mistakes are made and that banking conditions in this country are so sound and secure.

One way to tell a good banker is to listen around until you hear somebody say that he has a heart like a stone, or that he has less warm blood than a turnip. When you hear that about a banker, you needn't hesitate a moment in going to his bank and depositing all your cash. And a splendid thing about it is that you will hear that said about pretty nearly all of the bankers of the state; which means that the standard of banking integrity is high in Minnesota, and that the banks are doing their share to promote and conserve the prosperity of the commonwealth.

The reason it is a sign of a good banker to hear it said that he is hardhearted is that such stories spring from the men who come to the banker with an armload of stock certificates, including shares in the Nonesuch Gold Mining company, the Universal Airship company, the Duluth-to-Kokomo Underground railway and the Seabeach Gold Reclamation company, and want to borrow 90 per cent of their par value upon them. The good banker quizzically surveys the exhibit, mentally estimates its value at 30 cents a bushel, and "turns down" the loan Then the hopeful investor in wildcat securities goes out and declares that the blood of that banker is like the blood in a turnip, and the story goes down the line. Meanwhile a solid merchant comes into the bank to borrow money to discount his bills, presenting ample security and demanding what is really his due and what the banker is there to provide, and he gets any reasonable sum he desires. The merchant does not go out and proclaim that the banker has a soft heart and that his blood pulses warmly through his veins; for both the merchant and the banker have been engaging in a piece of legitimate business, and in business it is the head and not the heart that counts.

In short, the banker takes the money of his depositors, sees that it is not risked in loans upon shaky securities, and at the same time sees that the community's money is kept circulating in the form of credits, without which business would be paralyzed and payrolls would wither. He is the custodian of the people's spare cash and the author of the community's volume of credit without which business could not exist; and when we hear that his heart is of flint we may know not only that he is attending strictly to business and that our money is perfectly safe in his hands, but that he is there to make money for the bank, and the only way he can make it is to loan out a part of the deposits to those who are sure to pay them back; in both of which operations, as custodian and as moneylender, he is performing functions of vital necessity to the community.

A DISGRACE TO THE CITY.

At a meeting of the city conference committee held the other afternoon criticism was made of the fact that owners of property in the central portion of the city are allowed to repair their old wooden sidewalks indefinitely, instead of being compelled to throw out the plank walks and replace them with respectable and sightly material.

These criticisms were fully justified, no matter in how hot a form they came.

The condition is a shameful disgrace to the city, and a wretched discredit to the city authorities who permit it to continue.

For instance, there are board sidewalks on Fourth avenue west, between Superior street and First street. These walks are old, and only the other day workmen were taking out rotten planks and putting in new ones, when they should have been engaged in tearing out all the planks and putting in cement.

Property along this block is worth from $500 to $800 per front foot, and it is bordered by disgraceful plank walks; while in the remoter residence portions of the city, where 50-foot lots cost little if any more than each foot of property costs on Fourth avenue, property owners are required to put in cement walks. This later requirement is proper enough; but the failure to compel owners to put in cement walks in the central part of the city, where the old plank walks are a standing advertisement of civic sloth and official negligence, is little short of infamous.

This condition shows mighty poor headwork somewhere. The Herald is not attempting to locate the blame, but somewhere between the board of public works and the city council somebody has grossly neglected his duty to the city.

Naturally the owners of property in such places, particularly as many of them are non-residents who care nothing for the looks of the city but only for making the most they can out of their property and for having their ownership cost as little as possible, will not substitute cement walks for plank walks until they are compelled to do so. A home-owner in a residence district seldom needs to be urged or forced, but will put in sightly and durable walks as soon as the example is set in his neighborhood. Yet good sidewalks are not nearly so essential—except for the looks of the thing—in residence sections as they are upon the busy downtown streets and avenues, where thousands walk daily.

Plank walks are all right for a country village, but they are all wrong for a city, and Duluth is a city. In the downtown business districts every foot of board sidewalks should be ripped up and cement or other similar material substituted at once. The regulations which provide merely that new walks must be of cement, but that permit the indefinite repairing of rotten board walks that are a disgrace to the city and a constant menace to life and limb, are lamentably weak and antiquated; and the official conduct of public officials who neglect to remedy this condition is shockingly neglectful.

THE YEAR'S COMMERCE.

The figures on the foreign commerce of the United States for the past five fiscal years, the years ending June 30, are significant. The last year includes the worst part of the panic period, the months during which business men everywhere held on tightly in fear of what might happen; yet the figures compare very favorably with those of last year, and exceed those of the previous three years, in every one of which "good times" prevailed.

The exports for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, amounted to $1,860,799,097, only $20,000,000 less than those for 1907, and $117,000,000 more than 1906, $342,000,000 more than 1905, and $400,000,000 more than 1904. This in spite of the setback of last fall and winter, which was more or less worldwide, though more acute here than elsewhere.

The reduction in imports, which makes a marked showing for the economy that the panic period produced, is much greater; yet even our imports for 1908 were above the average for the past five years. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, the imports were $1,194,341,994; for 1907 they were $1,434,421,425; for 1906 they were $1,226,562,446; for 1905 they were $1,117,513,071; and for 1904 they were $991,077,371.

Says the New York Sun, discussing these figures: "While the setback of the year just closed is deplorable, there is no reason to think it is anything but temporary. Our oversea business gives every assurance of expansion, and further growth will undoubtedly follow recovery from the present conditions. Trade movements are more clearly shown by the averages of periods of years than by returns for or comparisons of individual years." Upon that basis the Sun shows that the average imports for the last four years were $1,243,000,000 as against $919,000,000 from 1900 to 1904, $757,000,000 from 1890 to 1899, and $680,000,000 from 1880 to 1889; while the exports for the last four years averaged $1,750,000,000 as against $1,429,000,000 from 1900 to 1904, $971,000,000 from 1890 to 1899, and $763,000,000 from 1880 to 1889.

The "balance of trade," upon the virtues of which economists differ, has been growing steadily in our favor during the past five years. It was $459,900,000 in 1904, $301,000,000 in 1905, $517,000,000 in 1906, $477,000,000 in 1907 and $667,000,000 in 1908, the greatest in our history.

Export statistics for last year do not show any serious loss to either producers or wage earners. Import statistics, however, showed marked declines, and about one-half the shrinkage of $240,000,000 in that account is due to decreased importation of raw materials. About 80 per cent of it is represented by decreased purchases of raw materials and merchandise entering directly into our industrial processes. This, therefore, is not so reassuring as our showing of exports.

"THIRD PARTY" CHANCES.

While no third party in this country has ever come within hailing distance of victory, there have been several occasions when the growth of the third party vote, evidencing dissatisfaction in the ranks of the two great parties, has seriously complicated the issue; and it would not be surprising to find that this year is one of those occasions.

There will be more "third parties" in the field this year than ever before. In numerical strength the Socialist party will lead, and it would not be at all remarkable if it should cast a million votes. This would be only a little more than doubling its vote of four years ago, and would not be an increase proportionate to the advances it has made in the last three presidential elections.

Hearst's Independence party, which promises to have a presidential ticket in the field, is a more doubtful quantity than the other minor parties. It has never before appeared in a national campaign, and nobody can foretell how many votes it will gain. The Herald knows of no members at all in this section; in fact those who were loyal to Hearst four years ago when he was a candidate for president are disgusted with him now because of his treachery to a man whose only fault in Hearst's eyes is that he has a greater hold on the affections of the Democrats than Hearst was able to get. The probability is that the Independence party vote will not be large, though it may have some bearing on the outcome in New York, Massachusetts and Illinois.

The People's party, whose thinning ranks will rally around the standard of Tom Watson of Georgia this year, will probably not cut a very great figure, Populists not being numerous in any of the so-called doubtful states. The Prohibition party, in spite of the strides that prohibition has made in recent years, will hardly equal its vote of 1904, when it cast more than 250,000 votes. The Social Labor party, an offshoot from the Socialist movement, is not like to cast any more votes than it did four years ago, when its total was insignificant.

Of course none of these parties stands the remotest chance of victory, yet it might easily be that in the confusion of party lines one or more of them may draw enough votes from one of the great parties to affect the result. Herein lies the only interest in the prospects of the five minor parties.

It wouldn't do the country a bit of harm if the Socialist party should cast an unexpectedly heavy vote. Whatever one's view of the Socialistic program may be, the great parties are taking on more and more of its fundamental principle that society has in the past neglected duties to its members that it should take up at once, and if the Socialist party could receive a million votes or more, the effect would be to stimulate this process. In the strictly individualistic attitude of government in the past—though its giving of special privileges to special interests has been anything but individualistic—too much power has been surrendered by society to a few great interests which have used it selfishly and to the injury of the people. Society, through its government, must regain much of that power and use it wisely for the common good; and if the fear of Socialism drives the old parties to declare for this resumption of abandoned power by society, great good will result.

Now the local candidate blossoms out in affability and good humor, insisting that he is every man's friend and that he would like to have every man's friendship—and vote.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Y. S. Hattell, at the Lenox, states that all is harmony in the Illinois Democratic wigwam. He is of the opinion that Roger Sullivan of the anti-Bryan faction, has come into the fold and at the present time is one of the active workers in the interests of the great commoner.

Mr. Hattell states that Illinois will very nearly go Democratic at the election in November. While the state would have given hearty support to Johnson, in the opinion of Mr. Hattell, if the Minnesota candidate had been nominated upon the Democratic ticket for the office of president, he is sure that Bryan meets of the approval of a majority of the voters of the state. Mr. Hattell states that, although there is a great deal of suspicion of the methods of Mr. Sullivan in coming into the Bryan fold, the good people of Illinois believe that the harmony act between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Sullivan was inspired by the most loyal wishes toward party success.

Mr. Hattell is certain that Mr. Bryan will receive a heavy vote from the people of the West. He believes that the commoner will be elected, and he bases his belief upon what he has seen after a trip through many of the states in the western part of the country.

Mr. Hattell believes there is general dissatisfaction with the tariff throughout the western states. There is a general demand for revision, he states, and, as the Democratic platform has the most specific assurance upon this vital question, the voters of the West are in line to look upon the Democratic party with more favor than any time in the last six years.

Mr. Hattell says that despite the reports that have gone abroad, there is no factional fight in the Democratic party of Illinois. He says they are united for the good of the head of the national ticket and that the vote of Illinois will be the heaviest in years. Mr. Hattell also gives the opinion that Iowa will cast a strong Democratic vote this year. He believes that the farmers of that state are dissatisfied with the protection the Republican party is affording to the trusts, and he believes the voters will show their dissatisfaction in a vote that will surpass any Democratic vote ever polled in Iowa.

He states further that the western states are in just the mood to respond to the candidate and the platform indorsed by the party at Denver. He even goes as far as predicting that Uncle Joe Cannon may not be returned to congress.

Mr. Hattell, however, is firm in his opinion, and he also states that in Chicago the sentiment is that Bryan will make one of the most effective presidential campaigns in the history of American politics. He takes it that Bryan will make a far more effective campaign than Taft and that the effort of the Nebraskan in the behalf of his party will be productive of thousand of votes that are now counted either on the Republican side or in the doubtful list.

D. A. Fultz, at the McKay, states that harmony is far from being the byword in Wisconsin. Mr. Fultz says that many of the Republicans will not vote for W. H. Taft for president. They are grievously upset by the way the Republican convention stamped on the resolution offered by the Wisconsin delegate, headed by the stalwart senator, La Follette.

Mr. Fultz states that the Democrats are preparing to make the greatest fight in the history of the state organization to capture the state. He states that it is not so much Bryan in Wisconsin, as the platform adopted by the Denver convention. Mr. Fultz states that had Johnson been nominated he would have carried the state by a handsome majority. He thinks Bryan has no great following in Wisconsin, for they have a valiant reformer and progressive statesman in that state, but he does not believe that the voters are disgusted with the Republican party and are ready to support a ticket that offers relief for the western states from a system of protection that caters only to the needs of the industries of the East.

Mr. Fultz is of the opinion that the sentiment in Wisconsin is an epitome of the sentiment existing in many western states.

A Political Forecast.

There will be a lot of efforts to fill
people's eyes with dust;
There will be a lot of scolding of the
wicked, shameless trust;
We shall hear that Taft's a puppet,
that he has no sense of shame,
But we think that he will carry Pennsylvania, all the same.

There will be beclouded issues; we shall hear spellbinders roar,
Hidebound partisans will tremble, as
they've trembled heretofore;
We shall hear that Bryan's reckless,
that he's dopey, that he's daft,
But we think he'll carry Texas and win
Florida from Taft.

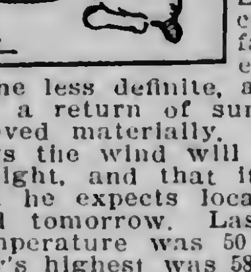
THE WEATHER.



The northeast wind, joined with the cloudiness and dampness, caused a faint imitation of fall weather yesterday and last night, and early this morning it looked like more of the same. Later, however, the clouds and mists faded away, the easterly wind became less definite, and the prospects for a return of summer weather improved materially. The weather man says the wind will shift to southerly tonight, and that it will be warmer; but he expects local showers tonight and tomorrow. Last night's lowest temperature was 50 degs. and yesterday's highest was 58 degs.

A year ago today it was clear, cool and charming.

The sun rose this morning at 4:38, and sets tonight at 7:51, making it 15 hours and 31 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions central over Alberta, Arizona and New Mexico caused further showers Thursday or last night in the Rocky mountains, the Southwest and South, the lake region and Atlantic states. The temperature continued warm in the Ohio valley states. The barometer remains high over the lake region and Western Canada. Indications favor a continuance of showery weather in this locality during tonight and Saturday."

Convention Conveniences.

New York World. At his farm in Lincoln, Neb., Mr. Bryan listened over the telephone to the speech putting him in nomination at the convention at Denver. At a distance of several hundred miles he could hear the proceedings almost as distinctly as if they were in the Lincoln town hall.

Mr. Taft enjoyed similar telephone and telegraph facilities while the Republican convention was going on. So did President Roosevelt, who at the White House was able to direct what was going on at Chicago as quickly and as literally as if he were on the ground.

One of the first uses to which Morse's invention of the telegraph was put was for Silas Wright to telegraph his declination of the nomination for vice president from Washington to Baltimore, getting it there in time for the convention to nominate George M. Dallas in his place. Prior to the telegraph there was no opportunity for speedy consultation between an absent candidate and his friends and floor managers at a national convention.

The telephone brought the convention and the candidate even closer together. Telegraphing took some time. The messages had to be written out, and with a politician's aversion to committing himself fully in writing, consultation by telegraph even over special wire had its restrictions. The long-distance telephone gives the candidate the same opportunity of consultation as if he were explaining from his office to his wife at his house why he would not be home to dinner.

When the long-distance telephone is fitted with visual attachments, so that the man at the receiver can see as well as hear whoever is talking to him, then the necessity will be lessened for national conventions at all. Each delegation can meet its own state and the proceedings be conducted without special trains or six-in-a-room hotels.

Twickenham Ferry.

"Ahoy! and Oho! and it's who's for the
ferry?"
(The brier's in bud and the sun going down);
"And I'll row ye so quick and I'll row ye
so steady,
And 'tis but a penny to Twickenham
Town."
The ferryman's slim and the ferryman's
young,
With just a soft twang in the turn of his tongue;
And he's fresh as a pippin and brown as a
berry,
And 'tis but a penny to Twickenham
Town.

"Ahoy! and Oho! and it's I'm for the
ferry;"
(The brier's in bud and the sun going down);
"And it's late as it is, and I haven't a
penny;
Oh! how can I get me to Twickenham
Town?"
She'd a rose in her bonnet, and oh! she looked sweet
As the little pink flower that grows in
the wheat,
With her cheeks like a rose and her lips
like a cherry—
"And sure, but you're welcome to Twickenham Town!"

"Ahoy! and Oho!" You're too late for the
ferry;
(The brier's in bud and the sun has gone down);
And he's not rowing quick and he's not rowing steady—
It seems quite a journey to Twickenham
Town.
"Ahoy! and Oho!" you may call as you
will,
The young moon is rising o'er Petersham
Hill;
And with love like a rose in the stern of
the wherry,
There's danger in crossing to Twickenham Town.

Don't Be Rude.

Cleveland Leader: Remember now, if you send more than $10,000 to the Democratic campaign fund it will be firmly refused, and we are sure that you don't want to be rude.

Railroad Reasoning "As Is."

Chicago Inter Ocean: Demand for transportation having declined, certain railway managers wish to increase prices of it. They appear to believe that consumption of what they have to sell may be stimulated by making it more difficult to buy.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

At the chamber of commerce meeting this morning there was a review of complaints made regarding street improvements and a general hauling over the coals of Duluth's unfortunate engineers since the time of A. B. Patton. John Rakowski and R. C. Mitchell were the orators. The chamber resolved to appoint a committee of five taxpayers to investigate the complaints regarding the quality of the work performed on street improvements and the extravagance of expenditures entailing useless burdens on taxpayers.

An average of 1,000 tons of coal daily is being sent west over the Northern Pacific road alone.

The Pioneer Exploration & Mining Company of Duluth has filed articles with the secretary of state. The capital is $1,000,000 and the incorporators are James T. Gregory, J. S. Ellis, Ashland, Wis.; William H. Shipp, J. A. Humbird, Hudson, Wis., and James H. James, Duluth.

Emil Schmied, formerly connected with the News as advertising manager, is visiting friends in Duluth.

James W. Fowler, formerly city engineer, returned to Duluth today and will be engineer for McArthur Bros. in their big city contracts.

The signal office has taken another freak and has ordered the removal of Sergeant Fitzmaurice, who has been in charge of the Duluth station for ninety days. He will go to North Platte as soon as his successor arrives.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon a blast at the West Fourth street rock cut sent four large stones, one of them about a foot in diameter, crashing through the side of the dwelling of Peter Anderson, about 190 feet from the scene of the blasting. Gusta Anderson, aged 11 years, was thrown across the room. Her collar bone and two ribs were broken, and she received serious internal injuries which, Dr. Slaughter believes, will render her a cripple for life.

A lamp exploded in the City hotel about 2 o'clock this morning, and William Murray, who was asleep in the room, was badly burned. The building was only slightly damaged.

Knute Nelson has signed a three years' contract with the Manitoba railroad, at a salary of $15,000 a year, as legal adviser.

Blondin is going to walk over Niagara Falls on a tight rope and will receive $10,000 from one of the Kiralfys if successful.

Miss Flodut, who has been sick at St. Mary's hospital for several weeks, died last evening.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Zumbrota News, (Rep.): The men who drew up the Republican state platform were evidently anxious to get back to the floor of the convention as they forgot to incorporate anything of importance in it.

Aitkin Age: It is not a crime to be without a trade but it comes pretty near it. The records of American prisons show that the overwhelming majority of our criminals are young men. They show, moreover, that about 75 per cent of felons are untrained in any honest and useful trade. In our reformatories more than 90 per cent have never learned a trade.

Anoka Herald: Newspapers in various sections of the country continue to discontinue because the merchants in the towns where they are published use the short sighted policy of refusing to advertise when business is dull. The time to go after business with advertising is when business is a laggard and not when you have more of it than you can handle.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: A casual reading of that interesting paper, the Northfield News, leads to the suspicion that Bro. Heatwole is not entirely, wholly and unreservedly pleased with the action of the recent Republican state convention. Of course it is somewhat annoying to have some thousand odd delegates disagree with Joel P., but he has been in the game long enough to know that the public has mighty little interest in the sore toe of a politician. Brace up and cheer up, Joel, and you will be a heap happier and more useful.

Rochester Bulletin: The attitude of the New York World toward W. J. Bryan does not appear to be so hostile as it was anterior to the Denver convention. That newspaper now admits that the committee on resolutions is entitled to great credit and that Mr. Bryan himself is entitled to great credit for a definition of party policies.

Hendrum Review: If the Democrats intend to make a fight against Judge Mills they would do well to look up the qualifications of Ole Sageng—the Populist senator from Otter Tail county—as a candidate. And then there is our own Jason Weatherhead—who could eat a railroad or two before breakfast most any morning. Between these two the Democracy should have no trouble in selecting one that would make Mills grind some.

Virginia Virginian: About the only opportunity the "interests" now have to nominate a presidential candidate is by getting on the right side of Mr. Willie Hearst's Independence league.

Bemidji Pioneer: Providence has been very generous to those living in the Northwest. They are not aware that they are in a "Slough of Despond." The farmers and merchants all are enjoying the bounty acquired during years of plenty and thrift. Their prosperity has too much depth to be seriously affected by surface disturbance. The wave that engulfed Wall street last fall was nothing more than a ripple when its effect reached Minnesota.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Be careful not to stumble over your own bluff.

When women argue they like to argue that they don't.

It doesn't pay to borrow trouble even on a friend's account.

A talking machine is all right if it does not talk machine politics.

How can a man have undying love for a woman who dyes her hair?

The way a girl likes to be kissed best is the way she pretends she doesn't.

Nothing makes a woman feel so little as the refusal of a man to argue with her.

The next best thing to knowing how to get a thing is knowing how to get along without it.

Children come into the world heavily handicapped because they are not permitted to select their own parents.

After a man has moved heaven and earth to acquire a certain thing he is surprised to discover how little he cares for it.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A child can be a great economy to its parents by not being twins.

A man gets so rattled when a girl proposes to him that she can make him believe he did it.

The best way to get along with a redheaded woman's temper is to let some other fellow be married to it.

Men are fools to object to visits from their wives' relatives when there's such a good excuse to dine at the club on business.

Some people are so lucky that when they are going on a church picnic they miss the start and are obliged to stay home and have a good time instead.

The "Two-Weekers" Vacation.

Appleton's: The two-weekers have to begin their vacation enjoyments the minute they get off the train, in order to make the most of the time. In ten minutes the trunk is unpacked, a pair of flannel trousers and a rakish hat from the year before are dug out, and the vacationer is ready to saunter out in search of the attractions mentioned in the "ads." In an hour he is playing a game of tennis, in two hours he has explored the entire region for a mile around, and in three hours he is writing post cards to the luckless ones who were left behind. The next morning he is down at the post-office inquiring for letters from home, or briskly reading papers descriptive of yesterday's ball games back in town.

Then there are many who go to a camp in the woods. Of all vacations, there are few that have an appeal to the tired city slave like that of a vacation in "the woods." The piny woods! What a picture of wholesome out-of-door life the woods suggest. A picture of untrammeled freedom, of "roughing it," of majestic forest aisles, and velvety floors of pine needles. A long log cabin with bunks and a big general eating room, with a great fireplace about which to sit in the evening! A silver lake and a golden moon that shines down on you as you drift with some one, very pretty and temporarily "yer own," in the boat with you. That is the picture that entices the shop-worn denizen of the busy place.

MERRY JINGLES.

Baltimore American: New Reporter (breathlessly)—I've got a hot story!
City Editor (languidly)—From the weather man?

Harper's Weekly: Mrs. Newbridge—Have you ever tried one of my pies, Judge Jones?
Judge—I never did, but I dare say they deserve it.

Philadelphia Press: Village Lounger—Mr. Jinks seems unremitting in his correspondence with his wife up here.
Village Postmistress—Yes, I don't notice he sends her many money orders.

Washington Star: "You rich men are very liable to be criticised for your campaign expenses."
"No," answered Dustin Stax, "there is no objection to our making contributions. What we're criticised for is trying to find out what we get for our money."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "They say the sun has enough heat to last for 37,000,000 years."
"How long?"
"For 37,000,000 years."
"Then what's the use of me taking a two weeks' vacation?"

Brooklyn Life: Departing Guests—We've had a simply delightful time!
Hostess—I'm so glad. At the same time I regret that the storm kept all of our best people away.

St. Louis Times: Visitor—I say, landlord, your food is worse than it was last year.
Landlord—Impossible, sir!

Philadelphia Press: "Did I understand you to say that all rum selling has been stopped in your town?"
"Not at all. I merely said it was strictly prohibited."

The Near-Famous.

Shake hands with my friend Mr.
Riley, John Doe—
He's a cousin of Jim's.
A man it will do you some honor to know—
He's a cousin of Jim's.
Used to play with Jim often when he was a lad,
They shared all the playthings the two of them had;
Before Jim wrote verses to make the world glad—
He's a cousin of Jim's.

Shake hands with my friend Mr. Taft,
Mr. Doe—
He's an uncle of Bill's.
Used to bait fish hooks for him a long time ago—
He's an uncle of Bill's.
He remembers Bill well as a freckle-faced chap,
Who wore his suspender tied 'round
like a strap,
Whom he often helped set a figure-four trap—
He's an uncle of Bill's.

My friend Mr. Ade—Mr. Tom Ade, John
Doe—
He's related to George.
Their mothers' first cousins were brothers, you know—
He's related to George.
Used to visit George Ade's folks back
in the old days,
Before any one dreamed he'd be writing
plays;
He looks like George, too, in a good many ways—
He's related to George.

My friend Mr. Cannon—a mighty bright
boy—
He's a nephew of Joe's.
He was raised near Joe's farm down in
old Illinoy.
He's a nephew of Joe's.
You've heard of Joe Cannon—the Speaker—well, he,
Is uncle to all of his nephews, you see;
In fact they are all of the same family—
He's a nephew of Joe's.

—J. W. FOLEY in the New York Times.

Overconfidence.

Baltimore American: Governor Fort of New Jersey has begun a somewhat unique sort of political campaign; he has called the political captains of his state together for the mapping out of "a war against the too-suredness which frequently costs a political party a victory." The New Jersey governor is taking a most wisely conceived precaution. Other states, Maryland included, should take note of the New Jersey campaign against "too-suredness," and the Republican leaders generally should follow the example which Governor Fort has set.

Hark!

New York Herald: Press of the land is vehemently urging the populace to support the candidates standing on a sound platform. Trouble is that there is considerable sound about all platforms.

Real Enthusiasm.

New York Sun: The Roosevelt demonstration at Chicago lasted forty-nine minutes, and the Bryan burst of noise at Denver lasted eighty-six minutes. Stout John Flanagan, the Irish-American A. C.'s curly headed hammer flinger who at Shepherd's Bush yesterday boosted the Olympic figures for his event to 170 feet 4½ inches, got thirty minutes of flag waving, singing and cheering.

Not in all the uproar of Denver and Chicago was there one-tenth the genuine joy and spontaneous enthusiasm evoked by Flanagan's fine performance.

Metzger's Error in Ninth Inning Scores Winning Run.

Larry Piper Breaks Leg and is Out for Season.

Winnipeg, Man., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—An accident which will cripple the Maroons seriously in their race for the pennant occurred last night, when Larry Piper, the diminutive outfielder and the heaviest sticker on the team, suffered a fracture of the right leg while sliding to first base. He will be out of the game for the remainder of the season, and his place will be hard to fill.

Metzger's home run heave in the ninth inning won the game for Duluth. With two down and Hopkins on second base, Krick knocked a dinky grounder, Metzger's throw going to the right field fence and scoring both men.

The White Sox were strong with the stick, hitting Bond safely thirteen times. Krick was also hit hard in the first, fourth and fifth, but good support pulled him out of some bad holes.

Fargo Twirler Lets League Leaders Down With Two Hits.

Fargo, N. D., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—With perfect support behind him, Cook let the Brandon sluggers down with two hits last evening and, though he gave three bases on balls and hit one man, he was never in danger, O'Dea's men being blanked by a score of 1 to 0.

The only run of the game was scored in the first inning, when Siner singled, stole second and was scored by Brookins. After that, it was a pitcher's battle, in which Cook had the better of it. O'Dea made the only error of the game.

Bill Bailey Wins Feature Event of Card at Fargo.

REFEREE STOPS FRIENDLY BOUT

Efforts of Parres and Tremble to Get the Money Balked.

Chisholm, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Claiming that the two men were faking the fight and holding out for the limit, Referee Bob Cheery stopped the fifteen round bout between Jack Parrs and Ben Tremble here last night in the thirteenth round and declared no contest. The men had been fighting love tap style all through the mill, while the spectators cried "Mix it." The men refused to mix and Cherry repeatedly warned them that they would have to let up on their "chumming" or he would call the fight. When they continued to make a friendly bout of it, he called the fight.

The bout was scheduled to go fifteen rounds and after the first few rounds, it was evident that the men were out for the money mostly and there would be no bout. The spectators hissed the fighters continually and Cherry's action declaring "no contest" was warmly applauded.

PEERLESS TEAM GIVES UP CHANCE

Runoff for Glidden Trophy Will Not be Made by Cars.

Saratoga, July 23.—Charles Burnham, representing the Peerless team, last night withdrew from the proposed run off for the Glidden trophy on the refusal of the touring committee to sustain his protest against giving an even score to the Great Arrow (Pierce car No. 30.)

Forbes S. Day, representing the Pierce team, on learning of Mr. Burnham's decision, announced that the Pierce cars would make the first day's run off to Syracuse at the appointed time, and that having thereby won the trophy, the winners would return it to its donor, Charles J. Glidden. The Hower contestants will enter the run off as arranged.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 24.—Completing the original schedule of the Glidden 1908 tour, the competing automobiles rolled into Saratoga yesterday afternoon nearly an hour ahead of schedule time. The day's run, however, did not result in breaking the existing record in the contest for the Glidden and Hower trophy, and as a result the teams still retaining perfect scores leave Saratoga on a trip which will not be completed until a winner has been decided. The surviving cars of the Glidden trophy are the three Columbus Ohio Peerless and the three Pierce cars from the Buffalo club. The runabouts having perfect scores, and contesting for the Hower trophy, with their drivers, are as follows:

Pierce (J. S. Williams); Pierce (E. A. Rettinger); Premier (G. A. Weedely); Stoddard-Dayton (J. F. Runkle); Stoddard-Dayton (R. G. Cox.)

GLEAMS in the SPORTING FOG.

Duluth oarsmen and devotees of rowing turn toward Winnipeg today and call down good luck on the Duluth crews, which are to compete in the big regatta there. They are up against a hard proposition, and anything but the worst kind of a showing will bring them credit.

The Winnipeg and Minnesota eights are strong. They proved that in the regatta last year on White Bear lake and, if Duluth can win either one of the eights, or even draw a second place to either the Minnesota or Winnipeg crews, it will be a source of gratification to their supporters. The same holds true in the fours, excepting the bantam four. Minnesota and Winnipeg are both strong in those events. Duluth has been working under the disadvantages of bad weather and a different body of water from that on which they must row. A victory in either the senior or junior fours will be something of a surprise.

In the bantam fours, however, everybody gives it to Duluth. The little fellows from the Zenith City are about the fastest thing the river at Winnipeg has ever seen. The bantam crew last year ran away from their opponents on White Bear lake. They should do the same this year, so the Duluth crews are reasonably certain of coming back with one first to their credit. Here's hoping they have five firsts.

English sportsmanship is being put to the test at the Olympic games, and it isn't standing up, according to the newspaper reports sent to America. The reports may be colored to some extent, but fairness is a characteristic American trait in athletics and, if there wasn't cause for complaint on the manner in which the Olympic games are being run off, it's 100 to 1 there wouldn't be a chirp from the Americans.

"We'll run the games in the Henglish wye and the Henglish wye is the best wye, y'know," may be all right, when the contestants are confined to England, but such stories are going broadcast over the world as a result of the high-handed methods of British officials will not do English sports any good, nor serve to raise the estimate of English sportsmanship in every land.

When Englishmen come to America to compete, they get the very best of treatment. American officials even go a little farther than they would to home contestants, in order that the proper spirit of hospitality may be shown. In view of that fact, the treatment the American team is receiving in London is all the more disgusting. It will be too bad if it results in the breaking up of the Olympiad, which is the only test of international skill on track and field.

Today, the Sox hit the trail for God's country, and they will be on this side of the border for almost a month. For all of which every fan is devoutly thankful. They will have a chance to clean up Fargo on the Browns' own lot in a few games and then they will return home for the longest home series of the year.

Trips to Canada have been particularly disastrous this year. It seems practically impossible to beat either the Maroons or Angels on their own lots. Duluth and Fargo have both run into the same proposition. Nobody can explain it. At home, both American teams play fine ball, particularly the Sox. In the last series here, they broke even with the Maroons in six games and took six games out of eight from Brandon. Then they crossed the border and took a series of wallopings that would make a bronze statue shed salt tears.

There is joy in sight. The twenty-one game series at home should bring a boost in the percentage column. The Sox are only five games shy of the charmed .500 mark. They have only five games with Fargo, so cannot be expected to return with an even break on all the games, but they will not be far short of it and when they get home, they can square away to settle some old scores. If that most fickle of all deities, the god of baseball, doesn't throw the luck against them, they should have a good luck at the pennant, before they break away from home again August 19.

MESSAGE OF GOOD WILL

To American Government Delivered by Prince of Wales.

Vice President Fairbanks Addresses Wales in Fitting Terms.

Quebec, July 24.—Aside from the spectacular features of the celebration here, yesterday, it was the occasion for a notable exchange of addresses between Vice President Fairbanks and the prince of Wales, in which each spoke of the relations between the United States and Great Britain, and the prince delivered a message of good will to the American government.

An enormous crowd filled the Place des Armes, fronting the Champlain monument, where the exercises were held. Here the prince received the addresses of the American and French representatives, the mayor of Quebec and finally Champlain himself, reproduced as in the days of old, coming from the mimic reproduction of his original ship, the Don De Dieu, with some five thousand followers representing every phase of old France in Canada.

Speech by Fairbanks.

In addressing the prince during the exercises, Vice President Fairbanks said:

Your Royal Highness: I acknowledge with grateful appreciation the welcome which you so generously extend. The sentiments which you are pleased to express with regard to my country I receive with profound sensibility. They are renewed evidence of that respect and cordial goodwill which has so long existed between the United States and Great Britain and will tend to strengthen and preserve their amicable relations.

Permit me to extend to Quebec my hearty congratulations upon the distinction which she enjoys in the presence of your royal highness and upon the enthusiasm with which she has welcomed you within her gates. It is, indeed, a signal honor which you have done her. It is a happy circumstance which brings you across the sea. The event is one which will be long treasured among the annals of Quebec.

The eyes of the Western world are upon this historic city. The celebration of the tercentenary of Champlain's founding of Quebec is altogether admirable both in the comprehensiveness of its conception and in the excellence of its execution, and is an event which awakens interest not only in the Dominion of Canada but in the United States also. From this point as a base, intrepid explorers blazed the pathway of civilization through trackless forests and explored lakes and rivers in territory which is now within the jurisdiction of the United States. Names associated with the early history of Quebec are landmarks in our geography and are indelibly impressed upon our civilization.

Three hundred years is but a brief period in the history of England or France, but it is all the history of Quebec and all of Anglo-Saxon America. Here has been written an interesting story. Here have been witnessed the victories and defeats of war and the blessed triumphs of peace. The battleships of three great nations rest yonder upon the bosom of the St. Lawrence. The representatives of those powers assembled here are recalling past differences, but only to emphasize the present prevalence of a spirit of genuine friendship between them.

The President's Greetings.

It is with unusual pleasure I bring you greetings from the president and the people of the United States who rejoice with you in the progress you have made in the manifold ways which make for the strength and honor of a great people. We are not indifferent to your welfare nor are you indifferent to ours. The blood of a common ancestry is in our veins. We have much in common. We glory in many of the same traditions and we have the same jurisprudence. Our standards of civilization are alike. Here, side by side, owing allegiance to different sovereignties, we are, in God's providence, to work out our destiny. We wish you that contentment which comes from the cultivation of the arts of peaceful industry under those political institutions which are the guaranty of justice and liberty among men.

The United States and Canada have but fairly entered upon their careers. Each has vast areas either sparsely settled or unoccupied, where many will make their homes in the future. Many millions will be added to our population and to yours. We have each made much advance in the scale of civilization and are gratified with the progress we have made. Back of us lies a brief but honorable history and before us stretch illimitable opportunities. We confidently believe that we are each destined to play a large and worthy part in the progress of the human race upon the Western continent. We have no rivalries except in the ways of peace. We neither covet the other's territory. We covet only each other's neighborly esteem. We rest upon a common frontier more than 5,000 miles in length. It is crossed and recrossed by instrumentalities of commerce which tend to strengthen our neighborly ties. There are no fortifications upon our frontier and no battleships upon the waters which divide us, and we believe and fervently hope that there will never be need of any defensive preparation between us.

An Appeal for Peace.

As we behold this majestic celebration in which the representatives of different nations participate and witness the manifestations of a genuine fraternal spirit among them, we are impressed with the thought that there is no rational reason why nations should resort to war. May we not, on this theater of past conflicts, surrounded now by the impressive monuments of peace, venture to hope that the widespread movement which seeks to insure the maintenance of peace among the nations of the world without invoking the sword, may grow in strength and at no distant day become incorporated as a part of the fixed policy of nations. To advocate measures for the maintenance of international tranquility, to endeavor to substitute reason for force, is not evidence of any decay in the courage or manhood of nations but it is the proclamation of the great truth that modern civilization is not a failure. It is a failure if it does not substitute for force the serene and all-powerful chamber of reason and deliberation. There is such a thing as righteousness among nations. Let them take their differences into international courts of justice and there let reason and righteousness prevail. Let nations by every honorable means which enlightened statesmanship may suggest avoid an appeal to that court where might alone turns the balance.

We have no need to fear that the relations between the United States and Great Britain will ever again be disturbed. We have faith to believe that our flags which grace this historic occasion and which mingle together and salute each other upon the Plains of Abraham will never confront each other in conflict upon either land or sea.

I beg again to thank your royal highness for the gracious welcome and hospitality which you tender to me as the representative of the United States and to wish for your country and your people a continuance of the blessings of peace, progress and prosperity.

Reply of Prince.

The prince of Wales, in replying to the vice president, said:

"The king, whose earnest desire is always to promote the best and closest relations between nations, has specially desired me, as his representative, to convey to you, Mr. Vice President of the United States, and to your colleagues, not only a hearty welcome, but also a warm expression of thanks, both to you and your government, for your presence heer on this auspicious occasion. Your presence is not merely an indication of your interest in this celebration, it is an outward and visible sign of friendship, concord and good will between ourselves and the great country which you represent. We think of the United States as giving the example of energy and courage in conquering and cultivating the forests and boundless prairies which now yield harvests and inimitable wealth. We recognize that the presence of representatives of the United States and France among us testifies to the growth of the spirit of friendship between nations. On that spirit the progress of humanity largely depends, and I hope and believe true progress will express itself more and more in years to come. This high ideal of universal peace and brotherhood may be far from realization, but every act that promotes harmony among nations points the way toward its attainment. This celebration is such an atc, for it appeals to Canada, to the British empire and to the whole civilized world. I therefore rejoice to be here, to take part with you during those memorable days in paying homage to Champlain and doing honor to Quebec."

S.S.S. CURES SKIN DISEASES

When the blood is pure and healthy, the skin will be soft, smooth, and free from all blemishes and eruptions; but when some acid humor takes root in the circulation, its presence is quickly manifested by some form of skin disease. The skin receives its necessary nourishment and strength from the blood. When, however, this vital fluid becomes a humor-laden stream, it can no longer preserve the healthy, natural appearance of the skin, but by its acrid, impure nature continually irritates and inflames the delicate tissues and fibres and keeps the cuticle in a diseased and disfigured condition. External applications cannot reach the blood, and therefore are beneficial only for their ability to reduce inflammation, and assist in keeping the parts clean. To cure any skin trouble the blood must be purified of the humors that are causing the trouble. S. S. S. drives out the humors from the blood so that the skin, instead of being irritated and diseased, is nourished by a healthy, cooling stream. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impure matter, all acids and humors, and restores the blood to its normal, pure condition, thereby curing every form of skin disease or affection. Book on skin diseases and any medical advice free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Would-be Erecters of Statue Given Extract From Novelist's Will.

London, July 24.—A short time ago it was announced that the town council of Rochester was about to set up a statue of Charles Dickens in its gardens at the foot of Rochester castle. This was a little premature, though the matter was all but settled. But H. F. Dickens, the novelist's son, sent down to the council an extract from his father's will which seemed to deprecate such form of homage. On receipt of the document the council abandoned the project. The extract referred to reads as follows:

"I conjure my friends on no account to make me the subject of any monumental, memorial or testimonial whatever. I rest my claims to the remembrance of my countrymen upon my published works, and to the remembrance of my friends upon their experience of me in addition thereto."

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done." Sold by all druggists.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MANY TRAINS ARE BRINGING IN ORE

Two Harbors Ore Docks and Iron Range Road Very Busy.

Two Harbors, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—These are busy days for the ore docks here and the Iron Range railroad. Thirty-two ore trains arrived yesterday, a gain of six over the number coming in the previous day, and by far the largest day's receipts this season.

Ten steamers laden with ore left the harbor yesterday. There is said to be quite a demand for men to handle the extra ore trains and to work on the docks.

VIRGINIA FINNS ARE WORKED UP

Killing of Perkio Causes Bad Blood and Sensational Arrest.

Virginia, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Matt Perkio, or Perklja, who was accidentally killed while attempting to escape from Chief of Police Walsh after arrest, was held this afternoon from the Finnish Lutheran church, there being a large attendance of countrymen of the deceased. The Finnish Socialists were out in a body.

Since the killing of Perkio large numbers of Finns have been in evidence on the streets, gathered in groups excitedly talking over the killing. The police having heard that some of them had made threats of vengeance, the chief and two patrolmen commenced searching these Finns whenever they were found in groups to see if they carried any weapons, but none were found. The police were engaged in searching several of these Finns on Chestnut street yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, when J. G. Maattala happened along. He stopped and watched the officers with evident displeasure, although he said nothing. After completing his work with the crowd Officer McLean stepped up to Maattala, and, touching both of his coat pockets on the outside, said: "Perhaps you've got $1,000 or so on you." Maattala stepped away a few paces and then, turning, is alleged to have said: "Go to h—, you — — —." The chief at once instructed Patrolman McLean to run him in, and the officer dis so. During the noon hour Maattala was released by Judge Carey in $200 bail and his hearing will probably be held today.

Maattala is engaged in the clothing business. He is a leader in both the Finnish Socialist organization and the Finnish Temperance society, and is the Socialist candidate for the legislature in this district.

FAKE FIGHT IS STOPPED.

Referee Cherry Puts Quietus on Some Raw Work.

Chisholm, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Holding that Jack Parish and M. Trimble, two alleged fighters, were faking and not trying to see who was the better man in the squared circle, Referee Bob Cherry of Hibbing stoppd the contest in the fourteenth round of what was to have been a fifteen-round affair here, last night. The decision pleased the spectators, of whom there were about 500 present, many coming from Hibbing and other range towns. The two men were cautioned several times by the refere to "get busy," but they paid little heed to him, despite the howls from the crowd, and the referee took matters in his own hands by stopping the bout.

The county auditor was instructed to advertise for bids for the contract to construct a steel bridge across Beaver river, on the Lake county lake shore road. The bids will be received up to 10 a. m. Aug. 8.

SALOON MEN PAY FINES

Slot Machines Cost Gilbert Men Total of $800.

County Attorney Makes Record Time in Nine Cases.

Record time was made in disposing of the cases of the nine saloonkeepers of Gilbert, who were brought down from the range by one of the deputy sheriffs yesterday, charged with selling liquor on Sunday and after hours, and with operating gambling devices, in the shape of slot machines, in their saloons.

The men were arraigned in municipal court, waived examination, were bound over to the grand jury and entered a plea of guilty to the slot machine charge before Judge Ensign, all within an hour. Each man was fined $100 and costs, with an option of spending ninety days in jail. As none of them had expected such rapid procedure they had failed to provide themselves with funds, and were forced to spend last night in the county jail, awaiting the arrival of money from the range.

Only two of the men owned slot machines; the others simply allowed them to be placed in their places of business, receiving for the privilege a percentage of the receipts. N. B. Arnold of Eveleth represented the saloon men. He claimed the saloons were countenanced by the Gilbert authorities and that a certain percentage of their receipts were taken for municipal purposes.

Following the notice by the grand jury to the county attorney, ordering him to prosecute all violation of the liquor and gambling laws, Mr. Norton notified every incorporated town and village on the range of his intention. Gilbert was not then incorporated, so no notice was sent. This is the first raid since the notice was sent out, but Mr. Norton intends to keep a closer watch of the ranges and see that there are no further violations of the law.

The machines were brought to Duluth yesterday and are stored in the county jail until the money which is in them can be removed. They will then be destroyed by Sheriff Bates. The two men who owned their own machines were allowed $50 on their fine for the destruction of the gambling devices, reducing their fines to $50.

The charges of selling liquor after hours were dismissed, with the understanding that the men were to plead guilty to the gambling charge, and be given substantial fines.

could not get back to town before the storm broke. It was with the greatest difficulty that the tent they occupied was kept from collapsing.

Iron Flagstaff Struck.

To add to the excitement at division headquarters, the tall iron flag staff, in front of the tents of Governor Stuart and Gen. Wiley, was struck by lightning, stunning several members of the governor's staff.

The three guardsmen who lost their lives were killed in different places. Barbe was sitting in his tent, with another soldier, when he was enveloped in a blue flame, following a terrific crash, and he fell dead. The other soldier, Paul Neal, was only stunned.

In each case of those killed the new army puttees furnished just before the men went into camp were torn from their limbs, and the steel ribbing exposed. Some of the officers believe the steel attracted the lightning.

The storm, which had been brewing all the evening, broke suddenly. The wind blew with almost cyclonic force, the rain came down in torrents and the lightning was the severest seen here in years. Although the hour was getting late, the camp still contained many visitors who had been delayed by the jollifications which always obtain in the camp the night before the regiments leave for home. The Second brigade is situated in the lowest field of the camp ground, and every company street was soon a running stream. Everywhere tents were collapsing and lightning bolts were striking in many places. For a time utter confusion reigned, but as the storm passed off, the commanders of the several regiments in the Second brigade brought about order and began a systematic search for injured guardsmen. As rapidly as they were found they were removed to the hospital tent and given attention by regimental surgeons, assisted by physicians summoned from the town of Gettysburg.

The trolley line between the camp ground and the town was put out of service by the storm, and many of the visitors were compelled to spend the night in the Y. M. C. A. tent. Among them were women and children, who almost went into hysterics during the height of the storm.

Miller, Company H; Robert Evoch, Company H; Sergeant Moore, on duty at brigade headquarters; Sergeant Marx, on duty at brigade headquarters.

First regiment—Private John Krouse, Company L.

Second regiment—The cook of Company G.

More than 300 tents were blown down. Of the ninety-six tents of Battery B, but eight remained standing.

Garver was with friends in the guard tent when he was killed. The bolt threw his companions in a heap, severely shocking all of them. Then it shot along the ground thirty feet to the tent of Chief Musician Morrison, wrecking the tent and stunning Morrison, Christler and their wives. It tore Christler's coat to shreds and twisted his alto horn into a shapeless mass. An instant later, fifty yards away, another bolt struck Barbe, killing him. His watch stopped at 9:26. Private Morrison was standing at the hospital tent when he was struck. There were seven or eight patients in it, sufferers from the heat.

During a storm Tuesday night, Lieut. Paul K. Moorley of the First regiment was killed by lightning while on regimental guard duty.

REVOLT IN MACEDONIA

Serious Doubts Regarding the Loyalty of Turkish Garrisons.

Greek and Servian Bands Slaughter Women and Children.

Constantinople, July 24.—The inactivity of the Turkish military authorities in the Monastir district against the revolutionary uprising, under the guidance of the young Turks, is explained by the fact that the orders issued from Constantinople to the military commanders are to proceed cautiously and endeavor to win over the insurgents by promises of money and promotions, according to the sultan's dealing with malcontents. Serious doubts are entertained regarding the loyalty of the garrisons in the Monastir district. The authorities are awaiting the arrival of fresh Anatolian troops, although it is feared that the commencement of operations will be the signal for a general revolt in the army, as many officers with the new battalions from Anatolia sympathize with the movement.

Another ominous feature of the situation is the attitude of the Albanians, on the north. They adhere to the Young Turkey ideas and favor the reestablishment of the constitution of 1876. Shukri Pasha, who was sent to Uskub to tranquilize the army, has failed in his effort and is returning to Constantinople. It is feared that the revolt already is general in the Third army corps, and there are rumors of its extension to other corps. It is generally believed here that this movement will ultimately result in an uprising which will compel a change in the present system of government.

There is no truth in the report that the sultan has granted a constitution for the sake of quieting the malcontents.

Change for the Worse.

Monastir, July 24.—During the past few weeks the situation in this country has undergone a marked change for the worse. The most noteworthy feature is the rivived activity of the Greek and Servian bands, which have now apparently joined hands against the Bulgarians. The effects of this combination are most conspicuous in the Monastir vilayet, where an appalling number of political crimes on a large scale have lately been committed.

The Greek forces, which are well armed and abundantly financed, have recently been considerably augmented. Among their principal exploits has been an attack on the village of Kostenetz, in the district of Kastoria, by a band variously estimated at 120 or 200 men. Here they killed four men, a woman and a girl, and had already set fire to thirty-five houses when a small party of four Turkish soldiers and one gendarme appeared on the scene and put the band to flight, killing two of its members.

Many Villages Attacked.

Another achievement of the Greeks in this district was an attack by a band of some thirty or forty men, under the well-known Kapetan Makris, on the village of Vishani. Before entering the village they killed nine women who were working in the fields; in the village they killed four men, wounded three women and set fire to four houses, but further destruction was prevented by a party of three gendarmes, which happened to be passing and which opened fire, routing the assailants. Attention may be drawn to the smallness of the forces which, on these and other occasions, put large bands to flight; it may safely be concluded that these villages would never have been attacked if, in each case, some half a dozen of their inhabitants had been allowed to possess firearms.

In the case of the village Pozhar, which they attacked on June 15, the Greeks blockaded the neighboring pendarmerie station before beginning operations in the village. On account of this precaution they were enabled to kill ten of the villagers, including one woman, and to burn twenty-two houses. Three gendarmes, who happened to be in the village, made a gallant defense, one of the number being killed and another wounded.

Deaths by Violence Increase.

In the nothern portion of the Monastir vilayet the co-operating Servian bands, which have been largely reinforced, have shown a parallel activity, though on a somewhat smaller scale. Their chief exploits have been attacks on the villages of Sekerji, where they carried away five notables, whom they afterward put to the knife, and Majushista, where they were routed by a handful of gendarmes and a Moslem peasant, who possessed a fowling piece. On the day following the attack on Majushista they fell upon the funeral procession of a peasant whom they had killed on the previous day, and slaughtered two of the mourners. The principal theater of Servian activity, however, has been the vilayet of Kossovo, especially the Kazas of Kumanovo, Palanka and Kratovo. In these districts during the last three years, seventy-two Bulgarian villages have been forcibly "converted."

In 1905 the number of deaths by violence in Macedonia was 1,085; in 1906, 1,400; in 1907, 1,615.

DADDY OF ALL NAVIGATORS

Envoy of King Nechao of Egypt Sailed Around Africa.

New York, July 24.—A Paris cable to the Sun says: Coincident with the dawning triumph of aerial navigation comes the unearthing of the record of a grand adventure of the world's first great navigator and explorer. His name was Peteneith, and he lived in Egypt 2,000 years before Columbus discovered America. His great exploit was the circumnavigation of Africa, a voyage more than three times as long as that of Columbus. It occupied him nearly five years.

The story is told on two large scarabs which recently came into the possession of the Brussels museum from a private collection. The first scarab was engraved for King Nechao II, 610 B. C., to commemorate the voyage. It sets forth that the king sent a messenger "to complete the circuit of the unknown land;" that the messenger returned by water to Barbastis, where the scarab was discovered, and that the king had a detailed report of the wonders seen during the voyage taken down from the envoy's lips.

The second scarab contains Peteneith's own report of his explorations. Prof. Capart of Brussels supplied a translation to the French Academy Wednesday. After a long enumeration of his various distinctions, the royal envoy describes the stages of his journey. He started in the year eight of King Nechao from the Red sea, and navigated toward the land of Purt, which is frequently mentioned in the text, arriving at the ocean in less than two months after leaving Egypt. A year and seven months' navigation toward the South brought him to a mountain which he calls the Horn of the Earth, in which he fancied that he identified a mountain which the Egyptians ever since the eighteenth dynasty had regarded as their most remote Southern frontier.

Prof. Capart obsrves that this Horn of the Earth was probably not the Cape of Good Hope, but some point much higher up the East coast.

From this point the explorer traveled absolutely in an unknown world and a phrase of the text seems to indicate that he met no inhabitants. Finally, in the twelfth year of King Nechao's reign, after a journey of nearly five years, Peteneith arrived safe and sound at Barbastis, bringing with him numerous products from the region he visited. The king directed that a record of the journey should be engraved on steel in the temple to proclaim for all time over the earth the name of his envoy.

Prof. Capart adds that the text published by Foucart in 1895, which was copied at Simbellawin, in the northeast of the Delta, seems to refer to a royal messenger. The scarabs, the text of which unfortunately is mutilated, appear to allude to other expeditions on land by Peteneith.

MYSTERIES OF GREAT CAVES

One in Kentucky and the Other in West Virginia.

Frankfort, Ky., July 24.—While exploring Boone's cave in the cliffs of the Kentucky river, above High bridge, a party of Cincinnati traveling men discovered the image of a mastodon carved in a solid mass of rock, which was the idol of the cavedwellers of prehistoric ages. They also discovered and are carrying home with them petrified bones of human beings or animals that inhabited the cave thousands of years ago, and these will be turned over to the museums when they reach Cincinnati.

What they call the chamber of needles was also entered. Hanging from the roof and sides are thousands of sharp-pointed stones from one to three feet in length, and the largest not more than an inch in diameter.

They also discovered a river in the cave flowing through the ledges of rock as crooked as a serpent and not more than three or four feet in width. The bottom of the river was not found.

One in West Virginia.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 24.—The exploration of an historic cave at Cool Springs, near Parsons, Tucker county, this state, has just been completed by James Neeley of Pittsburg, C. A. Snyder and Sherman Shrout of Parsons. There has always been an air of mystery about the cave and no one cared to enter far into its depths. There was a common belief among the mountaineers that it was the abode of a band of moonshiners and desperadoes infesting that region about the time of the Civil war.

The party decided to explore the cavern as far as possible, and with that determination entered the black hole. The opening of the cave is about 7 by 9 feet. With batteries and electric lights the party explored back about 100 feet, and then tied a ball of twin to a heavy piece of wood. They continued until the twine was unwound, which was about as far as they were able to penetrate. The explorers found a number of articles that would indicate that the cavern had at one time been inhabited, and investigation led them to believe that originally it was a deep gorge and had been transformed into the cavern by falls of tons of stone and earth from both sides. Several times they met a lively breeze, and the air at all times was pur and refreshing. Three streams of water were found, and a number of pools the diameter of which ranged from ten to thirty feet. A number of large rooms, in which was found evidence of humanity, were explored.

LIGHT PUNISHMENT

For Officials Charged With Offenses Against the Franchise.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 24.—Efforts to punish men responsible for election offenses in Lackawanna county in the November, 1906, election have not been so successful as was hoped.

Official count of the returns disclosed glaring frauds in several districts, the count showing more votes cast than there were registered voters in the precincts. Arrest was ordered of thirty odd election officers and others who, it was suspected, had knowledge of the fraud.

Ballot boxes were opened, and pebbles and blank papers were found inside. Other ballot boxes had been shipped to Western states addressed to mythical persons. Three special attorneys were appointed to conduct the prosecutions, but instead of speedy work the cases dragged along for eighteen months. Trial resulted in the conviction of only three officers for neglect of duty, for which they had been indicted. Two fines of $200 each and one of $125 were imposed.

In defense the election officers said they had taken the original returns to the prothonotary's office and given them to persons unknown to them. This was the neglect of duty for which the three convictions were obtained.

STORIES OF STATESMEN

How Senator Perkins Cleverly Stumped a Professor of Mnemonics.

What It Was That Made Judge Rodey Angry.

Washington, July 24.—Senator Perkins of California is a man of many accomplishments. In his boyhood days he was a sailor before the mast; later he was a successful merchant, and still later owner of much larger and better vessels than those on which he used to sail. But he is proudest of the fact that for years he had the reputation of having the best memory of any man on the coast.

This is how he won the reputation: While Perkins was still a struggling merchant, a stranger came to town one day, claiming to have a prodigious memory. The fellow did some rather remarkable stunts, but his memory feats showed evidences of long and careful drilling. Perkins thought he saw a chance to discomfit the stranger, and at the same time get a litle much needed advertising for himself. He proposed, therefore, a competition with the stranger.

It was agreed that Perkins should repeat off-hand a hundred proper names, that the stranger should write them down, and the test would be as to which could come nearest to repeating the list backward. Perkins rolled off the list so rapidly that the stranger had difficulty in keeping up with his pencil. The list was handed to an umpire, and the stranger had first try. Starting at the bottom, he could not remember more than a dozen of the names in order. He did little better starting at the top. Perkins was able to repeat the list up and down as rapidly as he had given it orginally. His fame spread all over California.

"How did I do it?" said Senator Perkins not long ago, after he had told the first part of the story. "Why, I simply took the names of the people who lived on the main street of Kennebunkport, Me., where I was born. It was as easy to remember them up street as down."

Representative Cushman of Washington, famous as the humorist of the house of representatives, has such a solemn countenance that he keeps most people guessing as to whether he was in earnest or having fun at their expense. When Cushman made his first race for congress his opponent was J. Hamilton Lewis, he of the famous pink whiskers. Meeting a friend one day, Cushman inquired anxiously what the latter thought of his prospects.

"You will be elected beyond the shadow of doubt," declared his friend encouragingly.

"I hope so," replied Cushman with intense fervor. "What a great thing it would be for the country."

It is still a mooted question out in Washington as to whether Cushman really meant it.

Anyone who has tried to collect a claim from a railroad company and has met with insolence and delay, will appreciate this story of how Senator Warren of Wyoming got a settlement.

Coming to Washington for one session of congress, Senator Warren's trunk was lost. It contained beside his own belongings some of the most expensive gowns of his wife and daughter. Long and careful search failing to bring the trunk to light, Senator Warren put in a claim for damages. The railroad company ignored the claim.

Congress adjourned and Warren returned to Cheyenne, but still there was no settlement of the claim. The senator decided it was time to act. He stationed an agent in the railroad yards at Cheyenne with instructions to notify him as soon as a freight car belonging to the railroad which had lost his trunk made its appearance. Such a car showed up one day, and Warren immediately went before a local magistrate and swore out a writ of attachment. Then he wired the headquarters of the railroad company, telling what he had done. That very day an answer came, stating that a check in full of the claim was on its way—and wouldn't Senator Warren please release the attached car?

Representative Brick of South Bend, Ind., rejoices in the Christian name of Abraham Lincoln. He is proud of the name and has it engraved in full on his calling cards.

One day Mr. Brick had occasion to call at the home of Vice President Fairbanks. He produced his card and handed it to the negro butler. The latter could read a little, but not much. He glanced at the card and gasped. Then he made a break for the vice president's study. He was several shades lighter and his kinky hair was almost straight when he faced the vice president.

"Fo' de Lawd's sake," he gasped, "Marse Abe Linkum done come back to life an' he's out thar at the doo' axing fo' you. Sompin orful's gwine happen, shoo'."

It was quite a while before the scared negro could be persuaded to show Mr. Brick in.

Ethan Allen Hitchcock, former secretary of the interior, had a sense of humor that used to keep members of congress and his cabinet colleagues guessing. One day he had some business before one of the committees of congress relating to Scott Circle in Washington, where stand the statues of Daniel Webster, Gen. Winfield Scott and Dr. Hahnemann, founder of the school of homeopathy. Secretary Hitchcock pretended he could not remember the name of the circle.

"Oh, you know which one I mean," he said; "the one where they have the three statues representing three of the government departments."

"Evidently you mean Scott Circle, Mr. Secretary," said the senator; "but I don't understand about the monuments representing three departments."

"Yes, that's it," said Mr. Hitchcock, apparently much relieved. "It's Scott Circle I mean. But you don't understand about the three monuments representing the three departments? Why, there's Webster, representing the state department; Scott, representing the war department, and Hahnemann, representing the interior department."

One or two senators didn't see the point until next day.

When Bernard S. Rodey, now a judge in Porto Rico, was the delegate in congress from New Mexico, he used to get furious because members would introduce bills relating to New Mexico without first consulting him. He declared it brought him into the contempt of his constituents.

One day Charlie Curtis of Kansas, now Senator Charles Curtis, introduced a bill setting aside 100,000 acres of land in New Mexico as a ranch for the breeding of buffalo.

A couple of days later Curtis was amazed to find in his batch of printed bills one providing that 100,000 acres should be set aside in Atchison county, Kan., which was in Curtis' district, as a ranch for the breeding of prairie dogs. Rodney had introduced it.

When Jim Watson, Republican candidate for governor of Indiana, was practicing law in Winchester, he had a case before a local justice involving the ownership of a pig. Testimony was submitted and the justice reserved decision.

The justice was a candidate for mayor of the town, and Watson and the opposing counsel thought they saw opportunity for a little fun. "See here, judge," said Watson, meeting the justice on the street one day. "Unless I get judgment in my favor in that pig case I'm going to oppose your election as mayor." Opposing counsel met the justice and talked in the same strain. A couple of days later they went together to the justice's office. He was out, but his docket lay open. Opposite the pig case was the entry: "Disagreed."

It had mattered not at all to the ambitious justice that there was no jury, and the disagreement had to be with himself.

THOUSANDS OF GIRLS' AND WOMEN

Need the Same Tonic Treatment Which Brought Good Health to Miss Van De Vort.

Women who become pale and lose weight and ambition and are subject to headaches and fainting spells, need such a tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The case of Miss Genevieve Van De Vort, of Darien Center, Genessee Co., N. Y., is so similar to that of thousands all over the country that her cure by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should lead every suffering girl and woman to try this tonic treatment. She says:

"I suffered for about four years with female trouble, beginning when I was sixteen years old. I could not eat or digest much food for it seemed to dry up in my stomach and I was constipated. I had such sick headaches that I could not see and dizzy spells which often caused me to faint away. At critical times I would be deathly sick for four or five days, having to go to bed, and my heart would beat so fast that I could hardly breathe. My kidneys were affected and my back ached a great deal. My complexion became yellow and an ugly rash broke out over my face. There were sharp pains in my right leg and foot, my limbs became numb, and my hands were useless for a long time on this account. My hands and legs were icy cold and I became so nervous and weak that the least exertion tired me out. My usual weight is 140 pounds, but I was run down to 122 pounds. My blood was turning to water and I thought I was going to die.

"The doctor's treatment did not cure me, and after having tried several other medicines, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes helped me and I continued until cured. They built up my whole system, I gained in flesh and strength and am now entirely well. I feel like a new person and think that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have no equal as a tonic as hundreds of cures in cases similar to Miss Van De Vort's prove. Our booklet "Plain Talks to Women" gives other cases cured by the pills and much valuable information for women. It is sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

MRS. TEAL IN NEED OF MONEY?

Motive Advanced by the Police for Alleged Plot Against Gould.

New York, July 24.—The details of the district attorney's office have discovered what they think may lead to determining the motive of Mrs. Ben Teal in her alleged attempt at subordination of perjury. A motive is quite necessary in the detection of all crimes and sins, and the only motive that has been tacitly, at least, conceded to Mrs. Teal for mixing up in the Gould divorce scandal is that she needed the money.

That blackmail would crop up in everyone's mind in connection with the case was promised by Mr. Teal, Tuesday, for he exclaimed right off when a question of motive came up: "And it surely was not money that she was after." And one would fain believe him, too, for he is credited with an income ranging anywhere from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. His apartment in the Wyoming is richly furnished, and it is quite evident that his wife lives in luxury.

Yet the district attorney's men have discovered that Mrs. Teal went through a bankruptcy court only last March. At that time she was relieved of debts aggregating $3,874.60. Among those whom she owed were the Mrs. Osborn company (Mrs. Osborn being the milliner who some years ago tried to establish a theater in Brooklyn, which she called "Mrs. Osborn's playhouse") the sum of $1,100, and Gorman & Co., $100.

She had other debts, ranging from $15 up to several hundred dollars, to all sorts of creditors. At the time of the hearing in the bankruptcy court she claimed only to have $100 for counsel fees, $100 worth of personal property and $100 worth of property in trust.

Mrs. Teal, when confronted with this discovery of the district attorney's men, emphatically denied that she was now in need of money. "The debts of which I was relieved in the proceeding of last March," she declared, "were all contracted before my marriage to Mr. Teal, and I did not think it fair that I should ask him to assume them."

FINDS PEARLS IN INDIANA.

One Boy Sells Big Freshwater Gem for $500.

Muncie, Ind., July 24.—For the first time pearl hunting this season has become a distinct industry in White river. Many campers along the stream hunt pearls, while a few persons make it a regular occupation.

As yet no very valuable pearl has been discovered nearer this city than Farmland, twelve miles away, where a boy found a gem which he sold for $500. Many pearls are found, but most of them are worth no more than a dollar or so, and are bought at these prices by local jewelers.

Every day local jewelers receive pearls, nearly all known as "slugs," or imperfect stones. Usually a part of the gem is good, but most of it is worthless, and when the valueless end is cut off the remainder is so small as to be of little worth.

The boy who walked all the way from Windsor, twelve miles east of here, was greatly disappointed when a local jeweler offered him only $5 for three pearls. The lad decided to keep them himself.

Local jewelers have begun making regular shipments of White river pearls to the Eastern markets, where the gems bring considerably more when polished and set than is paid to the pearl hunters here.

SNAKE BREAKS UP A GAME.

Rolls Down on Players and Man With King Full Loses.

Winsted, Conn., July 24.—A party of campers at Lake Wonksunkmunk were playing a 10-cent limit on an improvised table in the woods today when a large snake came threshing through the underbrush. George Seaton, whose pot it was, was holding a king full. He left it on the board and fled, as did the others.

When Seaton and his companions recovered from their fright they thought of their capital lying idle and returned to the camp, but no money was found. Now they are wondering who stole their coin.

LYNCHINGS IN PARIS.

Paris, July 24.—It is a noteworthy fact that atempts at lynching, a practice which was formerly quite unknown in France, are becoming extremely frequent in this country, and particularly in Paris. This innovation may be attributed to several causes. In the first place, so many dramas are enacted in public that onlookers, at least, have no difficulty in tracing the culprit, who often still carries a smoking revolver in his hand, and whom, with indignation at its height, they can approach before the police have arrived on the scene. Then there is always a notion that the aggressor may not be dealt with severely enough when he is brought to trial. Over and over again have the police had to struggle with might and main to protect a murderer from the fury of the crowd.

THE MINNESOTA BANKERS

report of the secretary and treasurer and addresses by Joseph T. Talbert and A. G. Wedge. The session was opened by a prayer by Rev. M. S. Rice of Duluth.

The President's Address.

President Griffith, in his annual address, said:

Ladies and Gentlemen—The hearts of the bankers of the state of Minnesota jumped for joy when they received an invitation to hold their annual convention in the Zenith City, "the point of culmination of the greatest height of success and prosperity," the fairest of them all, situated on the greatest inland lake in the world; a city that was once denoted by one of the most eloquent orators as being "a point so many miles from Liverpool at the head of Lake Superior," wherein he said that its greatest recommendation was that it was so cold there it would freeze the smokestack off a locomotive, and that they had nothing else to recommend them as a city.

If this eloquent orator could come back within the next quarter of a century he would find located at the point he described, a city of at least 1,000,000 people, with the greatest iron works in the United States, where iron ore was melted into iron by electricity, and that there was no black smoke belching from numerous smokestacks blurring th fairness of the beautiful city.

The prosperity and success of the Minnesota Bankers' association will be shown by the secretary's report; the organization having grown from its inception in 1887 to its present membership in 1908. It is very easy to be seen that with the interest taken by the Minnesota bankers in their association, we are going to have the greatest association of any state in the union. At the present time our membership is only exceeded by five states, and the only reason that they have a greater membership is they have a greater number of banks in their states. The membership in some of our congressional districts is almost unanimous, the congressional districts that have not practically all their bankers as members of the association must wake up, as we wish the Minnesota Bankers' association to contain the name of every good bank in the state, as we do not want to acknowledge that we have any but good banks, they must all join.

Issue of Stocks and Bonds.

At the convention in Crookston in 1902, and again at the convention in St. Paul in 1903, the Minnesota bankers passed a resolution condemning the issuing of stocks and bonds by corporations in excess of the value of the property represented, and recommended the control by the national and state governments of the issue of all such securities, the same as they control the issue of stocks of national and state banks.

At the dates above mentioned the Minnesota bankers were ahead, as they are in most good ideas; since 1902, the people all over the United States have wakened up to the fact that something must be done to stop the issue of what is known as watered stock. We have a fair example in our own state where a railroad whose value is about $48,000 a mile, having issued stocks and bonds to the amount of $143,000 a mile, and the people were expected to pay freight rates and passenger fares so they could earn an interest return on this amount of capitalization.

The president of the United States has recommended laws covering this over-capitalization and watering of stocks, but without avail. Why cannot our houses of congress and state legislatures see that the key to the situation in the control of corporations is first to control the issue of all their securities? If the railroads had never issued any securities except dollar for dollar paid in; our freight rates would not be over one-half what they are now.

The governor of the state of New York has succeeded in having at least two goods laws passed: One provides for the amount of fees that can be charged in settling up or liquidating an insolvent bank: When the receiver and attorneys brought in a bill for $260,000 and were allowed by the court $80,000 for simply taking care of the Knickerbocker Trust company for about two months, when it was closed up, the governor of New York woke up; under the new law, a large state institution was liquidated and the total fees for receiver and attorneys were $1,200.

The other law provides for a commission that has power: First, regulation and control of common carriers and public utilities; second, fixing of rates; third, safeguarding public lives; fourth, preventing the merger of corporations; fifth, supervising of traffic; sixth, control of the issue of all new securities. The commission is doing a great work. If the corporations are not successful in having the Constitution of the United States warped and twisted for their benefit and use by our courts, the governor is on the right road to the control of corporations.

Mortgage Registration Tax.

In our state our people were asked to amend our constitution so the legislature could pass laws taxing certain corporations. What was the result? The first and only law passed was what is known as the mortgage registration tax, the most iniquitous law ever passed by our legislature. The records of Hennepin county (where the law originated) show that the average of each mortgage is about $1,000; this shows that the mortgages are given by the laboring classes as part payment on their homes. In the country districts, practically all the mortgages are given by the farmers. There is no question of doubt as to who pays the tax; it is the laboring man, who is trying to procure a home for himself and family, and the farmer.

FRANK E. HOLTON,
Of Minneapolis, Secretary of the Protective Committee.

The scheme of all taxation is supposed to be levied against the creditor and not against the debtor, as in this case. I am willing to concede that the banker is not interesred in this law except as I claim, the country banker is interested in all legislation that is burdensome to the farmer, so what is the farmer's interest is his interest.

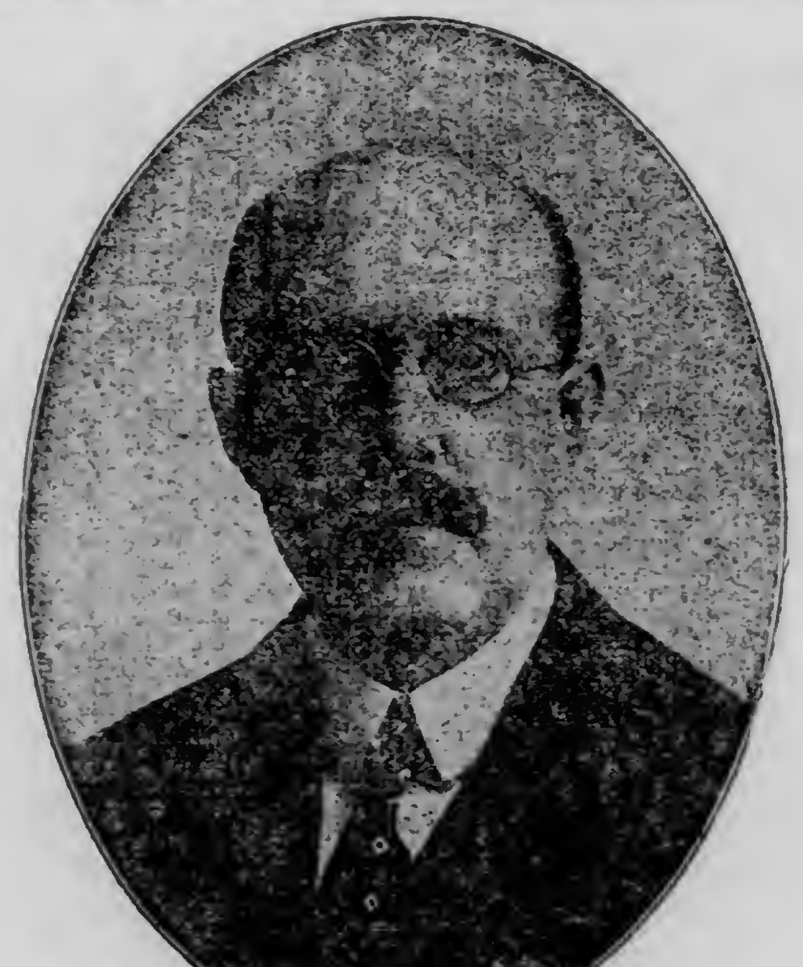
How about our own courts? Our supreme court has had before it for months the question as to whether the tax amendment to the Constitution was carried. They will undoubtedly decide that all the votes cast were not recounted, so there is not sufficient proof that the amendment was defeated.

When Minneapolis and St. Paul want to issue more bonds under a special law, known to be special legislation and unconstitutional, our supreme court judges are told to "close one eye and say the law is constitutional," and they can sell the bonds, and they are expected to render a decision at once, instead of waiting for months.

The New Currency Law.

As to the feasibility of the Vreeland-Aldrich currency measure, we will have to wait until it has been tried before we either advocate or condemn. It has at least one good feature, the supposed requiring of the payment of 1 per cent interest on government deposits, but this is where the woodchuck in the bill comes in; in the words, "special and additional depositories." Some banks in certain large cities will be called regular depositories and will not be required to pay interest on deposits. We should have interest paid on all government deposits.

This fund that is accumulated by the payment of the interest on government deposits in national banks should be set aside as a guarantee fund: it would insure the deposits in all national banks, thus making the government the guarantor. It will then devolve on the government to make better, oftener and more rigid examinations of the national banks, and see that there are less soft snaps and a more economical administration of failed banks. During the last ten years the records show that it cost nearly $2,000,000 in receivers' and attorneys' fees alone to liquidate banks with deposits of $33,000,000.



ERNEST C. BROWN OF MINNEAPOLIS,
Secretary.

A. C. GOODING OF ROCHESTER,
Treasurer.

An emissary sent out by Postmaster General Meyer advocating postal savings banks made the statement that one-half of 1 per cent interest that the government was to receive from the banks in excess of what they paid depositors would pay the government for all losses in national banks, as these postal savings bank funds are to be deposited in national banks, supposedly in the districts where they are received, but this will be a delusion.

Guaranteeing Deposits.

I think this way of guaranteeing deposits would be a happy solution of the guarantee of deposits in all national banks, and would eliminate the feature they tell us about—of the strong city bank guaranteeing the weak bank.

I wish to go on record that we will have to do something in the way of guaranteeing deposits in all banks, or we will certainly have government savings banks, which will receive their deposits principally from the rural districts.

One of the lessons taught by the recent financial condition known as the "lid" is that the Twin City bankers with the assistance of the country bankers must adopt some plan, whereby the products of the Northwest that are shipped to foreign countries be shipped, without the intermediation of New York city, so that the returns for same would come direct to the Twin Cities.

The great Northwest is entitled to, and the banks should demand a sub-treasury to be located in one of the Twin Cities. It would facilitate the obtaining of currency to handle the business of the Northwest.

DONALD S. CULVER
Of St. Paul, Chairman of the Executive Council.

There is no doubt but what the stronger and better banks we can get in the state of Minnesota, the better it is for all the people, and one of the quickest and best methods and most incentive to such a condition would be to amend the tax laws so that surplus in a bank equal to its capital would be free from taxation; this would induce all banks to build up their surplus to an amount equal to their capital. This would equalize their taxation, as it is well known and acknowledged by all that the banks are taxed in excess of their property.

There should be at once a rigid enforcement of the law of 1907 requiring the incorporation of all banks in the state of Minnesota; I understand that at the present time there are a few banks that that have not incorporated as provided by the above law.

There are thousands of dollars of commercial paper of the Northwest on a more reliable and desirable footing. There should be some public record as to the assets and liabilities of every firm, person or corporation having their notes sold by a broker. I would suggest that the clearing house in each city establish a registration bureau, where firms and corporations can file a statement by public accountants of their assets and liabilities, and have their notes registered and have each note show amount outstanding prior to that date. This could be brought about by the banks refusing to buy notes that were not registered.

H. A. BALDWIN
Cashier of the First National Bank of Redwood Falls.

Legislation.

Our penal code should be amended so as to provide for punishment by at least five years in the penitentiary for carrying on their person or being in possession of burglarous tools or high explosives, such as nitro-glycerin, without permission from some proper state officer. This would help very materially to capture the yeggman.

We should endeavor to have passed in our state what is known as the negotiable instrument law. It has been passed in many states and found very satisfactory.

I would recommend such legislation as will place the appointment of our superintendent of banks free from political influence and politics, and provide him with sufficient funds to hire examiners so that a rigid examination of each state bank will be made at least twice a year; and where there is what is known as a line of banks they be examined as near simultaneously as possible.

The liquidating of all failed state banks should be entirely within the jurisdiction of the superintendent of banks, who should pay the receiver, (who should hire his own attorney) according to the per cent paid to creditors, and not allow a receiver to prolong his job for years as is usually done. During the past ten years, there have been three state bank failures; one savings bank, one title and trust company, (in name only), one state bank paid 84¼ per cent; one receiver never has filed any report in the clerk's office, (but I understand paid in full); one large state bank paid 58 per cent, after the receiver lived for years and grew fat on the assets, and would have paid 100 cents on the dollar of the assets had not been squandered, and by the approval of the court. The savings bank paid 81 per cent; their bills receivable paid in more than their liabilities and would have paid in full, if the bank had been promptly and carefully liquidated; instead, the receiver is still holding on years after the bank failed.

State Deposits.

We should have a law requiring the depositing of state funds in state banks only, until such time as the government will deposit in state banks on the same securities as they do in national banks, and allow the appointing of state banks as reserve agents for national banks.

The state should require a uniform rate of interest on all deposits, from all depositories. The interest received should be set aside as a fund for the guarantee of deposits in all state banks. The interest received during the past ten years would have paid all losses in failed state banks if they had been properly closed up and liquidated, and not allowed the assets to have been eaten up in receivers and attorneys' fees.

Savings banks should be required to accumulate surplus to an amount of at least 20 per cent of their deposits.

The Bankers Association of the State of Minnesota should have a committee or paid attorney to examine all bills or proposed legislation at the coming session of the legislature, and endeavor to defeat all undesirable legislation through publicity, as it is well known that no undesirable measure can be passed by the legislature if the people of the state are posted as to its features; the great dagn eris in what is known as snap legislation.

Secretary Reports.

The secretary's and the treasurer's reports showed that the association was in a sound financial condition. It has grown commendably within the last fiscal year, and the report of the treasurer showed that there is an available fund to draw upon in the treasury of the association.

Charles R. Frost read the report of the protective committee, which strongly advocated the adoption of means of preventing bank thieving, and of adopting every method in the conviction of bank thieves. Mr. Frost urged that the members of the association use their influence in securing laws further safe-guarding banks. He also urged that prompt report be made of robberies to the officials of the association.

CHARLES R. FROST OF MINNEAPOLIS,
Assistant Secretary.

Mr. Talbert's Address.

Joseph T. Talbert, vice president of the Commercial National bank of Chicago, in his address upon "Commercial Paper," followed the reading of the report of the protective committee.

Mr. Talbert referred to the accumulation of wealth and the increase in bank deposits as the country has grown and prospered, and the revolution that has taken place in banking and business methods in the last decade. As an illustration of this he called attention to the work of the clearing houses of all our cities during the recent panic, which, though organized as voluntary associations without capital, are so powerful in their ability to grant credit, and so efficient in management, that they have the power not only to sustain the weak but strengthen the strong, so that no solvent financial or business institution need fail.

"No class of business men has any higher calling," said Mr. Talbert, "than bankers in the productive regions of this country, upon whom rests the duty and responsibility of financing the growth, harvesting and marketing of so large a share of the world's supply of food and clothing. If this fact could be impressed deeply into the conscious and sub-conscious mind of every farmer, laborer and business man in this nation, there would be less hostility towards railways and banks."

Mr. Talbert then spoke at some length on the relationship between national prosperity and that of our great railways, which constitute by far the most important single industry in our country aside from agriculture. He said the railway earnings have not only toned up labor and enabled the roads to maintain a high wage scale, but the hundreds of millions of dollars expended in development and betterment has sustained a condition of prosperity and a purchasing power on the part of the public that will not again be witnessed until the public demand a "square deal" for the railroads.

W. I. PRINCE
Of Duluth, Chairman of Entertainment Committee.

In treating of commercial paper as used by the commercial banks for crop moving purposes, Mr. Talbert said it is the duty of the banks to time their loans so as to make the investment of surplus funds available each season to meet the demands with the greatest certainay and the least amount of disarrangement of local credits. No form of investment has been found, he said, which so nearly fulfills these requirements as the carefully selected notes of solvent merchants, manufacturers and corporations. Such notes are now almost universally purchased, for this reason, by mercantile banks throughout the country. They have proven to be safe in the main, and may be depended on to liquidate themselves.

Long Time Bonds.

"A few years ago," said Mr. Talbert, "the loans of commercial banks, not only in small towns, but in the cities also, were almost entirely local. Surplus funds were chiefly invested in high-class bonds and similar securities, which were carried with the idea of selling them when the local demand for loans exhausted the local supply of money. Experience has taught that long time bonds, even of the highest grades, are not always salable without sacrifice. Generally speaking a bank holding such securities has no wish to sell them until money is scarce and tight. It is just at such times when everybody is in a similar position and the bond market is correspondingly dull and narrow. Such securities have for these reasons been found undesirable and unprifitable for mercantile banks to carry in large quantities.

"Commercial paper, as contemplated in these remarks and as understood among bankers, means paper of the class commonly handled by note brokers. These notes generally are the single name unsecured obligations of a firm or corporation, running four to six months. Where there are two or more names on a note they generally are of allied concerns, or the endorsers are members and chief owners of the borrowing company, and often they do not add any special strength. The exceptions in the form of well secured collateral loans, or "mill paper" accepted by selling agents of separate and independent responsibility, are so small in amount compared with the total volume of brokers' paper as to be negligible.

The Note Broker.

"The demands upon mercantile banks which make it necessary for them to carry larger and larger amounts of mercantile loans, the payment of which may be counted upon with certainty when due, gave birth to the business of the note broker and supplies its sustenance. It has brought in a few years great changes in our bank methods, involving some economic benefits and not a few economic evils. It has created new problems and others will yet arise which bankers will be called upon to solve with respect to the safeguarding of their commercial credits. So great in volume, and so diversified in kind are the resources and products of our country; and so numerous the banks which labor under the necessity of making at least some preparation for temporary and seasonal demands that the market for commercial paper under ordinary conditions is wide and nearly continuous."

Mr. Talbert then took up a discussion of commercial paper, time of the loans, discounts, commissions and treated of the expedient of underbidding sometimes resorted to by the brokers to take accounts from one another, with the inevitable result of demoralization. He said he had no solution to offer for the abuses, although they have cut the banks to the quick, but they have caused him to collect a large stock of unsettled and unassimilated views. Any business practice that violates the sense of justice, he said, cannot long survive because it strikes at the foundation of business safety.

The Country Sound.

Closing his address, with particular reference to the soundness of commercial paper, Mr. Talbert said:

"This country is sound and its business industries and institutions are sound. This has been teted and proved in one of the sharpest panics we have ever experienced. The loans of all the banks of the whole country are no better and no worse than the conditions of the whole country itself, for who is it that holds the indebtedness of the business world but the banks? Do not their assets consist of these obligations? Now and again individual credits prove to be bad and always will. Now and again every bank will sustain a loss, but on the whole the average percentage of bad mercantile credits is exceedingly small and the overwhelming majority of such credits is not only good but excellent."

Paper by Wedge.

"The Correspondence Chapter of the American Institution of Banking" was the title of a paper read by A. G. Wedge, vice president of the First National bank of Bemidji. Mr. Wedge urged the necessity of education among the bankers of the state along financial and commercial lines that had to do with banking. He argued that banking was constantly progressing and that especially young men were in need of the educative side of the business they had chosen for a life work.

He stated that there are over 800 bankers in the state and urged the need of every one of them being in touch with the educative side of the American Institute of banking. He told of the benefits offered by the institution and said that the educative side of the institution was one of its most important features.

Committee on Resolutions.

Before the close of the morning session President Griffith announced the appointment of the following members of the committee on resolutions: Theodore Wold, Winona; A. L. Ward, Faribault; Clifford W. Gress, Cannon Falls; Perry Harrison, Minneapolis; O. H. Havill, St. Cloud; H. A. Baldwin, Redwood Falls; L. A. Barnes, Duluth; E. A. Jewett, Fergus Falls.

This evening will be one of the best sessions of the meeting. Congressman Fred C. Stevens of the Fourth congressional district, will address the meeting, as will also Congressman J. Adam Bede from the Eighth congressional district. E. D. Durham of Onarga, Ill., will deliver an address on "Express Companies for the American Bankers' Association."

The committee on resolutions and the executive council will meet at the Spalding hotel after the evening session.

THE SULTAN OF TURKEY FORCED TO YIELD TO THE DEMANDS OF MACEDONIA

was then summoned to the palace. He gave the sultan an insight into the real gravity of the situation in the country, and the hopelessness of attempting to restore permanent peace in the army and among the people unless the personal régime, with its attendant abuses and intrigues, which had brought the country to the verge of ruin, came to an end and some steps were taken in the direction of granting a measure of constitutional government. The attitude of the Albanians had so disconcerted the sultan that Said Pasha found him in a mood to make concessions, and the pressure exerted by other men who had been long absent from the councils at the palace completed the conversion which resulted in the historic irade of today.

Young Turks in Control.

Belgrade, Servia, July 24.—Cipher dispatches received here from the European vilayets of Macedonia declare that the Young Turks are complete masters of the situation. All the Turkish authorities have surrendered themselves into their hands. The publication at Kossovo, European Turkey of the sultan's proclamation granting a constitution was hailed by a salute of twenty-one guns from the fort. There is great rejoicing everywhere.

Pleased at Salonica.

Salonica, July 24.—An imperial firman restoring to Macedonia the constitution of 1876 was read in this city publicly this morning in the presence of the civil and military authorities and before an immense and orderly crowd. Great enthusiasm prevailed.

CONFERENCE

Between President and Advisers on the South American Situation.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 24.—An important conference between the president, Secretary of State Root and Acting Secretary Bacon, was held at Sagamore Hill today. No official statement as to the conference was given out, but the situation that has arisen between Venezuela and the United States and between Venezuela and the Netherlands undoubtedly was one of the matters which received attention. The revolt in Honduras and the possibility of Salvador and Guatemala becoming involved in the trouble also is thought to have been taken up by the president and Mr. Root, as the United States, with Mexico, is bound by treaty to maintain peace between the Central American republics.

THEIR RUSE UNCOVERED

Twenty Austrians Walked Across Canadian Border to Take Boat.

Three Turned Back for Second Time and Others Pay Tax.

A party of twenty Austrians, who were attempting to get into this country from Canada, without paying the head tax of $4 each, ran up against a stone wall at the Booth dock in the person of W. H. Dean, inspector-in-charge of the United States immigration district.

The attempt that the men made to escape the payment of the tax is really funny to everybody but themselves.

About ten days ago Mr. Dean stopped three Austrians who were found to have trachoma, and sent them back to Port Arthur. It seems that the three men met seventeen other Austrians who were headed this way, and informed them of the difficulty of getting into the United States. The story of the three men impressed the others to such an extent that the whole party of twenty decided to adopt some other route for breaking into Uncle Sam's domain. They went from Port Arthur to Gunflint, where they slipped across the border and, after a three day's jaunt on foot, covered the fifty miles between that place and Grand Marais, Cook county.

The Austrians thought that so long as they were in the United States nobody could stop them from going from one place to another, so they boarded the boat at Grand Marais and came to Duluth, arriving here this morning.

Immigrant Inspector Dean was on the dock, however, and he was not long in discovering the subterfuge that the men were attempting. Mr. Dean promptly headed the three men suffering with trachoma toward Canada again and compelled the other seventeen to pay $4 each as a head tax. So, after all their trouble and hardship, the men went through the same proceeding as if they had shipped from Port Arthur. They ran a chance, also, of being held up on account of trachoma, had any of them been afflicted with the disease.

Hearing Next Tuesday.

Charles Morrison, charged with shooting David Widing on Park Point last night, appeared in municipal court this morning, charged with assault in the second degree. His hearing was set for next Tuesday, July 28, and he was allowed to go on his own recognizance. The police believe Widing was entirely at fault in the affair.

Small Sewer Contracts.

The board of public works this morning awarded two small sanitary sewer contracts. Frank Carlson, with a bid of $758.70, got the contract for constructing a sewer in Third alley, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues west, and J. D. O'Connell was the successful bidder for a sewer on Gilchrist street, near Forty-third avenue east. His bid was $666.50.

To Cover City Property.

Mayor Haven has asked the board of public works to put machinery, street equipment, lumber, etc., belonging to the city under cover, so as to protect it from the elements as well as from theft. He says the present methods of storing are very careless.

An Expensive Fall.

A. W. Kuehnow, manager of the Duluth Baseball club, has turned a bill into the board of public works for $55. He claims to have been damaged to that extent by falling on a faulty sidewalk while running to catch a train recently. He says the fall broke two pairs of glasses valued at $15, spoiled a suit of clothes valued at $35, smashed a straw hat worth $3, and caused him to pay a doctor's bill of $2 to have his person repaired.

Accepts Payment.

With the payment of $32,671 to A. M. Miller yesterday afternoon, the site for the new courthouse is entirely paid for, with the exception of the claim of Capt. Alexander McDougall, who has appealed to the district court from the appraisal. Work on the site is rapidly progressing, though this week's rain has delayed it to some extent.

Spend Idle Week.

The county board of equalization has spent an idle week. They have met regularly every morning at 10 o'clock, only to adjourn until next day, since the city books are not yet in, and little can be done without them. No complaints have been submitted to the clerk as yet. It is expected that the city assessors will have their findings ready for the board by the first of next week, when active work can be begun.

TO THE PUBLIC

During the operation of the water and gas plant by the city a number of instances of illegal uses of water and gas have been discovered.

It having been the opinion of the members of the board that these violations of law were largely due to ignorance of the gravity of the crime, they have contented themselves with making estimates of the quantities of water or gas consumed and charging therefor, together with the expense of detection.

NOTICE IS NOW GIVEN that hereafter any person discovered using water or gas illegally by tampering with the meter in any way, or by connecting pipes up direct, thus voiding the registration thereof, will be prosecuted.

VERY FAST RUN IS MADE HERE

Bankers' Special on Great Northern Hits Good Pace.

The special train over the Great Northern railway ,which brought many of the bankers from the Twin Cities to attend the state convention here, made the trip from Minneapolis to the Head of the Lakes in very fast time yesterday afternoon, and railroad men along Superior street have been talking about it quite a little today.

The special consisted of seven cars and Engine 902. It left Minneapolis at 2:05 and arrived in Duluth last evening at 5:37. Six stops, including Minneapolis, were made between St. Paul and Duluth. Counting these, the train made the distance from Minneapolis to Duluth in 3 hours and 32 minutes.

The train paused in its dash for Duluth twice to take on water, and a stay of fourteen minutes was necessary at Cambridge, to permit the adjustment of a new brass on the locomotive. The other stops were at stations.

Very fast time was made between Sandstone and Central avenue, Superior. The distance on the line is sixty-one miles, and the special made it in an hour.

The train was in charge of Conductor Foote and Engineer Hussy was at the throttle.

TAFT ATTENDS TO EARLY BUSINESS IN NEW YORK.

New York, July 24.—Although it was more than two hours after midnight when William H. Taft, the Republican nominee for the presidency, retired at the Hotel Manhattan, he was astir bright and early this morning. While many New York business men were lingering over their breakfasts, Mr. Taft left the hotel to keep an appointment with his brother, Henry W. Taft, which was the only prearranged meeting of the day. The brothers breakfasted at the Hotel Plaza and had a long talk, and then the presidential nominee hurried back to the Hotel Manhattan, where it was his plan to remain until late this afternoon, when he will leave for Cincinnati.

HARNESS IS EXPENSIVE

Angermeier Gets $166 for Leather and Felt Apparatus.

Applied Honey and Rye Flour to Cure Bad Cancer.

Testimony adduced in municipal court in the civil action brought by Daniel Donovan against E. Angermeier, charged with placing Daniel Donovan, Sr., at the point of death by the ignorant usage of poisonous drugs, showed that the old man paid the defendant $166 for a felt and leather "harness" worth not more than $2 or $3 at the outside, according to claims of the plaintiff.

Some very homely remedies were prescribed to assist in the cure of the cancer with which Donovan is afflicted, although it is claimed that fancy prices were paid for them. Plasters made from honey and rye flour were administered from time to time. Another plaster used was made of shoemakers' wax, sugar and some drug. A compound intended to cauterize was also applied, it was testified. Attorney McManus, for the plaintiff, said he would prove by expert medical authority that these plasters were absolutely of no benefit, and that they harmed rather than helped the patient. Dan Donovan, Jr., testified this morning that his father suffered no pain from his affliction until after he began taking treatment from Angermeier, but that frequently after that he was in great pain. The case will go to the jury this afternoon.

Mr. Angermeier is a German, and his knowledge of the English language is so limited that the services of an interpreter were required while he was on the stand. He claims he made no misrepresentations to Mr. Donovan, and that everything he did for him was of a beneficial nature. He says none of the treatment was of a harmful character.

Angermeier is a very small man, with bright, restless eyes. His hair is white, and he wears a small white beard. He has been an intensely interested spectator all through the trial. He alternately watches the witnesses, the judge and the two attorneys, and laughs in quiet derision whenever a witness makes a statement with which he does not agree.

LOTS OF COIN IN SLOT MACHINES

Enough Money to Pay Owners Fines and Expenses Found.

The proceeds of the slot machines confiscated from the Gilbert saloon men will probably pay all their fines, and legal expenses while here, the only loss suffered being the loss of the machines. There is thought to be between $1,200 and $1,400 in the twenty-two machines confiscated, and Sheriff Bates has an expert working on the locks, opening them this afternoon, preparatory to destroying the machines. An order of court for the destruction of the gambling devices was issued this afternoon.

There was some question at first as to who was entitled to the money from the machines, as there has never before been any money in machines confiscated. There has been no authority discovered which will permit the county to keep the money, however, and it will probably go back to the saloon men. Judge Ensign will also rule on this question this afternoon, but it is thought that the saloon men will get the proceeds of the machines.

Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts have no peers in the market.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A most interesting program has been planned for tomorrow afternoon at the Duluth Boat club, in spite of the fact that the rowing crew, which usually furnishes so much entertainment, is in Winnipeg doing its best to win honors in the annual regatta, that is being held there now.

The war canoes will again be in evidence. Miss Barbara Patrick's crew of girls, that lost in the last race to the crew captained by Miss Gladys Reynolds, will have an opportunity to retrieve themselves from the defeat of a week ago, and to win first honors.

Two other crews that will race are to be made up of Y. M. C. A. boys. A third race has been arranged, and is creating much interest among the ladies of the club. Sixteen local doctors and sixteen bankers will race against each other, and their wives will be out in full force, each to cheer her spouse on to victory.

Probably the most interesting feature of the afternoon will be the high dive taken by some of the junior members of the club. The diving platform has been raised to the height of thirty-five feet, making a long and rather difficult plunge.

Arrangements have been made to have telegrams reporting the results of the races at Winnipeg sent direct to the club, in order that those who are present will hear the returns of the races as soon as possible.

A special dinner will be served in the cafe to those who intend remaining at the club for the dance in the evening.

Keeping the Hair in Curl.

There is no doubt but that a fortune awaits the person who can devise some means of keeping the hair in curl, especially on hot and damp days, says the Detroit Journal. At present there is nothing that has a lasting effect, though some preparations holds the tresses in curls for several hours.

Unfortunately these mixtures are usually sticky and are affected by dampness, the same as the hair.

One of the best ways of holding the hair in place is by using invisible hair nets. These nets will not keep in the curls, for the hair has a most discouraging way of straightening out beneath them, but the mesh does hold it in a neat mass and in dry weather is such a protection from the wind that the curl will last twice as long. In putting on one of these the greatest care must be taken that it is not so tightly done as to make the hair look stiff. This is an error committed by women who are not accustomed to adjusting nets. The successs of putting on a net is to use plenty of invisible hair pins, and then keep the net loose but firm.

Persons who prefer a quince preparation should use this formula, consisting of a tablespoonful of the seeds put into a pint of soft water and gently simmered until it is reduced to three gills. After straining and cooling two tablespoonfuls of cologne and two of alcohol should be added.

This is applied in the same way as the bandoline.

Events of Interest.

Several very delightful affairs have been given during the past week for Mrs. J. W. Robinson and Mrs. Elizabeth Caughill of Minneapolis, formerly of this city. On Wednesday Miss Minnie Allen of Osborne terrace entertained for them. About thirty guests were present and favors were won by Mrs. R. R. Forward, Mrs. W. D. Coventry and Mrs. William Bates. Miss Allen was assisted by Mrs. R. D. Haven and Miss Mayme Boerner.

What Retail Markets Offer.

The few berries that are on the market today are poor, but the larger fruits are better than ever. Corn on the ear seems to be a scarce article. There is little of it in town, and that little is hardly worthy of the name.

There was no white fish in town today, but the supply of other fish was large and most inviting.

GLOVE WEARING.

Some Hints About the Proper Usage.

Gloves are a very important factor of every costume, because it is unavoidable that they should be in plain view all the time, says the North American. Many a pretty dress has been ruined by the gloves worn with it, all because the wearer did not know the etiquette, as it were, of glove wearing.

If a few simple rules are learned the rest comes easily. In the first place, colored gloves should be eschewed, the term colored meaning gloves of pink, blue, green and reddish tints.

Red-brown is allowable, especially in winter; brown and black and gray are always good; white is seldom out of place, and this year yellowish and pinkish yellow gloves are considered stylish. There is no occasion and no time when it is strictly good form and good taste to wear gloves of any color save those mentioned.

If the dress is in a dark shade—green, navl blue, crimson—wear black, dark gray or brown gloves on all ordinary occasions; if the dress is in white or some light color, wear white or yellowish gloves.

Brown gloves are good for all tailored suits, but they are not considered dressy unless the whole costume be of the same shade.

White gloves are always proper and absolutely necessary with full dress—except on rare occasions, when the costume is all black.

Black gloves are good style, but rather somber for evening dress. It is not good taste to wear black gloves with white or very light dresses, particularly in summer.

Yellowish and pinkish-yellow gloves are much worn, but only with colored dresses, and not in the evening. Of course, white dresses demand white gloves.

Gray gloves at the moment are not much in favor, but when they are worn they usually accompany black tailored suits or gray costumes, either tailored or dressy.

Not only must the color be correct and appropriate, but the material must also be taken into consideration.

Silk and cotton gloves are at no time dressy. If they are worn it should be in the morning with a gingham dress or linen suit. They are allowable on a shopping tour; for calling, nothing less than chamois is proper. Silk and cotton gloves should be chosen only in white, black or tan.

Chamois gloves are rather informal, though they are cool for summer. Besides that, they may be washed at home. They come only in two shades—the natural and white, and the former is more popular this year. Chamois gloves are worn with strictly tailored suits, whether of cloth or linen, morning frock or pongees.

Suede gloves may be worn at any time except for full dress. In summer they may even serve for dressy occasions, as they are so much cooler than glace.

Glace kid gloves are imperative for full dress—except in very hot weather—and may be worn with almost any costume. Glace kid is expensive, but it wears and cleans well.

CAKE WALK BY PASTOR'S WIFE AND YOUNG MAN.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 24.—There is turmoil in the Evangelical Lutheran church at Elrama.

Several nights ago, the members of the congregation gave a lawn fete for the benefit of the Sunday school. One of the attractions at the fete was a cakewalk between the young and beautiful wife of the pastor, the Rev. Willbur C. Mann and William Atkins, superintendent of the Sunday school.

Dr. Mann looked on in approval, while William Talston, secretary of the congregation, and some of the other members were horribly shocked. Since the entertainment a congregational meeting was held, at which Dr. Mann was asked to resign. He refused to do so, and about half of the congregation is standing back of him. He threatens to take the case to the courts if an attempt is made to force him out.

REPUBLICANS ARE DISTURBED

Over Two Campaign Managers in Ohio—Conflict Feared.

Columbus, Ohio, July 24.—Ohio Republicans are not a little disturbed over the fact that they are to have two campaign managers, Arthur I. Vorys, who has been designated by William Howard Taft to look after the presidential campaign, and Henry A. Williams, who was regularly selected sometime ago by the state central committee, as was then supposed, to look after the interests of the president as well as those of the candidates on the ticket.

They are not criticising Secretary Taft in the least, but, on reflection, they are fearful that his dual management will lead to a conflict of authority that will at least be confusing.

Vorys's selection as Ohio manager, with no understanding that he is to cooperate with State Chairman Williams, recalls the campaign of 1884, when the magnetic Blaine was the presidential candidate. The situation in Ohio this year is very similar to the conditions which then existed in the state. State Chairman John F. Ogelee, then auditor of state, was practically deposed as campaign manager, and the management of the presidential campaign placed in charge of W. W. Dudley of Indiana and Chauncey I. Filley of Missouri. This action was taken after many compliments had gone into the national committee, and a committee of three, consisting of W. W. Dudley of Indiana, John A. Clarkson of Iowa and Senator Plumb of Kansas, had come here to inquire into conditions, and apply the remedy which they believed was needed.

When Henry A. Williams was elected chairman of the state committee a few weeks ago, the belief obtained that Mr. Vorys would be named as national chairman and that Mr. Williams would be in absolute charge of the Ohio campaign, without any distinction between the presidential and state candidates.

The situation in Ohio in spots is acute, and rare diplomacy will be required to straighten out the troubles which the factional contest between Taft and Foraker for supremacy brought on. This is the assignment that will be given Vorys, and the task requires a man of even temperament and willingness to give and take. Chairman Williams knows it and admits it, and Taft himself appreciates the fact that there is a great uncertain vote in Ohio this year, as was exemplified in the campaign of 1892, when Grover Cleveland came within 1,000 votes of carrying the state, while the year gefore McKinley, as the candidate for governor, received about the normal plurality. But more remarkable and far more revolutionary was the change from 256,000 for Roosevelt in 1904 to 43,000 the following year for John M. Pattison, Democrat for governor.

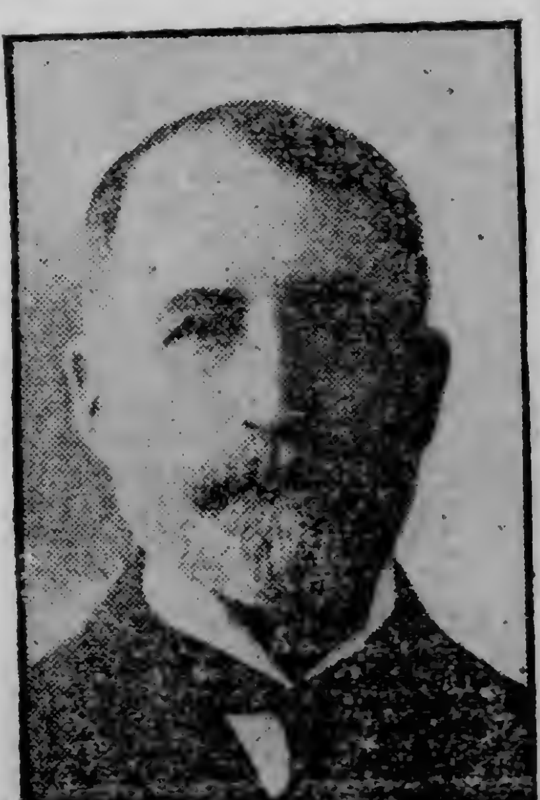
GOVERNMENT FOR ALL OR FOR A FEW, THE QUESTION

Says Justice William J. Gaynor of New York Supreme Court.

No Jealousy of Honest Rich Among the Honest Poor.



—Copyright by J. E. Purdy, Boston.
JUSTICE W. J. GAYNOR.

New York, July 24.—The World says: When the nomination of Justice William J. Gaynor for vice president of the Denver convention seemed imminent there was a large collection of newspaper representatives at his summer place, Deepwells, at St. James, L. I. They pressed him hard for a statement, but he would say nothing except that he had had no communication with Denver and did not believe he was to be nominated.

He did, however, retire from his veranda to his library for a while with his secretary and write a political statement, which he handed to a representative of the World, but not to be used unless he should be nominated.

His permission to use it has now been obtained, and it is as follows:

False Statement Repudiated.

"If I should be nominated I should desire to say at the earliest moment that those of us who run for office this fall do not propose to put up any longer with the repetition here in the East of the false statement that we oppose corporations or business combinations or business enterprise or individual wealth. That false statement has been suffered long enough. Individual wealth, however great, if honestly got, excites no jealousy, but is a subject of honor everywhere in this country.

"There is no jealousy of the honest poor against the honest rich. That I am able to vouch for from my boyhood up. It is a most unfortunate thing and in the end must work great ill to the country, if continued, for those who are rich in property to congregate in one political party only. This is now grown evident to all thinking men who have acquired wealth by honest industry and enterprise. The welfare of the country, and the welfare of those who are so fortunate as to have property and of their children, if they only knew it, requires a healthy balance of political parties; for that healthy party accountability which is necessary to keep parties from growing heedless, unresponsive, unprogressive, and corrupt, can be had in no other way.

"If we had here that fine and sensitive balance which exists in England, for instance, by which parties are turned out and brought in with healthy facility and frequency, by the vote of the thinking people of the country, it would be a blessing to the country. Those who do not think could then be left to go their way, for they would be harmless. It is necessary to the well being if not to the continuance of a free government that the thinking people should constitute a balance between contending parties and blind and unthinking partisans.

The Prime Duty of Government.

"The first and prime duty of government is to protect the industrious, everyday man, prosperous or poor, in person, property and freedom of opportunity. The powerful and the great can usually take care of themselves, and more too. And just now, when a great effort of the American people to set certain chief things in that respect right is at the parting of the ways, has been brought to a standstill, and you cannot thrust the point of a needle between whether it is to go forward or fail, it is the duty of every man who thinks for himself (for nothing can be done with those who do not think) to get his bearings anew, and not be misled by false or partisan statements or low appeals to selfishness or cupidity.

"The railroads are by law our chartered public highways, and not mere private concerns. The railroad corporations are organized and empowered by government to run the railroads as public highways, the same as similar corporations are organized and empowered to control turnpike roads, for instance. They are just as much our public highways as are our dirt highways and our water highways. They are open by law to all alike on exactly the same terms for similar service.

"The first law of their being is that they may give no discrimination or favoritism to any one. Is, then, the effort to stop a few people from using our railroad highways for their own private aggrandizement at the expense of the rest of the community and of the stockholders of the railroads, to grow cold or be dropped?

The Freight Rate Question.

"Just think of the enormity of a few men, or sets of men, being allowed by the laxity, or leniency, or indifference, or connivance, of those chosen by the people to represent government, to have their wholesale freights carried over the public highways of the country at a rate so much lower than their rivals are charged (often one-third of what their rivals are charged and less) that they are thus enabled to undersell such rivals that much in the markets and remorselessly ruin and drive them out of business, and thereby create and retain monopolies in themselves, and then fix prices to suit themselves, and even manufacture goods of such quality as they see fit, having no competitors! Is that sort of thing to be stopped or not?

"Democrats and Repulicans helped to set afoot an effort under President Roosevelt to stop it, but a great many powerful people who call themselves Republicans, but who are such for personal profit and revenue only, and would as leave be anything else for the same reason, and some who call themselves Democrats, but belong to the same classification, opposed it and have brought the movement to a standstill. Their politics is to make the nominations for both parties, national, state and local, so as to be entirely safe in any event, and when they fail as to one party they bend their enormous power to misleading the voters of the country by falsehool and corruption.

"They call the effort to free our public highways of their grip and unlawful use 'meddling with private business,' and denounce it as 'opposition to corporations and combinations in business,' and as radicalism and socialism, and even as anahchism. Honest people have got tired of such abuse and do not propose to submit to it any longer. There is no opposition in this country to combinations and enterprise in business based on equal conditions to all, nor the slightest possibility of the confiscation of private property. There is no danger of the honest American people confiscating any one's property.

"There is opposition to the gross wrong of giving a few sets of persons an advantage over all others by means of such discriminations and favoritisms on the public highways, and by which they destroy and prevent the competition and create monopolies in themselves of the principal products and manufactures of the country, one after another. It is the mother of monopolies—or of trusts, if we must give up a plain word for an obscure one. And no free people can suffer monopolies to flourish over them and survive.

"Monopolies belong to despotism, not to free government. Monopoly and despotism, and the growth of monopoly and the decay of free government go hand in hand the world over.

The Looting of Street Railroads.

"And we here in New York do not need to go away from home for object lessons of still other misuses of government privilege and of our public franchises and highways in still other ways by these same people for their own enormous enrichment and the consequent demoralization, if not degradation of the mind of the community. When these things are happening all over the country they must affect national politics. Look at the present scandalous condition of our street railroads in New York city.

"They are the most valuable and best paying public franchises in the whole world, and were conferred as gifts in perpetuity by government; and yet they have been so prostituted to dishonest greed, despoiled and robbed, that they are today bankrupt and in the hands of court receivers. The additions from year to year of block after block of bogus securities became in the end so enormous in the aggregate that even the enormous revenues paid into the coffers of the companies by the public, by means of the largest average street railway fare in the world, no longer sufficed to pay the interest; and hence bankruptcy followed, and disintegration and annulment of connecting leases made pursuant to statutes, whose object was a single fare over connecting lines, and the cutting off of transfers thereunder; all by the court and its receivers selected for the purpose; and all to end in reorganizations over the heads of swindled stockholders and a swnidled community, which only smiled a year or two ago when told by some of us that the leases for terms of 999 years of all the companies to one paper company, and on which leases the swindling securities were largely issued, were more apt to last only nine years than 999.

"When honest men, whether rich and prosperous, or only struggling to support their families and make both ends meet from week to week, or from year to year, so long as God leaves them here, see these things go on unchecked, and in the end unpunished, and all, it is claimed, according to law, they cannot help doubting that law and justice reign here for all alike. And those who commit these wrongs, and make a lifetime and lifework of them, call out franctically not to array class against class when their conduct is called in question; for arraying class against class is what they call arraying honest, conservative men against their pernicious dishonesties against the whole community.

No Radical Questions Up.

"There are no radical questions before the country, but only plain questions of right and wrong which have long been calling out in vain for settlement. In spite of all we have heard of the misuse of our public highways by favoritism in freight rates, no individual, however gross an offender, has been indicted by the government, and the gross result is the collection of a few thousand dollars in fines. The question is whether we are to have not only proper laws, but an impartial and reasonably strict administration of the laws, for the welfare of all, or whether our government is to suffer to remain a long gathering condition of favoritism and advantage for a few.

"That question is now become a live ccal in the minds of the merican people, and is to be by them answered. Let us have fair play, and a fair, manly discussion and hearing for the good of our great country and for our posterity.

"Those who, instead of living to make posterity better and happier, live only for their own greed and selfishness, live worse than in vain.

No Reason to Despond.

"I do not intend to strike a despondent note. All our evils will be worked out right gradually, a little by one party and a little by another, until all is done, but those I have mentioned have unhappily lasted too long and grown too grievous.

"The future is secure with the splendid intelligence and integrity of the people of this country. Though we have our evils and our problems, no one correctly informed of the past can take a morose or despondent view of the present or of the future."

WED ON COURTHOUSE TOP.

Unique Ceremony Performed High in Air at Cleburne. Tex.

Cleburne, Tex, July 24.—One of the most unique marriages that has taken place in Texas was performed here last week on the top of the Johnson county court house, 150 feet above the curious crowd of 10,000, which shaded its eyes, stood with mouth agape, and yelled when Justice of the Peace Brown pronounced the happy pair husband and wfie.

The daring bridegroom is Christopher Napoleon Freeman, while the blushing bride before she became Mrs. Freeman was plain Lizzie Brown, 18 years of age. Both reside in Dallas county, and came here for the purpose of winning a cash prize.

In order to reach the top of the courthouse, the young couple the marrying squire and a young newspaper man risked life and limb. The wedding party wound its way and climbed up a series of shaky ladders, crawled through a narrow skylight and finally emerged upon the 8-foot square pinnacle.

The bride was nearly prostrate when she reached the strange altar. The wind was blowing a gale, and the position during the ceremony was anything but comfortable.

The descent was even more perilous than the ascent. The bride declared that as a result of the kisses received from everybody her head was going round and round.

Governor T. M. Campbell made a speech during the day, but the marriage eclipsed everything else. Twenty-five thousand pounds of meat were eaten at the barbecue, and five barrels of pickles went the same way.

"Had dyspepsia or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me."—J. H. Walker, Sunbury, Ohio.

The robber secured $40 in cash, two revolvers and a valuable watch. He drove up to the saloon in a carriage and made his escape in the same manner.

WHEAT HAS GOOD TONE

The Market is Firm at the Close in America.

Flax Well Bought and Stronger in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 24.—Wheat was stronger in American markets today. Higher cables and prospects of more hot weather in the Northwest gave prices a good boost during the early hours, but the Northwestern temperatures at noon were more reassuring and the market had a little reaction. The close was higher than yesterday's, however.

September wheat sold at $1 during the first hour in the Duluth market.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 1,684,000 bus against 1,640,000 bus last week and 1,000,000 bus a year ago.

The Modern Miller says:

"Frequent rains continue to interrupt the thrashing of winter wheat, but the movement is fair of soft winter and largely of hard winter. From Nebraska, offerings are increasing. Indiana millers have raised their estimates of yields in the Central and Northern sections of the state. Exporters have bought freely in Indiana, and it is stated that three-fourths of the wheat inspected last week at Indianapolis went to the seaboard."

Liverpool closed ½d to ⅜d higher, Berlin ½c higher.

The July option closed 1½c higher in Duluth, ⅛c higher in Chicago, ½c higher in Minneapolis, 1c higher in New York, ⅝c higher in St. Louis, unchanged in Kansas City and ⅞c higher in Winnipeg. The September option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth and New York, ½-⅝c higher in Chicago, 1c higher in Minneapolis, ½-⅝c higher in St. Louis and ½c higher in Kansas City. The October option closed 1⅛c higher in Winnipeg.

September corn closed ⅛-¼c higher in Chicago and ⅜d higher in Liverpool. September oats closed ¼c up in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat opened firm; prices ⅜d up on short covering, and during the morning was well supported by the leading bull interests, and further ⅜d was gained by principal strength in September. Support was the result of the continued light shipments from Argentina, strength in spot, scarcer and dearer La Plata offerings and unfavorable crop advices from Argentina regarding the dry weather in the North. Arrivals were light both off-coast and awaiting orders, and an improved demand was reported from the continent for cargoes. At midday the market was firm and from ⅜d to ¾d higher than yesterday.

"Corn was firm at the start and ½d higher, and further gained ½d during the morning, making a net advance of 1d at midday. Strength as the result of the light shipments from Argentina, rains there interfering with the movement, firmness of spot, good cash demand and a sharp inquiry for La Plata parcels."

Car receipts at Duluth were 86 against 57 last year. Chicago received 95 against 85 last year. Winnipeg received 73 against 152 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,094,000 bus., last year, 773,000 bus. Shipments 634,000 bus., last year 567,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 170,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 287,000 bus., last year 450,000 bus. Shipments 894,000 bus., last year 324,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 2,793 bus.

Wheat was quiet but firm during the session in Duluth. During the first hour, there was a good bulge, September wheat going from 98⅝c to $1. Later it declined to 98⅞@99c, rallied to 99¾c, and closed there, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed 1½c higher at $1.15 bid.

Durum wheat closed 1¾c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 3½c over July for No. 1 northern.

Flax was in good demand during the entire session, and the volume of trading was large. Prices were up at the close. July flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.23¼, advanced to $1.24 and closed at $1.24 asked, a gain of ½c over yesterday. September flax opened unchanged at $1.22, advanced to $1.23¾ and closed there, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.21, advanced to $1.22¾, and closed there, a gain of 1¾c over yesterday. Other options were unchanged.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Lack of Rain and Higher Temperature Puts Wheat on the Upturn.

Minneapolis, July 24.—Lack of rain and high temperatures put wheat on the upturn and strong and higher Liverpool cables helped it. Old September struck the dollar mark as was predicted for it several weeks ago when dry weather first became a factor. The South Dakota messages expressed fear of a hot day and damage and North Dakota sent in complaints from several important counties. Good buying was seen. Local elevator stocks wil decrease about 375,000 bushels for the week. Receipts today were 257 cars against 165; in Duluth 86 against 57. The market eased off at ½c later, but was stubborn against decline. Sisseton, S. D., reports hot winds and crop damage. July opened at $1.14⅝; high, $1.14¾; low, $1.14⅛; close, $1.14½; old July, $1.14½; close, $1.14½; September opened at 98⅞c, high, 99⅝c; low, 98⅞c; close, 99⅛c; old September, $1.00⅛; close, 99½c.

Improvement was noted in the cash market. No. 1 northern sold at ½c over New July and No. 2 northern 2c under. New winter wheat is coming in but not in as large quantities as had been expected. Close, No. 1 northern, $1.14¾ spot; $1.13¼ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.12½@⅝ spot; $1.10¼ to arrive. No. 3 wheat, $1.08@1.09. No. 3 yellow corn, 79¾@80¼c.

No. 3 white oats, 55⅞@56¾c.

No. 2 rye, 71¼@71¾c

Barley receipts 4 cars. Old crop barley sold about 1c better. Bids for the new crop stuff to arrive are on range of 48c to 55c. Close, 50@58c.

Flax receipts 17 cars. Buyers were willing to take it at 1c under Duluth September but there was no rush for it. Close: $1.22.

Millstuffs firm and steady on the basis of $19.50@20.00 for bran in bulk.

Millers put patents 10c higher. Clears which in the continued upward trend in flour of the past several weeks, have changed scarcely at all, were again unaffected by the strength today. Export demand is very light. General demand is moderate and for smaller lots. Shipments 43,334 barrels. First patents, $5.85@6.00; second patents, $5.75@5.90; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

HARD WORK.

Chicago News: The nice old gentleman stood on the back porch with his hands in his pockets, watching the little boy, who was industriously raking up the back yard, piling the litter into a bushel basket and from time to time staggering out into the alley with it. Another little boy came to the fence and looked on for a minute or two and then proposed a game of marbles, but the worker only shook his head and went on raking whereupon the tempter departed. The nice old gentleman chuckled.

"Here's a place that you've overlooked, Johnny," he called, and as the little boy approached the porch he smiled at him approvingly.

"That's the way I like to see you doing," he said. "It makes me proud of our relationship. Nothing like hard work, is there, Johnny?"

The little boy straightened up and panted. "No, sir," he replied, but with no enthusiasm in his tone.

"Don't you like it?" asked the old gentleman.

"Not very well," admitted the little boy.

"I'm glad to hear it," said the nice old gentleman. "Very glad to hear it, indeed. Anybody will do the thing he likes to do, but it takes character, sterling moral fiber, to peg away at something that's distasteful."

The little boy sat down on the porch step and looked at his hands.

"Blisters?" inquired the old gentleman. "Too bad! Never mind the blisters, though. They'll be a little sore for a while, but your hands will get hardened in time and then you will be able to rake all day long and not raise one. So you don't like it? Johnny, you've got the right kind of stuff in you. To look at you, anybody would think it was meat and drink to you. You go at it as if your whole heart and soul were in it. You don't like it, but you dislike disorder still more. You want to have things looking tidy. You know that your father has to go to town and work in his office and hasn't much time for the yard and that your dear mother is kept busy in the house and your grandfather is too infirm to do anything of that kind, so you pitch right in like the good little boy you are. Suppose you go and bring the basket up while your are resting, Johnny, dear. That's the man!

"Yes," the nice old gentleman continued, "I seem to divine your thoughts intuitively. So you go and get the rake and the basket and go to work like a little nailer. That's the kind of boy that's worth while I never saw such application in all my born days. I shouldn't wonder if you had the whole thing done by the time father gets home. Won't he be surprised and pleased when he sees what his own dear little Johnny has done?"

"He said he'd give me a quarter if I got it all done by the time he got home," said the little boy.

"He did?" asked the nice old gentleman. "Well, do you know I half suspected something of that sore. I hope, though, that you would have done it anyway. You don't need the prospect of a reward to do your duty, do you, Johnny?"

"Yes, sir," replied the little boy.

"How very strange!" said the nice old gentleman. "I'm surprised. Who ever heard of such a thing as that?"

"Won't you rake a little while, granper?" asked the little boy.

"Johnny," said the old gentleman, reproachfully, "don't you know that I've got a bone in my leg?"

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Large Selling Orders Caused Prices to Take Sharp Drop.

Rallies Occurred Late in Day But Sag Was Resumed.

New York, July 24.—Large selling orders were freely distributed at the opening of the stock market today, causing some sharp declines. There was a sprinkling of gains amongst some minor specialties, but that did not affect the generally weak tone. Southern Railway preferred broke 2 and Union Pacific, St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Wabash preferred and Ontario & Western a point. There were numerous substantial fractional declines as well.

Supporting orders were placed in the market and a fractional rally ensued, but selling was renewed and carried prices back below the opening. Declines of a point were registered by nearly all the active trading stocks. Prices steadied and activity diminished at the end of the first hour.

Selling was resumed after a lull and at the renewed decline Missouri Pacific showed a loss of 2⅛; Union Pacific, 2, and Reading, Louisville & Nashville, Northwestern and Colorado Fuel, 1½. Bonds were easy.

Stocks continued to come steadily on the market. Stop-loss orders were uncovered as prices fell and the decline became more precipitate. Union Pacific, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Sault Ste. Marie were down 3; Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Delaware & Hudson, American Sugar, Reading, New York Central and Ohio, Ontario & Western, Brooklyn Transit, United States Steel, American Smelting and Central Leather 1½ to 1¾.

The market closed heavy and dull. Covering by room shorts caused some rallies late in the day, but the sag was resumed later. The demand slackened and trading became very dull on the rally.

P. R. M'DONNELL MAKES LOW BID

Duluth Man May Capture Paving Job in Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council opened the bids for paving Thursday night, five contractors submitting proposals. P. R. McDonnell of Duluth, G. W. Haggart and James Kennedy of Fargo, the Blome company of Chicago and the Northern Construction company of Grand Forks are the bidders. The council laid the bids over till Wednesday next for consideration.

Mr. McDonnell bid on vitrified brick, creosote asphalt, tar macadam and cedar block pavement, and his figures appear to be lower than those of the other bidders on the same material.

On vitrified brick, Haggart's bid was $2.80 per yard; Kennedy's, $2.70, and McDonnells, $2.70. On creosote block, McDonnell's is lower than Haggart's and Kennedy's by 15 cents a yard. On curbing, pipes, manholes, catch basins, etc., McDonnell is lower than his competitors. It will lie between creosote and cedar block pavement, and, if creosote is selected, McDonnell will get the contract.

BOSTON CLOSING LETTER:—This morning they are all talking that 15,000,000-pound order of copper that I foreshadowed yesterday. Today, tomorrow, the next day—what difference does it make? They simply have to have copper and lots of it—more than they have ever used before in the history of the world. This North Butte—what's the use? At $75 the issue was expected to meet stock. Well, it did so and went right up in face of it. It will go from $75 to $85 faster than it did from $65 to $75. Keep buying them. The market is only beginning to wake up. These are good days on which to take on some of this Osceola, which I am still very bullish on. Boston Consolidated is beginning to come, and it will do better. It is one of the very cheap ones. Shannon and the lake coppers generally are behind the market. Buy some Superior Copper for a big rise incident to the beginning of stamping.—MILLER & CO.

If the people of this city do not make big money now, then they will surely never have a chance. Did you ever see conditions look better for the future? Every report from New York and Boston only goes to show how bullish they all are down there. North Butte for $100! Greene-Cananea for $20! Superior & Pittsburg for $22!

You are just getting near the fall, and what can you expect by next Christmas? Our local stocks are now beginning to feel the effects of the strong Eastern market. Look at Copper Queen. Yesterday a few shares could be had at 95c—the close tonight was $1.50 bid. This big climb was partly due to the good reports from the mine. They say Copper Queen will easily sell at $4 again.

Red Warrior was strong at $3. Mowitza was also wanted in big lots at $1.87½ to $2. Ballaklala holding around $7. Any kind of a move will shoot this one to $12 or $14. This stock has had no advance yet, but it soon will have its day. Butte & Superior should be bought right now. It will soon climb along with the rest of them. Denn and Shattuck should also do better.

Another strong market with renewed activity in the curbs. Calumet & Montana was in good demand and all offerings were quickly absorbed at asked prices. Copper Queen is showing up some fine bodies of ore and will in the next 30 days commence the erection of a mill to treat the ore now on the dump, there being enough ore blocked out now to guarantee the success of the mine away beyond all expectations. An order for 500 shares cleaned up the offerings and the market closed strong at $1.37½ bid and all indications point to $2 this week. Globe is beginning to attract the investor and there was good inquiry late in the afternoon for large blocks at $4 a share—a price that should appeal to the conservative ones. Denn and Calumet & Sonora should be the next in line, with Butte-Ballaklava, to feel the effect of the general strength in all markets. All reports on Rawhide Royal are of an encouraging nature and stock should do better marketwise. We solicit a part of your business.

ASHLAND MAN IS A WITNESS

Deputy Sheriff Relates Talk He Had With Mrs. McAuliffe.

That Mrs. McAuliffe, during her "stay" at the jail in Ashland, told him her sole object in taking her son from its father was to obtain a divorce from Dr. McAuliffe and secure substantial alimony from the doctor, believing he would pay dearly to get him back, was the substance of the testimony offered in the McAuliffe habeas corpus proceedings this afternoon by Angus Kennedy, a deputy sheriff from Ashland.

Kennedy was called as a witness for Dr. McAuliffe in the case. He said that he had quite a conversation with Mrs. McAuliffe when taking the boy to the Ashland jail, and that she said it was her intention to make Dr. McAuliffe pay dearly to get his son back again.

DIET FOR SLEEPLESSNESS.

London Globe: Dr. William Stevens says that insomnia is not a disease itself, but the effect of an unhealthy condition of the body or mind. When the cause is removed the insomnia may be expected to disappear.

Every physician has had stubborn cases of it which would not yield to any treatment and for which a change of air or of scene became necessary. But such cases as these should not occur, and do occur only when the sufferer has neglected precautions that should have been taken when the trouble first made itself manifest.

Insomnia results from causes which can be removed if attended to in season. The most common cause is found in the digestive organs. Either unsuitable food, causing insomnia as a feature of indigestion, or insufficient food, causing the patient to be kept awake by hunger.

There are few things which can be universally recommended as diet for sleeplessness, since what will agree with one man will disagree with another. But two things that may almost always be recommended are lettuce or celery.

Judge's Library: During the Christmas rush in Chicago, a dignified elderly gentleman, heavily laden with packages, was descending the steps from the elevated railway. A fat colored lady, similarly laden, behind him, slipped on some ice, and as she fell she knocked the old man off his feet, and together they tobogganed down the steps, the fat lady landing at the foot of the stairs on top of the old gentleman. Stunned by the sudden descent she did not move, until the old gentleman mildly remarked: "You'll have to get off here, madam; this is as far as I go."

ENGLAND TO KILL ITS RATS.

War on 56,000,000 Rodents Will Begin Oct. 1.

London, July 24.—England is to begin war on its 56,000,000 rats on Oct. 1. On that date the Society for the Destruction of Vermin, of which Sir James Crichton-Browne is president, will initiate competitions among all the existing sparrow and rat clubs, which they hope to organize into one body.

"All the clubs with a membership of twenty will be eligible for the competitions," an official of the society told a reporter this week. "The club which kills the greatest number of rats in twelve months will receive a prize of 10 guineas, and there will be two other prizes of 5 and 3 guineas. In addition, there will be offered five prizes of 1 guinea each to individuals who can prove big 'bags.' No prize will be given to an individual who has destroyed fewer than 300 rats. The entrance fee for clubs will be 10s.

"For the country clubs there will be offered five prizes of 10 guineas each and ten prizes of 5 guineas each for the fifteen clubs providing the largest 'bag.' We estimate that the champion club should show a bag of 10,000 rats.

"In our investigations we have taken the lowest possible basis. We estimate that there are 56,000,000 of acres under cultivation in the British Isles, and, merely for the sake of calculations, we put one rat on each acre. Each rat can do £1 worth of damage per annum.

"In May next the society will hold an exhibition in which will be shown not only the history of the war on rats, which dates back to ancient Egyptian and Etruscan times, but the most modern methods of exterminating these and other pests."

SELECT NEW ULM MAN.

Prof. Schaller New President of Seminary Near Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. John Schaller, for many years director of the Lutheran Teachers' seminary at New Ulm, Minn., was elected by the board of trustees of the Lutheran seminary at Wauwatosa at a meeting at Winona, Minn., Wednesday, to succeed the late Prof. Adolph Hoenecke as president of Milwaukee's suburban institution.

Since Prof. Hoenecke died on Dec. 29, 1908, the Lutheran seminary at Wauwatosa has been without a head. Many men of prominence in the Lutheran educational world were mentioned as possible successors to the man under whose administration the institution flourished, but until Wednesday no choice was made. The selection of Prof. Shaller, however, is one which, it is thought, will be eminently satisfactory, for he is recognized generally as an exceedingly capable man and an educator of large experience.

CHIPPEWA FALLS IN 1910.

Appleton, Wis., July 24.—The twelfth biennal convention of the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin has closed here after the election of officers and the passing of amendments to the constitution. The next convention will be held in Chippewa Falls in 1910.

All the officers weer re-elected as follows: President, J. L. Snyder, Waukesha; vice president, Dennis Dineen, Hammond; secretary, John M. Callahan, Milwaukee; treasurer, Michael Jacobs, Beaver Dam.

BLUEBERRY HARVEST ON.

Marquette, Mich., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The blueberry harvest has opened in Upper Michigan. It will continue until after the close of August, and from now until that time many hundreds of people will be engaged in it. The bushes in most districts are well laden with fruit and there is every indication that unless killing frosts are experienced exceptionally early the yield will be fully as large as in any former year.

Kodol will without doubt help anyone who has stomach disorders or stomach trouble. Take Kodol today for complete relief. Kodol is sold by all druggists.

IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Boulevard Extension Will be Ready Early Next Month.

Will Add Several Miles to Duluth's Famous Driveway.

Next month will see the completion of the boulevard extension to Fifty-ninth avenue west, giving one of the finest drives in the Northwest. The park board will have a crew of men working on the extension within the next two weeks, and the finishing touches will be put to the work already done.

The extension was started last year, and it will not take very long to finish up the job. The road is practically constructed as far as Fifty-ninth avenue, but it is hardly in condition for driving purposes at the present time. It will be placed in just as good shape as the old portion of the boulevard.

The extension has been in prospect for several years, and the park board and the public generally have been anxious to see ways and means devised for carrying on the work. The boulevard drive of Duluth is famous all over the country, and the drive will be made doubly pleasant by the extension. The road runs along the very top of the hill to a point above Fifty-ninth avenue in West Duluth, giving a commanding view of the whole Head of the Lakes region. With the prospective improvement of streets between West Duluth and the main portion of the city, the extension will be just as popular as the old boulevard is at the presen time.

DOYLE IS ARRESTED.

Is Alleged to Have Impersonated an Officer.

Michael Doyle of May View Heights, Wednesday took the law into his own hands, and endowing himself with the authority of an officer of the United States, went in search of a bundle, he claims was stolen from him on a bay View Heights Incline car a few days ago. For this alleged misdemeanor he will have a preliminary hearing at the West Duluth justice court, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and if his case warrants it, will later be tried at the disctrict court. He is now at liberty under $200 personal bonds.

According to the complaint filed by John Farin of Midway, with Judge Flack, Doyle drove up to his place Wednesday afternoon in a buggy, accompanied by two women. He tied his team and went to the door, where he asked to see Farin. One of Farin's daughters who answered his knock said Farin was not at home. She called an older sister. At the sight of the sister, Hedwig Farin, Doyle is alleged to have said, "That's the girl I'm after, I saw you take my package from the Incline car. As an officer of the United States I arrest you." The girls it is said became frightened, and called for their mother, who was the only other person in the house. But no argument, it is claimed, would convince Doyle that he was mistaken in the girl's identity. Every moment both the sisters were becoming more and more alarmed, until Hedwig became hysterical and ran to the barn to hide.

The younger girl fled to the postoffice, nearly half a mile away. Doyle was unable to overtake either of them, both being barefoot and far too agile for him.

At the postoffice, the younger girl managed to convey to the postmaster between her sobs that something awful had happened at her home. He hurried back with her, and reached the house just as Doyle was about to leave. He had been delayed in getting away by a slight accident that had happened to his buggy. The postmaster, knew Doyle and asked him what right he had to be impersonating an officer of the law. At that Doyle is alleged to have struck him on the shoulder and told him that if he didn't keep his nose out of other people's business, he was liable to get his block beat off.

Just why Doyle wished to pretend he was a policeman does not seem to be clear, unless he thought he could frighten the girl, whom he evidently believed to be a thief, into handing over to him his missing bundle. At any rate he succeded in upsetting Hedwig Farin so badly that she was unable, so it is claimed, to sleep all that night and was hysterical and nervous all day yesterday.

MEN USED NETS.

Game Warden Confiscates Nets Found in River.

John Green, deputy state game warden, was in West Duluth yesterday afternoon, attempting to gather evidence against two men, who are thought to be setting nets and set lines in the St. Louis river off West Duluth. He is working with the police on the case.

There have been several complaints of broken boathouse locks lately, and the other night a policeman was called to the river by a man who found that the lock to his boat house had been broken and a boat taken out. He and the officer waited for the return of the offenders, until 1 o'clock, when their patience was rewarded.

Two men had the boat, which contained several fish and a net. They explained that they had got permission to use the boat from one of its owners, and that they had come on to the net set in the river while they were fishing with night lines. The net being used unlawfully, they confiscated it, they said, as was their right. Their excuses sounded plausible, so nothing came of the matter. Mr. Green now has possession of the net, and is searching for its owners.

No great penalty is attached to the offense of catching fish with a net, if the fish are not sold.

Banquet Will be Held.

The annual banquet of the West Duluth Republican club will be held Aug. 6, as was previously arranged. This and other matters were decided upon last evening at a meeting of the general banquet committee which was held in the office of L. A. Barnes. It was announced by the committee on program and speakers that Senator Moses E. Clapp, Clarence B. Miller and J. Adam Bede have accepted invitations to respond to toasts. Several other prominent men have been invited to speak, who have not yet been heard from. It is doubtful whether J. F. Jacobson will be able to be present. It was on his account it was thought best to postpone the affair, but later it was decided that the arrangements had gone so far that it would be very inconvenient to make any change in the date.

CHIPPING IN.

The girl in the black poke bonnet held out her tambourine as she approached the little table. The corpulent man with the horseshoe pin dropped a coin into it, but his friend with the moist eyes and flabby cheeks shook his head, says the Chicago News.

"You're easy," he said to the giver when the girl had gone away.

"Oh, I don't know," said the man with the horseshoe pin. "I like to help 'em along a little."

"It's all right about helping 'em along," said the man with the flabby cheeks. "I don't notice anybody handing me money to help me along. It's a great graft. I have to work for my living."

"Sure thing," said the man with the horseshoe pin. "You're the hardest-working man I know of. You're always working somebody. The trouble with you was that girl needed her bonnet. Ain't that right? If she'd been more of a looker you'd have felt more like encouraging the good cause."

"It might have helped some," agreed the man with the flabby cheeks, with a humorous leer.

"Of course," said the other. "If she'd done a little dance with that tambourine you'd have felt as if she deserved something, but you ain't going to give up your hard-earned money for nothing. It isn't even as if she was a car porter and made a swipe or two at you with a whisk broom or a waiter who brought your drink. That's different. You'll buy for me, too, but that's because you're a good fellow and you know I could buy for myself and would just as soon as not."

"It's all right about that," said the man with the flabby cheeks. "That's not the idea, though. In the first place, a woman hasn't any business coming into a saloon."

"That's right," agreed the man with the horseshoe pin. "She hasn't. Not if she's a decent woman. A fellow doesn't get shocked so much if it's the other kind, does he? But to have a girl that's got self-respect come in and catch you sitting down and fooling away time and money and a lot of other things, drinking highballs, makes you mad. Of course, it does. It certainly is foolish to encourage it. What does a man want with people who don't believe in drinking when he's settled down to enjoy himself quietly? He wouldn't want a lot of preachers around, either. He's got a right to drink if he wants to, but they make him feel as if he didn't."

"That part of it don't make any difference to me," said the man with the flabby cheeks. "They wouldn't make me feel as if I didn't have a right to drink."

"Well, there's no need of us supporting them in idleness anyway," said the man with the horseshoe pin. "As you say, it's a graft. They don't do a thing but stand around on the street corners and pound on a drum and sing hymns, do they?"

"Well, I guess maybe there's a little more than that," admitted the flabby-cheeked man.

"I wondered if you knew that," said his friend. "Yes, I've heard that some of them work almost as hard as you do. I've heard of them putting in eighteen hours a day in the back streets, carrying food to people who were hungry and nursing people who were sick, building their fires and scrubbing their floors, working with them and for them, dragging beasts out of the gutter and making men and women out of 'em. Sure, I've seen 'em myself."

"You ought to join 'em," sneered the man with the moist eyes and flabby cheeks.

"I ain't built that way," said his friend with the horseshoe pin. "I'm too fond of my own comfort. I ought to do a lot of things that I don't, but it's too hard. The easy thing is to dig up. It ain't any particular trouble for me to put my hand into my pocket when anybody passes the hat and I don't miss what I put into it. I don't take any credit for that. I've got a heap of respect for the guy that starts the hat around, though, provided he chips in first."

"Well, it's all the way you look at it," observed the man with the flabby cheeks, philosophically. "Have another one on me."

THE MUSTARD PEST.

"Do results justify the tremendous expenditure of money and effort for adapting science to the ends of agriculture?" asks a writer in Outing, and follows the question with this definite answer:

"Wild mustard has been and is yet the curse of the farmer's field. The old method of dealing with the pest was two fold: to summer fallow, plow and harrow the infested field for a season; then when the crop was planted the next year, if the mustard still grew, to have the children wander through the field plucking out the weed by the roots.

"This was a waste of time and grain, for little plantlets of oats or barley were trampled down or derooted for every mustard plant pulled up. The new scientific method is to use no seed that is not guaranteed; if necessary certificated and inspected. But what of the field already infected? And what of fields infected by other weeds quite as noxious as mustard?

"It was in the spring of 1906 that the American Steel & Wire company called attention of the agricultural experts to a by-product of their iron and steel manufactory, an iron sulphate solution, which seemed to destroy weeds without injuring grain. The chemists of the company conferred with the agronomy experts. The iron sulphate was diluted in water.

"The remedy did not always act the same. It was found that it would not work early in the morning during the dew or after a rain, for the simple reason that moisture diluted it too much. Finally a suitable spraying machine was obtained from Germany and the iron sulphate was applied about the third week in June, when mustard was in the third leaf and previous to bloom, and the grain plantlets not yet high in the blade.

"What was the result? The weed was wilted up and burnt as if by fire. The grain blade remained a little blackened but unhurt, for new shoots came on in fresh growth.

"Now in many Western states the oat crop represents a yearly yield to the farmer of from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000. Half that destroyed by mustard represented loss of $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

"That amount is practically saved to the farmers' pocket by the discovery of the iron sulphate solution. Multiply that amount by the dozen or more states that are great oat growers and the importance of the discovery can be realized."

What are your "lucky numbers?" Perhaps the number of the classified ads, in today's paper is one of your lucky numbers.

ROOSEVELT PORTRAIT

That Has Been Painted for an Englishman by Laszlo.

Esperanto Congress to be Held at Dresden in August.

London, July 24.—When Arthur Lee, M. P., formerly military attache to the British embassy at Washington, and Lieut. Col. Roosevelt were together in Cuba at the time of the Spanish-American war, the Englishman told the future president of the United States that he wanted his portrait. That portrait the clever Hungarian artist, Philip A. Laszlo, recently went over to the states to paint, and it may now be seen at the Dowdeswell galleries with thirty-seven others from the same brush. Not only on the continent and in the United States, but in England also, many prominent persons have sat to Mr. Laszlo. In Bond street, for instance, are three royal portraits—those of the king and the queen and Princess Victoria.

In America the portrait of President Roosevelt has been pronounced by many to be the most characteristic and faithful which has yet been made, hence the call for a replica. The president, in black riding dress, with purple-lined cloak, is seated, legs somewhat apart, gloves and switch in right hand.

It is believed at the general postoffice that, in view of the introduction of penny postage for letters to the United States, it will probably be necessary to make up mails for many more places there. The principal towns, such as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and San Francisco, have direct bags made up for them, and this number will in all likelihood now be added to, places getting a direct bag which formerly had their letters through a receiving office. At the same time, it is not anticipated that there will be any sensational increase immediately in the number of letters dispatched to America because of the charge. What happened in the case of the reduction of postage to Canada and Australia and New Zealand is held to be tolerably conclusive on this point.

The fourth international esperanto congress will be held at Dresden from Aug. 16 to 22. The congress will be presided over by Dr. Zamenhof, the author of the language, and it is expected that 2,000 delegates from all parts of Europe and from America will be present. Church services in esperanto for Protestants and Catholics will be held in the Kreuzkirche and Katholische hofkirche, respectively. During the congress Goethe's Iphigenia in Tauris will be played in esperanto by Herr Emanuel Reicher, his daughter, Fraulein Hedwig Reicher, and other Berlin actors. In the little town of Weisser Hirsch, close to Dresden, an esperanto village will be established for the convenience of the holiday makers from all countries. The international committee of the Red Cross societies has decided to send a delegate to the congress, in order to be informed as to the utility of esperanto in time of war.

London is stirred over another American slang word, "lallapaloosa." After "rubberneck" had been satisfactorily explained and thoroughly digested by the English, it was, of course, in order to bring forward a new word with the view of continuing the education of the Londoners. A Daily Express reporter was sent out the other day to interview some Americans now here on the meaning of the term "lallapaloosa." He scoured the city in search of an explanation and was repeatedly baffled by the flippancy of the solutions offered. An American actor who was supporting some of the facades in Bedford street expressed contemptuous surprise at the question. "Why, I thought every one knew what a 'lallapaloosa' was," he said. "It's the female species of your own gezeka family. Sure!" Other explanations were equally unsatisfactory.

A Maori war dance, a new temperance drink, and a patent medicine were some of the futile suggestions made. Eventually an intelligent American was found in the Haymarket offices of the American Express company, who declared, with some emotion, that the word had no British equivalent.

"It is the latest catchword in New York," he said. "It expresses astonishment at any strange sight or object. It might apply to a street accident in which a cab horse, a coaster cart and an automobile were tangled up together, or to a very tall story. I heard an Englishman say the other day, 'Well, that's a knockout,' and I guess that's a good translation for 'Well, that's a lallapaloosa.' For instance, if I spied a stout lady in a Directoire gown with a market garden on a three-foot hat, I should say, 'Well, that's a lallapaloosa.'"

On the invitation of the Canadian government a commission of Scottish agriculturists are to visit the Dominion in August. The object of the visit is to obtain an independent report by practical Scottish agriculturists on agricultural matters in Canada. The visit will occupy seven weeks, exclusive of the time occupied on the sea voyage each way, and the commission will travel across the country to the Pacific.

On the occasion of the departure of the British channel fleet from Norway many of the newspapers expressed satisfaction at the visit and complimented the crews on their model behavior on shore. In political circles various opinions were expressed as to the wisdom of opening the closed harbors of Norway to large fleets, as has been done recently in the case of the German and the British naval visits. It is possible that a movement will be launched with the object of preventing the recurrence of such visits.

Always a fervent admirer of the diplomatic methods of Edward VII, King Alfonso of Spain is desirous of emulating the example of his royal uncle-by-marriage, and entertaining President Fallieres in his own capital. Such a visit, which is now likely to take place before the end of the year, would at once put an end to the absurd rumors of differences between the French and Spanish governments on the subject of Morocco.

HER BARGAINS.

Chicago News: "It was just too sad for anything," said the woman in brown. "I don't know when I ever had anything affect me so."

"It must have been sad," said the tailor-made friend. "I feel awfully sorry for them all. I meant to have gone up there myself, but that was the day I went to the Kenyons' luncheon. I had to go; but it was an awfully stupid affair. Was Mrs. Brent there?"

"All the family were there except Mr. Brent. I don't see how they could bring themselves to do it, but they did. I'm sure it was sadder than a funeral. I could have cried, though of course I didn't know them very well. Yes, Mrs. Brent and Dora and Edith and the two boys—what was their names? I always forget. I thought at first they were intending to bid in some of the things, but they didn't."

"Did they sell everything?"

"Everything. Wasn't it too bad? Just imagine how you would feel seeing all the things you owned going away to strangers! You know I'm so attached to everything I have that I can't bear to throw away so much as a chair when it gets broken. It's foolish, but I'm afraid I always shall be a little sentimental. I send everything up to the garret as fast as it gets worn out, and sometimes I go up there and sit for hours just thinking about the happy days they are associated with. Mr. Dimsy laughs at me and says he's going to throw them all out into the alley some day."

"Wasn't it too bad?" murmured the tailor-made friend.

"I just wanted to weep, I felt so miserable," said the one in brown. "Poor, poor things! I just know how they felt, exactly. A lot of strangers coming in and fingering over all your possessions and the auctioneer making jokes about them and all! As I say, it's worse than a death. They've had those things, or a great many of them, ever since they were married. When I thought of the memories that must have been connected with some of them——

"She was very, very brave about it, and the girls were, too, but once or twice I could see they pretty nearly broke down. I wonder what they will do now."

"They're going out to the Pacific coast, I heard."

"Oh, of course. I knew that. I meant I wondered how on earth they would get along. Everything will be so different for them after being in such comfortable circumstances. I feel so much pity for any one who meets with misfortune of that kind. It really hurts me. I suppose they will have to go into some poky little house in a poor neighborhood, and the girls will have to go out and work at something. Mr. Brent's salary won't amount to anything, my husband tells me—not enough to support them even in the most modest way. All they have in the world is what they got out of the sale."

"Did the things bring much?"

"Mercy, no! They didn't bring anything hardly. Not half what they were worth. That lovely colonial bedstead sold for $6."

"You don't tell me!"

"Yes, my dear, that's all it brought. If I could have found room for it I should have bid $2 or $3 more on it, and I think I should have got it. I know you couldn't buy a bed new like that for less than $45 or $50. I'm sorry now that I didn't bid more, for I could have disposed of one of mine. I did buy the Daghestan rug that was in the library and four pairs of curtains. I bought that dainty little Doulton tea set, too. Nobody bid against me, so I really got them at my own price. Wasn't I perfectly lucky?

"I told Mr. Dimsy that I wouldn't sell my bargains for five times what I gave for them, and he said, 'You'd be a fool if you did,' and when Mr. Dimsy admits that anything is cheap you may be sure it is. I was awfully pleased. I believe if I'd bid less than I did I could have got them just the same. That's always such an annoying thought, isn't it?"

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE DISTRESSED OVER LOSS OF THEIR CHIEF PLANK

Jacobson Pie Issue is Taken Out of the Campaign.

Leaders Now Scurrying the Woods for a New Issue.

Dissatisfaction Among the Country Press Over Judge Mills' Nomination.

St. Paul, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—No longer can the Republicans "point with pride" to the candidate who eats pie with a knife. Their idol has been shattered and the Republicans have lost the main issue and the main plank in their platform. Now they are loking around for another issue. They have discovered that Frank Eddy's statement that Jacobson eats pie with a knife is not based on fact, and they are grieved to learn that "Jake" does not eat pie at all. Now they are scurrying the woods for an issue.

Frank Eddy's charge wa sthe thing that made Jake famous. It was copied and commented on all over the country and the Republicans were intending to make it their campaign slogan. Collier's Weekly said that Minnesota Republicans had nominated a man whose only qualifications were that he eats pie with a knife. But now it is discovered that even that statement is false. Now if Collier's is correct in the other premise, the candidate has no qualifications left.

That Jacobson does not eat pie at all is vouched for on good authority. A prominent Republican who dined in Jacobson's house since the state convention, said that Mrs. Jacobson had said that he had not eaten a

CONFESSION OF MISS FLEMING

She Was to Coach Milliner to Identify Frank Gould.

New York, July 25.—Contents of a statement, said to have been made to the district attorney's office by Miss Julia Fleming, who is in custody on the charge of subornation of perjury in the Frank J. Gould divorce case, were made known today. After the hearing yesterday, Miss Fleming, it was said, made a statement which corroborated the story told by Miss Mabel McCausland, the young milliner's apprentice, in which the latter said she had been offered a sum of money to testify falsely against Frank J. Gould, in the divorce suit brought against him by Mrs. Helen Kelly Gould. When employed at a prominent hotel, Miss Fleming said, she had become well acquainted with Mr. Gould, and her part in the alleged conspiracy was to coach Miss MacCausland and enable her to identify Mr. Gould on the witness stand. Miss Fleming was to have been married today, and if her release was not procured on bail, it would take place in the prison.

FILE COMPLAINT AGAINST ROAD

Threshing Company Says Freight Rates Are Too High.

Minneapolis, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Claiming that it is being unfairly treated in the matter of a through rate on machinery shipped from Minneapolis to Abbeyville, Kan., over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Minneapolis Threshing Machine company, has filed complaint with the interstate commerce commission against the two railroads.

In the complaint it is set forth that shipments are made via Kansas City and from Kansas City to Abbeyville is but 54 cents, while the railroads are making a charge of 58 cents. Replying the railroads state that they are basing their rate on the St. Louis gateway, adding the rate from Minneapolis to St. Louis to that from St. Louis to Abbeyville to make the joint rate.

HURRAHS FAIL TO AROUSE MR. TAFT.

Cleveland, July 25.—Candidate Taft passed through this city at 7:10 o'clock this morning on his way from Oyster Bay and New York to Cincinnati where he will arrive at 1:30 p. m. today. Mr. Taft retired early last night, being somewhat fatigued from his strenuous day in New York, and he slept rather late this morning, not having appeared from his drawing room when Cleveland was reached.

"Hurrah for Taft" was a decidedly awakening sound as the train pulled into Erie, Pa., early this morning. But the little crowd of trainmen and others who extended this welcome got no response. Mr. Taft was not up.

PYTHON OF GREAT SIZE

Snake Thirty Feet Long Reaches New York on Steamer.

Thought to be Consigned to Bronx Zoo Garden.

New York, July 25.—With the largest snake ever brought to the United States, the Hudson, one of the Anglo-American Oil company's steamships, anchored off Stapleon yesterday from the Far East. His snakeship, taken on at Singapore by Capt. C. B. Fenten, commander of the Hudson, is 30 feet 3 inches long, and weighs 300½ pounds.

Capt. Fenton would not say whether the snake, which is a magnificent specimen of the Indian python, was for the Bronx zoo garden, but a story that had been told months ago of the snake's coming, said also that the big fellow was to increase the collection there.

Under the fore-peak, which had been turned over for use as a menagerie, containing other animals, the snake is held fast in a great iron-bound wooden case, with a small netted space cut in the top of the case. First Officer Herr said the snake was in small quarters, so that it could not possibly use its strength to force the sides of the case apart.

While there have been snakes in plenty under twenty feet in length landed here, Capt. Fenton carries the palm for the largest ever brought, and when the ship berths today to land her sugar cargo, the snake will be delivered to the consignees. Besides the big snake, there are twenty-five monkeys, a porcupine, a cassowary, a pair of Japanese silk feathered fowls, three Japanese spaniels and numerous small birds. There were fifty-five monkeys when the Hudson left Singapore, on May 21, but many of them died. A dozen mina birds also died.

CASHIER WALKER HEARS SENTENCE

Pleads Guilty on Four Counts—May Serve Twenty Years.

Hartford, Conn., July 25.—W. F. Walker, who looted the Savings bank of New Britain ,of more than half a million dollars' worth of securities, pleaded guilty on four counts of the indictment, in superior court, today. He was sentenced to not less than one year, nor more than five years, on the first count, and not more than five years each on the three counts, sentence to take effect on the expiration of each previous sentence, under the indeterminate sentence law.

This will make the entire penalty not more than twenty years.

DESPONDENT CASS LAKER ENDS ALL WITH BULLET.

Cass Lake, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—While laboring under a fit of despondency, William Costello, an old citizen of Cass Lake, took his life here today. He secluded himself in a toilet room and, placing the muzzle of a revolver in his mouth, pulled the trigger. The bullet crashed through the roof of his mouth and into his brain, causing instant death. So far as known he has no relatives in this country.

ATTORNEYS GET BUSY

Government's Legal Talent to Try to Regain Big Fine.

Hope to Get Case Before United States Supreme Court.

Chicago, July 25.—President Roosevelt's statement on the Standard Oil decision had the effect of a galvanic battery on the government's legal forces in Chicago yesterday. District Attorney Sims and his assistants are straining every nerve to regain the $29,240,000 fine which slipped through their fingers in the decision of the court of appeals.

The government prosecutor realizes that to go to trial again would, even in the event of a conviction, mean a much smaller fine. He, therefore, bases his hope on the theory of Attorney General Bonaparte that the issues may be presented to the United States supreme court through applicaion for a writ of certiorari. The course of action as now mapped out by the government is understood to include an application by the attorney general for a writ of certiorari and a petition for a rehearing before the United States court of appeals.

Mr. Sims and his aids, James H. Wilkerson and Harry A. Parkin, were in telegraphic communication on this subject with Mr. Bonaparte. The local department of the bureau of justice probably will devote its attention to the application for a rehearing, while Frank B. Kellogg, who will be called into the case at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, will, it is understood, prepare the action that is to be presented to the supreme court.

TAKEN AWAY FROM BRIDE

Deserter From British Army Caught by Means of Wireless.

New York, July 25.—Pursued in flight from Bermuda by wireless dispatches which led to his apprehension, fifty miles at sea, Carl Goodwin, who deserted from the British army at Hamilton, Bermuda, in order that he might be with his American bride, was taken back to the military prison at St. George, while his wife is reported to be seriously ill as a result of the disastrous ending of their romance.

The story was brought in when the Bermuda was docked from Hamilton, after a very early arrival in New York, as a result of the fact that the garrison officials, suspecting that the young soldier was aboard, recalled the ship by wireless, giving at the same time a description of him by which he was easily recognized.

It is reported that Goodwin recently married Miss Kate Goodwin, an American girl living in Bermuda, in violation of the rule in the British army, which forbids to marry, and that it was therefore necessary that he be smuggled out of the country. The young bride is said to have made all necessary arrangements, bought his ticket to New York and helped him get on board undetected.

HEARST ARRIVES FROM EUROPE AND WILL PRESIDE AT CHICAGO CONVENTION

WILLIAM R. HEARST, Who Has Arrived From a European Tour and Will Preside at the National Convention of the Independence Party at Chicago, Monday.

Independence Party to Meet and Nominate Candidates Monday.

National Committee is in Session Making Arrangements.

Hearst States Positively That He Will Not be Candidate.

New York, July 25.—William Randolph Hearst, who arrived from Europe today, was asked if he would accept the nomination for the presidency on the Independence league ticket if it should be shown that the sentiment of the league was unanimously for his nomination. Mr. Hearst replied:

"I cannot. I have given my word that under no circumstances will I be a candidate. I have given my word and I will abide by it."

"Is there any probability in your opinion, Mr. Hearst, that the Independence league may endorse either the Republican or the Democratic candidate?" was asked.

"The sentiment before I left here," was the answer, "was for a third ticket. If there is any sentiment now for an endrosement of either the Republican or Democratic candidates, I for one do not know of it. I have heard of no change in the sentiment."

"Do you consider that the Republicans nominated the strongest man possible?"

Mr. Hearst laughed and said: "The people will decide that."

"If the sentiment of the Independence league convention of this year should be shown very clearly to be unaninously for your nomination as

HONOR AN EMPTY ONE

Halswell Takes 400-Meter Race Once Declared Void.

Americans Refuse to Enter on Account of Decision.

London, July 25.—Amid the cheers of several hundreds of his countrymen, Halswell, the English runner, this morning "walked over" in the final of the 400-meter flat race in the Olympic games, which was run originally last Thursday and won by J. C. Carpenter, Cornell university. This is the race that was declared void by the judges on the allegation, which has been denied by the Americans, that Carpenter fouled Halswell. Carpenter was disqualified from competing again, and J. B. Taylor, Irish-American A. C., and W. N. Robbins of Cambridge, Mass., withdrew and would not run today.

Halswell did not really walk; he ran, and ran hard, in an effort to establish a new Olympic record. His performance was a very great disappointment after all that had been confidently expected. It was firmly believed that the most-talked-of athlete in the stadium, until the Marathon racers replaced

EIGHT CADETS ARE DISMISSED

Members of Military Academy at West Point Guilty of Hazing.

Oyster Bay, July 25.—President Roosevelt has approved the dismissal from the military academy at West Point of eight cadets who were found guilty of hazing underclassmen. Both the report of the board which tried the cadets and that of the superintendent of the academy were approved by the president. Secretary Loeb said today that reinstatement of the men could be accomplished only by congressional action.

W. I. PRINCE OF DULUTH ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT OF BANKERS' ASSOCIATION

Local Banker Honored at Closing Session of Convention.

Joseph Chapman, Jr., of Minneapolis, Chosen President.

Bankers Adopt a Number of Important Resolutions.

To Duluth went the honor of securing the vice presidency of the Minnesota State Bankers' association. William I. Prince, cashier of the City National bank of this city, was this morning elected as vice president of the association for the ensuing year. The honor comes as a recognition of the zealous labor Mr. Prince has performed in behalf of the association and is also a recognition of his ability by his fellow bankers.

Joseph Chapman, Jr., vice president of the Northwestern National bank, Minneapolis, was elected president; Charles R. Frost, assistant secretary of the association, was chosen permanent secretary, and L. Whitmore of Wabasha was elected treasurer.

CHARLES E. HUGHES, Governor of New York, Who Announces That He Will Be a Candidate for Renomination.

J. A. Latta, vice president of the Swedish-American National bank, Minneapolis, was elected as the Minnesota State Bankers' representative upon the executive council of the American Bankers' association. D. S. Culver, president of the National German-American bank, St. Paul, was re-elected chairman of the executive council of the Minnesota association.

The members of the executive council that hold over are J. M. Haven, Big Lake; J. A. Latta, Minneapolis; R. W. Akin, Anoka; F. M. Beach, Lyle; M. J. Dowling, Olivia; A. G. Wedge, Jr., Bemidji; D. S. Culver, St. Paul; T. E. Nash, Winona; S. H. Lockin, Red Wing; O. M. Green, Winona, and George C. Power, St. Paul.

The morning session was devoted purely to business. The reports of the committees, aside from the committee on resolutions, were not of very great importance to the public. The report of the committee on burglary and fidelity was made by D. S. Culver. The report stated that the insurance question had been thoroughly investigated and that committee had succeeded in securing the lowest rate of burglary and fidelity insurance for every Minnesota banker. The National Surety company of New York has been selected by the committee to write the insurance. The report of the committee was adopted and the committee discharged.

The report of the committee on negotiable instruments law, read by J. A. Latta, stated that North Dakota has recently adopted a negotiable law, which brought Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and North Dakota into a status of negotiable uniformity. The committee on the question of assistant secretary, recommended by Mr. Frost, which recommendation was later acted upon favorably by the convention. The report of the auditing committee showed that the finances of the association were in a healthy condition by the announcement that there was a surplus of $1,743 in the general fund.

The Resolutions.

The report of the committee on resolutions, which was unanimously adopted, was as follows:

Resolved, that we recommend to the convention the adoption of the following amendment to the constitution of the Minnesota Bankers' associatiton:

Amend the constitution by adding at the end of section 1, article III thereof, the following:

"Provided that no member of the executive council shall be eligible to succeed himself without an intermission of at least one year from the expiration of his term of office."

This amendment shall become effective at the next annual convention in 1909.

Recommend Amendment.

Resolved, that we recommend to the convention the adoption of the following amendment to the by-laws of the association:

Strike out section II of the by-laws and in lieu thereof, substitute the following:

"The annual dues of all banks and trust companies shall be estimated on the basis of capital stock and surplus in the following manner, to-wit: Banks and trust companies with less than $50,000 capital and surplus, $5; banks and trust companies with $50,000 capital and surplus and less than $100,000, $10; banks and

WINNIPEG REGATTA

St. Paul Oarsmen Continue to Capture All the Races.

Finishes Are Very Close and Excellent Time Is Made.

Winnipeg, Man., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second day of the Minnesota and Western Canada Rowing association's regatta opened this afternoon, with fine weather and a large crowd present to witness the interesting events.

The first race was the senior singles. In the first heat, Anderson, of St. Paul, the winner of the junior singles yesterday, was pitted against Sargent of Fort William and Moir of Winnipeg. It was a close and exciting contest, Anderson winning by only a quarter of a length from Sargent, Moir bringing up in the rear. Anderson's time was 10 minutes 4 seconds.

In the second heat of the senior singles, Cochran of St. Paul was the winner by one-third of a length; Moir of Winnipeg, second; Myers of St. Paul, third; Sargent of Fort William, fourth. Cochran's time, 10 minutes 4 seconds. Moir was leading to within a few lengths of the finish, when he played out, Cochran winning.

The junior four-oared race was the next event on the program. The St. Paul crew, stroked by Nelson, won, being half a length in front of Patton's Winnipeg crew; the Kenora crew, stroked by Rose, third; Ordway's St. Paul crew, fourth. Time, 8 minutes 40 seconds. Winnipeg was picking up fast at the finish, but could not overcome St. Paul's lead.

The following were the officials in charge of the events: Referee, F. G. Galt; starter, J. C. G. Armytage; timekeeper, Selby Henderson; clerks of the course, John Laycock and N. Langford, Jr.; judges at the start, James D. Donegre of St. Paul and Julius H. Barnes of Duluth; judges at the finish, F. L. Patton of Winnipeg, L. P. Ordway of St. Paul and E. R. Wayland of Fort William.

A CONFERENCE OF REPUBLICANS

Chicago, July 25.—The second conference between Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committe and various state Republican leaders was opened at 10 o'clock today at the Auditorium Annex. The states represented at this morning meeting are: Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri and Wisconsin. The national committeemen from Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana anr Michigan were unable to come at this time because of the short notice given them of the meeting. It is understood that another general conference will be held here soon after the headquarters are opened on Aug. 15. The members of the national committee in attendance at today's conference was Messrs. E. E. Hart, Iowa, A. R. Burnham, Kentucky; Charles Nagel, Missouri; and Alfred T. Rogers, Wisconsin. All of the state chairmen and most of the state secretaries invited are present. At the metting today instruction will be given for the preparation of a poll of voters of each state, giving necessary data as to nativity, religion, politics and other important facts in relation to every man. The system to be followed in gathering this information was adopted at the Colorado Springs conference and is based upon a method that has been employed for several years in Nebraska by William Hayward, chairman of the Republican state committee. Mr. Hitchcock places great dependence upon this character of information. At the conference today Mr. Hitchcock will submit to his political colleagues the list of the new executive committee, so far as it has been made up, but no time has been fixed to announce the appointments.

NEW YORK IS TO BUILD LONGEST PIER IN WORLD.

New York, July 25.—Preparations for building the longest pier in the world have been begun by the commissioner of docks and ferries when he advertised for bids for the largest dredging job the city has ever undertaken. It is for piers from Twenty-eighth street to Thirty-sixth street, South Brooklyn. It will be necessary to excavate nearly 4,200,000 square feet to make ready for the piers, and the cost will be more than $1,000,000.

In South Brooklyn the city is to build piers from Fifty-first street to Sixty-first street, the entire work to cost about $10,000,000. Bids for the first contract will be opened on Aug. 5 and the successful bidder will be allowed 500 working days in which to complete the work.

WE ARE DYING YOUNGER.

In view of all that has been said about the fall in the death rate, it seems strange to realize, sas Health Culture, that we are not living so long as our grandfathers and grandmothers did.

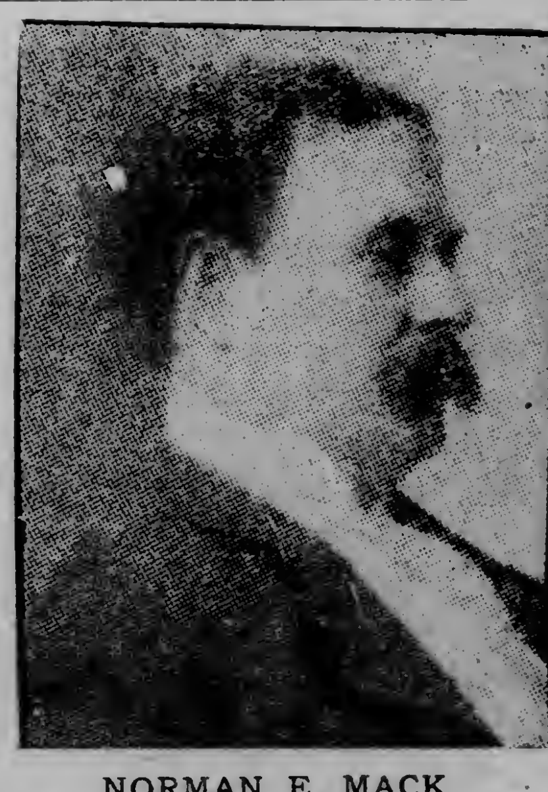
More babies live to grow up nowadays than formerly, but people in later life die younger. Once arrived at adult age, the average man or woman has fewer years of survival to expect.

This seems on the face of it so surprising a statement that, in order to be accepted, it should be backed up by data authentic and indisputable. Such data are furnished by the figures of the insurance companies (which all agree on the point), but it is easier to refer to the government census reports, which tell the tale in simple and convincing fashion. Even during the last fifteen years the death rate among all persons over 55 years of age of both sexes has risen very considerably.

MACK NEW CHAIRMAN

New York Man Is Head of Democratic National Committee.

Chicago, July 25.—Norman E. Mack of New York was chosen chairman of the Democratic national committee. L. P. Hall of Nebraska was chosen vice chairman; Urey Woodson of Kentucky was re-elected secretary; Governor Haskell of Oklahoma was chosen treasurer, and John I. Martin was re-elected sergeant-at-arms.



NORMAN E. MACK, New Chairman of Democratic National Committee.

Chicago, July 25.—W. J. Bryan, Democratic nominee for president, arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning from Lincoln, Neb., to attend the meeting of the sub-committee of the national committee, charged with the duty of selecting a national chairman and other officers. Mr. Bryan was accompanied by his brother, Charles W. Bryan, National Committeeman Hall of Nebraska, State Chairman Allen of Nebraska, Governor Osborne of Wyoming and a corps of newspaper men.

As the train drew in, a cheer went up from the impromptu crowd. A man bearing a striking resemblance to the Nebraskan, and who turned out to be W. J. Green, a cousin, was the first to greet the candidate. Roger C. Sullivan, Norman Mack and others followed in shaking the hand of the candidate. After the inevitable photographs had been taken, Mr. Bryan, with Mr. Sullivan, walked through the station and took an automobile to the Auditorium annex.

At the hotel, Mr. Bryan met his

ARMLESS MAN LIKES HIS BEER

Ordered Out of Town by Police Court Judge.

The police have ordered Victor Hill, an armless wanderer, out of town. He has been in jail so often that the attendants there are tired of him. Being without arms, he cannot dress, undress or feed himself, and is therefore a constant bother. He is able to drink without help, and likes intoxicants so well that frequently he appears in court and is given a jail sentence.

The novelty of seeing a man without arms drink beer and whiskey without assistance appeals to many men to such an extent that they buy him drinks, so he gets drunk without any expense to himself. Just how he lives, no one knows. He has no money, and, of course, is unable to work. The judge yesterday made him promise that he would leave town immediately.

ELECT OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

. G. Williams President of the Duluth Bar Association.

The permanent organization committee of the Duluth Bar association met yesterday afternoon in the office of the chairman, H. T. Abbott, and elected the following officers for the year: John G. Williams, president; H. T. Abbott, vice president; Frank Crassweller, secretary; F. W. Sullivan, treasurer. During the next two or three days the president will announce the appointments of the various committees.

Fourteen members of the committee were present, H. Oldenberg of Carlton being the only member absent. He was away from home on business.

Those present were: H. T. Abbott, C. O. Baldwin, Alfred Jaques, W. A. Cant, S. T. Harrison, J. G. Williams, J. Jenswold, Jr., A. H. Crassweller, L. C. Harris, H. B. Fryberger, F. W. Sullivan, John Dwan of Two Harbors; Oscar Mitchell and W. G. Bonham.

NO LACK OF CANDIDATES FOR THE COUNTY OFFICES

More Competition for County Jobs Than Ever Before.

Democrats Promise to Have a Full Ticket in Field.

There will be no lack of competition for county offices at the coming primary election, when there will be more Republican contests than there has been in years. Out of all the county offices, there is at the present time only five offices for which there remains no competition. These are the offices of county surveyor, county coroner, county auditor, county treasurer and clerk of the district court. All of the other offices have one or more candidates besides the men who are candidates for re-election.

If the Democratic county committee carries out its promise to get out a full county ticket the competition will be continued at the general election. Whether the committee will be successful in its desire, though, remains to be seen. No doubt resolutions will be drafted at the county convention indorsing the candidacy of all Democrats who seek county offices, and the convention may also name candidates for these offices, but that action may not have the desired effect of getting candidates to file.

The committee may go this far and not meet with the response of having Democrats file for office. It is one thing to make resolutions indorsing candidates and to name candidates, and another to get these prospective candidates to file for office. However, it will not be for lack of effort upon the part of the members of the Democratic county committee, for they are going into the work of getting out a full county ticket with vim, and the members of the committee express themselves as confident of being able to get out a strong list of candidates.

It is not likely that Odin Halden, county auditor, will have any opposition for the office. Mr. Halden's service to the county has been of the highest efficiency and his right to another term seems to be generally recognized. There seems, too, little likelihood of defeating him. He has made friends from among the members of both parties by his capable administration of the office, which will probably be recognized by his going to the polls with no opposition.

Friends of O. N. Lundberg, candidate for the office of register of deeds, is confident that he will be nominated. Mr. Lundberg believes he will poll a heavy Swedish vote. At the present time there is not a single Swede holding a county office in St. Louis county outside the county board. In the days before the primary nominations this was not so. Then it was generally recognized that the Swedes of the county were justly entitled to a place upon the county ticket. The primary nominations, however, resulted in the shutting out of any Swedish office holder. Mr. Lundberg believes that he is entitled to consideration upon this fact and will make a strong appeal for the Swede vote of the county.

Capt. D. E. Stevens is expected by his friends to make a strong bid for the office of sheriff. Capt. Stevens has lived in this city for a long number of years. He has been a member of the city council, has served in the interests of his party, and has for years been prominent in its councils. His long residence in Duluth has gained him hundreds of friends, who are confident that he will make a strong race for the office.

* * *

During the present week P. J. Ryan of Hibbing tiled for renomination for county commissioner from the Seventh district. Joseph W. Cummings has also filed for the Republican nomination for county commissioner from the Third district.

* * *

A most peculiar situation exists in regard to the office of clerk of the district court. J. P. Johnson apparently has a cinch upon the office. The office is a 4-year one; that is, it is intended to be a 4-year term office. Some time ago an incumbent of the office died, and Mr. Johnson was elected, presumably to fill out the unexpired term, two years of which were left. The constitution provides that those elected to this office shall hold for four years, however, but since there seemed a doubt about this, Mr. Johnson ran again two years later, and was elected for a 4-year term. In order that there might be no mistake about it, Mr. Johnson has been re-elected every two years since, each time for a 4-year term. If anybody should oppose him this time, he would be able to show that he was elected two years ago for a 4-year term, and that there is, therefore, no vacancy at this time for outsiders to try for. The feature of this is that as Mr. Johnson runs every two years, though he was elected two years before to serve four years, there never is any vacancy, and never will be, so long as the present method prevails. Mr. Johnson seems to have the game beaten to a frazzle.

The situation in the state arena has not changed appreciably during the week. There is still some talk of T. D. O'Brien, some talk of John Lind. M. Ringdahl, a resident of Polk county and a member of the state board of control, has been boomed by his friends during the past week. Mr. Ringdahl is a strong man with an executive ability that has been shown in his public service. His is a strict economist and has made an excellent record upon the state board of control.

* * *

"A persistent cry is still made for a third term for Johnson," said a prominent Duluth Democrat yesterday. "I have heard considerable demand for a third term for Johnson during the past week. I am in favor of his accepting a third term. I believe that the demand will become so strong that the governor cannot refuse it. Democrats throughout the state want to see the governor run for a third time."

From St. Paul comes the information that Jacobson will tour the state in an automobile. Candidates, you know, are at the present time compelled to pay their own fares, or have some one else pay them. The picture of "Jake" in a big, up-to-date touring car would seem as inconsistent as his refusal to commit himself upon his policies.

It is also stated that the story of the forkless pie is a political canard. Some of the more conservative members of the Republican party have seen that the story sprung by Frank Eddy at the state convention, went too far in its roughness. The picture of a candidate for the highest office in the state eating pie, even if mother made it, with a knife, is not calculated to gain any envied notoriety.

It is said that Mr. Jacobson denies that he ate pie with a knife, further stating that he has not eaten pie for years.

piece of pie since they were married. And this same Republican says that he has eaten with Jacobson at hotels numerous times and the man from Lac Qui Parle has always spurned the dyspepsia bringing pastry. It is not a matter of record whether Jake ate pie before he was married or not, but it is hardly likely that the Republicans will go that far back for campaign material.

Now that the pie issue has been taken out of the campaign, what will the Republicans dig up for an issue?

A little effort was made this week to make an effort out of the campaign contributions. Publicity for campaign funds was not very popular with the Republicans until lately. At the Chicago convention they turned down the proposiion. But since the Democrats declared for the idea at Denver, the Republicans, too, are in favor of it. The Taft campaign managers are going to make their campaign contributions public, after election. And this week the state central committee met here and, although it did not promise publicity of campaign contributions, they gave it out that there would be no funds with strings on, in other words, no tainted money.

In this latter stand they are only following the action of the Democrats for some time past. Frank Day, in speaking of the announcement made by the Republicans, said: "I am glad the Republicans have taken the stand they have, for it gives us a chance to emphasize not only the position we will take in the matter this year, but the position we have taken during the years that I have been manager of Democratic campaigns. I can frankly say that in the two campaigns I have acted as chairman not a dollar of tainted money has been received or spent by our committee. Even when it came to passes from the railroads we refused them. Governor Johnson was paying cash for his railroad tickets in his campaign travels, while Mr. Jacobson was using passes."

There is considerable dissatisfaction among the country press over the nomination of Judge Mills, and if the Democrats put up a strong candidate and make a little effort they can beat him. The following, an editorial from the Ortonville Herald-Star, with the comment by the Fairmont Sentinel, indicates the trend of sentiment:

"It is simply scandalous but nevertheless true that newspaper support is not all that is necessary when it comes to office seeking. Now in the case of Judge Mills, renominated for railroad commissioner, we don't remember having seen a friendly word for the judge in a single newspaper and yet he was nominated easily over J. H. Grass, who had practically the unanimous support of the country press of the state. Of course, Mr. Mills had the support of the railroads and one railroad offsets a good many newspapers.—Ortonville Herald-Star.

"That tells the whole story, and, coming from a Republican paper of influence and character, no one will question its reliability.

"Thousands of Republicans are ready to vote for any good man the Democrats may nominate against Judge Mills.

"The Sentinel believes that Hon. T. J. Knox, with his past record as railway commissioner, could be elected, and we should like to see him nominated."

The dissatisfaction with Mills, however, is interesting mainly in its relation to the governorship. People wondered why the interests that had been fighting Jacobson, when the people wanted him, should all be for him this year, but it is plain now that they consented to Jacobson's nomination on the condition that they have something to say about the rest of the ticket. As evidence of this may be noted the following from the Little Falls Herald:

"According to the Northfield News, the nomination of Mills was what the corporations demanded, in return for helping Jacobson to be nominated. Among the men in the conference where this was settled were Ed Hawkins, representing the steel trust; Senator E. E. Smith, the political agent of the railroads, and Senator Sullivan, attorney for the Lowry street railway interests. Jacobson will have to disown these interests, or he won't travel far.

Or the following from the Montevideo Leader:

"What puzzled so many Republicans weeks and months ago was the way the liquor and corporate interests indorsed and supported the candidacy of Jacobson for governor. It was a new move on the political checkerboard and some were constrained to say that Jake had evidently sold out to the 'niterests,' and had sold himself cheap. Others thought he was being sacrificed and that after using him to knock out Young at the convention, he would himself be knocked out at the polls. But they were all mistaken, for the interests know how to play it finer than that. It is true that there there was harmony in the convention, big shunks of it, and more harmony than enthusiasm, in fact. It is true that the lion and the lamb got close together, and that Jake, being the lamb, was accorded the highest honors and didn't have to "butt in," as is his wont, in order to get recognized. But after the convention was over it was discovered that while the lion and the lamb had lain down together, the lamb was on the inside. The platform had been fixed to suit the interests; a man had been nominated for lieutenant governor who would 'look after things;' another nomination, that of Mills for railroad commissioner, was highly satisfactory indeed to the interests, and Ed Young had been gotten rid of and everything was lovely and the goose hung high."

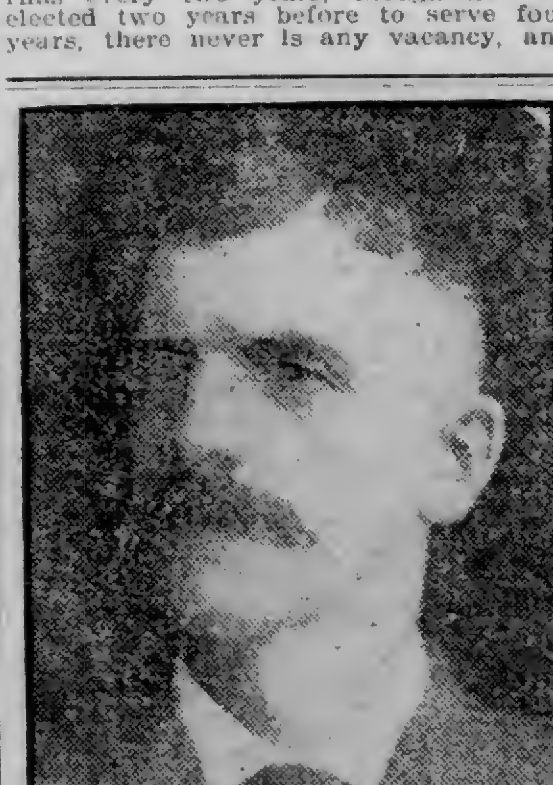
Just who the Democratic nominee will be will probably not be known or decided until the convention meets in Minneapolis, Aug. 19. There is no disposition to make up "a slate," nor anticipate the action of the convention. The convention will be a real deliberative assembly this time.

There has been considerable talk this week of Mayor Armson of Stillwater. Armson is a very popular man, a German by ancestry, prominently known among business men as well as among politicians, a good mixer and a man with a winning personality.

It seems quite certain that neither John Lind nor Congressman Hammond would consider the nomination, even if it were offered to them. John Lind has given a positive statement, through his personal friends and Congressman Hammond apparently intends going after another term in congress. His constituents think he can win, and they want him to win again and he will try.

JUNIUS.



Captain Darwin E. Stevens

Announces to his many friends in St. Louis county, and to all those interested in the "waking-up system" being applied to the office of sheriff, that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for that office.

"I fully realize the responsibilities pertaining to the office of sheriff, and that it is the most important office in the county to fill. There are many duties connected with this office that are vitally important to the people, and which, if not attended to properly, would cause the greatest inconvenience to those concerned.

"In the event of my election, I shall endeavor to perform my official duties promptly and efficiently.

D. E. STEVENS.

HUGHES WILLING TO RUN AGAIN

Will be Candidate for Renomination If Republicans Desire It.

Saranac Inn, N. Y., July 25.—Governor Charles E. Hughes will accept a renomination if the Republican party of this state desires him to again be a candidate. In a statement made public last night, the governor so declared himself and defined the reasons which, he says, are responsible for the action he has just taken.

The governor's statement follows:

"I have received so many inquiries as to my attitude toward a renomination that I have decided to make the following statement:

"Some time ago I said privately that I did not desire a renomination, and that I felt that I could not undertake to serve another term. This, however, was for reasons entirely personal. Upon further reflection, I am convinced that I have no right to regard these reasons as controlling, and that, if renominated, I ought to accept.

"But it is my desire that the will of the party to which I belong should be freely expressed and that it shall take such action as shall be most closely in accord with public sentiment. I believe that the people thoroughly understand the principle upon which I have sought to apply in my administration, and if they so desire, I shall regard it as a privilege and a duty to continue in office for another term.

"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

Outside of the statement the governor declined to make any further comment for publication, but made it clear that he regards the policies he has pursued since he assumed office, on Jan. 1, 1905, as a cause which should he continued. As he is sponsor for them, many of the governor's friends have expressed the opinion in letters to him that they can be carried out better if he is elected for another term.

That Governor Hughes intends to take an active part in the coming national Republican campaign is evident from the fact that he has accepted an invitation to speak at Youngstown, Ohio, on Sept. 5, at which time the Republican campaign will be opened in that state.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Industrial Plants Enlarge Operations, Stimulating the Retail Trade.

New York, July 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Industrial plants gradually enlarge operations, furnishing more work for wage earners, which stimulates retail trade, while favorable crop progress strengthens confidence in a continuance of recovery in business. New contracts for steel products are being placed with more freedom, and colliers resume plants that were closed during the financial flurry. Outside representatives of jobbers are numerous in the primary market for cotton goods, but operations are restricted, as is customary at this season.

Spinners see no profit on operations on the present basis and hence make no effort to get the small business that is offered. In fact, most propositions are rejected and the absence of concessions prevent any change in nominal quotations, although scarcely any transactions are made on the present basis. Export trade is also stagnant, although there is a little domestic trade in lines usually considered confined to foreign markets. The best inquiry is from South America and Manila. In the woolen goods divisions wholesale clothiers operate more liberally in spring lines. Thus far the better grades of woolens and worsteds have not been opened, but enough goods are offered to meet the requirements of buyers. Demand is restricted to fancy woolens of pronounced pattern and coloring, with little interest in staples. A large quantity of wool has been withdrawn from the London auction sale, which will close on Aug. 1.

New England footwear shops are still well occupied, but wholesalers have left the Boston market without placing any large volume of business, and Western jobbers have not continued to purchase as freely as opening sales promised. Prices are not changed, except where the increased cost of raw material has forced shoe manufacturers to advance figures, and little business is done on this basis, because they insist that general conditions do not warrant the rise that has occurred in hides and leather.

Leather is steady, except that tanners advanced prices on heavy oak soles and higher figures are named for belting butts. There is more inquiry at old rates, but few contracts are recorded at 37 cents, which is generally asked. Both Chicago packers and country hide markets tend upwards, cattle receipts showing a decrease. A further advance of a few cents is noted in dry hides, which are scarce.

NO LACK OF CANDIDATES FOR THE COUNTY OFFICES

More Competition for County Jobs Than Ever Before.

Democrats Promise to Have a Full Ticket in Field.

There will be no lack of competition for county offices at the coming primary election, when there will be more Republican contests than there has been in years. Out of all the county offices, there is at the present time only five offices for which there remains no competition. These are the offices of county surveyor, county coroner, county auditor, county treasurer and clerk of the district court. All of the other offices have one or more candidates besides the men who are candidates for re-election.

If the Democratic county committee carries out its promise to get out a full county ticket the competition will be continued at the general election. Whether the committee will be successful in its desire, though, remains to be seen. No doubt resolutions will be drafted at the county convention indorsing the candidacy of all Democrats who seek county offices, and the convention may also name candidates for these offices, but that action may not have the desired effect of getting candidates to file.

The committee may go this far and not meet with the response of having Democrats file for office. It is one thing to make resolutions indorsing candidates and to name candidates, and another to get these prospective candidates to file for office. However, it will not be for lack of effort upon the part of the members of the Democratic county committee, for they are going into the work of getting out a full county ticket with vim, and the members of the committee express themselves as confident of being able to get out a strong list of candidates.

It is not likely that Odin Halden, county auditor, will have any opposition for the office. Mr. Halden's service to the county has been of the highest efficiency and his right to another term seems to be generally recognized. There seems, too, little likelihood of defeating him. He has made friends from among the members of both parties by his capable administration of the office, which will probably be recognized by his going to the polls with no opposition.

Friends of O. N. Lundberg, candidate for the office of register of deeds, is confident that he will be nominated. Mr. Lundberg believes he will poll a heavy Swedish vote. At the present time there is not a single Swede holding a county office in St. Louis county outside the county board. In the days before the primary nominations this was not so. Then it was generally recognized that the Swedes of the county were justly entitled to a place upon the county ticket. The primary nominations, however, resulted in the shutting out of any Swedish office holder. Mr. Lundberg believes that he is entitled to consideration upon this fact and will make a strong appeal for the Swede vote of the county.

Capt. D. E. Stevens is expected by his friends to make a strong bid for the office of sheriff. Capt. Stevens has lived in this city for a long number of years. He has been a member of the city council, has served in the interests of his party, and has for years been prominent in its councils. His long residence in Duluth has gained him hundreds of friends, who are confident that he will make a strong race for the office.

* * *

During the present week P. J. Ryan of Hibbing filed for renomination for county commissioner from the Seventh district. Joseph W. Cummings has also filed for the Republican nomination for county commissioner from the Third district.

* * *

A most peculiar situation exists in regard to the office of clerk of the district court. J. P. Johnson apparently has a cinch upon the office. The office is a 4-year one; that is, it is intended to be a 4-year term office. Some time ago an incumbent of the office died, and Mr. Johnson was elected, presumably to fill out the unexpired term, two years of which were left. The constitution provides that those elected to this office shall hold for four years, however, but since there seemed a doubt about this, Mr. Johnson ran again two years later, and was elected for a 4-year term. In order that there might be no mistake about it, Mr. Johnson has been re-elected every two years since, each time for a 4-year term. If anybody should oppose him this time, he would be able to show that he was elected two years ago for a 4-year term, and that there is, therefore, no vacancy at this time for outsiders to try for. The feature of this is that as Mr. Johnson runs every two years, though he was elected two years before to serve four years, there never is any vacancy, and never will be, so long as the present method prevails. Mr. Johnson seems to have the game beaten to a frazzle.

The situation in the state arena has not changed appreciably during the week. There is still some talk of T. D. O'Brien, some talk of John Lind. M. Ringdahl, a resident of Polk county and a member of the state board of control, has been boomed by his friends during the past week. Mr. Ringdahl is a strong man with an executive ability that has been shown in his public service. His is a strict economist and has made an excellent record upon the state board of control.

"A persistent cry is still made for a third term for Johnson," said a prominent Duluth Democrat yesterday. "I have heard considerable demand for a third term for Johnson during the past week. I am in favor of his accepting a third term. I believe that the demand will become so strong that the governor cannot refuse it. Democrats throughout the state want to see the governor run for a third time."

From St. Paul comes the information that Jacobson will tour the state in an automobile. Candidates, you know, are at the present time compelled to pay their own fares, or have some one else pay them. The picture of "Jake" in a big, up-to-date touring car would seem as inconsistent as his refusal to commit himself upon his policies.

It is also stated that the story of the forkless pie is a political canard. Some of the more conservative members of the Republican party have seen that the story sprung by Frank Eddy at the state convention, went too far in its roughness. The picture of a candidate for the highest office in the state eating pie, even if mother made it, with a knife, is not calculated to gain any envied notoriety.

It is said that Mr. Jacobson denies that he ate pie with a knife, further stating that he has not eaten pie for years.

Captain Darwin E. Stevens

Announces to his many friends in St. Louis county, and to all those interested in the "waking-up system" being applied to the office of sheriff, that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for that office.

"I fully realize the responsibilities pertaining to the office of sheriff, and that it is the most important office in the county to fill. There are many duties connected with this office that are vitally important to the people, and which, if not attended to properly, would cause the greatest inconvenience to those concerned.

"In the event of my election, I shall endeavor to perform my official duties promptly and efficiently.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE DISTRESSED OVER LOSS OF THEIR CHIEF PLANK

piece of pie since they were married. And this same Republican says that he has eaten with Jacobson at hotels numerous times and the man from Lac Qui Parle has always spurned the dyspepsia bringing pastry. It is not a matter of record whether Jake ate pie before he was married or not, but it is hardly likely that the Republicans will go that far back for campaign material.

Now that the pie issue has been taken out of the campaign, what will the Republicans dig up for an issue?

A little effort was made this week to make an effort out of the campaign contributions. Publicity for campaign funds was not very popular with the Republicans until lately. At the Chicago convention they turned down the proposion But since the Democrats declared for the idea at Denver, the Republicans, too, are in favor of it. The Taft campaign managers are going to make their campaign contributions public, after election. And this week the state central committee met here and, although it did not promise publicity of campaign contributions, they gave it out that there would be no funds with strings on, in other words, no tainted money.

In this latter stand they are only following the action of the Democrats for some time past. Frank Day, in speaking of the announcement made by the Republicans, said: "I am glad the Republicans have taken the stand they have, for it gives us a chance to emphasize not only the position we will take in the matter this year, but the position we have taken during the years that I have been manager of Democratic campaigns. I can frankly say that in the two campaigns I have acted as chairman not a dollar of tainted money has been received or spent by our committee. Even when it came to passes from the railroads we refused them. Governor Johnson was paying cash for his railroad tickets in his campaign travels, while Mr. Jacobson was using passes."

There is considerable dissatisfaction among the country press over the nomination of Judge Mills, and if the Democrats put up a strong candidate and make a little effort they can beat him. The following, an editorial from the Ortonville Herald-Star, with the comment by the Fairmont Sentinel, indicates the trend of sentiment:

"It is simply scandalous but nevertheless true that newspaper support is not all that is necessary when it comes to office seeking. Now in the case of Judge Mills, renominated for railroad commissioner, we don't remember having seen a friendly word for the judge in a single newspaper and yet he was nominated easily over J. H. Grass, who had practically the unanimous support of the country press of the state. Of course, Mr. Mills had the support of the railroads and one railroad offsets a good many newspapers.—Ortonville Herald-Star.

"That tells the whole story, and, coming from a Republican paper of influence and character, no one will question its reliability.

"Thousands of Republicans are ready to vote for any good man the Democrats may nominate against Judge Mills.

"The Sentinel believes that Hon. T. J. Knox, with his past record as railway commissioner, could be elected, and we should like to see him nominated."

The dissatisfaction with Mills, however, is interesting mainly in its relation to the governorship. People wondered why the interests that had been fighting Jacobson, when the people wanted him, should all be for him this year, but it is plain now that they consented to Jacobson's nomination on the condition that they have something to say about the rest of the ticket. As evidence of this may be noted the following from the Little Falls Herald:

"According to the Northfield News, the nomination of Mills was what the corporations demanded, in return for helping Jacobson to be nominated. Among the men in the conference where this was settled were Ed Hawkins, representing the steel trust; Senator E. E. Smith, the political agent of the railroads, and Senator Sullivan, attorney for the Lowry street railway interests. Jacobson will have to disown these interests, or he won't travel far.

Or the following from the Montevideo Leader:

"What puzzled so many Republicans weeks and months ago was the way the liquor and corporate interests indorsed and supported the candidacy of Jacobson for governor. It was a new move on the political checkerboard and some were constrained to say that Jake had evidently sold out to the 'niterests,' and had sold himself cheap. Others thought he was being sacrificed and that after using him to knock out Young at the convention, he would himself be knocked out at the polls. But they were all mistaken, for the interests know how to play it finer than that. It is true that there there was harmony in the convention, big shunks of it, and more harmony than enthusiasm, in fact. It is true that the lion and the lamb got close together, and that Jake, being the lamb, was accorded the highest honors and didn't have to "butt in," as is his wont, in order to get recognized. But after the convention was over it was discovered that while the lion and the lamb had lain down together, the lamb was on the inside. The platform had been fixed to suit the interests; a man had been nominated for lieutenant governor who would look after things; another nomination, that of Mills for railroad commissioner, was highly satisfactory indeed to the interests, and Ed Young had been gotten rid of and everything was lovely and the goose hung high."

Just who the Democratic nominee will be will probably not be known or decided until the convention meets in Minneapolis, Aug. 19. There is no disposition to make up "a slate," nor anticipate the action of the convention. The convention will be a real deliberative assembly this time.

There has been considerable talk this week of Mayor Armson of Stillwater. Armson is a very popular man, a German by ancestry, prominently known among business men as well as among politicians, a good mixer and a man with a winning personality.

It seems quite certain that neither John Lind nor Congressman Hammond would consider the nomination, even if it were offered to them. John Lind has given a positive statement, through his personal friends and Congressman Hammond apparently intends going after another term in congress. His constituents think he can win, and they want him to win again and he will try.

ARMLESS MAN LIKES HIS BEER

Ordered Out of Town by Police Court Judge.

The police have ordered Victor Hill, an armless wanderer, out of town He has been in jail so often that the attendants there are tired of him. Being without arms, he cannot dress, undress or feed himself, and is therefore a constant bother. He is able to drink without help, and likes intoxicants so well that frequently he appears in court and is given a jail sentence.

The novelty of seeing a man without arms drink beer and whiskey without assistance appeals to many men to such an extent that they buy him drinks, so he gets drunk without any expense to himself. Just how he lives, no one knows. He has no money, and, of course, is unable to work. The judge yesterday made him promise that he would leave town immediately.

HUGHES WILLING TO RUN AGAIN

Will be Candidate for Renomination If Republicans Desire It.

Saranac Inn, N. Y., July 25.—Governor Charles E. Hughes will accept a renomination if the Republican party of this state desires him to again be a candidate. In a statement made public last night, the governor so declared himself and defined the reasons which, he says, are responsible for the action he has just taken.

The governor's statement follows:

"I have received so many inquiries as to my attitude toward a renomination that I have decided to make the following statement:

"Some time ago I said privately that I did not desire a renomination, and that I felt that I could not undertake to serve another term. This, however, was for reasons entirely personal. Upon further reflection, I am convinced that I have no right to regard these reasons as controlling, and that, if renominated, I ought to accept.

"But it is my desire that the will of the party to which I belong should be freely expressed and that it shall take such action as shall be most closely in accord with public sentiment. I believe that the people thoroughly understand the principle upon which I have sought to apply in my administration, and if they so desire, I shall regard it as a privilege and a duty to continue in office for another term.

"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

Outside of the statement the governor declined to make any further comment for publication, but made it clear that he regards the policies he has pursued since he assumed office, on Jan. 1, 1905, as a cause which should be continued. As he is sponsor for them, many of the governor's friends have expressed the opinion in letters to him that they can be carried out better if he is elected for another term.

That Governor Hughes intends to take an active part in the coming national Republican campaign is evident from the fact that he has accepted an invitation to speak at Youngstown, Ohio, on Sept. 5, at which time the Republican campaign will be opened in that state.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Industrial Plants Enlarge Operations, Stimulating the Retail Trade.

New York, July 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Industrial plants gradually enlarge operations, furnishing more work for wage earners, which stimulates retail trade, while favorable crop progress strengthens confidence in a continuance of recovery in business. New contracts for steel products are being placed with more freedom, and colliers resume plants that were closed during the financial flurry. Outside representatives of jobbers are numerous in the primary market for cotton goods, but operations are restricted, as is customary at this season.

Spinners see no profit on operations on the present basis and hence make no effort to get the small business that is offered. In fact, most propositions are rejected and the absence of concessions prevent any change in nominal quotations, although scarcely any transactions are made on the present basis. Export trade is also stagnant, although there is a little domestic trade in lines usually considered confined to foreign markets. The best inquiry is from South America and Manila. In the woolen goods divisions wholesale clothiers operate more liberally in spring lines. Thus far the better grades of woolens and worsteds have not been opened, but enough goods are offered to meet the requirements of buyers. Demand is restricted to fancy woolens of pronounced pattern and coloring, with little interest in staples. A large quantity of wool has been withdrawn from the London auction sale, which will close on Aug. 1.

New England footwear shops are still well occupied, but wholesalers have left the Boston market without placing any large volume of business, and Western jobbers have not continued to purchase as freely as opening sales promised. Prices are not changed, except where the increased cost of raw material has forced shoe manufacturers to advance figures, and little business is done on this basis, because they insist that general conditions do not warrant the rise that has occurred in hides and leather.

Leather is steady, except that tanners advanced prices on heavy oak soles and higher figures are named for belting butts. There is more inquiry at old rates, but few contracts are recorded at 37 cents, which is generally asked. Both Chicago packers and country hide markets tend upwards, cattle receipts showing a decrease. A further advance of a few cents is noted in dry hides, which are scarce.

MINING AT TOWER.

Operations Have Started Rather Unexpectedly in That Section.

Tower, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is no little gratification here over orders being received by Manager Chamberlain to start a steam shovel at work and to begin loading ore from the pocket. Loading, the first here this season, has accordingly commenced.

Late Tuesday in Shaft No. 8 on the fifteenth level, the original vein of ore, which has been lost for the last six months, was struck. It is not known at this time how large a body of the ore has been located, but the authorities are of the opinion that it will be at least what it formerly was.

For the past two months or more there has only been about 130 men employed at the Soudan mines, all the unmarried men having been laid off. Now that the ore market is recovering and showing more activity every day, it is expected that very soon the force will be increased again.

After Supper Sale

We were quite sure that there would be no lack of buyers at the first Saturday Night Sale. The crowd came—it saw and was conquered—it needed no miscrosope to discover the remarkable values. The merchandise was here, exactly as we advertised it—the prices, well, we only know that action began at the stroke of the 7 o'clock bell, and continued unabated until closing time. One can bring a crowd with an offering of big values, but one won't do business unless the prices match the advertisement. We did business. We have prepared for the second After Supper Sale, with another great budget of bargains. We will see a large percentage of the people who came to the first—and a host of friends—because there has been much talk of the plums that were picked at the first sale. So you had better come, too—another crop is ready for those who like to buy goods at retail, at less than most stores pay wholesale.

NOTE—No telephone orders will be accepted—and none of these bargains will be sold to dealers!

ANGERMEIER VICTORIOUS

Can Keep Money Paid Him for Medical Purposes.

The jury trying the case brought by Daniel Donovan against Emil Angermeier yesterday afternoon returned a verdict in municipal court in favor of the defendant. Donovan sued to recover $211.75 paid by his father to Angermeier for cancer treatment, charging that the latter was an unlicensed physician, and that he had no knowledge of medicine or the effects of drugs which he prescribed.

In his address to the jury, A. E. McManus, attorney for Donovan, made a stirring plea for the old man, who, he says, has suffered intense agonies from improper medical treatment, and who now lies at the point of death at St. Mary's hospital.

The jury did not find that Angermeier made any misrepresentations to Donovan.

SALOONKEEPER SHEDS BLOOD

Shoots and Kills Woodsman at Mercer, Wis.

Hurley, Wis., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The price of the drinks in William La Modes' saloon at Mercer, near here, resulted in a killing Thursday night in which La Mode, the proprietor of the saloon, is alleged to have killed Joe Butch a woodsman, as the result of a row over the price of the drinks. La Mode is under arrest and a coroner's inquest is looking into the death of Butch today.

According to the stories of the affair Butch and several companions were drinking and making merry in the saloon when a question arose over the price of the drinks and Butch and La Mode had words which led to blows. In the fight which followed La Mode got the worst of it until the light in the saloon was knocked over and extinguished. During the time while it was being lighted by nonparticipants in the fight, La Mode had drawn his revolver and as soon as the lamp was lighted he fired point blank at Butch before he could be restrained. The bullet struck Butch just below the heart and death was instantaneous. The body laid in the saloon until the coroner arrived from Hurley, and with him, Sheriff McGeehan, who brought La Mode to Hurley.

INEBRIATE HOSPITAL LAW

Is Upheld by the State Supreme Court.

St. Paul, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Important among the numerous opinions announced by the supreme court yesterday, as stated in The Herald dispatches, was that written by Chief Justice Start in which the constitutionality of the law passed by the legislature of 1907 known as the inebriate hospital law which was attacked by the city of Morris on the ground it imposed a tax upon public funds is upheld. The case was heard in the district court of Stevens county, the court holding the law constitutional and appeal was taken to the supremo court, which now affirms the lower court.

The law, among other things, provides that 2 per cent of the proceeds of all liquor licenses issued by municipalities shall be paid into the state treasury, to be held as a fund for the establishment and maintenance of a hospital farm for inebriates. The state board of control is charged with the expenditure of the fund and given authority to purchase land for the hospital farm, to erect buildings and to maintain the institution.

The annual proceeds, under the law, were estimated at about $75,000. Ramsey county's share alone being in the neighborhood of $8,000. The purpose of the board of control is to permit the fund to accumulate until a sufficient sum is realized to purchase the necessary land and erect the buildings.

WE DEVOTE our entire time to the decorative business, and to that only—in short, we're "up and doing." Specialists in the house decorative art. There's a little gap between our work and that of the majority of decorators—just the difference of a little more innate skill, and a little more artistic training. Then there's a little difference in the materials used, for we keep from diluted or "cheap" paint things. Yet the man who seriously considers the dollars need not pass us by as "too expensive." Not so, for the first cost is no more than others ask, and the superior appearance and lasting qualities of first grade appeal to the economical man from the value standpoint. Estimates furnished. WOMAN WAS WARLIKE

Mrs. Grahun Admits She Threatened to Shoot Neighbor.

Furnishes Bond of $50 to Keep the Peace.

Mrs. Isabelle Grahun of Seventy-first avenue west this morning, in the West Duluth justice court, admitted that she had threatened to shoot John Seymore, a neighbor, with a revolver unless he stayed off the lot on which her home is built. She was put under bonds of $50 by Judge Flack to keep the peace in the future.

Mrs. Grahun seems to be the head of the Grahun family and apparently tried to run the neighbors about her home with the same high hand that she governs her husband. According to her own testimony, she had stood on the porch of her home, and with a loaded revolver in her hand threatened to take the life of John Seymore if he did not immediately make himself very scarce about the place. She did not seem to be the least bit abashed about telling the story of the manner in which she conducted herself.

It appears that there is some sort of a family feud between the Grahun and the Seymore families. Seymore is said to have accused the Grahun children of stealing things from his home and Mrs. Grahun resented it. Seymore came over to express himself on the subject to Mr. Grahun at the front gate, when he was ordered away from the house by Mrs. Grahun, who ordered her husband in doors as soon as he could get there. Neither men seem to have loitered much after she had appeared on the scene. This morning Mrs. Grahun furnished her bonds with many protests and promised to be less warlike in the future.

Besides the damage it has done, the overflow is very offensive and insanitary. Immediate steps will be taken by the board to investigate the matter and remedy it.

OLYMPIC RACES ARE FINISHED

Americans Win the 1,600-Meter Event, Last of Series.

London, July 25.—The final in the 110-meter hurdle race in the Olympic games was won by F. C. Smithson, Multnomah A. C., J. C. Garrels, Chicago A. C. was second, and A. B. Shaw, Dartmouth college, third. Time 15 seconds, which is the world's record. Smithson came in two yards in front of Garrels.

The final in the 1,500-meter swim was won by Taylor, United Kingdom. Battersby, United Kingdom, was second, and Beaurepaire, Australia, was third. Battersby, who was a close second, continued to the mile post in an effort to make a new record. He covered the distance in 24 minutes, 33 seconds, which is 9 3-5 seconds better than the previous record.

The final in the 1,600-meter relay race was won easily by the American team. The German team was second and the Hungarian third. Time 3 minutes, 29 2-5 seconds. The Americans, at no time were passed, and each man in turn increased the team's lead.

This was the last event of the Olympic sports and the Stars and Stripes, which has been so much in evidence during the fortnight that the contests lasted was the last flag to be officially unfurled at the staff in the center of the arena, from which the winning country in each event has been signalized by the display of its natonal emblem.

SAYS THE GOWNS ARE "INDECENT"

Mrs. Frank Leslie Talks of Gowns Worn in Europe.

New York, July 25.—"Indecent" is what the Baroness de Bazus, formerly Mrs. Frank Leslie, has to say of the latest European cut of women's gowns. The baroness has returned from a two months' visit in London and Paris. She was accompanied by her maid only.

There is a vast amount of stupidity abroad, according to the baroness. Stupidity establishment is the central idea.

"I didn't enjoy London and Paris a bit," she said. "Instead of being able to evolve a few ideas of my own, I was used by everybody as a pin cushion. Everybody stuck pins in me, and I am full of pin pricks."

The baroness said that men might not understand what she meant by the pin cushion figure of speech, but that the women would know. From her expression it seemed that the men might understand the classification of people abroad better if the word "mutt" were used.

"Now that I am home again," she said, "I shall be able to put a few of my ideas into form and show the people that I am really still alive and have ideas of my own.

"Indecent is the way to describe the dresses worn. I enjoyed some things about the dresses. All the French and English women wear only the clinging dress, with no skirt beneath it.

"The skirt is cut tight and the waist short. Indecent? Yes, and artistic. That is, it is artistic on young and slender women.

"Unfortunately, not all the wearers of the clinging dress are young and slender. It is the directoire gown much modified."

Though much bored by her reception abroad, the baroness looked the picture of health. But she says she will prefer her native land to further association with such tiresome personages as were foisted upon her when she was in Europe.

She said that London and Paris are filled with Americans. More so than ever before, she said. The fact that the Anglo-Franco exposition is a success is a drawing card.

EXPECTS 15 CENT METAL

Irving J. Sturgis Thinks Copper Will be There Soon.

Share Market Has Good Bulge During the Day.

"The course of a hundred days should see copper metal selling at 15 cents a pound," said Irving J. Sturgis of the Boston brokerage firm of Gay & Sturgis, who is in the city, during a conversation with a Herald reporter this afternoon.

"In the East the demand for the metal is steadily improving and there are all kinds of signs of better times. I learned just before I left the East that the General Electric company's plant at Lynn, Mass., was running 60 per cent of its capacity, whereas last February it was running but 35 per cent. Other industries are picking up and the demand for copper will increase.

"The betterment of the metal market will see advances in the share market as well. I do not look for any abnormal bulges this fall, but I think all the good issues will be selling at high prices. Many of them are showing strength now."

Mr. Sturgis will leave Duluth this evening on the Tionesta for the Copper country.

The copper stocks had a good advance during the short session of the market today. North Butte opened at $75, advanced to $76.50 and closed at $76 bid and $76.25 asked. Amalgamated opened at $72.25, declined to $72, rallied to $73.87½ and closed at $73.75 bid and $73.87½ asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $10.75, declined to $10.62½, rallied to $10.75 and closed at $10.75 bid and $11 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $25.37½, advanced to $26.12½ and closed at $26 bid and $26.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $116, declined to $115.75, rallied to $116 and closed at $116 bid and $117 asked. Anaconda opened at $44.87½, declined to $44.75 and rallied by the close to $46.12½ bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $12.87½, declined to $12.75 and closed at $12.75 bid and $12.87½ asked; Denn-Arizona at $2.75 and closed at $2.62½ bid and $2.75 asked; Calumet & Sonora at $6.75 and $6.62½ and closed at $6.50 bid and $6.75 asked; Butte & Superior at 87c and closed at 86c bid and 87c asked; Cliff at $1.50 and closed at $1.50 bid and $1.62½ asked; Copper Queen of Idaho at $1.25 and $1.37½ and closed at $1.37½ bid and $1.50 asked, and Red Warrior at $3 and closed at $3 bid and $3.12½ asked.

Globe was inactive and closed at $3.87½ bid and $4 asked; Butte-Ballaklava at $6.75 bid, and $6.87½ asked.

Black Mountain sold at $3.25 and closed at $3.25 bid and $3.12½ asked.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial says:

"Copper is stronger. Lake is 13⅛ to 13¼ cents, and electrolytic is selling for 13 cents per pound. More copper has been sold this week than in the three or four weeks preceding. Domestic consumers are coming into the market. That a few of them have built up considerable confidence in the future is reflected in their complaints because they are unable to buy copper for October delivery at present prices. I understand that none of the large producers are willing to sell for later than September delivery at quotations here given. Some interests express surprise that buyers have been supplied so freely without any material advance in prices. As has been stated in these letters previously, there is probably about two months' production of copper awaiting sale. The greater portion of it is being held for slightly higher rices; and fear that competitive selling might cause a sudden reacton is causing many producing interests to meet the demand at about 13 cents.

"Real improvement is beginning to be noted in the brass trade. A number of foundries have increased their working forces recently, and all of them are buying more copper than for several months past. There is also an improved demand for copper wire, and the rolling mills are quite busy, as might be expected with copper at its present low price.

"Foreign buyers probably will not follow the market advance. Nearly all of the British and European consumers bought in excess of their immediate requirements early in the year, going on the principle that the metal should be secured when it was cheap. They can now well afford to retire from the market and await developments.

"It is a very good opinion that the price of copper will hold between 13 and 14 cents during the coming three months. The statistical position is not quite strong enough to warrant the expectation of any considerable advance. While the consumptive demand is increasing, it will be some time before it exceeds the current volume of production. The prospect is good, however, that there will be an active market and that supplies in the hands of producers will diminish rather than increase.

"The cost o fproducing copper is believed to be 1 cent per pound lower now than it was a year ago, due to curtailment by some of the high cost producers, reductions in wages, increased efficiency of labor and lower cost of supplies. Most of the mines, also, are working on a slightly higher grade of ore, and some of the low cost producers are forcing production somewhat. I believe that the world's copper is now being made at an average cost of 9½ cents, and that there is an average profit of 3½ cents per pound on all of the copper going to market. This is a very good business profit, and it must be expected, therefore, that production will have a tendency to increase for some time to come.

"The theory has been advanced that because of the constantly increasing copper output in this country and elsewhere, the price must necessarily decline. I know that it is possible for copper prices to advance in spite of a rapidly increasing production. In 1901 I visited a large number of mines in the Southwest and found several of them preparing to increase their output, or to begin producing on a considerable scale. A few months after my return, copper sold around 11 cents. Notwithstanding the certainty that production would increase, I was very bullish on copper when it was at bottom prices. I knew that consumption would increase also. Since 1901 the world's output has increased approximately 50 per cent, and in the same period the price of copper advanced at one time 125 per cent, to 26 cents. Even in the present period of business depression the price is higher than it was then. I do not expect copper to sell at 11 cents again in the lifetime of the present generation. When general business conditions get back to normal, copper should sell between 15 and 17 cents per pound."

HOUND'S LONG CHASE.

Forest and Stream: Following close on the heels of a big gray fox, running for five days and nights, covering a distance of probably 200 miles through the woods and along the sandy shores of Cape Cod, only to have the fox escape by wearing him out, is the record of a hound 4 years old, one of the three valuable dogs that a party of hunters recently took with them to hunt foxes in the woods at Wellfleet.

The dog chased the fox, or perhaps several foxes—for it may have switched off from one to another in its travels—and did not show up after starting the fox. After waiting for hours for the dog to return the hunters went back to the village expecting the dog would give up the chase. Night came on and they became alarmed, fearing the dog had been lost.

A local gunner who accompanied the fox hunters into the woods said he would find the dog and ship him home the next day. Inquiries were made through the villages, but no one had seen the dog and it appeared as if he must have been drowned in crossing the swamps on the thin ice. At the end of five days a dog was seen following a big gray fox through the village of East Wareham.

The man who saw the fox as it limped through his back yard rushed into the house for his gun. As he came out he saw a hound limping along and vainly trying to bark; the fox had disappeared and the dog, which could hardly stand, dropped in its tracks nearly dead from exhaustion. The man gave the dog food and drink in small quantities and in a few days it seemed to be all right. On the collar was the name of the owner, to whom the man wrote, and in a few days he came after it. It was then learned that the dog started the fox in Wellfleet and for five days and nights had been chasing.

He had been seen chasing the fox at Ellisville, on the shores of Cap Cod bay, and near White island in the cranberry district; he had crossed the harbors and rivers and had given up when nearly dead in East Wareham, sixty miles from where the hunt was started. It was said, "The dog was a mere skeleton and the fox seemed as if he had been running for a month."

There are instances on Cape Cod where dogs have followed foxes for days at a time, but none of the old gunners remember any such performance as this one.

WE DEVOTE our entire time to the decorative business, and to that only—in short, we're "up and doing." Specialists in the house decorative art. There's a little gap between our work and that of the majority of decorators—just the difference of a little more innate skill, and a little more artistic training. Then there's a little difference in the materials used, for we keep from diluted or "cheap" paint things. Yet the man who seriously considers the dollars need not pass us by as "too expensive." Not so, for the first cost is no more than others ask, and the superior appearance and lasting qualities of first grade appeal to the economical man from the value standpoint. Estimates furnished. WOMAN WAS WARLIKE

Mrs. Grahun Admits She Threatened to Shoot Neighbor.

Furnishes Bond of $50 to Keep the Peace.

Mrs. Isabelle Grahun of Seventy-first avenue west this morning, in the West Duluth justice court, admitted that she had threatened to shoot John Seymore, a neighbor, with a revolver unless he stayed off the lot on which her home is built. She was put under bonds of $50 by Judge Flack to keep the peace in the future.

Mrs. Grahun seems to be the head of the Grahun family and apparently tried to run the neighbors about her home with the same high hand that she governs her husband. According to her own testimony, she had stood on the porch of her home, and with a loaded revolver in her hand threatened to take the life of John Seymore if he did not immediately make himself very scarce about the place. She did not seem to be the least bit abashed about telling the story of the manner in which she conducted herself.

It appears that there is some sort of a family feud between the Grahun and the Seymore families. Seymore is said to have accused the Grahun children of stealing things from his home and Mrs. Grahun resented it. Seymore came over to express himself on the subject to Mr. Grahun at the front gate, when he was ordered away from the house by Mrs. Grahun, who ordered her husband in doors as soon as he could get there. Neither men seem to have loitered much after she had appeared on the scene. This morning Mrs. Grahun furnished her bonds with many protests and promised to be less warlike in the future.

W. G. Vivian Killed.

Word has been received in West Duluth, by Mrs. Clara Hall of 5108 Cody street, that her brother, William G. He leaves four brothers and two sisters, living in West Duluth—Charles, James, Henry, George, and Minnie Vivian and Mrs. Clara Hall.

Sewer Overflows.

In a complaint to the board of public works, the trustees of the Church of Our Savior, corner of Wadena street and Fifty-seventh avenue west, state that a defective sewer in that vicinity has done considerable damage to the church. According to the complaint, the organ and a great deal of the furniture has been injured by the water that floods the building at times from the sewer. Besides the damage it has done, the overflow is very offensive and insanitary. Immediate steps will be taken by the board to investigate the matter and remedy it.

Battersby, who was a close second, continued to the mile post in an effort to make a new record. He covered the distance in 24 minutes, 33 seconds, which is 9 3-5 seconds better than the previous record.

The final in the 1,600-meter relay race was won easily by the American team. The German team was second and the Hungarian third. Time 3 minutes, 29 2-5 seconds. The Americans, at no time were passed, and each man in turn increased the team's lead.

This was the last event of the Olympic sports and the Stars and Stripes, which has been so much in evidence during the fortnight that the contests lasted was the last flag to be officially unfurled at the staff in the center of the arena, from which the winning country in each event has been signalized by the display of its natonal emblem.

SAYS THE GOWNS ARE "INDECENT"

Mrs. Frank Leslie Talks of Gowns Worn in Europe.

New York, July 25.—"Indecent" is what the Baroness de Bazus, formerly Mrs. Frank Leslie, has to say of the latest European cut of women's gowns. The baroness has returned from a two months' visit in London and Paris. She was accompanied by her maid only.

There is a vast amount of stupidity abroad, according to the baroness. Stupidity establishment is the central idea.

"I didn't enjoy London and Paris a bit," she said. "Instead of being able to evolve a few ideas of my own, I was used by everybody as a pin cushion. Everybody stuck pins in me, and I am full of pin pricks."

The baroness said that men might not understand what she meant by the pin cushion figure of speech, but that the women would know. From her expression it seemed that the men might understand the classification of people abroad better if the word "mutt" were used.

"Now that I am home again," she said, "I shall be able to put a few of my ideas into form and show the people that I am really still alive and have ideas of my own.

"Indecent is the way to describe the dresses worn. I enjoyed some things about the dresses. All the French and English women wear only the clinging dress, with no skirt beneath it.

"The skirt is cut tight and the waist short. Indecent? Yes, and artistic. That is, it is artistic on young and slender women.

"Unfortunately, not all the wearers of the clinging dress are young and slender. It is the directoire gown much modified."

Though much bored by her reception abroad, the baroness looked the picture of health. But she says she will prefer her native land to further association with such tiresome personages as were foisted upon her when she was in Europe.

She said that London and Paris are filled with Americans. More so than ever before, she said. The fact that the Anglo-Franco exposition is a success is a drawing card.

THREE LIVES LOST.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Three lives were lost, several persons were injured and much damage was done by severe electrical storms in Eastern Pennsylvania and in New Jersey last night and early today.

Absolutely all packet teas and most bulk teas show the grocer a larger profit than "Salada," but none give the consumer as much satisfaction.

EXPECTS 15 CENT METAL

Irving J. Sturgis Thinks Copper Will be There Soon.

Share Market Has Good Bulge During the Day.

"The course of a hundred days should see copper metal selling at 15 cents a pound," said Irving J. Sturgis of the Boston brokerage firm of Gay & Sturgis, who is in the city, during a conversation with a Herald reporter this afternoon.

"In the East the demand for the metal is steadily improving and there are all kinds of signs of better times. I learned just before I left the East that the General Electric company's plant at Lynn, Mass., was running 60 per cent of its capacity, whereas last February it was running but 35 per cent. Other industries are picking up and the demand for copper will increase.

"The betterment of the metal market will see advances in the share market as well. I do not look for any abnormal bulges this fall, but I think all the good issues will be selling at high prices. Many of them are showing strength now."

Mr. Sturgis will leave Duluth this evening on the Tionesta for the Copper country.

The copper stocks had a good advance during the short session of the market today. North Butte opened at $75, advanced to $76.50 and closed at $76 bid and $76.25 asked. Amalgamated opened at $72.25, declined to $72, rallied to $73.87½ and closed at $73.75 bid and $73.87½ asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $10.75, declined to $10.62½, rallied to $10.75 and closed at $10.75 bid and $11 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $25.37½, advanced to $26.12½ and closed at $26 bid and $26.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $116, declined to $115.75, rallied to $116 and closed at $116 bid and $117 asked. Anaconda opened at $44.87½, declined to $44.75 and rallied by the close to $46.12½ bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $12.87½, declined to $12.75 and closed at $12.75 bid and $12.87½ asked; Denn-Arizona at $2.75 and closed at $2.62½ bid and $2.75 asked; Calumet & Sonora at $6.75 and $6.62½ and closed at $6.50 bid and $6.75 asked; Butte & Superior at 87c and closed at 86c bid and 87c asked; Cliff at $1.50 and closed at $1.50 bid and $1.62½ asked; Copper Queen of Idaho at $1.25 and $1.37½ and closed at $1.37½ bid and $1.50 asked, and Red Warrior at $3 and closed at $3 bid and $3.12½ asked.

Globe was inactive and closed at $3.87½ bid and $4 asked; Butte-Balaklava at $6.75 bid and $6.87½ asked.

Black Mountain sold at $3.25 and closed at $3.25 bid and $3.12½ asked.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial says:

"Copper is stronger. Lake is 13⅛ to 13¼ cents, and electrolytic is selling for 13 cents per pound. More copper has been sold this week than in the three or four weeks preceding. Domestic consumers are coming into the market. That a few of them have built up considerable confidence in the future is reflected in their complaints because they are unable to buy copper for October delivery at present prices. I understand that none of the large producers are willing to sell for later than September delivery at quotations here given. Some interests express surprise that buyers have been supplied so freely without any material advance in prices. As has been stated in these letters previously, there is probably about two months' production of copper awaiting sale. The greater portion of it is being held for slightly higher rices; and fear that competitive selling might cause a sudden reacton is causing many producing interests to meet the demand at about 13 cents.

"Real improvement is beginning to be noted in the brass trade. A number of foundries have increased their working forces recently, and all of them are buying more copper than for several months past. There is also an improved demand for copper wire, and the rolling mills are quite busy, as might be expected with copper at its present low price.

"Foreign buyers probably will not follow the market advance. Nearly all of the British and European consumers bought in excess of their immediate requirements early in the year, going on the principle that the metal should be secured when it was cheap. They can now well afford to retire from the market and await developments.

"It is a very good opinion that the price of copper will hold between 13 and 14 cents during the coming three months. The statistical position is not quite strong enough to warrant the expectation of any considerable advance. While the consumptive demand is increasing, it will be some time before it exceeds the current volume of production. The prospect is good, however, that there will be an active market and that supplies in the hands of producers will diminish rather than increase.

"The cost o fproducing copper is believed to be 1 cent per pound lower now than it was a year ago, due to curtailment by some of the high cost producers, reductions in wages, increased efficiency of labor and lower cost of supplies. Most of the mines, also, are working on a slightly higher grade of ore, and some of the low cost producers are forcing production somewhat. I believe that the world's copper is now being made at an average cost of 9½ cents, and that there is an average profit of 3½ cents per pound on all of the copper going to market. This is a very good business profit, and it must be expected, therefore, that production will have a tendency to increase for some time to come.

"The theory has been advanced that because of the constantly increasing copper output in this country and elsewhere, the price must necessarily decline. I know that it is possible for copper prices to advance in spite of a rapidly increasing production. In 1901 I visited a large number of mines in the Southwest and found several of them preparing to increase their output, or to begin producing on a considerable scale. A few months after my return, copper sold around 11 cents. Notwithstanding the certainty that production would increase, I was very bullish on copper when it was at bottom prices. I knew that consumption would increase also. Since 1901 the world's output has increased approximately 50 per cent, and in the same period the price of copper advanced at one time 125 per cent, to 26 cents. Even in the present period of business depression the price is higher than it was then. I do not expect copper to sell at 11 cents again in the lifetime of the present generation. When general business conditions get back to normal, copper should sell between 15 and 17 cents per pound."

All three men are wanted by the local police on complaints sworn to by Matt Kisnarich. The two first named will be brought to Duluth at the expiration of their present sentences, and the third will be brought here immediately.

Lee Unknown Here.

The Edward Lee, criminal, known to the Duluth police, is not the Edward Lee wanted in the East, who escaped from the Toronto jail with six other desperate criminals. Lee is believed to be the slayer of a constable near Niagara Falls, N. Y. It was thought the man was a former resident of Duluth, but pictures and descriptions received by Chief Troyer yesterday prove him to be another person.

Meets at Club.

The temporary organization which was formed recently to carry on the fight against tuberculosis in this section of the country held a meeting this afternoon in one of the private rooms of the Commercial club. Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele acted as chairman. The organization has in hand the matter of calling a mass meeting to assist in carrying on the work, the selecting of the date and place for the tuberculosis exhibition which it is planned to hold here, and the selection of a committee to perfect a permanent organization.

Returns From Canada.

Arthur German of Lester Park has returned from a trip to Canada, where he visited Winnipeg, Brandon and other points. He attended the provincial fair and saw the first exhibit ever made in Canada of motor power agricultural machinery, an exhibition in which the American machinery led all competitors. The high duty, it was claimed, kept American machinery out of Canada. On the whole, Mr. German believes that the provincial fair does not compare favorably with the Minnesota state fair.

HOUND'S LONG CHASE.

Forest and Stream: Following close on the heels of a big gray fox, running for five days and nights, covering a distance of probably 200 miles through the woods and along the sandy shores of Cape Cod, only to have the fox escape by wearing him out, is the record of a hound 4 years old, one of the three valuable dogs that a party of hunters recently took with them to hunt foxes in the woods at Wellfleet.

The dog chased the fox, or perhaps several foxes—for it may have switched off from one to another in its travels—and did not show up after starting the fox. After waiting for hours for the dog to return the hunters went back to the village expecting the dog would give up the chase. Night came on and they became alarmed, fearing the dog had been lost.

A local gunner who accompanied the fox hunters into the woods said he would find the dog and ship him home the next day. Inquiries were made through the villages, but no one had seen the dog and it appeared as if he must have been drowned in crossing the swamps on the thin ice. At the end of five days a dog was seen following a big gray fox through the village of East Wareham.

The man who saw the fox as it limped through his back yard rushed into the house for his gun. As he came out he saw a hound limping along and vainly trying to bark; the fox had disappeared and the dog, which could hardly stand, dropped in its tracks nearly dead from exhaustion. The man gave the dog food and drink in small quantities and in a few days it seemed to be all right. On the collar was the name of the owner, to whom the man wrote, and in a few days he came after it. It was then learned that the dog started the fox in Wellfleet and for five days and nights had been chasing.

He had been seen chasing the fox at Ellisville, on the shores of Cap Cod bay, and near White island in the cranberry district; he had crossed the harbors and rivers and had given up when nearly dead in East Wareham, sixty miles from where the hunt was started. It was said, "The dog was a mere skeleton and the fox seemed as if he had been running for a month."

There are instances on Cape Cod where dogs have followed foxes for days at a time, but none of the old gunners remember any such performance as this one.

GREENE TO BE ASSISTANT

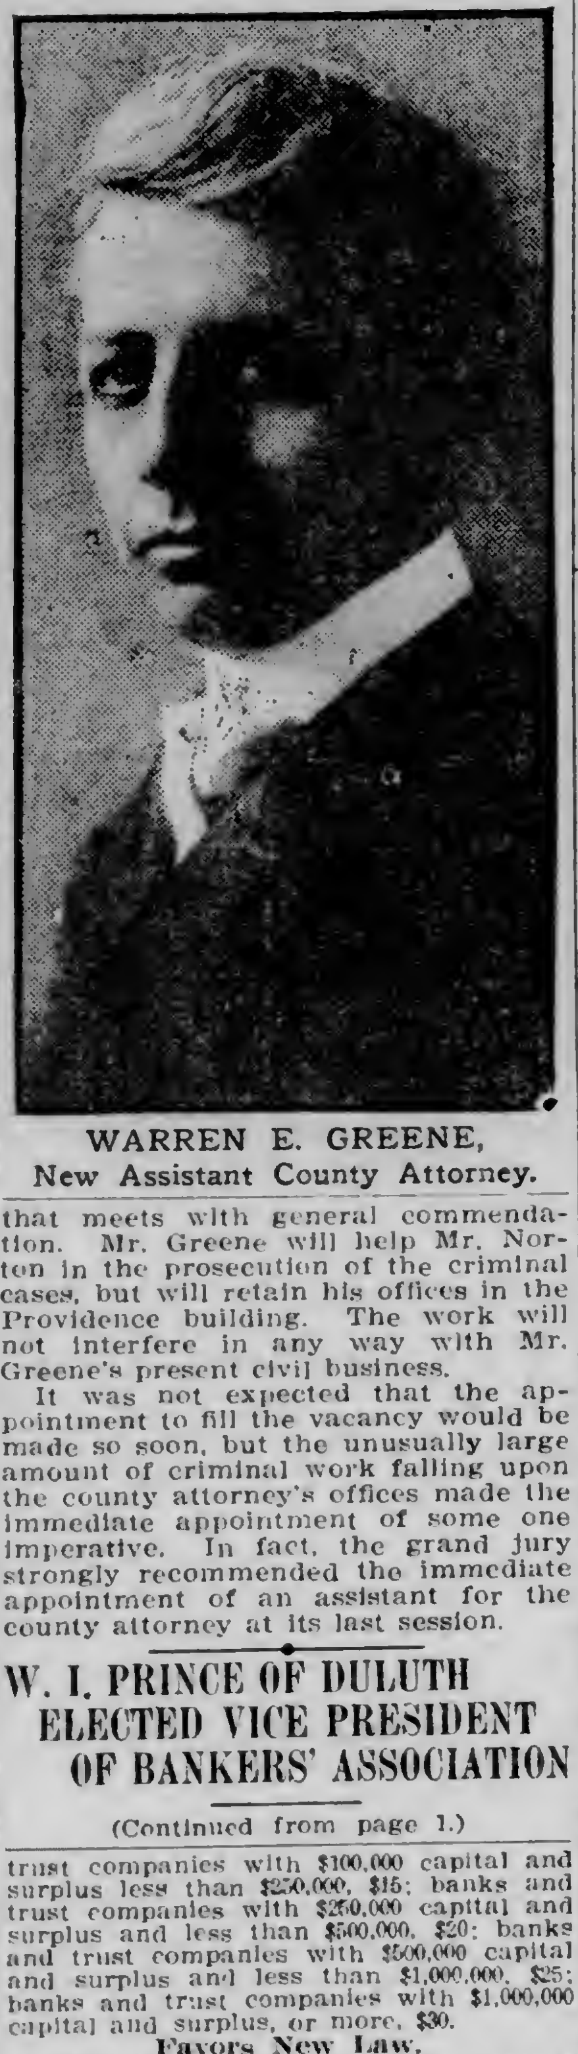
Norton Selects Prominent Attorney for Aide in Criminal Work.

Heavy Amount of Work Necessitated an Immediate Appointment.

Following his appointment by County Attorney John Norton, Warren E. Greene was this morning sworn in by Judge Dibell as assistant county attorney of St. Louis county.

The appointment fills the vacancy left by the resignation of William M. Stevenson, who has been appointed attorney for the county board.

Mr. Greene is well known here, having been in the city for the past six years and in active practice for several years. The appointment is one that meets with general commendation. Mr. Greene will help Mr. Norton in the prosecution of the criminal cases, but will retain his offices in the Providence building. The work will not interfere in any way with Mr. Greene's present civil business.



WARREN E. GREENE,
New Assistant County Attorney.

It was not expected that the appointment to fill the vacancy would be made so soon, but the unusually large amount of criminal work falling upon the county attorney's offices made the immediate appointment of some one imperative. In fact, the grand jury strongly recommended the immediate appointment of an assistant for the county attorney at its last session.

W. I. PRINCE OF DULUTH ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT OF BANKERS' ASSOCIATION

trust companies with $100,000 capital and surplus less than $250,000, $15; banks and trust companies with $250,000 capital and surplus and less than $500,000, $20; banks and trust companies with $500,000 capital and surplus and less than $1,000,000, $25; banks and trust companies with $1,000,000 capital and surplus, or more, $30.

Favors New Law.

Resolved, That this committee favors the passage of a law prohibiting the carrying of burglar tools and nitroglycerin by any one acting outside the scope of a legitimate employment, and that the same be declared by law a penal offense.

Resolved, That we favor the passage of a law such as that recommended by the American Bankers' association making the malicious defamation of banks or the circulation of false reports in connection therewith a penal offense.

Resolved, That we favor the recommendation of the Minneapolis Chapter of the American Institute of Banking covering the matter of changing the status in certain respects of national bank examiners; said recommendation being as follows:

"1. The payment of fees to bank examiners in compensation for the examination of national banks shall be abolished, and in lieu thereof the payment of salaries substituted.

"2. The number of national bank examiners shall be increased to such an extent as may be necessary to assure a thorough and competent examination of every national bank twice a year.

"3. No person shall be appointed a national bank examiner until he has passed a thorough and rigid examination establishing his competency to perform the duties required of such office.

"4. The secretary of the Minnesota Bankers' association be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the national monetary commission at Washington, D. C."

Inasmuch as there has been a large increase in the number of state banks in Minnesota—there being something in excess of 600 such banks at the present time within our state—and also the large increase in the volume of business with which the public examiner is now charged other than that in connection with the examination of banks,

W. I. PRINCE,
New Vice President of Minnesota Bankers' Association.

Recommend Banking Department.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we recommend to a state legislature that it create a state banking department to be under the supervision of a competent superintendent whose business it shall be to properly supervise the examination of state banks, and further, that the legislature provide him with sufficient funds to procure adequate and competent help to the end that all state banks may be examined twice each year.

Favors Rigid Examination.

Be is further resolved, that we favor the passage of a law making it obligatory for all state bank examiners to pass a rigid and thorough examination to establish their competency to perform the duties required of such office.

Resolved, that the Minnesota Bankers' association recommend to the state legislature the passage of the so-called "uniform negotiable instruments law."

Resolved, that we recommend the passage by congress of what is known as "The Uniform Bill of Lading Law," now being urged for passage by the American Bankers' association.

Resolved, that we tender to the bankers and citizens of Duluth, and to the Marshall-Wells Hardware company of Duluth, our highest appreciation of their very generous hospitality and entertainment during our stay in their city, and our assurances that in leaving Duluth we carry away with us one of the happiest and pleasantest of memories.

Resolved, that we extend to our secretary, Mr. Earnest C. Brown, our very sincere sympathy for him in his long illness and our best wishes for his speedy restoration to complete health and strength. Mr. Brown's absence from the convention has been a source of deep regret to all, and we would suggest that a message be wired to him at once expressing the substance of this resolution.

Resolved, that we express to Messrs. Stevens, Bede, Durham and Talbert our sincere appreciation of their kindness and courtesy in traveling to Duluth to address us on this occasion. We have enjoyed their remarks and feel that we are all taking away with us a clearer light on the various subjects with which their addresses had to do.

Indorses American Association.

Resolved, that we endorse the action of the American Bankers' association in their vigorous crusade against the express companies, and trust that it will be a matter of only a short time when these companies will be forced out of the banking business or compelled to submit to the regular examination provided for ordinary institutions.

We point with pride to the most creditable showing made by the state and national banks in Minnesota during the recent panic, in which no depositor lost a dollar.

We commend the action of Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and other cities in employing clearing house examiners to examine their banks, reporting the results of such examinations to the directors of the banks and the clearing house committees; which committees have power to enforce the findings and recommendations of the examiners.

Oppose Paternal Government.

We are opposed to anything that savors of a paternal form of government; therefore we are opposed to the Federal or state guarantee of deposits, as it would be a long step in that direction, and would destroy all incentive for careful and conservative banking. It would serve to discourage and eliminate from the banking business men of capacity and business judgment who have spent years in building up sound banking institutions, and would also tend to encourage men of inexperience and inefficiency engaging in the banking business.

The enormous development of this country has been made possible by our present banking system, and the losses entailed as infinitesiman when compared with the losses in other lines of business.

Indorse Prof. Laughlin.

We heartily indorse the following statements made by Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, one of the most noted economists of the country, and commend them to the careful consideration of the general public:

"There is no more justice in paying the depositor's losses, for which he is not responsible, upon others who are also not responsible for his losses, than it would be for A, who has been robbed by B, to ask that his honest neighbor C should be robbed to make up for his loss. No matter how confidingly A had trusted B, C is not responsible for A's voluntary acts. Similarly, the honest and efficient banks cannot in justice be asked to make up to a depositor in a failed bank losses for which the honest and efficient banks had no responsibility whatever. It would be clearly unfair to hold a small, conservatively managed country bank responsible for the 'frenzied finance' of some large bank in a great city. All reason, all justice, demand that the punishment be inflicted on the doer of the wrong and not on the innocent neighbor. In fact, the ethical justification for taxing sound banks to cover the lapses of unsound banks has no existence whatever. It is unmoral. Moreover, it is a question whether the courts would enforce such a law against the rights of property." It would only make bad banking worse.

Deposits Are Safe.

"Obviously, the deposits of a bank are as safe as the value of the assets in the loan item, no more, no less. Apart from fraud and stealing, what is bad banking? Clearly, it is the lending of too much to favored, or inside, parties; and the inability to know good from bad paper, and 'quick' from tied up investments. Every conceivable reward should exist to bring pressure on a banker to have courage in declining questionable loans. The moment such pressure is removed, the opportunity is enlarged for taking on assets, which, at the first real emergency, will crumple in value, and leave the depositors unsecured even by long and difficult liquidation. Therefore, to relieve the banker from the logical consequences of his own mistakes, of his own weakness, is to take away practically the only real safeguard effective on human nature in a business touching the trusts of countless financial interests. The result of such a guaranty would, in my opinion, tend to put a premium on the 'popular' and 'obliging' banker, as against the careful and judicious banker; to spread throughout the country the influence of men who care more for bigness than safety in their accounts; to build up credit unsupported by legitimate trade; and in the end would bring on financial convulsions proportional in disaster to the extent of the doubtful banking. Not only would it be unjust to ask the efficient to meet the losses of the inefficient, but it is poor policy to stimulate the inefficient to try to do that for which they are unfit."

Postal Savings Bank.

Resolved, that we are opposed to the establishment, by the government, of postal savings banks for the reason that, in addition to its being a step toward paternalism, it would also tend to drain our rural districts of money which rightfully belongs there and is necessary to their development; and would tend toward the concentration of funds in the few money centers of the country where it could only be profitably used for speculative purposes.

The National Association.

The committee report of the delegates to the American Bankers' convention at Atlantic City, shawed that it had 9,251 members, had an income of $150,000 from dues alone, and was in a most flourishing condition. The work of the American association in promoting progressive banking, was commended by the committee.

The bankers and their wives will take a ride over the city this afternoon in street cars. It was at first planned to take them over the boulevards in automobiles, but the large attendance of delegates has made this impossible. Tomorrow morning, at 10 o'clock, a number of the delegates will take the steamer America to Isle Royale. Other delegates will go up the north shore Monday. Many of the delegates have decided that they will leave tomorrow morning.

Every one of the officers of the association expressed himself as greatly pleased over the treatment they had received from the local bankers. Congratulations on behalf of the city, in the way the convention had been handled and the manner in which the delegates had been looked after, were bestowed upon the local officials at every hand. No one will leave Duluth without some regret and a most pleasant memory of the good afforded by the care of the entertainment committee.

HEAR ADDRESSES.

Minnesota Bankers Listen to Fine Program at the Lyceum.

Last night's session of the Minnesota Bankers' association brought out a large and attentive audience. The lower floor of the Lyceum theater was completely filled, while a sprinkling of people were in the dress circle. Congressmen Stevens and Bede were upon the program and this fact resulted in a more general audience than that attending the session yesterday morning, when the addresses were on purely financial matters.

The congressmen did not neglect the opportunity to do a little stump speaking. Mr. Stevens pleaded for more patience with the ways of congress, while Mr. Bede made an appeal for renomination by stating that a man's ability to serve his constituents was measured by the length of his service in the lower house of congress.

Mr. Bede's address was the hit of the evening. "The Sage of Pine City" was not permitted to keep his seat upon the completion of his address, but was compelled to bow to the protracted and tumultous applause and tell two stories before the audience would let him go. Mr. Bede was at his best last night and his humor and his more serious talk held his audience in rapt attention.

Congressman Stevens.

Congressman F. C. Stevens, speaking upon "Currency Legislation," explained the machinery of legislation in congress and told how it drafted the laws. Mr. Stevens explained the difficulty of securing legislation that was acceptable to the American people; currency legislation that is sound, that will stand the test of constitutional law.

The speaker outlined the lawmaking machinery of the lower house; the fundamental principles of that legislation, and how the will of the American people is followed in shaping currency and all other legislation. If the currency legislation passed during the recent session of congress was faulty, then the American people were the cause of that fault, because their will had been followed in framing it, declared Mr. Stevens.

In discussing the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill, Mr. Stevens declared that though it might be illogical, unscientific and faulty, and though congress was not proud of the act, it was proud of the fact that it has passed the measure. The bill was not permanent; it was intended to meet a possible crisis. The speaker declared that the bill would be effective in such an emergency and would form the working basis for future currency legislaltion that would be more logical, more statesmanlike and more permanent in its nature.

Speaking of the currency bill, Mr. Stevens said:

"There are no experts on the currency commission, for the reason that we have found experts do not draw up bills that meet with the approval of the people. We are not exactly experts. We may know all there is about currency, but we are sent to congress to obey the will of the great American people. The Americans have the right to experiment, the right to make mistakes, and it is our duty to obey them in making legislation.

"The people of the United States will not permit the passage of a bill that permits private interests to monopolize the nation's resources. No bill that is for the interests of special interests can pass.

Opposed to Central Bank.

"Public sentiment is opposed to a central bank. The public is afraid that the institution of such a bank would place in control of the currency men who have shown themselves to be unfit for places of trust and responsibility. The recent example offered by the New York insurance scandals has not been without effect upon the prejudice of the people.

"Safety and the value of currency must be provided for. A note must be good any place in the country. The question of who should issue such notes has caused much discussion among financiers and statesmen. The Republican party, in a plank in its platform, favors the issue of notes of currency by banks under the supervision of congress upon recognized bonds. The Democratic party favors the issuing of currency by government, the currency to be loaned to the banks. The Republicans favor postal savings banks. The Democrats have declared for the insurance of bank deposits by the government and a savings bank.

"There must be no half way business about this guaranteeing of currency. Either the banks must do it, or the United States government will find itself compelled to do it. The government would probably not do it as well as the bankers, but it must take the sole responsibility if you do not make adequate provisions. You can't tax me with your business. You must decide upon a plan and the government will give you the machinery for enacting your views in currency legislation."

E. D. Durham's Address.

E. D. Durham of Onargo, Ill., spoke of the fight between the banks and the express companies. Mr. Durham declared that the express companies of the United States were carrying on an illegitimate banking business. He stated that they were common carriers, with a common carrier's charter from the American, but gradually step by step, they had come into the domain of the legitimate banker until today they were usurping the rights of the banker without incurring the responsibilities of their illegitimate position.

Mr. Durham claimed that in many instances the capital claimed by the express companies was grossly overstated. In many instances he said they sent their money orders to the banks for collection. He claimed they observed loose methods of banking, have been enabled to make rates of exchange by power of their false position as bankers and were not compelled to pay the taxes of regularly chartered banks.

At the present time there is a hearing before the interstate commerce commission to determine whether express companies can continue their banking business. The hearing has been called at the request of representatives of the American Bankers' association.

Mr. Durham told of the preparations of the American Bankers' association to handle a new kind of money order. The order will be for local and foreign exchange. The orders will be cashed at par in a number of American cities, which will represent the length and breadth of the country. These orders will be guaranteed by the clearing house associations in the large financial centers and will be issued by the American Surety company at a very low cost.

John A. Fox Talks.

John A. Fox, director of the national rivers and harbors congress, told the bankers of the work that was being done by that congress toward the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the United States. Mr. Fox made an appeal for the aid of the bankers in the fight for improved waterways. He asked that resolutions be adopted commenting and supporting the work that is being done by the rivers and harbors congress, which is, in effect, composed of the various boards of trade in different parts of the country.

Mr. Fox declared that the railroads could not handle the freight of the country. He quoted figures to show to what a small extent the railroads of the country have increased their mileage within the past two decades, and then told of the immense increase of the commerce of the nation.

The only solution of the problem that menaced the prosperity of the nation was, Mr. Fox declared, the improvement of the navigable rivers of the country. This would result in reduced freight rates, a healthy stimulus of competition and increased business for the producer.

Bede Tells Stories.

J. Adam Bede convulsed the audience by his rapid-fire delivery of stories, that were told as only Mr. Bede can tell them. Mr. Bede's address was not all humorous, by any means. He paid a splendid tribute to the integrity of the American people. Mr. Bede is a great believer in humanity, and told the audience that at heart the great American nation was sound; that some people believed things were wrong because the yellow journals said so—because it was the wrong that always stood out.

Mr. Bede declared that the greatest evidence that the American nation was all right was the fact that wrong is considered good news. He stated that when crime and wrong becomes so common that it ceases to be news, then the nations would indeed be as bad as some people imagined it was.

Mr. Bede spoke of the work of congress and stated that it had done much more than the people credited it with accomplishing. He explained that legislation must proceed along careful and well-thought-out lines. He stated that the representatives of the people were conscious of their great trust, and if legislation at times did not progress faster it was because of the desire of public servants to be faithful to their trust. The optimistic spirit of Mr. Bede's address caught the fancy of the audience and, upon the completion of the speech, the applause was long and loud. Mr. Bede was obliged to come back for a few additional remarks.

SENTENCE NEXT WEEK

Norton Moves for the Determination of Wilson's Penalty.

It is probable that Henry Wilson will know his fate early next week, when Judge Dibell will pronounce the words which will mean death or life imprisonment for the wife murderer. This morning County Attorney Norton moved for sentence, but Judge Dibell said that he was not quite ready to deliver it yet, and a few days' delay would be necessary.

As the time for determining his fate draws near there is little change in Wilson's manner, and he is apparently as little concerned as any of the jail attendants in regard to whether Judge Dibell shall sentence him to be "hanged by the neck until dead," or to a life term within the walls of Stillwater.

The general opinion of those who have been watching the case seems to be that the death penalty awaits the man who so brutally killed his young wife last spring, and it is probable that he will pay the extreme penalty for his crime.

Sentence may be pronounced on Monday or Tuesday of next week

$200 In Gold Given Away

WHY NOT GET IT?
IT COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

To the readers of the Duluth Evening Herald who write the most effective advertisements for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey (the old family remedy) will be given $200 in prizes—$100 for the best advertisement, $50 for the second, $25 for the third, $10 each for the fourth and fifth and $5 for the sixth.

ANY ONE CAN DO IT.

There are thousands of young men and women who possess great ability for writing advertisements. If they know it, well and good. If they do not know it, they may discover that they possess a new source of income. Do not think because you have not had a college education that you cannot write an effective, forceful advertisement. Strong, true and simple everyday words are all you need to convince the public.

The majority of the most successful advertising writers in the country today are self-educated men and women. It is a clear presentation of bright ideas that makes an advertising writer successful.

One writer jumped from oblivion to fame by writing a prize story for a New York paper. A few years ago he was unheard of—to-day his writings are in demand at fabulous prices.

You may not be aware that a first-class advertising writer commands a large salary. Many make from $5,000 to $20,000 annually. Perhaps you have the latent ability stored up, unknown to yourself. Here is your opportunity to make a test of it. Who knows? Perhaps your fortune depends on the writing of one advertisement.

We will send you a book of information regarding Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, containing sample advertisements, for a two-cent stamp to cover postage.

Every advertisement received will be paid for if used, at the uniform rate of $2.00, besides the prize offered above. Offer good until August 1.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolute pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach. It is used as a medicine for all mankind throughout the world. Hundreds of thousands of people are using it today, so it will be easy for you to find out as to its merits and quality that you may be better able to write your advertisement truthfully and forcefully.

If you wish manuscript returned enclose sufficient postage. Send as many advertisements as you wish. Address your letter, Editor Advertising Dept., Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seeen this advertisement in the Duluth Evening Herald. The Publisher guarantees this liberal offer.

More Citizens Testify for Wittman

V. T. Murphy, E. F. Rickford, Mamie Norski and Others.

Last night, at the show grounds, Wittman demonstrated more of his ability by healing the following: Little Mamie Koski, who was deaf in one ear; and Mr. V. T. Murphy, living at 1414 Jefferson street, who stated he heard better than he had for ten years. Then came Mr. A. E. Bickford of 24½ East First street, who was greatly benefited; and many others followed.

The offices at the corner of Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street are continually being rushed for consultation and examination, and many cures are reported there daily, of which the doctor reads names and addresses each night from the stage.

The mail order equipment is a fine one, as hundreds of bottles of all kinds of medicines are sent out each day to all parts of the country.

Fully 5,000 people attend nightly the big vaudeville show and band concert at Fourth street and Lake avenue north, and Wittman delivers a most interesting lecture each evening, with regard to his treatment and remedies. Everybody is invited to call and have a talk with him.

APPEAL BY GRAND ARMY

To Public to Buy Tickets for Excursion Up River.

Proceeds to Pay Expenses of Drum Corps to Toledo.

To the patriotic citizens of Duluth: The national encampment of the G. A. R. meets this year at Toledo, Ohio, the week beginning Aug. 31. For the first time in the history of this dapartment, Duluth has the department commander of Minnesota. That commander, Capt. Bates, has secured for this place the honor of having for its drum corps, the G. A. R. corps from this place, to lead the Minnesota department. This drum corps consists of fifteen members. The nucleus of this corps consists of veterans of the Civil war, but the majority of the members are Sons of Veterans, some of them mere boys. Two years ago this corps attended the encampment at Minneapolis and won universal praise as one of the very best in attendance The position this corps is to hold this year has heretofore at other encampments been held by a like body from St. Paul or Minneaplois, and the expenses have been paid by the citizens of the city represented. Most of the membrs of this corps are working on salaries, and while some few are able to pay the expenses of the trip and would refuse to have even these paid, it would be most unjust to ask this of the remainder and yet all are willing to give their time and labor.

To pay the expense the local G. A. R. propose to give an excursion to and basket picnic at Fond du Lac on Friday, Aug. 7, and we ask you to assist us, by patronizing this excursion to the exten of 1,000 tickets. Capt. Harvey Clow of the line running the steamers to Fond du Lac, has made us most liberal terms. At a rate at which the steamers are let to us the G. A. R. can, by this excursion, if patronized as it should be, pay the expense of this trip of the drum corps. The excursion itself is one every man and his family should take at least once every summer. If any staid citizen feels he cannot spend the time, send your family, and if you have none to send, pick out some boys in the neighborhood and send them, and if you furnish each lad with an American flag for the occasion, so much the better.

This drum corps carries a banner, given by the post, as were all the drums and uniforms, that will advertise the name of our city at the head of the Minnesota department, as well as to all Minnesotans, recall the name of the colonel who led the first regiment accepted for service in the Civil war into the field, won in the field as a general, and was thereafter a governor of this state, Willis A. Gorman. You can, with real profit to yourselves, assist us in the way we ask. Will you do so?

S. F. WHITE,
Adjutant Willis A. Gorman Post, G. A. R.

Will Fix Up Road.

At a meeting of Douglas county and Carlton county citizens, held last evening at the Commercial club, it was decided to put the old military road between the southern limits and the state line in shape for traffic. It is thought that it will take approximately $1,500 to make the highway suitable for team travel. A committee was appointed to confer with the town board of Superior at 1 o'clock today. The town board will be asked to assist toward the cost of repairing, and the remainder of the money will be raised by private subscriptions.

Mrs. Rogers was thrown to the street over the front of the car, which was badly wrecked by the collision. The other machine was uninjured. Mrs. Rogers was taken to her home and a physician was summoned.

AUTOS FOR THE POLICE

Three Machines May be Purchased for City Purposes.

One is Wanted for Use as a Police Patrol Wagon.

An automobile police patrol wagon, an automobile for the city detective force, and a fire automobile for Chief Black of the fire department, are possibilities for Duluth within the next year.

Mayor Haven has expressed himself as favoring the purchase of the three machines as soon as the city can afford it. Several of the larger cities through the countries have automobile patrol wagons, and they are said to work out more successfully, and to give better satisfaction, than the old-fashioned horse patrol.

The need of an automobile for the city detective force was demonstrated in the recent murder case on Pike Lake road, when it was necessary for th police to borrow an automobile in order to get to the scene of the crime at the earliest possible moment. Often it happens that there are hurry calls, where the use of an auto would result in the immediate apprehension of criminals, where a slight delay might mean their escape, and a heavy expense to the city and county. One or two such cases would pay the cost of an automobile suitable for the purpose intended.

Chief Black at present has a touring car, but this is hardly suitable for making runs to fires. What is needed is a smaller machine, with a large horse power, so as to be capable of making good speed up the Duluth hills.

FIRE FIRE TUG COMING

Missabe Road to Have One of Biggest in Country.

Will be Delivered Before End of Navigation Season.

The American Shipbuilding company, in its yards at Lorain, Ohio, is to build the largest and finest fire tug in America for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road.

The tug will be used in Duluth to protect the Missabe's gigantic ore docks and will be named the William A. McGonagle, after the first vice president and general manager of the road.

The tug will cost complete about $125,000 and will be delivered some time before the close of the present season of navigation. No wood will be used in her construction. She will be built of steel throughout and will be equipped with all the modern appliances for fighting fire.

The boat will be equipped with two pump units, each consisting of one Curtis type turbine, directly connecting to an I. P. Morris centrifugal pump. The total capacity of both units will be something like 12,000 gallons a minute. Each pump has a pressure of 150 pounds to the square inch and is so arranged that one pump can discharge 6,000 gallons a minute, with a pressure of 300 pounds to the square inch.

With this water force, it will be possible for the tug to rip up the structure work of a dock to get at a fire.

Thero will be three modern standpipes on the boat, one forward, one on the pilot house and one aft. The tug will have powerful engines and will be capable of a speed of fifteen miles an hour. The boat will be 120 feet long and have a twenty-eight-foot beam.

Mr. McGonagle and other officials of the Missabe have been investigating the fire tug question for some time past and feel that in the craft just ordered, they will have a fire fighting boat that is equalled by none other.

APPEAL BY GRAND ARMY

To Public to Buy Tickets for Excursion Up River.

Proceeds to Pay Expenses of Drum Corps to Toledo.

To the patriotic citizens of Duluth: The national encampment of the G. A. R. meets this year at Toledo, Ohio, the week beginning Aug. 31. For the first time in the history of this dapartment, Duluth has the department commander of Minnesota. That commander, Capt. Bates, has secured for this place the honor of having for its drum corps, the G. A. R. corps from this place, to lead the Minnesota department. This drum corps consists of fifteen members. The nucleus of this corps consists of veterans of the Civil war, but the majority of the members are Sons of Veterans, some of them mere boys. Two years ago this corps attended the encampment at Minneapolis and won universal praise as one of the very best in attendance The position this corps is to hold this year has heretofore at other encampments been held by a like body from St. Paul or Minneaplois, and the expenses have been paid by the citizens of the city represented. Most of the membrs of this corps are working on salaries, and while some few are able to pay the expenses of the trip and would refuse to have even these paid, it would be most unjust to ask this of the remainder and yet all are willing to give their time and labor.

To pay the expense the local G. A. R. propose to give an excursion to and basket picnic at Fond du Lac on Friday, Aug. 7, and we ask you to assist us, by patronizing this excursion to the exten of 1,000 tickets. Capt. Harvey Clow of the line running the steamers to Fond du Lac, has made us most liberal terms. At a rate at which the steamers are let to us the G. A. R. can, by this excursion, if patronized as it should be, pay the expense of this trip of the drum corps. The excursion itself is one every man and his family should take at least once every summer. If any staid citizen feels he cannot spend the time, send your family, and if you have none to send, pick out some boys in the neighborhood and send them, and if you furnish each lad with an American flag for the occasion, so much the better.

This drum corps carries a banner, given by the post, as were all the drums and uniforms, that will advertise the name of our city at the head of the Minnesota department, as well as to all Minnesotans, recall the name of the colonel who led the first regiment accepted for service in the Civil war into the field, won in the field as a general, and was thereafter a governor of this state, Willis A. Gorman. You can, with real profit to yourselves, assist us in the way we ask. Will you do so?

S. F. WHITE,
Adjutant Willis A. Gorman Post, G. A. R.

AUTOS FOR THE POLICE

Three Machines May be Purchased for City Purposes.

One is Wanted for Use as a Police Patrol Wagon.

An automobile police patrol wagon, an automobile for the city detective force, and a fire automobile for Chief Black of the fire department, are possibilities for Duluth within the next year.

Mayor Haven has expressed himself as favoring the purchase of the three machines as soon as the city can afford it. Several of the larger cities through the countries have automobile patrol wagons, and they are said to work out more successfully, and to give better satisfaction, than the old-fashioned horse patrol.

The need of an automobile for the city detective force was demonstrated in the recent murder case on Pike Lake road, when it was necessary for th police to borrow an automobile in order to get to the scene of the crime at the earliest possible moment. Often it happens that there are hurry calls, where the use of an auto would result in the immediate apprehension of criminals, where a slight delay might mean their escape, and a heavy expense to the city and county. One or two such cases would pay the cost of an automobile suitable for the purpose intended.

Chief Black at present has a touring car, but this is hardly suitable for making runs to fires. What is needed is a smaller machine, with a large horse power, so as to be capable of making good speed up the Duluth hills.

FIRE FIRE TUG COMING

Missabe Road to Have One of Biggest in Country.

Will be Delivered Before End of Navigation Season.

The American Shipbuilding company, in its yards at Lorain, Ohio, is to build the largest and finest fire tug in America for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road.

The tug will be used in Duluth to protect the Missabe's gigantic ore docks and will be named the William A. McGonagle, after the first vice president and general manager of the road.

The tug will cost complete about $125,000 and will be delivered some time before the close of the present season of navigation. No wood will be used in her construction. She will be built of steel throughout and will be equipped with all the modern appliances for fighting fire.

The boat will be equipped with two pump units, each consisting of one Curtis type turbine, directly connecting to an I. P. Morris centrifugal pump. The total capacity of both units will be something like 12,000 gallons a minute. Each pump has a pressure of 150 pounds to the square inch and is so arranged that one pump can discharge 6,000 gallons a minute, with a pressure of 300 pounds to the square inch.

With this water force, it will be possible for the tug to rip up the structure work of a dock to get at a fire.

There will be three modern standpipes on the boat, one forward, one on the pilot house and one aft. The tug will have powerful engines and will be capable of a speed of fifteen miles an hour. The boat will be 120 feet long and have a twenty-eight-foot beam.

Mr. McGonagle and other officials of the Missabe have been investigating the fire tug question for some time past and feel that in the craft just ordered, they will have a fire fighting boat that is equalled by none other.

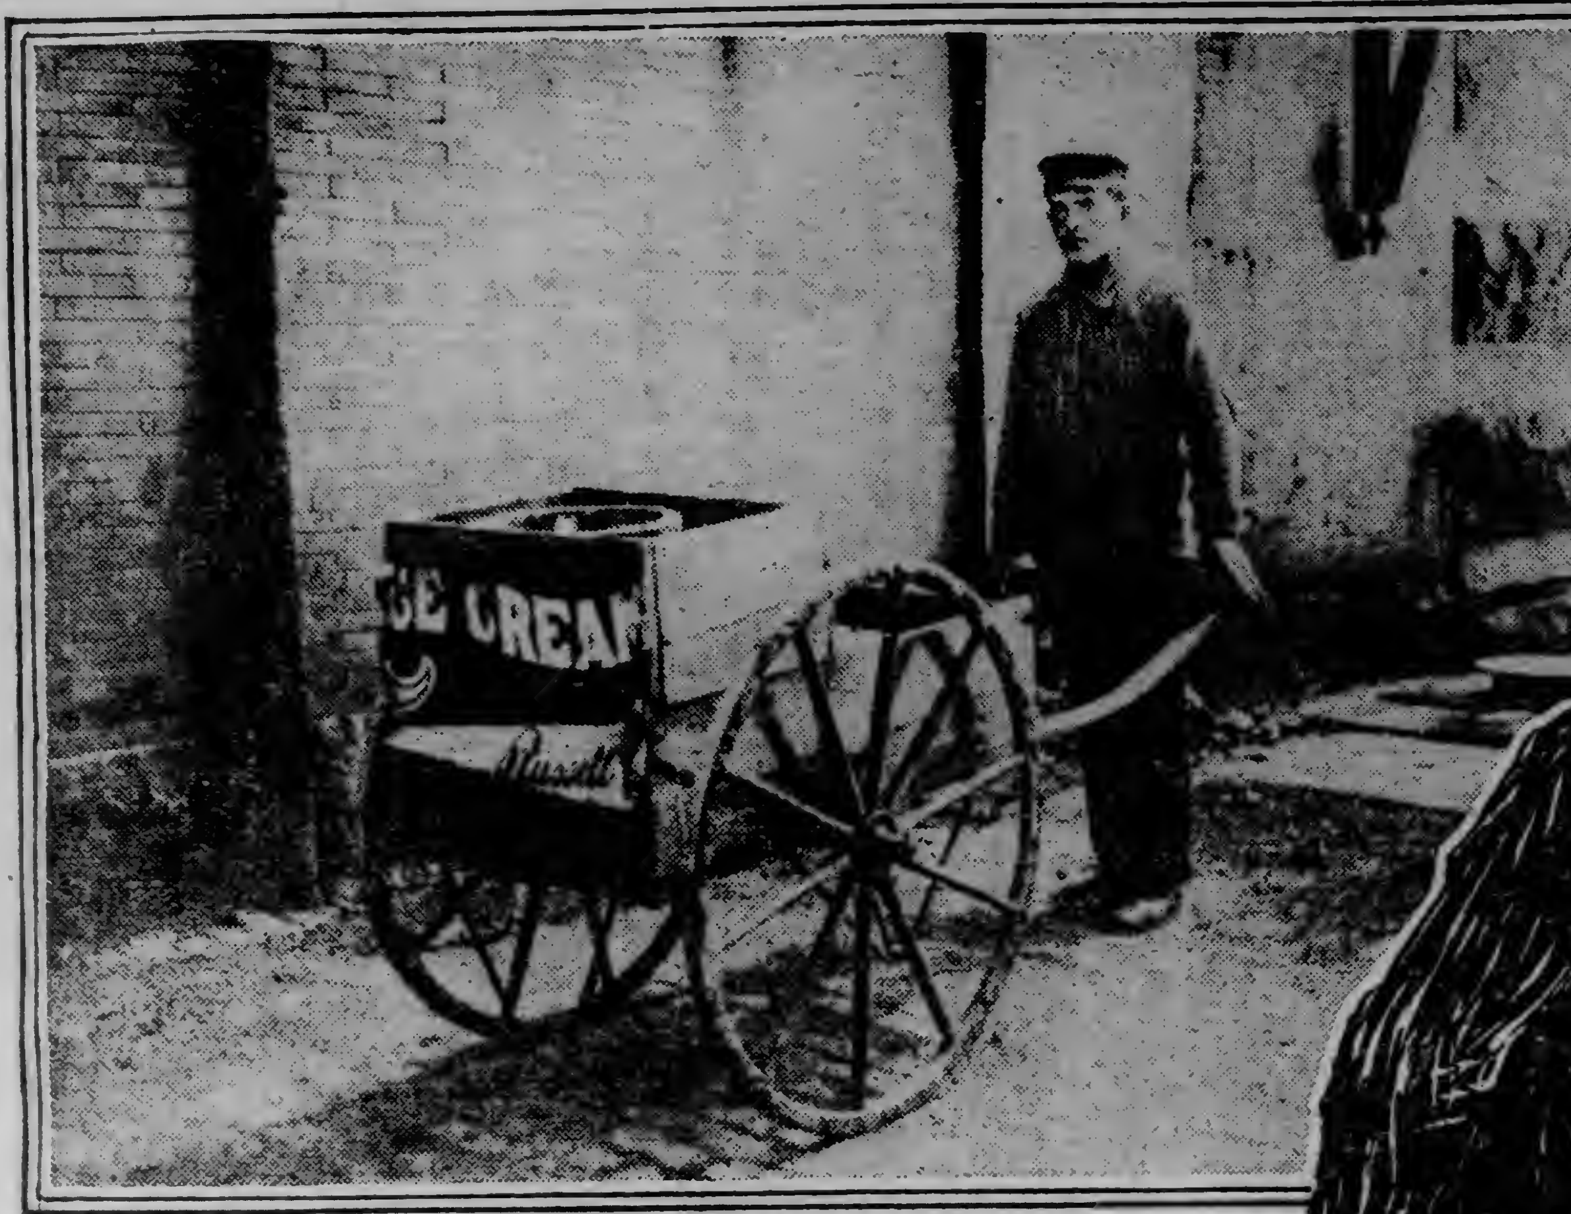
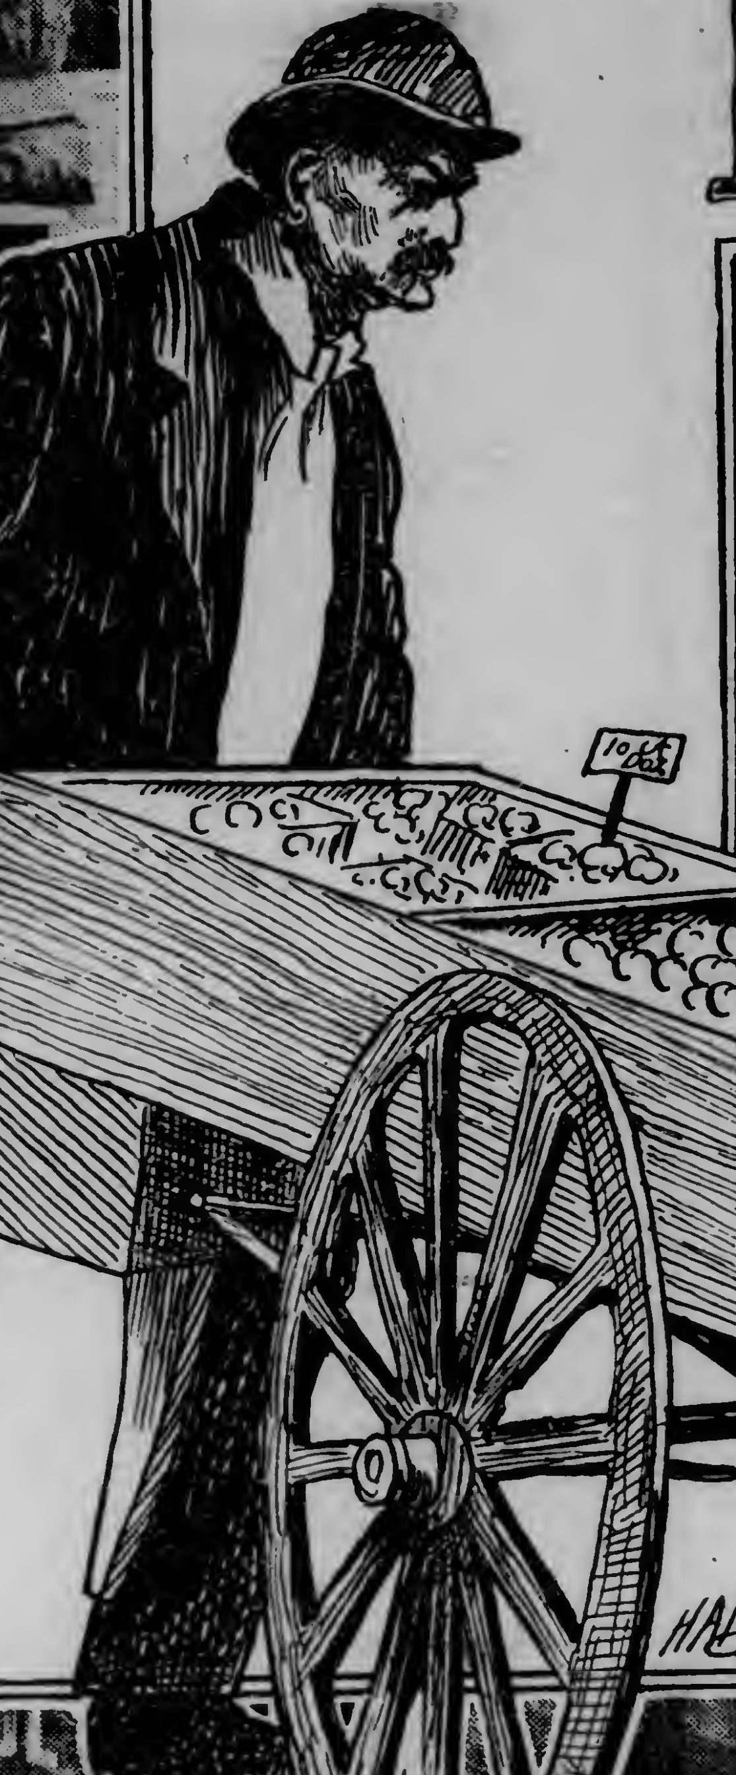
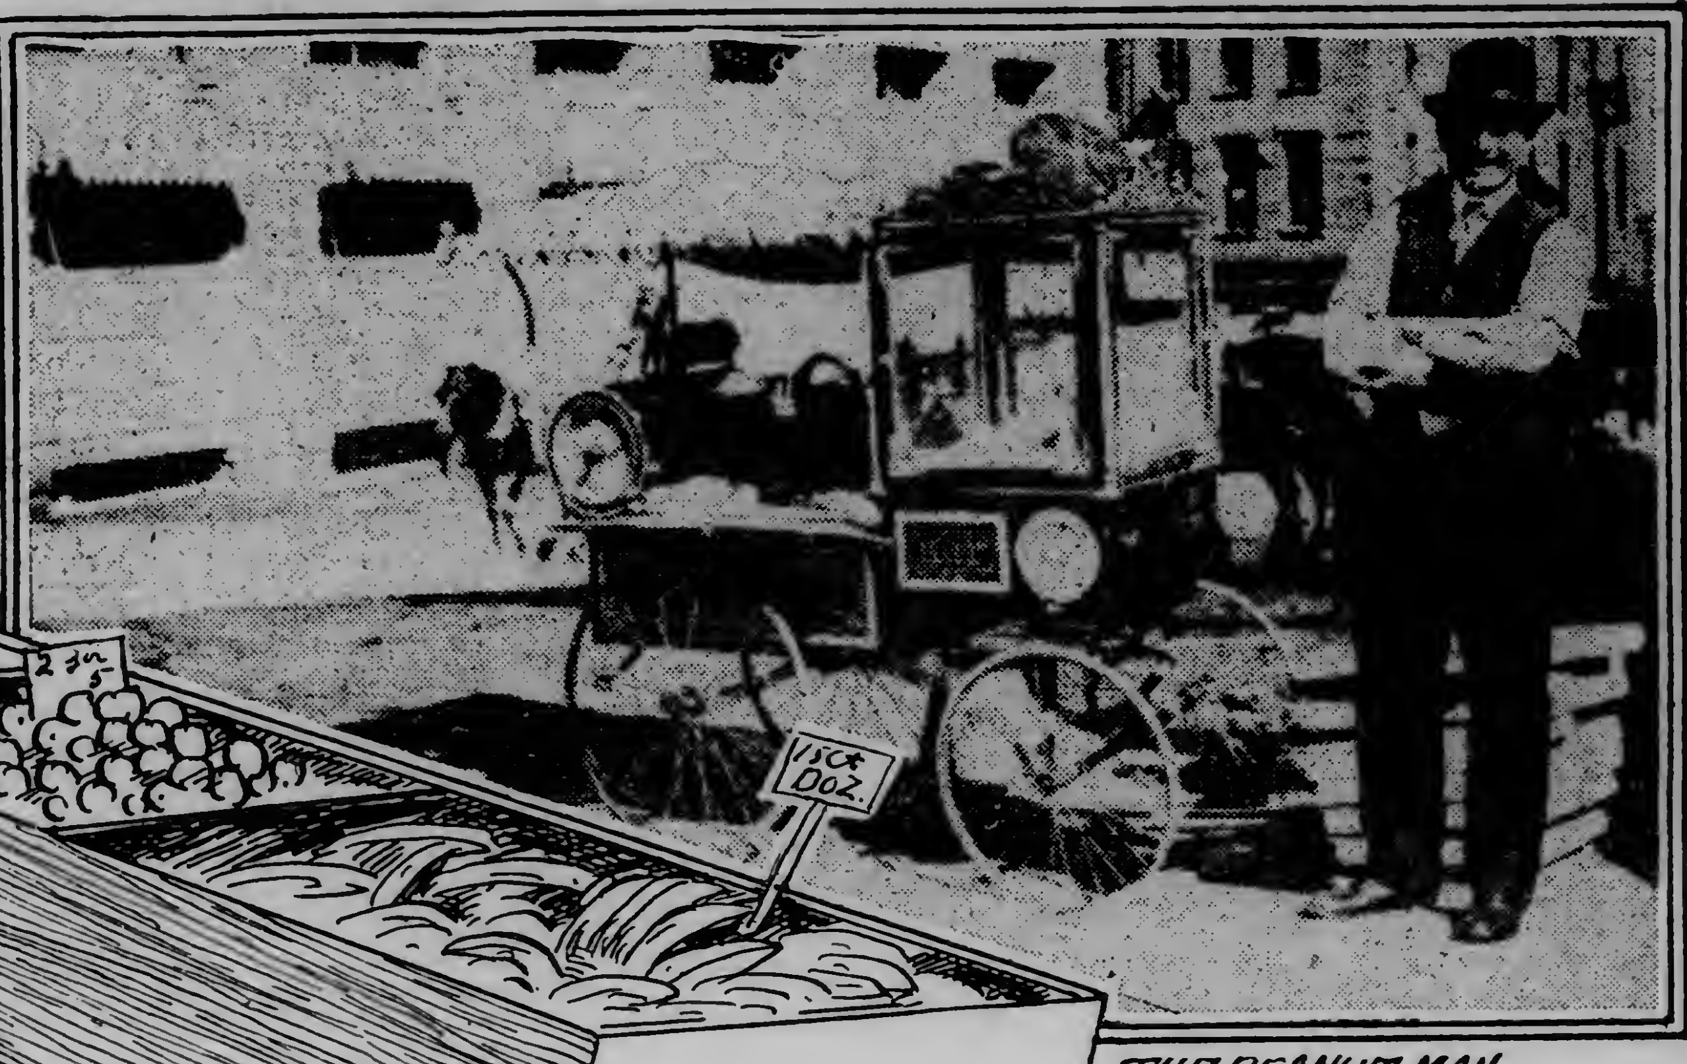
OPEN AIR MERCHANTS



THE ICE CREAM CONE MAN





THE PEANUT MAN

A STREET CORNER MERCHANT.

The old saying that there is more than one way to make a living may be trite and stale, but it has the virtue of truth just the same.

While shopkeepers behind their counters and other business men in their offices are applying themselves industriously to the task of bringing the dollars into the home corral, there are other business men who are going after the pennies, nickels and dimes on the street corners.

Hucksters, whose places of business are the curbs, and whose assets comprise push carts, fruit, fountain pens, toys or pop corn, always were picturesque, and Duluth has many of them today, who are making a living cajoling a hungry public into buying their ice cream cones, or their peanuts, or to take home with them patent shirt studs, trick pencils, or potato peelers.

The fountain pen and shirt stud salesmen's methods differ from those of the other street merchants, in that they set themselves up on a corner and draw the crowds to them, while most of the others of the cult are obliged to wheel their wares around among the buying public.

Moreover, personality is everything with the stationary street merchant. He must have a gift of gab sufficient to entice the nickels and dimes from the pockets of the populace, in return for articles which people could do very easily without, whereas the other street merchants reach the pocketbook via the stomach route, by appealing to the inner man with their golden bananas, their smooth peaches, or their cool cones.

With the pencil salesman, it is the talk that he delivers to his audiences which gets him his money and his living, whereas with the other fellows it is their wares themselves which speak the loudest for the coins they receive.

In order to get an audience, the potato peeler type of street merchant often pulls off a few feats of legerdemain, and after he has gathered the crowd and gotten everyone interested in his movements, he whisks his tricks aside and begins his demonstrations of the articles he intends to sell. Usually he sells two or more articles in a bunch for one price, telling his hearers that the first article costs so much, and that the others are gifts to them from him, costing nohing extra.

This is a great business argument, and he never fails to employ it whenever he can give two or three things out for a price which gives him a profit and is not too high to prohibit sales among a motley throng which assembles to watch his operations and hear his speeches.

This man is usually well dressed, too, a demonstration of the fact that his must be a paying business or he would not remain in it, wearing out his shoes on hard pavements and tiring his lungs with long and oft-repeated, but sometimes clever, harangues.

This sort of a street merchant usually "pushes" but one article at a time, or the one or two, or three, which he proposes to dispose of in combinations.

Today he may be selling indelible lead pencils, which he declares are better than all others, with some patent, adjustable, non-loseable collar buttons on the side, while tomorrow he may busy himself slicing potatoes and cabbages in demonstrations of the wonderful attributes of the culinary tool which he wants "everybody present to take home with them."

He does not care what he sells, so long as sufficient quantities of it can be sold, with the assistance of his eloquence, to pay for lodgings, meals, cigars and to keep the tailor and launderers' collections from the door.

The peanut, fruit vendors and dispensors of ice cream cones are of humbler caste in the world of open-air merchandising. They are usually wanderers from the ruins and smells of Athens or the land of the "stillett" and "spagett," whose natural bent seems to be to sell the world its rosy apples and cheap ice cream.

There is one local ice cream cone peddler who is the especial delight of the newsboys and smaller fry generally about the city. His cones sell for from 1 cent up to 5 cents, according to size, a circumstance which puts his wares within the reach of almost every youngster—and it is the juvenile trade which he seeks. Occasionally his customers turn around and have a merry time is teasing him, so that a considerable portion of his profits is hacked by wear and tear on his own clothing and stock in trade. One time recently he gave chase to two impudent young rascals who had pilfered a cone or two, and while he was hot on the trail of the miscreants, their brethren were delving dirty paws into the ice cream freezer and consuming the goods with great dispatch. When the merchant returned to his wagon he found his stock sadly depleted, and he was obliged to mark up "no sale" in his mental cash register.

But his profits have probably by this time more than made up for his losses on that black day when bad boys ate his cream, for he is probably a frugal soul.

Of all the open-air merchants, the most familiar is the gentleman who attends to the pop corn and peanut wagon. This vehicle is a wonderful affair. It contains apartments for the warming of the peanuts and provisions for the popping of corn and, most interesting of all to the tiny pedestrians on the principal streets, a little clown, who stands all day, whirling a tube full of peanuts.

FRANCO-BRITISH EXHIBITION

Duluth Traveler Tells of the Many Attractive Features of the Great Show in London and the Olympic Games.

London, Eng., July 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—From Duluth to London seems a long way on the map, but wtih the comforts and conveniences of fast express trains and luxurious liners now crossing the Atlantic ocean, the time and distance is not very much noticed. Leaving the Zenith City last May and spending a week in the great metropolis of New York, I sailed from that port on the White Star liner, Cedric, a magnificent steamer, bound for an European tour. The trip across the ocean was one of the most pleasant I have had, and all passengers enjoyed themselves. It is certainly a great treat to meet a social lot of tourists, for the time flies very fast and then all rgret to have to part at the end of the ovean voyage, for after a week together they become such friends. Arriving in Ireland and visiting the home of my boyhood, I spent over a month there enjoying the many beautiful places around through the country. Then taking a steamer from the city of Cork, Ireland, I sailed to Fishguard, England, a fourteen-hour trip and then took a train for London, which took six hours and a half to the capital of England. So here I am.

Now London, as is well known, is a wonderful city with a population of over 6,000,000 people. It is a historic city, for the history of England centers in the city on the Thames. The public buildings and monuments are the great attraction to the tourists. The houses of parliament, both the commons and the lords, which I have visited, are the first the sightseers, wishes to see. Then comes Westminster abbey, with its two lofty towers, and which contains a bust of Longfellow, the American poet, next the Tower of London. Who has not read English history but will readily recall the Tower, its dungeons, the place where James II lost his head on the block and many other kings, queens and princes suffered, and all for what—the jealousy of their own kith and kin to reach the throne of England. There are many other buildings I might mention, but time and space will not permit.

The Franco-British Exhibition.

London at the present time is en fete. The great Franco-British exhibition is on, having been opened last May, and will continue until October. There are thousands of visitors here from all parts of the world enjoying the sight. The French chamber of commerce in London first brought the idea into prominence about the latter part of 1905. It then went through the French ambassador to the government and the Comite Francaes des Expositions a l'Etranger which acts as the official representative of the government and exhibitors at all foreign exhibitors. This body gave its hearty approval to the project. On July 11, 1906, a meeting was held in the Mansion house, London, presided over by the lord mayor, and authority was given for the appointment of the necessary committees and the establishment of a guarantee fund. The king was graciously pleased to express his warm approval of the objects of the exhibition and letters of a similar purport were received from prominent members of the cabinet, who consented to become honorary presidents of various groups.

Those who are familiar with the history of the two countries will see what a wise move it was on the part of England in establishing the entente cordiale. Today, wherever you go in London, you will see the photos of the king of England and the president of France side by side and the English and French colors intertwined. It is just another move on the chessboard of diplomacy. An ideal site was secured for the exhibition at Sheperd's Bush. This covers an area of 140 acres and is readily accessible from any point of the compass. It is reached by several steam railroads, the underground railways, tramways and omnibus routes. These methods of transportation are capable of carrying 80,000 people an hour to the exhibition or nearly 1,000,000 during the hours per day in which the exhibition is usually kept open. The transportation facilities are splendid. As might be expected from the dual nature of the exhibition, one-half of the space is devoted to French, and the other half to British exhibits. For example, the palace of French industries on one side of the court of honor corresponds with that of the British industries on the other. The British colonies occupy the left of the plan, while the French colonies are situated on the right. But in this bi-lateral arrangement there is no attempt to secure a rigid symmetry. The corresponding buildings are not counterparts the one of the other; while bearing mutually a harmonious relation, each has its distinguishing features of outline and decoration. There thus results that diversity in agreement which is the soul of harmony.

There are palaces of applied art, of women's work, of decorative work, of music and of fine art. In the latter the French and English exhibits occupy opposite sides of the same building. There are two halls of education and a hall of pure science.

Machinery Hall.

The machinery hall, which is a very imposing building, contains about 300,000 square feet of space and forms three sides of a huge quadrangle, within which, together with other artistic edifices, is situated the pavilion of the Ville de Paris, in which the municipality of Paris expended a sum of $60,000. Embosomed in delightful gardens there is a graceful structure which is used as a royal pavilion on the occasion of the visit of any of the royal family. There is a Garden club as well as an Imperial Sports club.

The palaces of the exhibition, some twenty in number, are surrounded by gardens laid out by the best French and English landscape gardeners. There are seven spacious buildings each over 400 feet long, devoted to liberal arts, sports, social economy, hygiene, education (French), and alimentation sections. The fine art palace contains the most superb collection of works of old and modern masters of the French and British schools ever brought together in this country. An idea of the value of the exhibit may be gathered from the fact that it has been insured for $5,000,000. The area in the center of the exhibition grounds is known as the Elite gardens and it is certainly beautiful. Adjoining these is the court of arts, encircled by lagoons on which boats and launches ply with passengers, the total navigable distance being nearly a mile long.

Then in the court of honor there is a lake. Around this lake there is a promenade below the level of the main thoroughfares around it. Seats are provided where one may rest and read and watch the craft gliding by so gracefully. In the galaxy of enchanting scenes the court of honor glitters like the queen jewel in a cluster of diamonds. There is the lake spanned by a bridge strong enough to bear the tramp of an army, but with tracery airy and gossamer as a strand of coral. At the head of the lake a cascade leaps in musical cadence down a terraced fall. On the bridge and at intervals jutting into the water from the sides of the lake are stationed dainty pavilions, in which visitors can sit and enjoy to the full the surrounding delights. The scene is surpassingly brilliant by day, but at night when thousands of dazzling lights make dim the stars and are multiplied myriadfold in the broken reflection of the waters whose surface is stirred by a procession of gaily decorated craft. Then by an ingenious arrangement of electric beams the hues of the rainbow are reflected through the cataract in a scheme of bright and ever-changing colors. It is certainly a great sight to behold.

The Olympic Games.

All interest at present is centered in the great Olympic games, which will last for nearly two weeks. Over twenty-two nations are entered in the contests. To accommodate the vast concourse of spectators a colossal stadium has been erected. It is oval in form and capable of comfortably seating 60,000 and on occasions of holding 150,000 people. Besides a cycle track, and a running track, there is also a tank 330 feet in length and fourteen feet in depth for the swimming and high diving competitions. It is a monster affair.

In the Franco-British exhibition not only are France and the United Kingdom engaged, but the Colonial possessions of these two great powers play an important part, all having exhibits in different buildings of their own. As usual in all exhibitions of this kind there are amusements of all kinds, scenic railway, spiral railway, a Canadian toboggan slide, Old London, a very funny arrangement tha' keeps you laughing and a Hong Kong juvenile house that is very amusing.

The most striking among the many novelties of the recreative side is what is called the "Flip-Flap," which provides an entirely new and extremely pleasant sensation to the pleasure seeker. Its construction is one of the wonders of the grounds, and if there is anyone who refuses to make the trip in the car they find sufficient amusement by watching the mechanism by which it is set at work. Upon a central base rest the two gigantic arms, 150 feet long, stretching out on opposite sides. At the extremity of each arm is a platform or car on which some fifty people can be accommodated with comfort. These two arms, at a given signal, are noiselessly and gracefully raised from the earth until the cars at either end meet in the air close on 200 feet above the ground. After a slight pause at this altitude the passengers proceed on their journey downward and are landed at the opposite side of the grounds to that which they left. The steel arms are built on the cantilever principle and are closely counterweighted, thus lessening the power required to raise and lower them. The motion is quiet, almost imperceptible, but the experience of gliding through the air with the beauties of the grounds spreading out before the passenger is extremely delightful. During the short interval when the hanging platforms meet in mid-air a magnificent bird's-eye view of the exhibition and the surrounding metropolis is obtained and as familiar objects again become distinguishable and infinitesimal friends beneath increase to their normal size with the completion of the remaining part of the half circle, a buoyant feeling is produced which does not vanish for some time after reaching terra-firma. There is absolutely no danger in the "Flip-Flap," but it is wonderful pick-me-up, literally and metaphorically. As for music the best military brass bands are playing at various pavilions throughout the ground and they are splendid.

The Irish Exhibits.

Now for the exhibits of my native land, Ireland, at the exhibition. There is a typical Irish village, which covers over ten and one half acres of grounds, with a castellated entrance. Within on the square is a representation of the round towers of Ireland, and beside it a ruined church. An Irish jaunting car is there for the visitors who wish to take a drive in this celebrated Irish vehicle. Cottages are erected where over 350 girls are working making celebrated Irish lace, crochet work, Irish linen, spinning, etc. One beautiful lace dress is on exhibition, valued at $5,000. There were a group of ladies looking at it while I was there, and they said it was the richest and most beautiful piece of lace work they ever saw or ever will see. There is also a reproduction of the little thatched cottage in which the grandparents of the late President McKinley were born, made of the actual doors, windows, stairs and flooring, the large iron griddle and crane and the lucky horseshoe from the old home at Dervock, county Antrim.

The Irish Industries association has a splendid exhibit of Irish goods. The ultimate object of the Irish village is to obtain money to carry on and extend the campaign against consumption, which is getting a hold in Ireland. Over 12,000 people a year die from it. The death rate is twice what it is in England and Scotland. The cause is found in the home in which the poor people in the country have been forced to live, another indictment of English rule in Ireland. All the profits received from the sale of goods, etc., wil go to this worthy cause. Health is the first wealth.

In the international shooting contest yesterday, I am proud to say that the United States team won and every American in London was jubilant last night. Hurrah for Old Glory! In the individual contest England picked Col. Millner, the crack Irish shot, and the United States Capt. Casey. Col. Millner won for Great Britain the Olympic medal, and Capt. Casey was officially awarded the Olympic silver medal. Hero's hoping that the American teams in other events will carry off the honors, and they will, to the best land on earth—the land of the Stars and Stripes.

AUGUSTINE MURPHY.

BIG, MAD DOG KILLED.

Dollar Bay, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large Newfoundland dog, suffering from the rables, was shot by Ben Kahler, in front of Schulte's store in Dollar Bay this wek. The animal was tearing down the road with froth streaming from its mouth when Mr. Kahler first perceived it. He at once procured a gun and dispatched the maddened brute.

So far as is known no other dogs were bitten by the canine. But for Mr. Kahler's timely action, however, it is feared that some human lives would have been the forfeit, as the street was thronged with little children at the time.

RESPONSES OF GOVERNORS

Who Attended the White House Conference on Conservation of Natural Rosources Assure State Co-operation With the National Commission.

Washington, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—State co-operation with the national conservation commission seems to be an assured success, if the action of the governors thus far can be taken as an example of what is to follow. Both the commission and the White House are greatly encouraged at the responses of the governors who attended the White House conference. Several governors have already appointed state conservation commissions. Many others have written the president declaring their intention to do so at an early date, while still others promise to recommend vigorously in their forthcoming messages to their respective legislatures the apopintment of state commissions and active co-operation with the national body.

Within less than thirty days after the appointment of the national conservation commission, four governors had advised the president of similar state action by themselves. Governor Folk of Missouri, who announced at the White House conference his intention of naming a commission to deal with the natural resources of his state, has carried out his intention, and Missouri's commission is expected soon to be at work.

Governor Warner of Michigan has explained to the president that Michigan already has a forestry commission and a commission of inquiry into related phases of natural resources, which between them will be able to look after the natural resources of the Wolverine state.

Montana and Oregon were among the first of the states in the field with conservation commissions. Under datte of June 15, Governor Edwin L. Norris of Montana, wrote the president that he had appointed a commission "to suggest to our next legislative assembly proper ways and means to conserve and protect the forests of Montana, and I anticipate that the commission so appointed by me will make valuable recommendations."

Oregon Responds.

On June 19, Governor George E. Chamberlain of Oregon notified the president that he had already appointed "a committee on plans and program for the movement of the conservation of resources, and that this commission is to be enlarged and will act in co-operation with the national commission."

Governor J. Frank Hanly of Indiana writes that it is his purpose "in the near future to appoint a state commission."

Governor C. S. Deneen of Illinois says he will be pleased to appoint a commission for Illinois and will forward the names of the appointees.

Governor M. F. Ansel of South Carolina has promised to take up the matter of appointing a state commission very soon.

Governor R. B. Glenn of North Carolina, writing on June 11, assures the presidet that eveything necessary to enable the North Carolina state geological survey to co-operate with the national conservation commission so as to preserve our resourses "will be laid before the next legislature by me in my last message to that body." Governor Glenn added; "Let me say, Mr. President, in this connection, that I think the calling together of the governors was one of the biggest things that has been by any president during my recollection, and is bound to result in great good to the nation, and I believe if the governors will heartily co-operate with you, and your successor, along this line, that there will be great strides toward the preservation of our resources."

Governor E. F. Noel of Mississippi says: "To the extent of the power given me by our constitution and laws I shall give my hearty co-operation, and shall bring the matter before our next legislature and undergo the enactment of such legislation as will secure the full help of the state in the effort to effect a wist solution of the important problems involved in the conservator of our natural resources."

New Mexico to Co-operate.

Governor George Curry of New Mexico has written the president that he will endeavor to appoint a strong and representative territorial commission, "which may work in conjunction with the national board on these vital issues."

Co-operation with the national conservation commission has been specifically promised in recent letters to the president by Governor Augustus E. Willson of Kentucky, Governor James O. Davidson of Wisconsin, Governor Andrew L. Harris of Ohio, Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., of Massachusetts, Governor Claude Governor A. Swanson of Virginia, Edwin S. Stuart of Pennsylvania, Governor Rollin S. Woodruff of Connecticut, Governor D. S. Dickerson of Nevada, Governor J. N. Gillett of California, Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, Governor John C. Cutler of Utah and Governor G. L. Sheldon of Nebraska.

By the middle of October, the national conservation commission expects to have gathered together a great amount of material showing the actual present condition of our natural resouroes. The commission will hold its first meeting on Tuesday, Dec 1, in Washington, and the week later the governors of the states, or their representatives, will consult with the members of the national commission to the end that a complete preliminary report may be prepared for the president, as he has directed, by Jan. 1, 1909. Several governors have already indicated that they will try to be present in person; if they cannot, they declare they will send representatives.

G. B. Burhans Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burhans of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble." Sold by all druggists.

AT THE LYCEUM

Mack-Leone Players Will Appear Next Week in "Captain Swift," The Production That Brought Fame to the Late Maurice Barrymore.

Is larceny a hobby? Is crime a disease? Is eluding the police one of the rarest sports in the world? Get the answers to those questions (and at the same time have one of the most delightfully exciting evenings of entertainment) from the Mack-Leone Players, when they appear at the Lyceum next week in "Captain Swift."

Compelled by force of circumstances to be a thief in his earlier life, Capt. Swift, after robbing the Queensland, Australia, National bank of £20,000, goes to England, begins life all over again, and by his charm of manner and gentlemanly bearing, he gains entrance to the homes of some of the best families in London, where, during the course of events, he unravels the mystery of his birth (he being an illegitimate child), finds his mother, who is now married and happy and, at the same time, he falls in love with his own natural cousin. The detectives in the meantime have traced him to London by means of certain marked bank notes, leaving but one or two things for him to do, either to expose his mother's past life to her husband and ruin her for life, or Swift himself must die. This he does by his own hand, just as the detectives are forcing the door in order to take him. Capt. Swift was the late lamented Maurice Barrymore's greatest piece of work, and brought him more fame than any other role he ever played.

Mr. Mack will, of course, play the title role, and in the part of the debonair, cool and triumphant Capt. Swift, has one of the most congenial roles of his career. Miss Holmes will play the part of "Stella," the girl who loves the irresistible Captain. Mr. Quigley will play the part created by that grand old actor, W. H. Stoddart. Miss Meade will play the very important role of Swift's mother, in which part she has been seen before. The other members of the company have all been cast in good parts, and the scenic equipment will be on the usual Mack-Leone scale.

Joyland's Next Attraction.

Joyland—White City—will be open tomorrow Sunday, July 26, afternoon and evening, and all the concessions and attractions will be running full blast. There will be a band concert in the afternoon, and Mr. Otto Jeancon, the famous baritone, will be heard on the free platform in one of the latest Eastern song hits, at 4 and 9 o'clock p. m. "Marvelous Martin," the world's greatest high diver, will leap from an 85-foot pole into a net beneath. The bills describe Martin as the most daring, dashing, death-defying, dare devil of all the sensational outdoor acts. He comes here from Luna Park, Coney Island, where he has created a sensation during thet past month. In the evening free moving pictures will be shown, and seats will be provided in front of the free platform. There will be bathing Sunday and all week, and on Wednesday and Saturday dancing parties will be held in the pavilion.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

"The Clansmen" Company to Come on Yacht Dixie From Buffalo to Duluth---Henry B. Harris Has Three August Productions.

New York, July 25.—The deep seagoing actors of "The Clansman" company this season will not make their annual cruise along the Atlantic coast, which originated the pleasant practice of shipboard rehearsals for many of the theatrical companies. Instead, the mode of opening the season will be varied by means of a two weeks' tour of the Great Lakes. Manager (or as the players now entitle him Commodore) George H. Brennan has chartered the staunch yacht Dixie beginning Saturday, Aug. 22, and his rollicking seadogs will embark at Buffalo on that day, a whole fortnight being allowed for the leisurely sailings of Lakes Erie, Huron and Superior. Flag Officer Guinol Socola will direct the rehearsals, and the office of captain of the day will be alternated by Franklin Ritchie, Al S. Roth, J. J. McCarthy and Henry L MacMahon. Down at his summer cottage at Red Bank, N. J., Barry Maxwell, the Uncle Nelse of "The Clansman" production, is practising daily how to touch his cap, scrape a leg and shout "Ay, Ay, sir!" in a loud tone whenever the Commodore issues a command. Maxwell, by the way, has been officially appointed boatswain with the boys of "The Clansmen" singing quartette as his boat's crew. Rehearsals will be held on shipboard twice daily, and it is not anticipated that the routine of getting ready for the season will be so rudely broken into as it was two years ago this summer when the Clyde liner chartered by "The Clansman" people and containing all the members of the organization was blown seventy-five miles out of her course and almost foundered by a true Hatteras hurricane. The Dixie, which is a sailing vessel of 500 tons burden with auxiliary steam power, is scheduled to sail into the harbor of Duluth, Saturday, Sept. 5, the company opening their playing season in "The Clansman" on Labor day, Sept. 7. All the expenses of the cruise, as in cases heretofore, will be borne by the management, who thus afford the players a most delightful outing while making the necessary preparations for the year's work.

Henry B. Harris, whose outlook as to theatrical seasons in general is always of the most optimistic nature and whose attractions generally exceed the time run of the most amusement organizations, will begin the theatrical season in New York with three productions in August. On the 10th Mr. Harris will offer James Forbes' latest comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," with a cast of well-known players, the chief of which are Miss Gertrude Coghlan, who has appeared for the last three seasons as Shirley Rossmore in "The Lion and the Mouse," and Frank McIntyre, who became prominent as an exponent of light comedy through his interpretation of Billy Saunders with Robert Edeson in "Strongheart," and Bubby Dumble with the same star in "Classmates." At the academy of music on the 13th, Mr. Harris will present in conjunction with Maurice Campbell, Miss Henrietta Crossman in a repertoire of her former successful plays, chief among them being "The Country Girl." At the Hudson theater on August 24th, Robert Edeson will inaugurate his sixth season as a star under the Harris management in a new play by George Broadhurst, entitled "The Call of the North," and founded on Stuart Edward White's story, "Conjuror's House." Miss Marjorie Wood, who has been with Mr. Edeson since 1904, will this season become leading woman for this star. Mr. Harris' next production in New York will be on the 7th of September when Rose Stahl opens her third season in James Forbes' comedy, "The Chorus Lady."

The inroads of the picture theater at the minimum price of admission at 5 cents continues to be a thorn in the side of the proprietors of many theaters that have heretofore run along without opposition. Just now, as the time for the next season draws near the one matter of conjecture is the future of the vaudeville. It would seem by the movements of some of the shrewdest men in that field that the variety of the present is not having the big vogue it did up to last season. The war played havoc in some directions and in the cheaper avenues the moving picture shows are encroaching upon the vaudeville houses, and it is noticed that all along the line the houses heretofore playing this sort of entertainment are announcing changes in policy. For example a few seasons ago there were few more lucrative houses in the country than the Olympic theater in Chicago. Kohl & Castle made a fortune there and have conducted it as one of their best Chicago houses. Now with the new Majestic controlling the field they are changing the policy there and the coming season the Olympic will likely be devoted to stock musical offerings. They are also keeping the Chicago opera house out of the vaudeville run. This leaves a clear sail for the Majestic. It is said that changes in some of the Western houses on the Orpheum circuit may be made.

An effort was made by Samuel Collins, an art dealer in New York, to have Francis Wilson arrested last week on a charge of criminal libel. The comedian purchased some paintings from Collins which were alleged to be works of old masters, but it is said that he afterward claimed he had been victimized. Collins is anxious to have the charge cleared up. Wilson was before Magistrate Wahle to oppose the action. Briefs have been filed and a decision will be rendered this week.

The Friganza Sisters, Bessie and Trixie, will be members of the Cohan & Harris forces in the new show that opens the Gaiety theater in New York soon. Carrie Bowman is also to be a part of the big company.

* * *

Charles Klein, author of many successful plays, is just now receiving the congratulations of his friends over the happy event of a baby boy born to the Klein household last week. Mr. Klein, who is at his country place in Rowayton, Conn., finishing his new play, "The Mischiefmakers," for Henry B. Harris, writes that "the newcomer is a big hit and it looks like a long run. I hope my new play will do as well."

* * *

James K. Hackett cut his European vacation short by a few days and returned to this country last week. It is said that his return was hurried somewhat by the filing of divorce papers by Mrs. Hackett (Mary Mannering). Hackett has refused to discuss his marital affairs since his return, and is busily preparing for a few special summer stock engagements and for his many attractions next season.

* * *

F. Ziegfeld, Jr., has gone to Paris to meet his wife, Anna Held, and together they will look over the European field before coming home in the fall to start preparations for Miss Held's next big production. Julian Mitchell will travel with the Ziegfelds and lend his expert services in making suggestions for the chorus effects. Mitchell has been engaged exclusively for the Ziegfeld shows hereafter and will devote his entire attention to them. The new Held piece will be called "Around the World With Anna Held." Think of the opportunity of looking at the naughty world through those eyes that just can't behave.

* * *

Gus Edwards and Felix Isman have both disposed of their interest in the Circle theater and the show, "The Merry Go Round," now providing summer amusement in New York. The new proprietor is Lawrence Mulligan, who has been a silent partner in the firm heretofore. It is said that Mulligan has disposed of the Chicago rights of the piece to Thomas Noonan, the resident manager of the Illinois theater. It is said that Noonan will have a music hall in the Windy City, to be called The Garden. It will be run after the style made famous by Weber and Fields, and the new musical revue will be the first production under the new management there.

Joseph Wheelock, Jr., whose health necessitated his abandonment of the stage and his retirement to the Arizona desert country, has again taken up theatrical work, but this time in a new field. He is now the manager of the Phoenix opera house at Pheonix, Ariz. It is a rattling good one-night stand, and many a troupe will run to the town to play Jap Wheelock's theater on their way out to or back from the Pacific Coast cities.

* * *

Business Manager Ed Pidgeon says that the reports of a possible cancellation of Harry Lauder's time in this country is liable to work damage to all concerned. He says that Mr. Lauder will return positively on Oct. 5, and play in New York for eight weeks, for which he is to receive the salary of $3,000 a week. An effort had been made to secure the cancellation of some London and Scotland time by purchase, but the people could not bring this about. They offered Lauder's manager $12,000 for twelve weeks' time, but it was refused. At the conclusion of his American tour Lauder goes back to England to remain for the next nine years, as his time has been booked solidly that far ahead. It is said that at the expiration of existing contracts Lauder will retire from the stage.

Louise Henry has succeeded Mabel Hite in "The Merry Go Round" in New York. The latter will rest up for a time and then go back to the Whitney forces to be a joint star in a new piece B. C. Whitney now has under way for herself and John Slavin. The pair were great favorites during the long run of the Chicago hit, "A Knight for a Day," and will likely be as big a hit in their new effort.

Rex Beach, the author of "The Barrier," a dramatic version of which will be produced next season by Klaw & Erlanger, is spending the summer hunting bears in the Yukon country. One of the strongest plays of the coming season has been constructed from the novel, which has made such a vivid impression upon the reading public. Six of the strongest actors on the American stage and one clever woman will be needed to interpret the principal figures of Mr. Beach's mental creation.

* * *

Lillian Russell, who will be seen next season in the Broadhurst-Hobart racing comedy, "Wildfire," is at present enjoying the delights of shopping in London and Paris. Miss Russell will purchase several new gowns for use in the play. Her stay abroad must be brief, as she will begin rehearsals the first week in August. The season of "Wildfire" will open at Asbury Park Sept. 5. Miss Russell will then go to the Liberty theater, New York, for a long stay.

* * *

Paul Armstrong will deliver the manuscript of the naval drama, "In Time of Peace," to Klaw & Erlanger Sept. 1. The play is practically completed, but Mr. Armstrong is polishing it up at the Naval academy at Annapolis, Md. "In Time of Peace" will deal with naval topics and sailors in a new and vigorous fashion. The largest practice and the fleet riding at anchor in Hampton Roads promise to be the big scenic effects of the production, which is to be staged lavishly for realistic and light effects.

* * *

A great reception was given Alice Lloyd at her last appearance in vaudeville in New York city before she sailed for Paris and London. She had to sing five songs and make a speech. Miss Lloyd went directly to Paris, where she will be fitted for gowns which she will wear in Klaw & Erlanger's musical comedy, "The Bonnie Belle of Scotland," in which she will appear in the fall. The McNaughtons, who will appear in the same production, sailed on the same boat, but Tom McNaughton will go direct to Scotland to engage twenty hillmen. These will make up a Scotch chorus, and the comedian says the band will be composed exclusively of men who have never been known to wear trousers.

Rehearsals of "Little Nemo," Klaw & Erlanger's cartoon spectacle, will begin August 24. Harry B. Smith has delivered the complete first act. It is the best constructed act of a musical production that has come under their long observation. No player will be starred or featured in the production. The offering itself and the enormous effects which will be used in the three acts and ten scenes will carry the show to success. The cast now stands: Dr. Phill, Joseph Cawthorn; Little Nemo, Master Gabriel; Mrs. Nemo, Rose Beaumont; the dancing missionary, Harry Kelly; Flip, Billy B. Van, and Gladys, a cat, Dave Abrams. The entertainment will be given an early fall production.

Sir Gilbert Parker, the author of "The Right-of-Way," has returned to London after a conference with Klaw & Erlanger, under whose management the dramatic version of his famous novel will be toured next season. Sir Gilbert spent only two weeks in New York. Speaking of the American people, he says: "The American thinks quickly and acts quickly; but more remarkable than anything else is his supreme patience with annoyances of all kinds. He endures meekly, good-naturedly, to the breaking point, and then settles accounts with astonishing justice and swift penalty." "The Right-of-Way" will open its season in Brooklyn Sept. 7. Theodore Roberts and Guy Standing remain as co-stars. May Buckley will play the role of Rosalie and Paula Gloy returns in the part of Suzon.

Joseph Brooks, of the firm of Klaw & Erlanger, returned from Europe July 30. While in London he obtained a contract wth Joseph O'Mara, whom he will star in "Peggy Machree." He also met Lillian Russell in Paris and passed an expert opinion on her selection of gowns for use in her play "Wildfire." Arrangements were made by him for the production in London of the Herbert opera, "Victoria," in which Marie George will be starred.

* * *

Mlle. Genee danced before the king and queen of England last week at Lady Lonsdale's garden party at the personal request of the queen. Her highness held a long conversation in Danish with the dancer, congratulating her on her wonderful talents and talking of their native land, Denmark. Mlle. Genee appeared in the ballet, "The Dryad," which she will use in her coming American tour. Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger have secured for her also Delibes' ballet, "Coppelia," which set off to such advantage all the varied attributes of her dancing. Through the valse and grand ball of the first act, with broken rhythm of the Slavic theme, Mlle. Genee foots it with exquisite art. The humor of the ballet lies in the mechanical doll number laid in old Coppelius's work shop of automatic dolls. The valse "Coppelia" and the grand galop offer the fullest opportunity to Mlle. Genee to display her matchless art. Her return to the Empire, London, proved a triumph for the dancer.

For the coming tour of "Ben-Hur" under the management of Klaw & Erlanger, an entirely new production is being built in the New York shop of the firm. This will be the fourth season of the greatest Biblical play ever staged. When it opens in Elmira in September, scenery, costumes and staging will be as new as were the paraphernalia of the play on its first night on Broadway, almost a decade ago. Most of the tour of the company will be spent west of the Missouri river, and on the Pacific coast. Loyola O'Connor, who will play the role of the mother of Ben Hur, is a Californian. She made her debut with the Joseph Grismer-Phoebe Davis company. In that cast were William A Brady, Warde and Frank Mayo. After a brief experience in the stock she returned to Brady & Grismer, appearing in the first production of "Way Down East."

* * *

The war department has ordered out the troops at Forts Wingate and Grant to suppress an Indian unrising in Arizona, in the land in which the scenes of "The Round Up" are laid. The troops will go through the same experiences as are depicted in the big Klaw & Erlanger drama of the plains. It scarcely seems probable in these days Indians would defy the government, but there is the order and the Indians are out in the desert, and the troops are rounding them up to chase them back to the reservation. "The Round Up" will open its season at the academy of music, New York, Aug. 31. After a stay of several weeks in the metropolis, the company returns to Boston and Philadelphia to continue runs which were interrupted last year to fill contracts. The big drama of the Arizona desert will be staged lavishly and naturally, as it was last season. Maclyn Arbuckle will play the part of the fat and loveless sheriff; Florence Rockwell returns as Echo, but Minnette Barrett will play the part of Polly. But few changes, however, have been made in the big cast which interpreted the play last year. The stage picture of "The Round Up," with the bucking ponies and bits from life on the range and the battle remains vastly entertaining to lovers of dramatic representation of a phase of American life which is quickly passing away.

The many thousands of persons who have enjoyed Sir Gilbert Parker's fascinating stories, "Pierre and His People," will welcome the announcement of the presentation of a play by Henry B. Harris, founded on this delightful book and entitled "Pierre of the Plains.' The new play was written by Edgar Selwyn, who will appear in the title role, opening at Toronto on Sept. 21.

* * *

Marie Dressler will rest up in this country until Aug. 19, when she sails back to London to prepare for the production of her musical comedy in that country. Maurice Levi will work with her on the music. The book will be by Edgar Smith. Marie will finance the whole thing and play the principal part herself in the effort to show London what an American comedienne can do.

* * *

Victor Leon and Leon Stein, the coauthors of the book to "The Merry Widow," have agreed to separate and hereafter will work single-handed. Their last work will likely be "The Prince Child," the new piece, the score for which Franz Lehar will write. Manager Henry W. Savage has the American rights and will produce the piece when completed. Lehar, by the way, is reported to be in financial straits. Despite the fact that he has earned over $300,000 in royalties from his great success, "The Merry Widow," the Austrian composer is credited with losing that amount on the stock exchange in Vienna.

* * *

Bert Leslie denies that he is either the mayor of Staten island, where he is summering, or that he has any designs of trying for the nomination even. In a word he is satisfied with his official services now, which include chief of police, chief of the fire department, coroner, city clerk and tax collector.

* * *

Charles J. Ross is slowly recovering from the effects of his injured knee which called him out of the Weber show lest spring. He is now resting up at the Ross Fenton farm, near Asbury Park, N. J.

* * *

Ethel Levey is settled permanently in Paris, and pursuing vocal studies under Baldelli in the French metropolis. Miss Levey will remain there until she has completed her vocal development. Whether she will go into grand opera in the end is not stated.

* * *

A significant song has just been brought out under the title, "Willie, Won't You Wait a Little Longer?" It is by Bryan and Kern, just to add to the nevelty. The composers are not the famous candidates, however, but it was written by Al Bryan and Jerome D. Kern, two popular song writers, and will be sung by Hattie Williams in her forthcoming production of "Fluffy Ruffles."

* * *

Lawrence D'Orsay, whose manners and drawing speech were dramatized by Augustus Thomas in "The Earl of Pawtucket," will abandon starring this season to join the Anna Held company. He will play a part that is fitted to his peculiarities of manner in the new show.

* * *

Georgie Drew Mendum, who has been making a hit in the Clyde Fitch play, "Girls," now running at the Chicago opera house in Chicago, has been engaged to play her old part in "The Girl Question" when that piece opens in New York next month.

* * *

William Raymond Sill and George Hanlon, Jr., are trying out in the East a new vaudeville spectacle called "The Auto Fiends." It is a trick act evolved by young Hanlon, and was seen in the rough with one of the burlesque shows that played here at the Standard last winter. Thelma Fair and a bevy of girls are now working in the sketch, and reports are that it has been elaborated into a big success. The act closes with a sensational run, in which the girls are thought to speed out into the audience in their machines.

Marie Booth Russell, who in private life is the wife of Robert B. Mantell, is reported to be critically ill in Los Angeles, Cal., but is slowly recovering and will likely start East soon.

* * *

Rehearsals of the next big Klaw & Erlanger spectacle, "Little Nemo," will start the latter part of next month in New York. Among the people already engaged for the company are Joe Cawthorne, Harry Kelly, Billy B. Van, Master Gabriel, Rose Beaumont and Dave Abrams.

* * *

The report last week that the Empire Circuit will lose its two New York houses was confirmed last week. It is said that Sullivan and Kraus will change the policy of the Dewey and the Gotham and devote them to moving picture shows in the future. They will turn over two of their outside houses to the Columbia amusement people and be affiliated with them in the future. This marks another quick shift in the matter of the burlesque rivalry. Two seasons back the Empire people managed to win over Sullivan and Kraus to their side, and it looked as if by this move they had shut their Eastern rivals out of New York, but two theaters were hurriedly taken over, and now they are fortified with three houses in New York city and three in Brooklyn, making six weeks in Greater New York that the Columbia shows will play this season, unless they should readjust their time.

Junie McRea will take his old place in "The Girl Question" when that piece is put on in New York next month.

TRIALS THAT BESET MOTHERS

What Parents of Young Actresses Must Endure Daily ---Have to Guard Their Offspring From the Intolerable Masher.

The lot of the mother of an actress, says the Chicago Tribune, is much like that of the hen who, having raised a brood of ducklings, was unable to keep them from going into the water. The daughter proves docile enough while her dramatic training is in process, but once her debut is made she becomes an exceedingly independent young woman and insists on having her own way, while her mother stands on the shores of protestation vainly, realizing that it is futile, but unable to quit.

Isabel d'Armond had a hard time getting on the stage. Her mother was strenuously opposed to her entering the dramatic field. Isabel pleaded and coaxed and stormed in vain. Then she tried a bold move. She obtained a number of books on dramatics and, secluding herself, read continually.

She would come out of her seclusion mild and pensive. Her bursts of temper became things of the past. Her friends noticed her unusual gentleness and remarked about it to her mother. Her mother became depressed.

"Isabel," she said one day, "I have noticed a great change in you lately. I am worried about it. I cannot tell you how worried I am."

Isabel smiled pensively. Then she said: "Well mother, I have been reading a number of plays here lately and studying up on the lives of great actresses, and it amounts to this. There is a certain nobility of character in every actress who is worth anything, and—well, I am trying to be good."

It was enough. Isabel went on the stage and presto! the change was over and she was again her wilful self, brooking no interference. Now she leads her mother a merry chase.

Edith Taliaferro and her sister, Mabel, now playing at McVicker's in "Brewster's Millions," are rarebit fiends. There is never a night but that they insist on having a chafing dish after the show. The Taliaferro sets her foot down firmly. She says with great decision:

"Thou shalt not!"

And then the trouble begins. The girls insist. They are hungry. They are starving. Sleep will be impossible until they're given something to eat.

They may have a sandwich. There is a wall of disdain. Who ever heard of an actress eating a sandwich? Oh, they will go to bed hungry—better starvation than a sandwich. What is to be done? Who ever heard of a real mother—a flesh and blood mother—allowing her offspring to go to bed hungry—starving? Mrs. Taliaferro eyes them dubiously. They do look peaked. They have been working hard.

They—gets rarebit.

Those who have not seen Crystal Herne will find it impossible to conceive in what manner she could be displeasing to her mother. She seems the personification of all that is gentle and well behaved. When Miss Herne was here recently starring in "The Regeneration," her reserve was the characteristic most often remarked upon.

This is the one to whichher mother objects. Mrs. Herne is a prominent clubwoman, and has social aspirations for her daughter. It is her wish that Crystal be not only popular in the theatrical world, but recognized as a leader in society.

Crystal, however, will have nothing to do with dinners and dances and pink teas. After the theater she may be found always at her hotel reading, writing or crocheting. Of the last she is fond, and not a child or baby acquaintance but has some dainty article of apparel crocheted by the young actress.

"Why should I," asks Miss Herne, "do what I detest and wear myself out by doing it? I'd do almost anything for you, mother, buc scintillate in society I cannot—honestly."

The mother of May McManus, playing in "Miss Hook of Holland," had an awful time with her little German girl, and the mashers. May, with her small, quaint face and charming Dutch ways, always was receiving notes. Do what mamma could, insidious little "I love you's" and "Oh, won't you be mine's" would find their way into daughter's hands, and then there would be a scene.

May liked the little notes because they amused her. She had an inherent love for laughter and the notes made her laugh Once she answered one. Her mother found it out and there was a great commotion. Mrs. McManus read the riot act.

"Another performance of this kind and off the stage you go. The convent for you," she said. May, who has known her mother for some time, was aware she meant business.

To see Elsie Janis is to behold her mother. She is ever present and keeps a vigilant eye open. And as a rule Miss Janis is docile. She did something meriting the maternal displeasure recently, however, when she insisted on playing baseball with a crowd of little boys.

The young actress was passing the baseball field, and paused a moment to watch the game. She beheld a ball held temptingly aloft. Her hands went up in the air.

"Throw!"

"Elsie!" gasped her mother.

There was a cry of delight from the boys and a ball came hurtling through the air. Elsie caught it and tossed it back, smiling. Then, with head aloft, she walked on beside her irate mother.

"How can you do such things, Elsie?" asked the latter. "I should think it would hurt your pride."

"It hurt my finger. Isn't that enough?" asked Miss Janis, and she held out a bruised members for inspection. Since she has been compelled to use her right hand with care, for her third finger is lame.

"BROILERS" AT AGENCIES

What Young Chorus Girl Puts Up With---Men Who Get Jobs for Women Bleed Them of Most of Salary.

"Been swallowed?" inquired the prosperous appearing chorus girl with the elaborately coiffed hair as she sat on the edge of her trunk and swung her faultlessly dressed feet against its sides.

"Yep," dolefully answered the "broiler," a small personage, who crouched on the floor, was anxiously going over and over again some figures in a tiny expense account book, "they've got me for fair. It seems to me as if I never will get through paying them. And I only get $15 a week, you know."

And then the whole pitiful story came out. The worried little woman on the floor had obtained a position with a theatrical company through on agency, which had procured her work in the chorus. She had signed papers to pay them a certain amount out of her salary each week until the commission charged had been entirely liquidated, and the amount was such, that, after it had been paid, it left her almost stranded, with barely money enough to pay her board and lodging, let alone the thousand and one things which she needed and wanted.

"And I don't know what to do," she sobbed, her thin shoulders shaking with her emotion. "I don't know what to do!"

From her stocking the other girl pulled a purse which was none too full.

"How much do you owe?" she asked, and, upon learning the amount, thrust her entire hoard into the other's hand. She cut short the stammered words of thanks with a quick:

"Oh, don't thank me. I'd want anybody to do the same for me. Some one has, too. We all run up against the agencies once in a while."

She spoke the truth. Not a chorus girl or a "broiler" in other words, the lowest salaried, least experienced girl in the chorus—but that has had her day with the agencies. If she is wise, however, she never has but one encounter, but when she is out of a job she goes direct to the managers of the theaters and makes her application, knowing that it is infinitely better to go without work than to get work by putting her head in the mouth of the theatrical "whale," an agency.

In All Large Cities.

In all large cities these agencies operate. As a rule they do not have the appearance of being successful business concerns. They are, on the whole, dingy little offices, where applicants are received cordially, "jollied" along intermittently, sometimes provided with jobs, but more often not provided for, and in case the work is procured, "bled" with a vengeance which would do credit to the most voracious loan shark.

It seldom is that anybody save the chorus people ever goes to an agency. "Real" actresses know that their best chance is in getting audience either with the manager of a theater or with the manager of the special agency of the producer in whose play they desire to have a part.

All big producers run private agencies which are as far removed from the ordinary places as the east is from the west. These agencies are cared for by people who have had experience on the stage, who have had experience in dealing with people, who are intuitive, and know just what the public as well as their own employers want. They are able to accurately discriminate between the chaff and the wheat, whereas the first named agencies are presided over usually by persons who know nothing whatever of the real hopes of the theatrical profession, or, if they are at all initiated, have learned their trade by mail. In either case they are not fitted to judge what is wanted in the great field of theatricals.

Shady Work.

Every once in a while the small agencies are found to be engaged in work which is shady if nothing more. They have been found sending young girls into barrooms and into places where no woman could remain and keep her purity unsullied. Those who read the papers will remember the case which was brought to the attention of the public not long ago of a certain agency which delegated a couple of young girls to a dive in Springfield, Ohio, giving them the impression that they were being entered in perfectly legitimate work. Once on the scene of actions they had no choice but to stay, for they were penniless and absolutely in the hands of the men who had deceived them. Here they were found, broken and hopeless by the authorities. The men who had decoyed them were tried, found guilty and sentenced to a term in Joliet.

A prominent Chicago theatrical man said recently:

"I consider the small theatrical agency the greatest menace of the profession today. It is the worst possible place for a girl who is determined to go on the stage to start from. Even if they do get her a job she finds herself tied up to them and in trying to pay them their exorbitant commissions.

"My advice to most girls is to keep away from the theaters—that is, from the stage entrance. But if she is determined to try her luck she should at all hazards shun the agency as she would shun smallpox."

MANY ROLES AIM OF ACTRESS

Most of Bigger Stars Have Played Many Varied Parts---Majority, However, Have Not Attained What They Yearn For.

Actresses all aspire to be versatile. They will all tell you they would rather play many parts with success than create a few.

Not over a dozen of the many leading actresses have attained to the desired in this respect. Not over a dozen can boast of handling with superiority more than ten parts from classic roles.

In this limited list Viola Allen leads. She was brought up on the stage. She has created or, some than estimate, offhand, the number of roles in which she has appeared.

At the age of 12 she proved she had the gifts from which good actresses are made. The next year she went with John McCullough playing girlish parts. But she was not satisfied until she had played Portia and Rosalind.

Viola Allen has been all of Shakespeare's heroines, and she finds something worth while in each, because she's a wonderful Shakespearean student. She says:

"Shakespeare, more than any great writer, knew and appreciated every type of womanhood and expressed all worthy feminine traits in his characters. Though each of his women is different, it is not difficult to interpret them if one is a

AT THE LYCEUM

Mack-Leone Players Will Appear Next Week in "Captain Swift," The Production That Brought Fame to the Late Maurice Barrymore.

Is larceny a hobby? Is crime a disease? Is eluding the police one of the rarest sports in the world? Get the answers to those questions (and at the same time have one of the most delightfully exciting evenings of entertainment) from the Mack-Leone Players, when they appear at the Lyceum next week in "Captain Swift."

Compelled by force of circumstances to be a thief in his earlier life, Capt. Swift, after robbing the Queensland, Australia, National bank of £20,000, goes to England, begins life all over again, and by his charm of manner and gentlemanly bearing, he gains entrance to the homes of some of the best families in London, where, during the course of events, he unravels the mystery of his birth (he being an illegitimate child), finds his mother, who is now married and happy and, at the same time, he falls in love with his own natural cousin. The detectives in the meantime have traced him to London by means of certain marked bank notes, leaving but one or two things for him to do, either to expose his mother's past life to her husband and ruin her for life, or Swift himself must die. This he does by his own hand, just as the detectives are forcing the door in order to take him. Capt. Swift was the late lamented Maurice Barrymore's greatest piece of work, and brought him more fame than any other role he ever played.

Mr. Mack will, of course, play the title role, and in the part of the debonair, cool and triumphant Capt. Swift, has one of the most congenial roles of his career. Miss Holmes will play the part of "Stella," the girl who loves the irresistible Captain. Mr. Quigley will play the part created by that grand old actor, W. H. Stoddart. Miss Meade will play the very important role of Swift's mother, in which part she has been seen before. The other members of the company have all been cast in good parts, and the scenic equipment will be on the usual Mack-Leone scale.

Joyland's Next Attraction.

Joyland—White City—will be open tomorrow Sunday, July 26, afternoon and evening, and all the concessions and attractions will be running full blast. There will be a band concert in the afternoon, and Mr. Otto Jeancon, the famous baritone, will be heard on the free platform in one of the latest Eastern song hits, at 4 and 9 o'clock p. m. "Marvelous Martin," the world's greatest high diver, will leap from an 85-foot pole into a net beneath. The bills describe Martin as the most daring, dashing, death-defying, dare devil of all the sensational outdoor acts. He comes here from Luna Park, Coney Island, where he has created a sensation during thet past month. In the evening free moving pictures will be shown, and seats will be provided in front of the free platform. There will be bathing Sunday and all week, and on Wednesday and Saturday dancing parties will be held in the pavilion.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

"The Clansmen" Company to Come on Yacht Dixie From Buffalo to Duluth---Henry B. Harris Has Three August Productions.

New York, July 25.—The deep seagoing actors of "The Clansman" company this season will not make their annual cruise along the Atlantic coast, which originated the pleasant practice of shipboard rehearsals for many of the theatrical companies. Instead, the mode of opening the season will be varied by means of a two weeks' tour of the Great Lakes. Manager (or as the players now entitle him Commodore) George H. Brennan has chartered the staunch yacht Dixie beginning Saturday, Aug 22, and his rollicking seadogs will embark at Buffalo on that day, a whole fortnight being allowed for the leisurely sailings of Lakes Erie, Huron and Superior. Flag Officer Guinol Socola will direct the rehearsals, and the office of captain of the day will be alternated by Franklin Ritchie, Al S. Roth, J. J. McCarthy and Henry L. MacMahon. Down at his summer cottage at Red Bank, N. J., Barry Maxwell, the Uncle Nelse of "The Clansman" production, is practising daily how to touch his cap, scrape a leg and shout "Ay, Ay, sir!" in a loud tone whenever the Commodore issues a command. Maxwell, by the way, has been officially appointed boatswain with the boys of "The Clansmen" singing quartette as his boat's crew. Rehearsals will be held on shipboard twice daily, and it is not anticipated that the routine of getting ready for the season will be so rudely broken into as it was two years ago this summer when the Clyde liner chartered by "The Clansman" people and containing all the members of the organization was blown seventy-five miles out of her course and almost foundered by a true Hatteras hurricane. The Dixie, which is a sailing vessel of 500 tons burden with auxiliary steam power, is scheduled to sail into the harbor of Duluth, Saturday, Sept. 5, the company opening their playing season in "The Clansman" on Labor day, Sept. 7. All the expenses of the cruise, as in cases heretofore, will be borne by the management, who thus afford the players a most delightful outing while making the necessary preparations for the year's work.

Henry B. Harris, whose outlook as to theatrical seasons in general is always of the most optimistic nature and whose attractions generally exceed the time run of the most amusement organizations, will begin the theatrical season in New York with three productions in August. On the 10th Mr. Harris will offer James Forbes' latest comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," with a cast of well-known players, the chief of which are Miss Gertrude Coghlan, who has appeared for the last three seasons as Shirley Rossmore in "The Lion and the Mouse," and Frank McIntyre, who became prominent as an exponent of light comedy through his interpretation of Billy Saunders with Robert Edeson in "Strongheart," and Bubby Dumble with the same star in "Classmates." At the academy of music on the 13th, Mr. Harris will present in conjunction with Maurice Campbell, Miss Henrietta Crossman in a repertoire of her former successful plays, chief among them being "The Country Girl." At the Hudson theater on August 24th, Robert Edeson will inaugurate his sixth season as a star under the Harris management in a new play by George Broadhurst, entitled "The Call of the North," and founded on Stuart Edward White's story, "Conjurer's House." Miss Marjorie Wood, who has been with Mr. Edeson since 1904, will this season become leading woman for this star. Mr. Harris' next production in New York will be on the 7th of September when Rose Stahl opens her third season in James Forbes' comedy, "The Chorus Lady."

Who Will Be Seen as "Marshall," the Spying Butler, in "Captain Swift" at the Lyceum All Next Week

The inroads of the picture theater at the minimum price of admission at 5 cents continues to be a thorn in the side of the proprietors of many theaters that have heretofore run along without opposition. Just now, as the time for the next season draws near the one matter of conjecture is the future of the vaudeville. It would seem by the movements of some of the shrewdest men in that field that the variety of the present is not having the big vogue it did up to last season. The war played havoc in some directions and in the cheaper avenues the moving picture shows are encroaching upon the vaudeville houses, and it is noticed that all along the line the houses heretofore playing this sort of entertainment are announcing changes in policy. For example a few seasons ago there were few more lucrative houses in the country than the Olympic theater in Chicago. Kohl & Castle made a fortune there and have conducted it as one of their best Chicago houses. Now with the new Majestic controlling the field they are changing the policy there and the coming season the Olympic will likely be devoted to stock musical offerings. They are also keeping the Chicago opera house out of the vaudeville run. This leaves a clear sail for the Majestic. It is said that changes in some of theWestern houses on the Orpheum circuit may be made.

An effort was made by Samuel Collins, an art dealer in New York, to have Francis Wilson arrested last week on a charge of criminal libel. The comedian purchased some paintings from Collins which were alleged to be works of old masters, but it is said that he afterward claimed he had been victimized. Collins is anxious to have the charge cleared up. Wilson was before Magistrate Wahle to oppose the action. Briefs have been filed and a decision will be rendered this week.

The Friganza Sisters, Bessie and Trixie, will be members of the Cohan & Harris forces in the new show that opens the Gaiety theater in New York soon. Carrie Bowman is also to be a part of the big company.

* * *

Charles Klein, author of many successful plays, is just now receiving the congratulations of his friends over the happy event of a baby boy born to the Klein household last week. Mr. Klein, who is at his country place in Rowayton, Conn., finishing his new play, "The Mischiefmakers," for Henry B. Harris, writes that "the newcomer is a big hit and it looks like a long run. I hope my new play will do as well."

* * *

James K. Hackett cut his European vacation short by a few days and returned to this country last week. It is said that his return was hurried somewhat by the filing of divorce papers by Mrs. Hackett (Mary Mannering). Hackett has refused to discuss his marital affairs since his return, and is busily preparing for a few special summer stock engagements and for his many attractions next season.

* * *

F. Ziegfeld, Jr., has gone to Paris to meet his wife, Anna Held, and together they will look over the European field before coming home in the fall to start preparations for Miss Held's next big production. Julian Mitchell will travel with the Ziegfelds and lend his expert services in making suggestions for the chorus effects. Mitchell has been engaged exclusively for the Ziegfeld shows hereafter and will devote his entire attention to them. The new Held piece will be called "Around the World With Anna Held." Think of the opportunity of looking at the naughty world through those eyes that just can't behave.

* * *

Gus Edwards and Felix Isman have both disposed of their interest in the Circle theater and the show, "The Merry Go Round," now providing summer amusement in New York. The new proprietor is Lawrence Mulligan, who has been a silent partner in the firm heretofore. It is said that Mulligan has disposed of the Chicago rights of the piece to Thomas Noonan, the resident manager of the Illinois theater. It is said that Noonan will have a music hall in the Windy City, to be called The Garden. It will be run after the style made famous by Weber and Fields, and the new musical revue will be the first production under the new management there.

Joseph Wheelock, Jr., whose health necessitated his abandonment of the stage and his retirement to the Arizona desert country, has again taken up theatrical work, but this time in a new field. He 's now the manager of the Phoenix opera house at Pheonix, Ariz. It is a rattling good one-night stand, and many a troupe will run to the town to play Jap Wheelock's theater on their way out to or back from the Pacific Coast cities.

* * *

Business Manager Ed Pidgeon says that the reports of a possible cancellation of Harry Lauder's time in this country is liable to work damage to all concerned. He says that Mr. Lauder will return positively on Oct. 5, and play in New York for eight weeks, for which he is to receive the salary of $3,000 a week. An effort had been made to secure the cancellation of some London and Scotland time by purchase, but the people could not bring this about. They offered Lauder's manager $12,000 for twelve weeks' time, but it was refused. At the conclusion of his American tour Lauder goes back to England to remain for the next nine years, as his time has been booked solidly that far ahead. It is said that at the expiration of existing contracts Lauder will retire from the stage.

Louise Henry has succeeded Mabel Hite in "The Merry Go Round" in New York. The latter will rest up for a time and then go back to the Whitney forces to be a joint star in a new piece B. C. Whitney now has under way for herself and John Slavin. The pair were great favorites during the long run of the Chicago hit, "A Knight for a Day," and will likely be as big a hit in their new effort.

Rex Beach, the author of "The Barrier," a dramatic version of which will be produced next season by Klaw & Erlanger, is spending his summer hunting bears in the Yukon country. One of the strongest plays of the coming season has been constructed from the novel, which has made such a vivid impression upon the reading public. Six of the strongest actors on the American stage and one clever woman will be needed to interpret the principal figures of Mr. Beach's mental creation.

* * *

Lillian Russell, who will be seen next season in the Broadhurst-Hobart racing comedy, "Wildfire," is at present enjoying the delights of shopping in London and Paris. Miss Russell will purchase several new gowns for use in the play. Her stay abroad must be brief, as she will begin rehearsals the first week in August. The season of "Wildfire" will open at Asbury Park Sept. 5. Miss Russell will then go to the Liberty theater, New York, for a long stay.

* * *

Paul Armstrong will deliver the manuscript of the naval drama, "In Time of Peace," to Klaw & Erlanger Sept. 1. The play is practically completed, but Mr. Armstrong is polishing it up at his country place near Annapolis, Md. "In Time of Peace" will deal with naval topics and sailors in a new and vigorous fashion. The target practice and the fleet riding at anchor in Hampton Roads promise to be the big scenic effects of the production, which is to be staged lavishly for realistic and light effects.

* * *

A great reception was given Alice Lloyd at her last appearance in vaudeville in New York city before she sailed for Paris and London. She had to sing five songs and make a speech. Miss Lloyd went directly to Paris, where she will be fitted for gowns which she will wear in Klaw & Erlanger's musical comedy, "The Bonnie Belle of Scotland," in which she will appear in the fall. The McNaughtons, who will appear in the same production, sailed on the same boat, but Tom McNaughton will go direct to Scotland to engage twenty hillmen. These will make up a Scotch chorus, and the comedian says the band will be composed exclusively of men who have never been known to wear trousers.

Rehearsals of "Little Nemo," Klaw & Erlanger's cartoon spectacle, will begin August 24. Harry B. Smith has delivered the complete first act. It is the best constructed act of a musical production that has come under their long observation. No player will be starred or featured in the production. The offering itself and the enormous effects which will be used in the three acts and ten scenes will carry the show to success. The cast now stands: Dr. Phill, Joseph Cawthorn; Little Nemo, Master Gabriel; Mrs. Nemo, Rose Beaumont; the dancing missionary, Harry Kelly; Flip, Billy B. Van, and Gladys, a cat, Dave Abrams. The entertainment will be given an early fall production.

Sir Gilbert Parker, the author of "The Right-of-Way," has returned to London after a conference with Klaw & Erlanger, under whose management the dramatic version of his famous novel will be toured next season. Sir Gilbert spent only two weeks in New York. Speaking of the American people, he says: "The American thinks quickly and acts quickly; but more remarkable than anything else is his supreme patience with annoyances of all kinds. He endures meekly, good-naturedly, to the breaking point, and then settles accounts with astonishing justice and swift penalty." "The Right-of-Way" will open its season in Brooklyn Sept. 7. Theodore Roberts and Guy Standing remain as co-stars. May Buckley will play the role of Rosalie, and Paula Gloy returns in the part of Suzon.

Joseph Brooks, of the firm of Klaw & Erlanger, returned from Europe July 30. While in London he obtained a contract wth Joseph O'Mara, whom he will star in "Peggy Machree." He also met Lillian Russell in Paris and passed an expert opinion on her selection of gowns for use in her play "Wildfire." Arrangements were made by him for the production in London of the Herbert opera, "Victoria," in which Marie George will be starred.

* * *

Mlle. Genee danced before the king and queen of England last week at Lady Lonsdale's garden party at the personal request of the queen. Her highness held a long conversation in Danish with the dancer, congratulating her on her wonderful talents and talking of their native land, Denmark. Mlle. Genee appeared in the ballet, "The Dryad," which she will use in her coming American tour. Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger have secured for her also Delibes' ballet, "Coppelia," which set off to such advantage all the varied attributes of her dancing. Through the valse and grand ball of the first act, with broken rhythm of the Slavic theme, Mlle. Genee foots it with exquisite art. The humor of the ballet lies in the mechanical doll number laid in old Coppelius's work shop of automatic dolls. The valse "Coppelia" and the grand galop offer the fullest opportunity to Mlle. Genee to display her matchless art. Her return to the Empire, London, proved a triumph for the dancer.

For the coming tour of "Ben-Hur" under the management of Klaw & Erlanger, an entirely new production is being built in the New York shop of the firm. This will be the fourth season of the greatest Biblical play ever staged. When it opens in Elmira in September, scenery, costumes and staging will be as new as were the paraphernalia of the play on its first night on Broadway, almost a decade ago. Most of the tour of the company will be spent west of the Missouri river, and on the Pacific coast. Loyola O'Connor, who will play the role of the mother of Ben Hur, is a Californian. She made her debut with the Joseph Grismer-Phoebe Davis company. In that cast were William A Brady, Warde and Frank Mayo. After a brief experience in the stock she returned to Brady & Grismer, appearing in the first production of "Way Down East."

* * *

The war department has ordered out the troops at Forts Wingate and Grant to suppress an Indian unrising in Arizona, in the land in which the scenes of "The Round Up" are laid. The troops will go through the same experiences as are depicted in the big Klaw & Erlanger drama of the plains. It scarcely seems probable in these days Indians would defy the government, but there is the order and the Indians are out in the desert, and the troops are rounding them up to chase them back to the reservation. "The Round Up" will open its season at the academy of music, New York, Aug. 31. After a stay of several weeks in the metropolis, the company returns to Boston and Philadelphia to continue runs which were interrupted last year to fill contracts. The big drama of the Arizona desert will be staged lavishly and naturally, as it was last season. Maclyn Arbuckle will play the part of the fat and loveless sheriff; Florence Rockwell returns as Echo, but Minnette Barrett will play the part of Polly. But few changes, however, have been made in the big cast which interpreted the play last year. The stage picture of "The Round Up," with the bucking ponies and bits from life on the range and the battle remains vastly entertaining to lovers of dramatic representation of a phase of American life which is quickly passing away.

The many thousands of persons who have enjoyed Sir Gilbert Parker's fascinating stories, "Pierre and His People," will welcome the announcement of the presentation of a play by Henry B. Harris, founded on this delightful book and entitled "Pierre of the Plains." The new play was written by Edgar Selwyn, who will appear in the title role, opening at Toronto on Sept. 21.

* * *

Marie Dressler will rest up in this country until Aug. 19, when she sails back to London to prepare for the production of her musical comedy in that country. Maurice Levi will work with her on the music. The book will be by Edgar Smith. Marie will finance the whole thing and play the principal part herself in the effort to show London what an American comedienne can do.

* * *

Victor Leon and Leon Stein, the co-authors of the book to "The Merry Widow," have agreed to separate and hereafter will work single-handed. Their last work will likely be "The Prince Child," the new piece, the score for which Franz Lehar will write. Manager Henry W. Savage has the American rights and will produce the piece when completed. Lehar, by the way, is reported to be in financial straits. Despite the fact that he has earned over $300,000 in royalties from his great success, "The Merry Widow," the Austrian composer is credited with losing that amount on the stock exchange in Vienna.

* * *

Bert Leslie denies that he is either the mayor of Staten island, where he is summering, or that he has any designs of trying for the nomination even. In a word he is satisfied with his official services now, which include chief of police, chief of the fire department, coroner, city clerk and tax collector.

* * *

Charles J. Ross is slowly recovering from the effects of his injured knee which called him out of the Weber show lest spring. He is now resting up at the Ross Fenton farm, near Asbury Park, N. J.

* * *

Ethel Levey is settled permanently in Paris, and pursuing vocal studies under Baldelli in the French metropolis. Miss Levey will remain there until she has completed her vocal development. Whether she will go into grand opera in the end is not stated.

* * *

A significant song has just been brought out under the title, "Willie, Won't You Wait a Little Longer?" It is by Bryan and Kern, just to add to the nevelty. The composers are not the famous candidates, however, but it was written by Al Bryan and Jerome D. Kern, two popular song writers, and will be sung by Hattie Williams in her forthcoming production of "Fluffy Ruffles."

* * *

Lawrence D'Orsay, whose manners and drawing speech were dramatized by Augustus Thomas in "The Earl of Pawtucket," will abandon starring this season to join the Anna Held company. He will play a part that is fitted to his peculiarities of manner in the new show.

* * *

Georgie Drew Mendum, who has been making a hit in the Clyde Fitch play, "Girls," now running at the Chicago opera house in Chicago, has been engaged to play her old part in "The Girl Question" when that piece opens in New York next month.

* * *

William Raymond Sill and George Hanlon, Jr., are trying out in the East a new vaudeville spectacle called "The Auto Fiends." It is a trick act evolved by young Hanlon, and was seen in the rough with one of the burlesque shows that played here at the Standard last winter. Thelma Fair and a bevy of girls are now working in the sketch, and reports are that it has been elaborated into a big success. The act closes with a sensational run, in which the girls are thought to speed out into the audience in their machines.

Marie Booth Russell, who in private life is the wife of Robert B. Mantell, is reported to be critically ill in Los Angeles, Cal., but is slowly recovering and will likely start East soon.

Rehearsals of the next big Klaw & Erlanger spectacle, "Little Nemo," will start the latter part of next month in New York. Among the people already engaged for the company are Joe Cawthorne, Harry Kelly, Billy B. Van, Master Gabriel, Rose Beaumont and Dave Abrams.

The report last week that the Empire Circuit will lose its two New York houses was confirmed last week. It is said that Sullivan and Kraus will change the policy of the Dewey and the Gotham and devote them to moving picture shows in the future. They will turn over two of their outside houses to the Columbia amusement people and be affiliated with them in the future. This marks another quick shift in the matter of the burlesque rivalry. Two seasons back the Empire people managed to win over Sullivan and Kraus to their side, and it looked as if by this move they had shut their Eastern rivals out of New York, but two theaters were hurriedly taken over, and now they are fortified with three houses in New York city and three in Brooklyn, making six weeks in Greater New York that the Columbia shows will play this season, unless they should readjust their time.

Junie McRea will take his old place in "The Girl Question" when that piece is put on in New York next month.

TRIALS THAT BESET MOTHERS

What Parents of Young Actresses Must Endure Daily ---Have to Guard Their Offspring From the Intolerable Masher.

The lot of the mother of an actress, says the Chicago Tribune, is much like that of the hen who, having raised a brood of ducklings, was unable to keep them from going into the water. The daughter proves docile enough while her dramatic training is in process, but once her debut is made she becomes an exceedingly independent young woman and insists on having her own way, while her mother clucks on the shore of protestation vainly, realizing it is futile, but unable to keep quiet.

Isabel d'Armond had a hard time getting on the stage. Her mother was strenuously opposed to her entering the dramatic field. Isabel pleaded and coaxed and stormed in vain. Then she tried a new tack. She obtained a number of books on dramatics and, secluding herself, read continually.

She would come out of her seclusion mild and pensive. Her bursts of temper became things of the past. Her friends noticed her unusual gentleness and remarked about it to her mother. Her mother became depressed.

"Isabel," she said one day. "I have noticed a great change in you lately. To what is it due? I cannot tell you how pleased I am."

Isabel smiled pensively. Then she said: "Well mother I have been reading a number of plays here lately and studying up on the lives of great actresses, and it has changed me. There is a certain nobility of character in every actress who amounts to anything, and—well, I am trying to be good. That's all."

It was enough. Isabel went on the stage and presto! the change was over and she was again her wilful self, brooking no interference. Now she leads her mother a merry chase.

Edith Taliaferro and her sister, Mabel, now playing at McVicker's in "Brewster's Millions," are rarebit fiends. There is never a night but that they insist on having these leathery dainties. Mrs. Taliaferro sets her foot down firmly. She says with great decision:

"Thou shalt not!"

And then the trouble begins. The girls insist. They are hungry. They are starving. Sleep will be impossible until they have something to eat.

They may have a sandwich. There is a wall of distain. Who ever heard of an actress eating a sandwich? Oh, they will go to bed hungry. Better starvation than a sandwich. What is to be done? Who ever heard of a real mother—a flesh and blood mother—allowing her children to go to bed hungry—starving? Mrs. Taliaferro eyes them dubiously. They do look peaked. They have been working hard.

They—geta rarebit.

Those who have not seen Crystal Herne will find it impossible to conceive in what manner she could be displeasing to her mother. She seems the personification of all that is demure and well behaved. When Miss Herne was here recently starring in "The Regeneration," her primness was the characteristic most often remarked upon.

This trait is the one to whichher mother objects. Mrs. Herne is a prominent clubwoman, and has social aspirations for her daughter. It is her wish that Cystal be not only popular in the theatrical world, but recognized as a leader in society.

Crystal, however, will have nothing to do with dinners and dances and pink teas. After the theater she may be found always at her hotel reading, writing or crocheting. Of the last she is fond, and not a child or baby acquaintance but has some dainty article of apparel crocheted by the young actress.

"Why should I," asks Miss Herne, "do what I detest and wear myself out by doing it? I'd do almost anything for you, mother, bue scintillate in society I cannot—honestly."

The mother of May McManus, playing in "Miss Hook of Holland," had an awful time with her little German girl, and the mashers. May, with her small, quaint face and charming Dutch ways, always was receiving notes. Do what mamma could, insidious little "I love you's" and "Oh, won't you be mine's" would find their way into daughter's hands, and then there would be a scene.

May liked the little notes because they amused her. She had an inherent love for laughter and the notes made her laugh Once she answered one. Her mother found it out and there was a great commotion. Mrs. McManus read the riot act.

"Another performance of this kind and off the stage you go. The convent for you," she said. May, who has known her mother for some time, was aware she meant business.

To see Elsie Janis is to behold her mother. She is ever present and keeps a vigilant eye open. And as a rule Miss Janis is docile. She did something meriting the maternal displeasure recently, however, when she insisted on playing baseball with a crowd of little boys.

The young actress was passing the baseball field, and paused a moment to watch the game. She beheld a ball held temptingly aloft. Her hands went up in the air.

"Throw!"

"Elsie!" gasped her mother.

There was a cry of delight from the boys and a ball came hurtling through the air. Elsie caught it and tossed it back, smiling. Then, with head aloft, she walked on beside her irate mother.

"How can you do such things, Elsie?" asked the latter. "I should think it would hurt your pride."

"It hurt my finger. Isn't that enough?" asked Miss Janis, and she held out a bruised members for inspection. Since she has been compelled to use her right hand with care, for her third finger is lame.

"BROILERS" AT AGENCIES

What Young Chorus Girl Puts Up With---Men Who Get Jobs for Women Bleed Them of Most of Salary.

"Been swallowed?" inquired the prosperous appearing chorus girl with the elaborately coiffed hair as she sat on the edge of her trunk and swung her faultlessly dressed feet against its sides.

"Yep," dolefully answered the "broiler," a small personage, who crouched on the floor, was anxiously going over and over again some figures in a tiny expense account book, "they've got me for fair. It seems to me as if I never will get through paying them. And I only get $15 a week, you know."

And then the whole pitiful story came out. The worried little woman on the floor had obtained a position with a theatrical company through on agency, which had procured her work in the chorus. She had signed papers to pay them a certain amount out of her salary each week until the commission charged had been entirely liquidated, and the amount was such, that, after it had been paid, it left her almost stranded, with barely money enough to pay her board and lodging, let alone the thousand and one things which she needed and wanted.

"And I don't know what to do," she sobbed, her thin shoulders shaking with her emotion. "I don't know what to do!"

From her stocking the other girl pulled a purse which was none too full.

"How much do you owe?" she asked, and, upon learning the amount, thrust her entire hoard into the other's hand. She cut short the stammered words of thanks with a quick:

"Oh, don't thank me. I'd want anybody to do the same for me. Some one has, too. We all run up against the agencies once in a while."

She spoke the truth. Not a chorus girl or a "broiler" in other words, the lowest salaried, least experienced girl in the chorus—but that has had her day with the agencies. If she is wise, however, she never has but one encounter, but when she is out of a job she goes direct to the managers of the theaters and makes her application, knowing that it is infinitely better to go without work than to get work by putting her head in the mouth of the theatrical "whale," an agency.

In All Large Cities.

In all large cities these agencies operate. As a rule they do not have the appearance of being successful business concerns. They are, on the whole, dingy little offices where applicants are received cordially, "jollied" along interminably, sometimes provided with jobs, but more often not provided for, and in case the work is procured, "bled" with a vengeance which would do credit to the most voracious loan shark.

It seldom is that anybody save the chorus people ever goes to an agency. "Real" actresses know that their best chance is in getting audience either with the manager of a theater or with the manager of the special agency of the producer in whose play they desire to have a part.

All big producers run private agencies which are as far removed from the ordinary places as the east is from the west. These agencies are cared for by people who have had experience on the stage, who have had experience in dealing with people ,who are intuitive, and know just what the public as well as their own employers want. They are able to accurately discriminate between the chaff and the wheat, whereas the first named agencies are presided over usually by persons who know nothing whatever of the real hopes of the theatrical profession, or, if they are at all initiated, have learned their trade by mail. In either case they are not fitted to judge what is wanted in the great field of theatricals.

Shady Work.

Every once in a while the small agencies are found to be engaged in work which is shady if nothing more. They have been found sending young girls into barrooms and into places where no woman could remain and keep her purity unsullied. Those who read the papers will remember the case which was brought to the attention of the public not long ago of a certain agency which delegated a couple of young girls to a dive in Springfield, Ohio, giving them the impression that they were being entered in perfectly legitimate work. Once on the scene of actions they had no choice but to stay, for they were penniless and absolutely in the hands of the men who had deceived them. Here they were found, broken and hopeless by the authorities. The men who had decoyed them were tried, found guilty and sentenced to a term in Joliet.

A prominent Chicago theatrical man said recently:

"I consider the small theatrical agency the greatest menace of the profession today. It is the worst possible place for a girl who is determined to go on the stage to start from. Even if they do get her a job she finds herself tied up and to the bad in trying to pay them their exorbitant commissions.

"My advice to most girls is to keep away from the theaters—that is, from the stage entrance. But if she is determined to try her luck she should at all hazards shun the agency as she would shun smallpox."

MANY ROLES AIM OF ACTRESS

Most of Bigger Stars Have Played Many Varied Parts---Majority, However, Have Not Attained What They Yearn For.

Actresses all aspire to be versatile. They will all tell you they would rather play many parts with success than create a few.

Not over a dozen of the many leading actresses have attained to the desired in this respect. Not over a dozen can boast of handling with superiority more than ten parts during their careers.

In this limited list Viola Allen leads. She was brought up on the stage. She can do no more than estimate, offhand, the number of roles in which she has appeared.

At the age of 12 she proved she had the gifts from which good actresses are made. The next year she went with John McCullough playing girlish parts.

But she was not satisfied until she had played Portia and Rosalind.

Viola Allen has been all of Shakespeare's heroines, and she finds something worth while in each, because she is a wonderful Shakespearean student. She understands how plots are built. She says:

"Shakespeare, more than any great writer, knew and appreciated every type of good woman and expressed all worthy feminine traits in his characters. Though each of his women is different, it is not difficult to interpret them if one is a

STEAMER AMERICA.

STEAMER NEWSBOY.

Visitors to the Head of the Lakes never tire of talking of the summer attractions of Duluth. Some of the home people, who have lived here for years, are apt to be lacking in a full measure of appreciation.

That is because they are so used to the advantages of this particular spot on the map as a place of residence that they do not realize there is anything unusual or especially alluring about them until they pay a visit to an inland town, and suffer agonies from the oppressive heat, and go two or three weeks without seeing anything larger in the shape of water than a creek or diminutive river.

It doesn't take them long to get homesick for a sight of old Lake Superior, and to start on an enthusiastic line of talk about the cool breezes off the lake, and the delightful climate of the Zenith City, that is apt to make them a bore to the listener who is so unfortunate as to live in a city not so happily situated as Duluth.

For healthful pleasure in the summer time, Duluth is unexcelled by any other place on the map. Excursions on the lake, bay and river are not by any means the least important of these pleasures. There are different kinds of excursions on different kinds of boats. Any and all of them are enjoyable. Whether the pleasure seeker is on one of the larger excursion steamers or whether he is the occupant of a gasoline launch, sail boat or canoe, he is bound to get a full measure of enjoyment. It is the same whether the destination is a point down the lake, on the north or south shore, up the St. Louis river or down the bay.

The north shore and the St. Louis river excursions are the most popular of any. Either one is an event to be remembered with the keenest pleasure forever afterwards. It is hard to imagine a more pleasant way to spend a day, or a part of a day. For one thing, one can count on never being too warm on a trip down the lake, and there are not more than half a dozen days in the entire summer when it is too warm on board a boat in the St. Louis river, or on the bay, for there is always a cool breeze blowing over the water, although it may not be felt in the uptown districts.

It is hard to choose between the lake and river trips. The safest way is to take them both. A person should take them every week. It is a pleasant and healthful habit to get into. The outsider, who has never before seen Lake Superior, naturally chooses a lake boat for the first trip, and he enjoys that so much that he is pretty sure to try the river trip the following day, even if he has to prolong his stay in Duluth longer than was originally planned on. Either ride acts on the system better than any tonic ever invented, and both offer scenic attractions that are hard to beat. The north shore is perhaps on a somewhat grander scale, with its rocks and hills and the wide expanse of water, but there is something sweet and restful about the quiet beauty of the forest-covered hills of the river. Every bend in the stream unfolds a view that seems prettier than the last.

Realizing all this to be a fact, The Herald has put the river and lake excursions within the reach of everybody at a very moderate expense. Every Tuesday and Saturday lake and river trips are given under the auspices of The Herald. On Tuesdays the steamers Newsboy and Mascotte leave for the river trip at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. and the steamer America for the lake trip at 4 p. m. and on Saturday the steamer Easton leaves the Booth dock for Two Harbors, on the north shore, at 4 p. m. The round trip up the river on The Herald excursion is only 25 cents, and the round trip down the lake 30 cents, giving a ride of nearly sixty miles at a cost of half a cent a mile. All these boats are safe, fast running, well equipped and finely furnished, with plenty of room for the passengers to move about in.

Shakespearean student and a psychologist."

But she has not bound herself to Shakespearean roles, but enjoys playing rollicking Gloria in "The Christian" as well as the unloved and unhappy Irene Wycherley.

Played Fifty Parts.

Ada Rehan can boast of having played more than fifty parts, and each one well. But she takes no credit for this, saying it only means she was well schooled. She began her dramatic career with minor parts in a stock company and felt proud of her achievement when she was given leading roles in Albany stock. While she was playing "Thoroughbreds" Daly saw her and said she would make one of the most versatile actresses on the stage.

He engaged her for the next season, when she played evrything, from a comdy part in "L Assomoir" to Hamlet. But she was not satisfied. She was anxious to prove to her audience there was an intensely dramatic side to her acting, which she did in one of her greatest successes, "The Hunchback."

Maude Adams always has been popular because of her delightful imagination and charming personality. But she is too close a student to play upon her personality for success. As Babbie she was accepted as a happy girl of adventure. There is such a spell of fascination about the gypsy that the limit of illusion is reached and one forgets it is Maude Adams playing.

Her Amanda Afelick shows not the slightest trace either of Babbie or of Maude Adams. A transformation of face, figure, and movement as startling as it is courageous, courageous because poor 'Op-o'-My-Thumb is a little starvling from the workhouse, shapeless as a clothes horse, with not "enough 'air or 'er'ed to put in a locket."

No one ever imagined she had an ambition to play men's parts. But they were surprised when she played "L'Aiglon," for she showed she had the capacity for the tragic as well as the comic.

Ethel Versatile.

Though Ethel Barrymore has been on the stage only a dozen years she has portrayed as many types as do many actresses in twice that time. She was given an opportunity to show her versatility early in her career. Her sense of humor was shown in "Cousin Kate." But she had not been playing long when she decided she wished to play the part of a boy. When it was announced she was to appear as a youth in the one act play "Carrots," her friends took it largely as a joke. The play was only a recital of the woes of a lad of 16, who suffers because he is disliked by his mother. She proved attractive and boylike in the part.

It was not long before she showed that a happy girl can interpret the part of a wife and mother. Even her most loyal friends questioned her ability to play Nora in "The Doll's House." Though her face and walk were girlish her fine interpretation revealed Nora as the devoted wife, unconscious she was doing wrong in taking money as long as she could save her husband worry.

In "Alice Sit by the Fire" she interpreted a sweet, devoted mother with poetic loveliness.

Mrs. Fiske's Many Roles.

Minnie Maddern Fiske says she ought to be able to interpret a great variety of characters with artistic judgment, for she took up the stage as a profession when three years old. Critics said it was difficult to find a better duke of York than she. Then she was cast as one of the apparitions in "Macbeth." Ere long she aspired to the role of Tess of the d'Nrhervilles.

It takes considerable imagination to turn from suffering repentant Tess to clever intriguing Becky Sharp. But the theater-going public found it difficult to say in which role she showed the greater ability.

Rebecca in Rosmerholm" is also a scheming and ambitious woman, but Mrs. Fiske shows her more intellectual in her schemes than poor, ambitiously wicked Becky. Different are these characters from the Mary of Magdala, in which she shows the flower of spiritual life.

Madame Nazimova says she likes to play any role worth while excepting Shakespeare. Her American audiences were surprised to see her repertory included everything from a fairy in pantomime to a singing girl in musical comedy; from Portia to La Dame aux Camelias. They were more surprised when she came back a year later and played "The Master Builder" and "Hedda Gabbler" in perfect English.

Though she can play everything from a rollicking girl to a suffering woman, she likes to portray a woman like Nora, who suffers because she is misunderstood.

Madame Rejane often is accused of lacking versatility because most of her roles are bourgeoise, but in this middle class she portrays nearly every type of woman. Rejane, for instance, revels in a gawky Sis Hopkins scene and makeup in "La Passerille," while as the virago peasant woman in "La Robe Rouge" she is the complete antithesis to everything sparkling and dainty playful.

Sarah Bernhardt says she has played so many roles she cannot remember them all. She has shown in everything from an ignorant peasant girl to an intriguing woman.

It is not difficult to be versatile if one is a student and has broad knowledge of human nature. But there is an art in being able to play the role of a jester or a suffering virgin when one is past 60. Still, Madame Sarah thinks it is more difficult for playwrights to create new roles than for her to interpret them.

Kelley of Mansfield, Pa., writes: "I was in poor health for two years, suffering from kidney and bladder trouble, and spent considerable money consulting physicians without obtaining any marked benefit, but was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure, and I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of restoring the health of others." DOGS WERE PAMPERED

And His Children Neglected, and Now Miller Has Neither.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 25.—Because it was charged that he was starving his children and gave his dogs the care and affection his children should have received, Joseph Miller of 45 Laurel street is now childless and dogless.

Four children and fifteen dogs comprised the Miller household. The dogs had the best of everything. Their meat had to be cooked to a turn. Their beds had to be fresh and soft. Their coats had to be brushed daily and their health watched closely.

Mrs. Miller told Magistrate Gorman that she led a dog's life looking after the canines, and that her husband beat her every time one of his pets got the mange or showed signs of distemper. Miller was sent to jail in default of bail.

FIG LEAVES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

In the Mural Decorations of the Brooklyn Opera House.

New York, July 25.—Through fear that some of the visitors to the new Brooklyn Academy of Music would be offended by the nudity of certain Cupid-like figures which are part of the wall decoration of the ballroom and opera house, the architects, Herts & Tallant, of No. 113 East Nineteenth street, Manhattan, have added drapery and fig leaves to the figures.

The change was made at the request of the building committee, of which Lowell F. Palmer is chairman. While the individual members of the committee could find nothing objectionable in the failure of the architects to provide clothing for the plaster cast boys and girls that had been made part of the decoration, they feared that some of the residents of Brooklyn who are subscribers to the building fund would not look with approval upon the unclothed infants.

For the purpose of learning whether fig leaves and gauzy draperies might not adorn the children's figures without destroying the aristic end for which they were placed in the walls, the committee called upon Mr. Herts.

Mr. Herts said that the change could be easily made, and that no aesthetic effect would be sacrificed. After the committee had departed he ordered McNulty Bros. of No. 549 West Fifty-second street, Manhattan, the firm which has the contract for the interior plaster decorations, to make the change at once.

As a result of this order a new set of figures of boys and girls was submitted to the architect and the building committee. The new models met with the approval of all concerned, and now the workmen are giving the plaster children a fig leaf or two and just a yard or so of other covering that will forestall any criticism.

HOUSE FELL ON HIM,

But Man Continued Active Until Auto Ran Him Down.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 25.—One arm already broken and carried in a sling as a result of falling when the second-story balcony of his home collapsed several days ago, James McGough, 42 years old, yesterday had his other arm broken when his horse became unmanageable, crashing his wagon into an automobile and throwing him to the street. Both his legs were also injured. He was taken to the University hospital. The first accident caused the broken arm and other injuries, but the man refused to allow it to interfere with his daily business.

HEROISM OF A FIREMAN.

Urchin Was Snatched From Death on the Track.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 25.—Thrown to the rails of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad by the collapse of the bridge at Sixtieth street and Woodland avenue, from which he had been watching the efforts of firemen to overcome a blaze in the middle of the structure, 8-year-old William McIlhenny lay stunned, directly in the path of an onrushing express train. He was only saved from death by the prompt and heroic actions of one of the firemen. The fireman refused to give his name, and a moment after risking his life to save the boy was back again with his comrades, helping to overcome a stubborn blaze which threatened to eat up the entire bridge.

PINE CITY MOURNS HER.

Mrs. Rudolph Lueck, Old Resident, Found Dead in Bed.

Pine City, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thursday morning when Mrs. Otto Kowalke went upstairs to see her mother, Mrs. Rudolph Lueck, she found her dead in her bed, she having passed peacefully away during the night.

Constance Repizinski was born in Germany, seventy-five years ago March 1. She was married to Rudolph Lueck in Germany, and in 1866 they came to this country and settled at La Crosse, where they remained about a year, when they came to this place, where they made their home until Mr. Lueck's death, which occurred nineteen years ago Feb. 18, last, and since Mr. Lueck's death his widow has remained here and lived with her only child, Mrs. Otto Kowalke.

Mrs. Lueck was a hard-working, frugal old lady, and by the practice of these traits had amassed considerable property.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the German Lutheran church and the body laid to rest by the side of her husband in Birchwood cemetery.

ANGELS WIN FROM 'PEGS

Brandon Bunches on Theobald for Winning Runs Early.

Maroons Fail to Hit Nelson With Men on Bases.

Winnipegg, Man., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—By bunching hits on Theobald in the second and third innings yesterday, the league leaders defeated Winnipeg by a score of 5 to 2.

Theobald was wild and ineffective. The Angels started at him in the second, scoring two runs, and followed it up with three in the third with only one man down. Terry then took the mound and Brandon only secured one more hit during the game, which was called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness.

Nelson threw for O'Dea's men and he held the Maroons safe all the way. They worked one man around in the fourth and another in the seventh, but there was never any danger of them overcoming the Brandon lead.

HANEY IS WILD AND LOSES OUT

Passes and Opportune Hits Defeat Eveleth at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cold wind which swept over the diamond was too much for Old Jim Haney's arm yesterday, and it took on glassy qualities. He was as wild as a March wind, giving seven bases on balls, which the Hibbing team managed to put to good use, winning from Eveleth by a score of 7 to 1.

The feature of the game came in the fourth inning, when Haney filled the bases on passes and Geiselman cleaned them up with a home run over the fence.

Gilchrist had the strings on Eveleth all the way through, giving but three badly scattered hits. His wildness was dangerous, as he gave five passes, but Eveleth couldn't turn them to account with the necessary hits.

THE WAIL OF THE FAN.

I wonder will we ever have a pennant
winning team?
I wonder will we ever have a chance
to shout and scream?
I'm tired of reading o'er and o'er sad stories of defeat;
To have a first division team would surely be a treat.
I'm tired of seeing errors made, and tired of batless stars;
I'm tired of having teams come home
all bruised with battle scars;
I'd like to get a chance to yell and jump and whoop and rave;
I'd like to have a winning team and see a pennant wave.

I wonder will we ever have a bunting raising day?
Would that a Duluth team again might bring the flag this way!
I'm tired of teams that, down on paper, appear to be the goods,
But when the season ends are found entangled in the woods.
"A pennant possibility" sounds well enough to print,
But usually it lacks the power of pulling off a sprint;
I'm tired of having to invent excuses
every day,
And plunking down my cash to see the bunting drift away.

I wonder will we ever have a pennant
winning team?
I wonder will we ever have a chance
to shout and scream?
I'm sick of seeing other teams outstrip us in the race,
And leave us far behind because we can't keep up the pace.
Would that a Duluth team might win
the flag once more,
And set the fans a raging wild as once they were of yore.
I'd like to see just once again a pennant float on high,
And be a raving maniac once more before I die.

DULUTH IS DISTANCED

Minnesota Crew of St. Paul Wins Three of Five Events.

Zenith City Bantam Four Fails to Score, Kenora Winning.

FIRST DAY'S RESULTS.

Junior Singles—First, Anderson, Minnesota; second, Monk, Winnipeg.

Senior fours — First, Minnesota; second, Fort William.

Bantam fours—First, Kenora; second, Minnesota; third, Winnipeg; fourth, Duluth.

Junior eights—First, Minnesota; second, Winnipeg; third, Duluth.

Senior doubles—First, Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The oarsmen of the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul almost swept the board on the first day of the Minnesota and Western Canada Rowing association here, finishing first in the senior fours, junior eights and junior singles, and second in the other two events, the bantam fours and senior doubles.

The big surprise of the day was the failure of the Duluth bantam four, which was picked for an easy victory in that event. Kenora won it in easy fashion, gaining a victory, which the Kenora men decided to let go by the board. On account of the strength of the other crews, the Kenora oarsmen decided Thursday night not to start in the bantam fours. They altered their decision over night and surprised everybody by winning, a length and a half ahead of the Minnesota crew. Winnipeg was third, with Duluth, the favorites, trailing. The time of the Kenora men was 8:54, only eleven seconds slower than the time made by the senior fours.

The junior eights was the best event of the day. The Winnipeg crew got away in front with Duluth close up and St. Paul behind. As the shells neared the finish line, Minnesota sent its stroke up, jumped into the lead at the turn and holding it to the finish. Winnipeg was second and Duluth third. Time, 8:02.

Riley and Aldeous, Winnipeg's pioneer oarsmen, had little trouble defeating the Minnesota pair in 9:07, rowing a pretty race all the way. Minnesota had little trouble in winning the senior fours, with Fort William second. Winnipeg was disqualified on account of a foul.

The regatta will close today.

TO MATCH ZIEHR AND KARKEEK

Claimant of Cornish Wrestling Title May Meet Veteran.

Marquette, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aside from horse racing and vaudeville and carnival attarctions, the annual fair of the Marquette County Agricultural society will have a Cornish wrestling tournament. Practically all of the best exponents of the "game of the jackets" in this country are located in Upper Michigan, and it is the intention to make the money prizes sufficiently large that a majority of them will be induced to enter. None will be barred, which means, in all probability, that Jack Karkeek will appear to try conclussions with the Copper country champion.

Ziehr, although a German, has beaten the Englishman at his own game, and is conceded to be the best Cornish wrestler in the Lake region. Furthermore, it is the contention of his friends that he has no peer any where. Young, weighty and powerful and skilled in the science, he usually makes short work of his opponents. He has never yet been defeated.

Karkeek, who is now located in Chicago, won the world's championship many years ago, when he downed the best men in this country and England, and he still lays claim to it. Efforts to arrange a match between Kerkeek and Ziehr have been made at various times the past few years, but the men have not yet been brought together. There are many Cornish wrestling authorities who believe the younger athlete would have no particular difficulty in defeating the veteran.

GLEAMS in the SPORTING FOG.

Today the Sox start at the Fargo Brownies and, if they have any spirit in them, they'll be in shape to tear up anything short of the Detroit Tigers after the series of beatings they received in Canada. Next week they will be home and the fans will get another opportunity to see them on their own lot.

It has been the fortune of the Duluth fans to see their team generally at its best and seldom at its worst. At home, they play like ten-time winners in a poor field, but chase them off of the Athletic park diamond and they flounder around like a fish on the beach.

No team can be expected to win every game. If it did, there wouldn't be any baseball. Neither can every team be expected to lose all its games. The happy medium is the thing, and the Sox do not seem able to strike it. On the road about .350 is the proper percentage for any team, but the Sox have an unpleasant habit of gathering about .43 on the road, which is decidedly discouraging to the fans, who are praying for their success.

The Sox have had their share of bad luck. Incidentally, they have been playing pretty bad ball. The pitchers haven't been working just right. The batting wasn't what it might be. That old stunt of bunching the hits in one certain innings to score enough runs to win has almost been forgotten, and the Sox will have to brush up their memories and actions in the next month or, with burning eyes, they will see the 1908 flag floating toward Happyland or the Wheat City.

With the pitching staff bolstered up a little and Henderson in the outfield with Monroe and Ness, there should be a brace. Winnipeg and Brandon don't fare as well on this side of the border as they do in their own land, so there's a chance that in the twenty-six games before the Sox hie away to Canadaland again, there may be a chance in the percentage column and the pennant be closer to Duluth than it is at present.

Every report sems to indicate that Jack Parres and Ben Tremble made a coarse attempt to fake the fight at Chisholm, Thursday night, go the limit to a draw decision, split the money and let the people who paid it over to se a fair fight whistle for the worth of their coin.

That kind of thing doesn't go in a civilized community, and there are those, who will claim that the towns of Northern Minnesota are civilezed Bob Cherry showed his squareness and his desire to see the game on a proper footing by calling the fight off in the thirteenth round when the purpose of the fighters was obvious.

The game hasn't any too firm a hold in the state of Minnesota for that kind of stuff to be pulled off. It's just what has killed the sport in many a community and any man, who follows prize fighting, should know that it doesn't get him anything. Cherry's action will be lauded by all true sportsmen, and it is to be hoped that neither one of the fighters received a cent of the receipts.

Now that the Gans-Nelson fight, which was scheduled for Ely, Nev., Labor day, has been called off, Packey McFarland's chance has come and Harry Gilmore, who is again handling the stockyards youth, will lose no time in taking advantage of it. Leave it to Gilmore to make the best of every opportunity. He knows the handling of fighters and, when he believes that Packey has a chance with the pride of Hegewisch, it is practically certain that Packey as a little better than a chance.

It was thought that Tex Rickard could not get the special trains on which he was planning, and Gilmore has been hanging around the outskirts since the Gens-Nelson fight was arranged in the hope that he might step in and close things up for a bout between Nelson and the stockyard boy. If Nelson is sincere in his statements that he will defend the lightweight title against all comers, he should have no trouble in hooking up with McFarland, who is now his logical opponent. The fight will furnish a good betting proposition, but, in view of his going against Gans and his record of never having been knocked out, Nelson will undoubtedly be the facorite.

GERMAN CAR OUT.

Committee Decides Auto Did Not Make Circuit of World.

Paris, July 25.—The committee of the Round the World Race has decided that although the German car has now completed the circuit, as it started from Berlin, it cannot yet be classed, because it was taken on a train across the Rockies and did not cross Japan, being shipped direct from Seattle to Vladivostok, in order to effect repairs The American and Italian cars must reach New York and Paris, their respective starting points, in order to complete the journey around the world.

FITZ HAS NO CHANCE

Freckled One is a Huge Joke as Opponent of Ketchel.

Bob Showed Weakness in Short Fight With Johnson.

By Edward Smith.

Chicago, July 25.—Efforts of Bob Fitzsimmons to revive interest in himself will be met with a smile everywhere. Mike Butler is to blame.

Remember Mike? Of course you do. He is the comely young man who once had a lot to say about running of athletics in the Chicago Athletic association—physical director, in fact.

It was Mike who ran all of the boxing shows laterly in the fine Michigan avenue clubhouse and whose latest achievement was the creation of a lot of scandal over the amatuer boxers, who charged that Mike was offering cash prizes for their prowess in the ring.

Remember now, don't you? Of course, because Mike likes the spotlights about as well as anybody, and incidentally he is well fitted physically to stand in one.

It is Mike who is posing now as manager of the former champion, although what there is or has been to manage is hard to figure out. Still Mike is one of those creative geniuses who will make a situation and force it to go. Hence the ancient Bob's recent challenge to Stanley Ketchel.

Apparently Ketchel has entered into the spirit of the joke situation, which is not without its strong tinge of humor. He has accepted the ancient one's challenge and they are going to fix up a match pretty soon.

Too bad. In the first place this grandest of all ring characters that has passed should be permitted or should permit himself to go to the grave with the grand honors he won in the ring. He should have come to that state of mind before he met the lusty, self-confessed fakir, John O'Brien. It should have dawned upon him then, even if the fight was framed up, that he had nothing left with which to combat youth.

If that test were not enough, the affair in Philadelphia with the giant black, Jack Johnson, should have been the final blowoff. Evidently the Johnson affair was eminently on the level, for Fitz collapsed miserably at almost the first exchange of wallops, showing that his tottering frame contained but the remnants of a glorious past.

His strength was gone, there was no direction to his punches and the once keen eye had entirely lost its cunning. Johnson could have beaten him that night without delivering a single blow.

All he had to do was to let Fitz expend his little remaining force by smashing away at the guarding elbows and forearms.

And now they have patched this old hulk up for another battle, this time with one of the toughest young bulls the ring has known in years. Too bad, too bad!

Will the public in the Far Northwest, where the talk emanated, stand for it? Maybe.

The plausible Butler may make fight fans there think it is fine business, this voice from the grave, this revamping of an ancient and hopeless dream. But it is a shame just the same.

There is no question in the minds of fight fans all over the country who is the middleweight champion, or at least, who is entitled to the honors.

That means Stanley Ketchel. Many believe that Billy Papke can take his measure, and that Hugo Kelly has a chance with him or that somebody else may have a look in. But just now Ketchel has the inside claim, and he is entitled to the honors.

Perhaps Fitzsimmons did quit the ring without a defeat at the middleweight limit. But this is something he will not be able to explain: Why is it that from the time he defeated Jack Dempsey almost up to the present day he has never raised a question about the middleweight championship?

For years Tommy Ryan has claimed the title. He, too, never was beaten for the honors at the middleweight limit. If Fitzsimmons wanted to fight for the middleweight honors, why didn't he stop Ryan's talk or make a match with him for the title? Why bring it up now as a claim that he, and not Ketchel, is champion?

That portion of the American public that takes stock in the fighter like a fighting man, one who fights and ever is ready to defend his honors.

Gift champions and technical leaders of a clas always have been unhonored and unsung. What is wanted is the man with the ever ready biff, the fellow who fights at the drop of the hat and is willing to drop it himself.

Fitzsimmons is a silly old man and has bad advisers.

LONG DISTANCE RACE ON LAKE

Sixteen Yachts Start From Chicago for Mackinac Island.

Chicago, July 25.—Sixteen crack yachts, the pick of the fleets of the great lakes, were scheduled to leave hero this afternoon on the annual long distance race of the Chicago Yacht club to Mackinac island. Fourteen of the boats have figured in previous contests of this event, but the two new comers are of such a quality that unusual interest has been aroused in the 1908 race.

The additions are the Yawl Nahma of Detroit and the Schooner Valmore, recently brought from New London, Conn., to this port by its new owner, William Hale Thompson. As usual the sloops are in the majority for the 330-mile race. There are seven of this class entered as against four schooners and five yawls. With fair sailing breezes, the winner should reach the northern end of the lake by Monday morning.

MINNESOTA HORSE FAST

Lady Maud C. Steps a Mile in 2:08 1-4 on Fargo Track.

Match Race Feature of Card at North Dakota Fair.

Fargo, N. D., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lady Maud C., owned by Palmer of Fergus Falls, Minn., defeated Argot Boy, owned by Deryder of California, in a match race, the feature event of the card at the North Dakota state fair yesterday and incidentally stepped the fastest mile of the season on the Fargo half-mile track. The race was won in straight heats, the second of which was run in 2:08¼. Argot Boy never had a chance, breaking badly at the start of the second heat and never coming close to the Minnesota mare.

Daniel Webster won the first two heats of the 2:05 pace, but was sent away several lengths behind the other horses in the third heat and finished third, with Governor Sarles leading. Governor Sarles took the other two heats and the race. The owner of Daniel Webster protested the work of Starter Magnus Flaws of Chicago and Secretary Wilson of the fair took his place.

In the 2:30 pace, Della Downey had an easy time, winning in straight heats.

"TO BOOT" MEN PROVE STARS

McCarthy is Find of the Year in National League.

Pitcher McCarthy of Boston, who was the "to boot" when the Boston and Pittsburg clubs traded "Cy Young No. 2" for "Cy Young No. 3," has won every game he has pitched for Kelley's men, even defeating the Reds, who owned this young pitcher in the spring.

It seems to be another Harry Howell case. Some years ago Clarke Griffith wanted Jack Powell of St. Louis and offered a bunch of cash, throwing in Harry Howell. Howell was a winner from the start, while Powell was an in and outer for New York and eventnally returned to the Browns.

Way back many years ago Hughey Jennings was the "to boot" in a trade that Louisville made with Baltimore. Louisville secured Shortstop O'Rourke, who proved a dead one, while Jennings became a famous player.

Del Howard was thrown in for good measure in a deal that the Chicago and Boston Nationals made, and he has been one of the Cubs' most valuable players.

A few years ago Courtney was handed to Philadelphia. It was thought that at the best he was only a good minor leaguer, but he has been a regular ever since. Then there was Infielder Knabe that Pittsburg secured from Toledo. He did not look very good to Manager Clarke, and the Phillies got him for the draft price. Pittsburg could not get him back now for twice the price.

Frank Chance had no use for Centerfielder Osborne, whom he picked up at Canton, and turned him over to Philadelphia. And Manager Murray thought enough of him to let him take Roy Thomas' place.

SULLIVAN BACK TO LIFE AGAIN

Copper Country Has a Strange Baseball Dream for Distant Future.

Ted Sullivan was in the Copper counry again the other day Ted is often in the Copper country The enervating, invigorating properties of the air, which move in from the blue waters of Lake Superior, and is more thoroughly imbued with health-giving qualities by the copper-colored waters of Portage Lake, makes a big hit with Ted As soon as he strikes Houghton, his head goes up, his step is more sprightly and he becomes once again as in his callow youth. In his exhiliration he becomes enthusiastic over everything and, as is natural, his thoughts lightly turn to baseball

Then it is the ubiquitous scribe gets busy With the keen observation and delicate ear of the story-hunter, he seeks out Ted, notebook in hand, and listens to the word of the mighty of baseball, noting the changing expressions of the weather-beaten face of the veteran as he waxes eloquent in his exposition of some plan, more fantastic dream, than which none can conjure up

It's the same old story every time Ted strikes the region of red metal. While the finder of Comiskey and other diamond stars innumerable is on the shores of Portage Lake, Copper country fans fall all over themsleves in boosting league baseball. As soon as Ted takes the train for the dust-laden, wind-swept streets of Cub-and-Sox town, the same fans hike to a corner lot, watch a game with twenty-four hits on each side, and errors unaccountable, and dreamily murmur, "There's nothing like the baseball of the home boys, after all."

The latest scheme is an upper peninsula league, with the Copper country, iron country and the Soo mixed in. The story has ambiguous allusions to the possibility of breaking into the Wisconsin-Illinois league, with one team to represent the Copper country, playing successive series in Houghton, Hancock, Calumet and Lake Linden, and winds up in thin air, with nothing said after all, and no promises made.

Ted usually denies the stories after he gets away from the scribes, who swarm around him, and he returns to the prosaic Chicago life. Perhaps he will deny the latest. At any rate, the dreams will not hurt the fans down there, and the corner lot ball will always be with them, so that they will not blow up with a superabundance of baseball enthusiasm.

GOOD PROGRAM AT BOAT CLUB

Life Saving Crew Will Give Demonstration of Work.

One of the best programs of the year will be pulled off at the Duluth Boat club's main house on Park Point this afternoon, and, if the weather does not interfere, the club members will see a few novel features.

The feature of the program will be a demonstration by the crew of the United States life saving station, something that has rarely been given in the Duluth harbor. The boys will cast a life line to the Minnesota Naval Reserves' training ship, Gopher, and several men will make shore from the ship in the breeches buoy. The members of the crew will also roll their life boat and do other stunts, which come in their training.

War canoe races will furnish entertainment for the crowd. The bankers and doctors will race in the big event and it should be a hummer. The two crews have been practicing for some weeks and are strong. There will be high diving by some of the junior members of the club and other aquatic sports.

TEAMS STILL TIED.

Five Runabouts in Race for the Hower Trophy.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 25.—Without having altered the standing for the Hower trophy in the Glidden tour contest, the five runabouts, which are now tied for first place, entered the city last evening and checked up for the day. They left this morning for Buffalo, where the course of the tour will be started over again and continued until only one team remains with a perfect score.

JOHNSON BADLY BEATEN.

Young Fighter Pounded Badly by Al Kaufmann at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 25.—It took Al Kaufmann of San Francisco seven rounds to beat "Battling" Johnson almost to insensibility before the Pacific Athletic club last night. No decision was rendered, but the referee stopped the fight when Johnson, with blood streaming from his face, was no longer able to locate his opponent.

Play Double Header.

Two games in the Commercial league are on the bill at Athletic park this afternoon. The Board of Trade team will first meet the Wolvins at 2:30 o'clock, and at 4 o'clock will take on the F. A. Patrick team. The Board of Trade boys have a good lead for the Commercial league pennant, and the other teams are anxious to pull them down.

Fitwells to Superior.

The Fitwell baseball team will go to Superior tomorrow, where the second game in the series for the Head of the Lakes championship will be played. The Fitwells won from the Superior team at Athletic park last Sunday by a score of 1 to 0, and expect to turn the trick again.

WALSH IS PLEASED.

"Tickled to Death" Because His Daughter Eloped.

Kansas City, Mo., July 25.—Thomas F. Walsh, father of Miss Evelyn Walsh, was in Kansas City on his way to Cincinnati to take part in the Taft notification exercises. When told of the wedding of his daughter, Mr. Walsh said:

"I am tickeld to death. I knew they were planning to marry. They had not set the day, and it was to be a long way off. I guess they got married to save me from giving away my daughter at the altar.

"Mr. McLean is the finest young man in the country, but I hadn't figured on giving my daughter away to anyone. They eloped to save me, I guess."

Grit—That's Us.

That is why America leads the whole world in athletic sports. It isn't the much talked-of mixture of races; it isn't the climate. It is the national spirit that makes America take the lead in everything that requires quickness, determination, dash and grit; and then, too, some people are of the opinion that it is due to the daily use of a good malt tonic, such as golden grain belt beer. This beverage has won a dignified place in the American home by reason of its pure, wholesome qualities. Order Duluth Branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

SOX OPEN AT FARGO

Will Play Five Games With Browns Before Returning.

Team Will be Strengthened During the Next Week.

A. W. Kuehnow, secretary-treasurer of the Duluth Baseball club, left this morning for Fargo, where the team opens a series of five games today. He will see the Saturday and Sunday games, returning Monday. After the Fargo series the team will come here with Fargo to open next Thursday for a home series of twenty-one games, Fargo coming twice and each of the Canadian teams appearing in a series.

The fans now look for a material boost in the percentage of the Sox. Some strange hoodoo hangs over Canada for the wearers of the blue suits. Every time they cross the border they are soundly trounced, until the fans look for it and are no longer surprised over a long series of defeats.

At home it is a different story. On this side of the border the Sox are the boys with the pennant-winning ability, and, with the long series at home, they should be able to grab off enough games to send them up within striking distance of the top. In the meantime, Brandon and Winnipeg will be mixing it for a few games, and there should be a few changes in their figures.

The trade of Krick for Theobald has not yet been pulled off, but it is in the air. the new third baseman has not yet put in an appearance, and Baker is playing better ball. Henderson, who came East shortly after being released by San Francisco, will join the team here instead of at Fargo, and a new pitcher will be along in a few days.

DETROIT IS CONTENDER

Tigers Look Like Two Time Champs of American League.

Financial Depression is Only Drawback to Baseball Prosperity.

Were it not for the financial shortage that has afflicted the country this year, this season would be the best that was ever known in baseball. In nearly every league, the race has been the best ever. Four clubs are scrapping for the American league championship, three are closely bunched in the National, any one of seven has a good chance of winning in the Eastern league, four clubs are fighting for the American association bunting, six in the Southern league, three in the Ohio and Pennsylvania. Were money plentiful, it would certainly be a grand season for the minor leagues. As it is, in spite of the tight races, they are having hard struggles to exist.

It must be admitted that the Detroit team has the class just now over its rivals in the American league. Other teams may have the better fielders, base runners or catchers, but when it comes to pitchers and batters, keep your eye on Detroit.

McIntyre is hitting like a house afire, Cobb is the same Cobb of 1907 only better; Sam Crawford may not possess as good a batting average as he did a year ago, but he is batting terrifically just the same. "Germany" Schaefer is playing the game of his life in every department of the game, while there are few better clouters in the game right now than Claude Rossman.

Take those first five men in the Detroit lineup and it is enough to give any right handed pitcher heart disease to face them the way they are going now. Keep your eye on the summaries of the games played by Detroit and see if the names of Cobb, Rossman, McIntyre, Schaefer and Crawford are missing from the extra base hit lines. Scarcely a day passes that three of the five do not get their doubles, triples and home runs, and it is not infrequent to find the names of all five located there.

Charley Schmidt is catching in fine shape and Ira Thomas is helping nicely whenever needed. Bill Coughlin does not seem to be going very well and O'Leary has been hurt quite frequently, but the others are going at such a clip that Coughlin's bad work is covered up and O'Leary's absence is not missed.

And then those pitchers, Donovan, Willett, Summers, Mullin, Killan—every one of the five going well, Willett and Summers especially. Since he struck his gait and acquired control, Willett has been the most consistent winner in the league, barring none. Summers is about as good as any of them and showed the morning of July 4 that he was not a quitter when he beat out Addie Joss in a 1 to 0 conflict. Mullin is improving in his work and "Wild Bill" can be depended upon despite his last two defeats. As for Ed Killian, there are few better southpaws than he.

Another thing that helps Detroit out in critical pinches is the ability of the Tiger heavers to hit the ball. Donovan can bat and so can Killian and Mullin is the best batting pitcher in the league. Summers and Willett are not so much, but even they can poke out a timely bingle now and then.

St. Louis' slump is undoubtedly due to the bad work of the pitchers. McAleer has argued all year that his pitching staff was not strong. Just what grounds he had for so claiming was not apparent the way his heavers were pitching, but if any man ought to know, it is McAleer, and he claimed that Howell was his best man. Waddell, of course, is erratic, but at that, he is invincible against certain clubs and with all his eccentricities he should win more than half of his games. Jack Powell should win two-thirds of his battles, while Bill Dineen does not look so bad. But none of McAleer's men have been going any too well on this trip, but will undoubtedly show better when they get back home.

VAN RENSSELAER IS SANE.

New York, July 25.—John Van Rensselaer, a member of one of the oldest New York families, who was arrested several days ago charged with sending a threatening letter to his mother, and who was sent to Bellevue hospital for observation, was yesterday adjudged sane. Van Rensselaer will be sent to the Tombs for a final disposition of the case.

DIFFERENCE IN WORLD'S SERIES

Hard Race in National League to Help American Champs.

From present indication the American league pennant winner this year is going to enjoy a grand opportunity for retrieving the honors of its organization in the world's championship series which annually forms the crowning feature of the baseball year, says Paul Bruske in the Detroit Times.

That the Chicago Cubs have the fight of their lives this year in winning the title in their organization is a fact which can no longer be denied.

Pittsburg has been pushing the world's champions hard of late and New York is but a game or two away from the Pirates. Any one of the three is likely to win a string of games that will enable them to take the lead as Pittsburg did early in the month.

The Cubs lack the dash with which they were playing last year and have suffered from many injuries which must necessarily have impaired the strength of their personnel. Chance is playing but occasionally. Evers is in and out of the game with a very bad ankle, Kling's catching has been away below par and pitchers who is a reliable winner.

The Chicago crowds have lost confidence in Pfeister, Overall has been hit hard quite frequently, Ruelbach's control has been very erratic and Fraser, while a good "spit" ball pitcher, is not so much as their rivals.

It will be impossible this year for the Cubs to rest up their men and wait for the club has been very materially weaker than in past seasons. Most important of all Brown is the only one of the Cub doing now. When the big series comes along, they will be as likely to blow up the big series, content in a big margin of victories. They will have to keep working as the American league teams are to be feared.

BOMB THROWING IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 25.—The nineteenth in a series of bomb explosions, credited to a war between factions of gamblers in Chicago, startled guests of the National hotel, 28 Van Buren street, last night. No one was injured. The bomb was exploded on the roof of the six-story building, tearing a large hole in the roof and shattering a skylight. D. A. Dooler, proprietor of the hotel, could state no reasons as to why he was selected as a victim.

LUCK OF A POOLROOM STRAY

Deal in Vermont Real Estate Was Losing Game Instead of Easy Money.

Granaday's game, under the circumstances occasioned by the operations of the anti-betting law at the tracks, flourished like the green bay tree—whatever that is—and many gentlemen who had not hitherto been regulars at the establishment of the pool room lord sifted in quite frequently now, to make their compliments to the boss and try to win out the price of a week or so at sea, says the New York Press.

Ben Londers, who looked after the Spanish prisoner swindle, and who made a surprisingly good thing out of it in spite of the too occasional exposures in the pubcil prints; Feinberg, the lottery man, who visited all the factory buildings in the guise of a clean towel and clean apron purveyor, and thus got close enough to the operatives to sell them the numbers; Tom Hathaway and Dick Bright, who lived off the farmers from whom they pretended to buy land for manufacturing or other developments which never materialized, and a score more of the celebrities of the world that have been memorialized in Byrnes' book, found the surroundings at Granaday's somewhat to their liking, now that it was so hard to put a bet down at the track without suffering personal inconvenience.

There was a certain satisfaction in simply congregating in Granaday's chance parlors, even if no material benefits followed the meeting. For the citizens of the world's undercrust are as gregarious as any other humans, and, besides, the interchange of ideas at Granaday's was not infrequently of value to the clientele, even though their dollars did pass over to the other side of the boss' desk and there linger, for the most part, indefinitely. It was a pretty well-established fact that a good worker always could learn something to his advantage by keeping his ears and eyes open at the house of Granaday. These glints often developed from the most casual comment, as was the case with Tom Hathaway, after losing his fourth bet and cursing so heartily that Lorenzo leaned over and shook hands in congratulatory fashion, bewailed the fact that the opportunities of the regular race track seemed gone forever.

"Believe I'll go out and build a track of my own," he said idly. "That's about the only way you can get any privileges these days."

"And then you wouldn't get much privilege," said his partner, Dick Bright. "They'd be telling you what you could do and what you couldn't do, just the same."

"A man's got a right to do what he pleases on his own premises, I guess," said Hathaway, aggrievedly. "Granady does, anyway. If I had a game like a private race track—and it sure is a private game—I'd let my visitors do anything they felt like doing, and if the authorities said anything to me I'd tell 'em to go further. How about it, bo?"

He turned to the man next to him, who happened to be Harry Hitchell, the diamond switch operator. Hitchell turned around and looked keenly at Hathaway and Bright, and, though he had not seen them for years, he recognized them as the pair who had fattened off the farmers in Tazewell county, West Virginia, in the days when Harry himself was just breaking into fast company and practicing with the shorts on the coal miners around Pocahontas way whenever the pay train showed up. He gave no indication of recognition, but joined the conversation cheerily enough.

"Tell the authorities anything you like," he said, "but be a little careful how you go about it. Don't be like the old darky down South who complained to another slave that his master abused him. The other said: 'Why don't you do like I do? Any time Marse John sasses me I sass him right back. If he calls me a low-lived niggah I calls him po' white trash. If he calls me bad names I calls him worse. Why don't you do like me?' So the first darky says he will, and the next time he shows up he looks like he'd been put through a thrashing machine. 'I followed your advice,' he tells the other fellow, 'and see what the boss done to me. I called him a lot of names and this is what I got.' 'Well,' said the other, 'I didn't tell you to let him hear you, did I?' That's the way you got to handle these judges and folks. Make all the threats you like against them, but don't let them catch you at it."

They talked along pleasantly, and as they did so a scheme took shape in the active brain of the diamond switch man, and smoothed itself out the longer he kept up his quiet study of the partners. "Yes," he said finally, "it's a pretty salty summer around New York. Almost got a mind to go back to the old farm."

Hathaway looked at the faultlessly dressed young man, with every appearance of a city bringing up, and spoke doubtingly of any connection Hitchell might have with Mother Nature.

"Oh, this is on the level," said Hitchell earnestly. "My old man is foolish with money and land and all that sort of junk, and he lives up at Castleton, Vt. He's always after me to come back to the village and succeed him as the head of the house. But not for your little playmate."

"Oh, I don't know as it would be so bad," said Bright. "Good place to plant that race track of yours, Tom."

"Fine," said Hitchell, satirically. "If you offered to bet those old ganders two bits that Wednesday wouldn't fall between Tuesday and Thursday of a certain week they'd want odds. Fat chance anybody'd have with that bunch!"

Granaday broke up the conference with a flash from the track changing the price on Old Honesty.

When they were alone Tom looked at Dick and Dick looked at Tom. "How about Castleton?" asked Hathaway.

"The same dog bit me," said Bright.

"What was that guy's name we were talking to?" wondered Hathaway.

"Easy enough to find out," said his partner, and they found out shortly that the diamond switch man worked under the name of Harry Hitchell, but that in reality his name was Clodder, son of old man Clodder, of the Vermont metropolis. This information Mr. Hitchell-Clodder supplied himself in an unobtrusive way.

A few days later Tom Hathaway was getting acquainted with the Castleton crowd. He learned that old Clodder was the richest man of the district, and that was all Tom wanted to know. He wired the news to Dick Bright, who lingered on in New York, waiting for his entrance cue. Then Tom ascertained just where Clodder's land left offf and the neighbor's began. He called on the neighbor, one Parsons, and offered to buy his acres, for he wanted land for a chicken farm. Parsons said he was only a tenant, the owner was a man named Ricketts, who didn't reside in Castleton. However, Ricketts was represented by a local lawyer, and Hathaway called on him.

The lawyer allowed he had power to dispose of the property as he saw fit, and Tom made an offer, which was promptly refused. "I'll give you $2,500 for the property as it stands," said Hathaway, and the lawyer said no. Hathaway left, saying he couldn't go any further. He had hoped to get the land much cheaper.

Finally the land deal was consummated on payments by Hathaway of $2,750, and immediately thereafter Tom engaged the same lawyer to act as his agent. "In case any one should want this particular property," said the new client, "it'll set 'em back $7,500. Savvy?"

The lawyer said he would close at those terms with anybody that wanted to invest in choice Castleton real estate. Then Hathaway disappeared and Dick Bright came to Castleton, suave, well dressed, portly Richard, with the white waistcoat and the general spectacles and the genial smile. He hired a rig from the best livery in town—and the only livery, as well—and enjoyed himself in driving around the hills and lowland, watching them take out the granite and quarry it into the first semblance of decoration, taking in the summer life along the little lakes and making himself as well liked as fast as he made himself acquainted.

He wooed old Clodder assiduously, had him to drive, and gave him to drink of the bottled joy of the city folk, and old Clodder responded gratifyingly. One day, after Bright had hurled half a dozen man's sized snifters into the interior of this staid old resident of a temperance town, and, in addition, had let Clodder win at the euchre game, Dick began to turn the wheel.

"Land worth much in these parts?" he asked.

Old Clodder allowed it wasn't bringing as much as it ought to bring. The soil was pretty well worked out, and it was hard to get new purchasers. Dick said there was a little section of the Clodder homestead he would like to get, just a few acres, you know, on which he could throw together a bungalow and bring a pal or two up now and then to rusticate in the blessed Vermont air.

Clodder said he wasn't averse to bargaining, and Bright took over five acres at $50 an acre, paying cash for the same.

A few days later the second turn of the wheel was administered. Bright and old Clodder sat in the former's room at the "hotel," and Bright showed the native son how to prepare the wholesome mint julep. Mr. Clodder was much interested, and Mr. Bright became so enthusiastic over his experiments that he rapidly acquired an edge the like of which is seldom seen in even a prohibition settlement. Mr. Bright, apparently, was very drunk, but he was still a business man.

"I'm a good fellow," he said. "So are you, Clodder, old son. Tell you what I'm going to do, I'm going to buy the rest of that land of yours, the land south of your house."

"But I don't own that," said Clodder, taking a parting sip of his julep.

"You don't own it!" said Bright, aghast. He nearly cried. "Too bad! Too bad," he said. "I wanted to do you a big favor, and you don't own the property."

Clodder said he didn't see the connection, and then Bright opened up in maudlin confidence. He told Clodder he was the representative of a syndicate, and had been sent to Castleton to buy up a certain section of land on which there would be built a race track, and the track would get the patronage of all the regulars who had been driven out of New York entertainment by the anti-betting laws.

Clodder said the laws of the state of Vermont forbade gambling in any form, but Bright smiled superiorly and showed a legal looking document giving the company a charter to operate a race track. "There is no law in any part of the United States that forbids racing," he explained. "Here's our charter, and at the next session of the legislature we get through a bill permitting betting, under certain restrictions, which won't restrict at all. There'll be millions in it for the folks that get in on the ground floor."

Mr. Bright said further that he didn't want to become prominent in the matter until all arrangements had been concluded. He was working, so to speak, under cover. That was why he had bought only a small portion of the Clodder estate at a time, but, after all, this was all of that particular portion needed for the race track; the rest was the land adjoining on the south.

"I'm sorry it isn't yours," said Bright, "because you might as well have had the benefit of the sale as anybody else."

He confided that he was authorized to pay $10,000, or even more, for the land, and he said Clodder was such a good fellow it was a pity he couldn't be in on it some way.

"It's like this," said Dick. "I can give you $10,000 in your hand if you come to me and say, 'Here's a deed to the property.' "

He gave the farmer a significant look. "I don't care who gets the money," he said. "I've got it to spend, and the fellows that put it up don't care who gets it so long as I get the land. Why don't you get busy, Clodder?"

The old man wrung the hand of his benefactor and thanked him warmly.

"I see what you mean," he said, as he took his leave.

Dick threw himself on the bed and rolled around in a fit of joy. Clodder would go straight to the lawyer and make a deal for the land held in the name of Dick's partner, Hathaway. He would have to pay $7,500 for it, but this he would be willing to do when he knew he could get $10,000 for it from Bright. The deal would net the partners a clear $4,500 after subtracting the $2,750 and the $250 paid for the land—and they would still have five acres of old Clodder's homestead, though that wouldn't amount to much.

Hathaway was down at the office of his lawyer by noon of the day following. This should have given Clodder a chance to get busy.

"Any offers for that land I bought the other day?" asked the Granaday stray.

"None so far," said the lawyer, and Hathaway wondered what was keeping Clodder back.

As he stood at the window of the lawyer's office, looking blankly out of the window onto the tree-lined street, a young man in flannels and a stylish straw hat walked past and pushed the knocker on the house of Clodder across the way. "Oh, gee," exclaimed Hathaway, "there's old man Clodder's son!"

The lawyer rushed to the window and looked at the young man, who was just entering the door, and then he looked curiously at his client.

"That ain't Clodder's son," he said. "Clodder never had a son. That's Mr. Ricketts, whose property you own now. He bought the Parsons place a few days before you did."

"How much did he pay for it?" asked Hathaway, faintly.

"Four hundred dollars," said the lawyer.

"Good-by, counselor," said Mr. Hathaway, "I'm going back to a place called Granaday's. I've got a chance there."

FLY PAPER LOST HOT GAME

Ball Stuck to the Bat and the Big Tank Junction's Trick Ended Disastrously.

After paying their heavy penalty to hard luck at Cattletown Corners, the Big Tank Junctions gathered at the postoffice one afternoon to devise methods by which they could shake off the hoodoo which had clung to them so tenaciously, says the New York World.

As Steve O'Hara suggested in his opening remarks, everybody knew that the Big Tank Junctions were the best players that ever drove spikes in a diamond, and there was no reason why they should not win. Up to this time they had always resorted to fair methods and scoffed at the idea of using trickery to bring about a victory. They realized, however, that something had to be done or the greatest ball club in history would go down on record as a despised tailender.

At this moment Zeke Zuneburg, the premier second baseman, created much interest by appearing with a glove lined with fly paper, which, he explained, would catch any ball that was hit in his direction. It was a rather novel discovery, and several practical demonstrations showed that it was entirely efficacious. Every ball batted or thrown toward Zuneburg stuck to the fly-paper glove as if it had grown there, and the scheme was found doubly effective, as the ball, when thrown to the succeeding player ,would carry enough of the sticky substance with it to make a muff impossible.

After considerable debate, it was unanimously decided to use the glove in a championship game, despite the fact that it might be considered a form of trickery. Thereupon a challenge was sent to the Reeltown Rangers, a club which had been needing attention for a long time. All details for the great game were arranged, and in the meantime Zuneburg had thoroughly perfected his fly-paper glove.

On the afternoon of the historic contest the streets of Reeltown were congestd with people who had come from all parts of the county. Some had come in wagons, some on horseback and hundreds afoot. It was expected that all attendance records would be broken, and they were. The betting naturally was 8 to 5 on the Junctions, but owing to their chronic hard luck the Rangers and the followers were willing to give even money. The Junction Club bet $2,500 at that figure.

As the hour for the game arrived the Big Tank Junction in bright new uniforms dashed out upon the field and were immediately the cynosure of all eyes. Steve O'Hara, the marvelous base runner, came in for an extra share of applause. Despite the fact that he was on the opposing side the people of Reeltown were fair enough to recognize his ability. They had not forgotten the occasion two years before when he ran around the bases so fast that he gained ten feet on his shadow and then pulled up a bit.

As usual, Tom Kelley was the umpire. He had already lost two games for the Junctions by stupidity, and it was well-known that a surgical operation was necessary to get a new idea into his head, and then it often escaped out of one of his ears. Though they realized the dangers of such an umpire, the Junctions placed great faith in Zuneburg's fly paper glove that they decided to take a chance.

With the clanging of the gong the contest was on, and cheer after cheer went up for the Rangers. The rooters for the Junctions were so few and far between that the noise was promptly drowned

It was a pitchers' battle from the star., and Simeon Shotgood, of the Rangers, appeared to have everything. Nobody could hit him safely.

On the other hand, Sammy Swift, of the Junctions, was working like a beaver. Even when a liner was hit it was buried in Zuneburg's fly-paper lined glove, and the batter was as dead as a mackerel. The battle waged fiercely for seven innings, and then the Junctions scored a run. The Rangers came right back and tied it. In the first half of the ninth another tally was added to the Rangers' score, giving them a lead of one run.

As the Junctions took the bat for the last inning, a roar came from the grand stand. With three weak batters up it looked as if the Rangers had a cinch. At this moment there was great activity on the Junction bench. It was necessary that desperate methods be adopted. The pitcher volunteered to be the goat, and while at bat he jumped in the way of a fierce inshoot, and went limping to first base. The next man struck out, but the crowd suddenly became silent, and Simeon Shotgood went up in the air. The next man walked. With two on bases and one out a chill swept over the excited fans as Steve O'Hara, the great batter and base runner, was coming to bat.

It was rapidly growing dark, and he had decided to drop the ball in the dust in front of the plate, where neither pitcher nor catcher could see it, and then run for a record before they could find it.

Zeke Zuneburg was sitting on the bench holding a great bat across his knees. On his left hand was the fly-paper glove, which by this time had grown so hot that it was beginning to melt. The bat was a home-run affair owned by O'Hara, and Zuneburg was thoughtlessly holding it with the fly-paper glove.

With the idea of deceiving the Ranger fielders O'Hara yelled to Zuneburg to pitch him the home-run bat. After gently stroking it with his fly-paper glove, Zuneburg tossed it to the plate.

Squaring himself for the strategic effort, O'Hara saw an outcurve coming, and instead of swinging with all his might, he pitched the big bat at the ball, to the utter amazement of the opposing infielders, and started on a wild dash for first. The bat was about to fall in the pitcher's box and Shotgun caught it in his outstretched hand, and with an air of disgust hurled it toward O'Hara, who was then turning first base. The first baseman also caught the bat and stood on the bag with it while O'Hara sped on to second. In another second the two runners had crossed the plate. O'Hara was right on top of them and was preparing for a slide into home when the uplifted hand of the umpire suddenly arrested his progress.

"What's the trouble?" he yelled as he dashed toward the official. "We only needed two runs and they are across the plate."

The crowd in the meantime had started to leave the park, and many had already paid their bets. There was a wild commotion as the rooters in the front row saw the umpire lift his hand, and everybody scurried back to his seat.

"Are you crazy?" they heard O'Hara yell. "Haven't we won the game?"

"Well, not so you could notice it," replied the umpire. "Do you see that bat?"

"O'Hara looked at the bat and almost fainted. The fly-paper preparation from Zuneburg's glove had melted and run over the business end of the stick, and the ball, when striking it, had stuck hard and fast.

"The pitcher caught that bat on the fly," explained the umpire, "and then threw it to first base, and he also caught it."

"Well, what of that?" demanded O'Hara.

"Nothing," replied the umpire, "except it's a double play and the side is out."

Sorrowfully the Junctions wended their way homeward and to the Big Tank, the hard-luck Nemesis still pursuing.

By JOHN S. HARWOOD

(Copyright, 1908, by the Associated Literary Press.)

TALENTED sons of talented men are not having it all their own way these days. In competition with them in almost every field in which they shine they are finding in ever-increasing numbers talented daughters of talented men—daughters of men whose names stand out in literature, finance, railroading, empire building, music, art, religion, statesmanship, industry, war, philanthropy, the stage, and what not. And this country, be it said to its credit, furnishes a very large quota in the army of the world's talented daughters.

The world's literary field, both as to numbers and varied attainments, shows a noteworthy contingent of these talented ones.

There is Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, and before she took up the Good Samaritan work of aiding destitute sick women of the New York East side and elsewhere, exclusively a producer of books and a voluminous contributor to magazines for grownups and children. Her "Memories of Hawthorne," written in collaboration with her late husband, George Parsons Lathrop, is, of course, one of the standard works of reference on that great American novelist. Hildegarde Hawthorne, niece of Mrs. Lathrop, and daughter of Julian Hawthorne, widely known in literature and journalism, is now a constant contributor of short stories and sketches to the leading magazines; she is, indeed, one of the very few younger writers who breaks into the staid old Atlantic Monthly with any degree of regularity. Miss Hawthorne has been writing pretty steadily since the middle nineties, and is today ranked among the country's best short-story producers, her work showing decided traces of the literary powers that made her grandfather famous on both sides of the Atlantic. Miss Hawthorne makes her home with her father, and each frequently aids the other in some literary task.

Daughter of John Hay.

Mrs. Payne Whitney—the Helen Hay of a few years ago—as most newspaper readers know, has written several books of poetry which have been favorably received both by the critics and the public. John Hay, her father, used to declare to his friends that he believed Helen had the "divine fire" and would one day prove her possession of it. Beginning with her first book of poems, published in 1898, Mrs. Whitney has now given to the literary world nine poetical collections. Last year her new books numbered two, and the titles show that they were written originally in piecemeal for the entertainment and edification of her own children. Mrs. Whitney's most sustained effort appeared six years ago under the title, "Rose of Dawn." A metrical romance of the South Seas, persons who have spent some time in that island-dotted watery quarter of the globe and are acquainted with the poem are not a little put to it to understand how any one who has not been in the South Seas could so accurately and so beautifully describe them.

Another member of the metropolitan "400" (in which Mrs. Whitney holds high station by reason of her marriage) who has written her book and given other unmistakable evidences of possessing literary skill is Mrs. Clarence Mackay, of whom it is recorded that a discerning foreign "title" once gallantly declared that for any one not to know Mrs. Mackay stamped such an unfortunate as being unknown.

Mrs. Mackay's father was that William Alexander Duer, who was famous in his day and generation as a scholar, a collector of books and a voluminous writer on legal subjects, and Mrs. Mackay's grandfathers on her father's side numbered among them writers, jurists and statesmen distinguished for their brilliant mentality. Before her marriage to Clarence Mackay, about a decade ago, Mrs. Mackay, as Miss Duer, had made quite a name for herself in literary circles by her short stories and sketches. Since she became the mistress of the famous Mackay home, "Harbor Hill," at Roslyn, Long Island, her most notable literary productions have been a drama and a book which was published by one of the most famous publishing houses in this country. The last two years or so Mrs. Mackay has been deeply interested in the school and other home problems of Roslyn, and her literary work has suffered as a consequence. Newspaper readers will recall her strenuous campaign for a seat on the Roslyn school board, which ended in a close but decisive victory for her Later, the man she opposed, an old member of the board, forgave her for the defeat. As a participator in civic questions all Roslyn is ready to swear at any and all times that Mrs. Mackay has been a shining success. But when all is said and done, her brilliant success as a leader of society has caused her literary and civic talents to be somewhat overlooked, or only referred to as fads of a social light.

Member of the "400."

Also a member of the "400" and with literary talents that are internationally recognized is Mrs. Edith Wharton, whose father, though he made no great noise in the world, was given the credit of being mentally gifted above the average run of mankind. Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, who has the enviable and rather unusual distinction of having won two $1,000 short story contests in the last three years, is a daughter of the Rev. Edward Abbott, noted first in the Congregational and later in the Episcopal church, and an editor and author of verses and histories. Some of Miss Abbott's work was so well thought of by William Dean Howells that he included it in his "Selections of the Best Short Stories." Mr. Howell's daughter, Mildred, now has her short stories appearing in the magazines. Miss Rose Cleveland, mistress of the White House for her brother until he married, is known among literary folk by her novels and magazine articles and the serious study she made of George Eliot's poetry.

Katherine Prescott Wormeley, whose father was a rear admiral in the British navy, and whose mother was a niece of Commodore Edward Preble one of the founders of the American navy, is the author of numerous serious books, among them a life of Balzac, and a history of the work of the sanitary commission, with which she labored indefatigably during the Civil war. In addition, she has translated into English the works of Balzac, Moliere and other French savants. Born in England seventy-eight years ago, Miss Wormeley is passing the winter of her life in the little town of Jackson, N. H. Leaving Julia Ward Howe out of consideration—her father was a banker, with unusual breadth and liberality of education—Miss Wormeley is probably the dean of the literary-talented daughters of today.

Admiral Sigsbee's Daughters.

Mrs. Robert Small, the elder of the daughters of Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee—he who endeared himself in the hearts of his countrymen by his conduct when the Maine was blown up in Havnna harbor—contributes regularly to the magazines, while Mrs. Carr, another daughter, has inherited her father's talent for drawing. A year or two ago her annual royalty from the sale of one of her pictures, showing a little girl kneeling with her dollies at her bedside for evening prayers, amounted to over $3,000. The rear admiral, by the by, is marking his retirement by busying himself with pen and pencil, the latter, however, being used much less frequently than the former.

Though she has revealed herself to be possessed of some of her father's ability with the brush, Miss Laurence Alma Tadema, the elder of the English painter's daughters, is best known as a writer of novels, poems and essays, her more important published books numbering about a dozen. She it was who toured America some months ago, telling us in unconventional lectures how to be happy, and attracting considerable newspaper attention by her father unusual views on this and other subjects, including that of diet. In England, Miss Alma Tadema's views on happiness, diet and other things not strictly connected with literature are said to receive more serious consideration than they did here, possibly because of British regard for her father's position.

In the clerical and educational circles in which he moved, the father of Jeanette Gilder, founder of the "Critic" and one of the country's leading essayists, was held to be an extremely gifted man; at one time in his career he conducted a woman's college of considerable reputation while he was at the head of it. Also the daughter of a clergyman, Christine Terhune Herrick probably inherits her literary proclivities from her mother, who is known to the women readers of the land as Marion Harland Like her mother, Mrs.

TWENTY DOLLARS TO THE PAN

Rich Strike on Valdez Creek in Alaska---United States Marshal Says the Entire Country Has Been Found Rich.

Seattle, Wash., July 25.—Twenty dollars to the pan has been struck on Voldez creek, in the Susitna. This news is brought by J. M. Lathrop, former United States deputy marshal at Valdez, who says that the entire section of country has been found rich.

"I was at Seldovia recently," said he, "and met three men, Clarkson, Kane and Gregg, who had just come from the diggings, and they corroborated the reports that had come to Valdez. They told me that many lays had been let in the new district, and every layman was making good. The Alaska Commercial commercial company's agent sent out word that he wanted 200 tons of supplies for the post near the falls on the Susitna, which in itself means that he knows the diggings are permanent. It is a difficult district to get into in summer time, and some of the men who left here last spring to go in by the water route, by Cook Inlet and the Susitna river, had not reached their destination when I was at Seldovia.

"I expect to see a big rush in there this fall, for supplies will have to be taken in over the winter trail, which branches off from the Fairbanks trail at Gulkana. That is one reason the three men whom I met at Seldovia came out. They could not purchase a pound of food in the new district."

Dominion creek is one of the live ones. Morrison, who is working on 35, 33 and 69, below upper, is putting in 125 men. He has five steam boilers and is doing extensive work this summer open-cutting and taking out pay.

Foley Bennet, on 35 below lower, has a streak of new pay of more than eighty feet on the right limit, running 5 cents to three feet of dirt. Just above him another man has the same line. Bennett is doing extensive work on his old ground, where it is expected he will take out $30,000 in four weeks.

Peter Roast is open-cutting extensively, and the Swede boys further down the creek in the 70s are doing a big job of open-cutting.

Two large dredges on Walker's fork of the Forty Mile river are working successfully. If they prove themselves profitable workers of the gravels at that part of the north, many other dredges will be installed in the Forty Mile country. Other prospective investors are watching carefully the experiments of these two dredges.

There has just drifted out from the Yukon the story of yet another "Lost Cabin" mine lying somewhere on the desolate Arctic slope, and in search of which a small party of adventurous men set out in April last from Vault creek. This particular "Lost Cabin" is in the declared land of pure gold, and the searchers are James Burnfield, M. J. Lawderback and John Blossi. Somewhere along the Mackenzie river and the Arctic ocean, in the region of Herschel island, the base of the Far Northern whalers, there is reputed to exist a fabulously rich paystreak.

The members of the party are confident that they are on the right track and following no phantom. Their story, too, gains color from the reports of the natives, all of whom tell of a region of virgin gold on the very shores of the Arctic sea.

IN FINLAY RIVER DISTRICT

No Big Strike of Gold Yet Been Made, But Coarse Gold Showings Are Plentiful---No Occasion for Any Stampede.

Victoria, B. C., July 25.—That no big strike of gold has yet been made in the much talked of Finlay River district, is the report conveyed to the department of mines by W. Fleet Robertson, provincial mineralogist, who was deputed to visit and report upon conditions in the new northern placer field. He had not yet reached the ground in person, but took his first report from outward bound miners at McConnel creek, near Babine lake. These men were going for supplies, and doubtless their verdict was prejudiced. At all events they are returning post haste to the ground, where all have claims to which they will devote themselves this season.

The miners referred to were Carr and Johnson, and their story was that no pay streak had yet been reached, but the coarse gold showings were plentiful, and they were hopeful of better things as depth is gained on the claims. They were traveling on snowshoes and it was then mid-June. Another private report from the north says:

"There is no occasion for any stampede to the Finlay, although there will be good camps there, but they cannot come until there are better facilities for the transportation of supplies and the ground can be worked more economically. The ground everywhere appears to get richer as depth is made. It will be some time, however, before the present diggings will make money for any one."

Seattle, Wash., July 25.—Kootenay and Boundary mines shipped 35,518 tons of ore last week, while the smelters of the regions treated an aggregate of 37,665 tons.

According to a statement by General Manager Hodges of the Granby company improvements costing $250,000 are in progress, to enable the company to take advantage of the expected rise in copper.

Among the early July shipments in the Boundary and Kootenay are the four mines of the Dominion Copper company properties that have not shipped previously during the present year.

The Northern Exploration company of Seattle has purchased the old McGillvery Creek mine in the Lillooet district, British Columbia, and is at present operating the property. The mine is described by Maj. B. A. Cardwell, consulting engineer for the company, as a free milling proposition. Formerly the property was operated by the Anderson Mining company. The work was abandoned several years ago and the property fell into disuse until its sale to the present owners. The property has a ten-stamp mill operated by water power and a force of ten men are at work at present.

STRIKE MADE BY BIG GIANT

Great Improvement Among Mines of Black Hornet District in Idaho—Tunnel Boring at Jupiter Mountain is Progressing Rapidly.

Boise, Idaho, July 25.—There has been great improvement recently among the mines of the Black Hornet district, ten miles east of Boise. The Big Giant company, operating ten miles northeast of Boise, recently made a big strike in its main tunnel, about 400 feet further into the mountain from the Big Giant vein, having struck at this point the second big fissure known to be on the pdoperty as shown by surface explorations. This is No. 5 vein and the crosscut tunnel has been extended fifteen feet into it with no indication of the hanging wall yet. It is believed from surface ssowing that it has a width of thirty or forty feet. This vein prospects well in free gold and is producing a very large water flow. The ore is similar to that of the Big Giant and may add very largely to the tonnage in the Big Giant vein, which is estimated at 2,000,000 tons. The ore in the new vein is very amenable to the cyanide and amalgamation treatment.

South of the Big Giant mines Col. Spofford has a force of men running a tunnel to cut the Spofford group. One vein that was cut some time ago is a monster and this one will yield from $2 to $10 a ton in gold. The ore can be crushed at very small cost and the gold saved by amalgamation and cyaniding.

Still further south is the Celtic mine and mill, which are running right along. A large body of ore was cut into a few days ago containing a streak several inches wide that produces about $400 a ton.

There is a revival among the quartz mines of Boise county. The Golden Age company, operating at Grimes Pass, above Pioneerville, will soon have five more stamps running. Southwest of this the Buckskin company has a large force of men at work extracting ore and sinking the main shaft. The new mill, with a capacity of fifty tons a day, has arrived here and will be forwarded to the mines as soon as teams can be secured.

Appreciable progress is being reported in the tunnel-boring operations at Jupiter mountain, and indications are favorable for encountering the big ore bodies at a very early date. Robert McKinley, the well-known local operator, is in charge of the work. The recent rich strike at the Big Giant mine a few miles northeast of Boise has been attracting much attention. The vein was cut at a point about 450 feet below the surface and appears to be of enormous proportions. The tonnage at the Big Giant had already been figured at 2,000,000 tons; but the recent strike would seem to indicate the need of a revision of this estimate. The Jupiter mountain formation bears a striking similarity to that at the Big Giant mine, and geologists state that as a matter of fact the two formations are practically idenical.

PIONEER AMERICAN COMPANY

In the Parral District of Mexico is the Hidalgo---Mine Has Been Operated Continuously for Twenty-Four Years.

Chihuahua, Mex., July 25.—The Hidalgo Mining company is the pioneer American mining company in the Parral district, state of Chisuahua, Mex. This company began operations there in the year 1884, and has been operating continuously since then. The first property acquired by the company was the Agullerena mine, located on the Cerro de la Cruz, within the city limits of Parral. A lixiviation mill was built near the mine to treat the ores. The business gradually developed into general custom milling, and the mill was enlarged and the company began to purchase other mines in the district. Among the most important properties acquired were the Presena, the Alfarena, the Fontaena, the Morena, the Viscayan, and San Francisco, all of which are located at Minas Neuvas, near Parral, on the famous Veta Colorado (Red Ledge). On account of its great width and extent this ledge is one of the most remarkable silver bearing ledges in the world.

The Spaniards began mining on this ledge in 1632, and mining operations have been conducted there since then almost without interruption up to the present time. The Hidalgo Mining company erected two large lixiviation properties, and for a number of years treated the ores by this process at a handsome profit. However, recent develpoments in the treatment of highly silicious silver ores in Mexico by the cyanide process have demonstrated that a greater extraction can be made by the use of the cyanide than by any other process yet discovered, and it is therefore probable that in the near future the company will convert the lixiviation mills into cyanide plants.

Other mines acquired and still held by the Hidalgo Mining company in the Parral district are the San Juanito, Las Cruces, Cabadena, La Luz, and Las Guijas. All of the properties have mademoney for the owners, and have a splendid future before them. In all, the Hidalgo Mining company is at the present time sole owner of eighteen properties in the Parral district.

COST OF PRODUCTION IS LOW

Reported That the North Butte Company is Making Copper at Close Around Seven Cents Per Pound—Plans to Finance the North Butte Extension Company.

Butte, Mont., July 23.—There is little doubt now about North Butte holding first place in the low cost of copper production in the Butte camp, and perhaps for any camp. The excellent grade of ore extracted and the economic management of operations has reduced the cost of production for North Butte to close around 7 cents per pound. In speaking of cost of production General Manager Carson yesterday said: "We are hoisting more than 1,450 tons per day now and we are not afraid of any mine in the country, so far as the cost of production is concerned. We can produce copper as cheap or cheaper and as long as any mine in the world, not even excepting the great Calumet & Hecla."

All of the Butte mines are now operating at normal except the properties of the Boston & Montana company, which are producing about one-third the usual amount. Within another thirty days the Great Falls smelter will be in commission again and then it is expected the Boston & Montana mines will be placed back to normal production.

According to a statement made by Chicago brokers, who are busy with the reorganization of the North Butte Extension company, it has been revealed that the company on July 1, owed approximately $60,000, divided about as follows: Balance due on Overman claim, $37,000; bills payable, $15,000; attachments on property, $8,000. The directors, at a meeting June 27, decided to offer for immediate sale $75,000 in notes of the company in denominations of $500, $1,000 and $5,000, payable on or before 6, 9 or 12 months from date, the proceeds to be used in liquidating the indebtedness. Enough of the notes have already been discounted to take care of immediate requirements, thus avoiding delay in operating the property.

The North Butte Extension property carries the Black Rock vein, on which the Butte & Superior company is now sinking a shaft. There is a great difference in the character of the vein where it has been opened by the Butte & Superior company, for while the latter has encountered heavy zinc value, in the North Butte Extension ground the vein carries no zinc, but, rather, a percentage of lead.

The property is being developed by means of a shaft on the Black Crow claim, which is owned by the North Butte Extension company, and this shaft is now down to a depth of nearly 600 feet. On the 300-foot level a crosscut was run a width of about 60 feet. The character of the vein filling was good, though the values were light. Just below the 500-foot level in the shaft an exceptionally fine stringer appeared, continuing with the shaft, in an almost perpendicular position, until work was suspended. At a depth of nearly 600 feet, the stringer had widened out to nearly two feet and carried a grade of ore. Some of the miners are of the opinion that this is a spur from the main vein, and that drifting on it would open up a valuable ore deposit.

It was the intention of the company to have sunk the shaft to a depth of at least 1,500 feet, and to have done a large amount of exploration work on the 1,500-foot level.

Preparations are being made by the Goose Lake Copper company to resume work on its property near Cooke City. J. W. Martin of Butte, formerly superintendent of the Raven mine, will have charge. The company has a shaft fifty feet deep and good ore has been found from the surface down, samples assaying as high as 12 per cent copper, with good values in gold and silver. Assays in platinum to the amount of $60 a ton have been obtained. The survey for the new electric road from Columbus to Cooke City passes over the Goose Lake property.

The Little Mina vein, upon which the Parrot company is doing most of its mining at present, is gradually improving. Drifting on the vein at the 1,000 foot level has been prosecuted in both directions from the crosscut for some time. A fine body of high grade ore was opened in the west droft a few days ago.

It is announced that the Butte & New York Mining company, the holding company for the Butte-Milwaukee company, has succeeded in raising money to resume development. The company also announces that the books of the company are open to stockholders. The Butte & New York company in a statement says that it is free from debt and is the owner of its mining property in fee simple. The Butte-Milwaukee company was supposed to be the real owner of the mining property which the Butte & New York company is developing. The latter company was organized on a majority of the stock of the Butte-Milwaukee company, and the minority stockholders have never been able to understand their relation to the new company, which was organized for the purpose of raising money in the East. The Butte & New York company, in addition to owning a majority of the stock of the Butte-Milwaukee company, owns one mining claim outright. The other property in the group, supposedly owned by the Butte-Milwaukee, consists of the Col. Sellers, Pollock, Bird and Narrow Gauge claims.

There is a possibility that work will be resumed by the Butte & London Copper Development company. Some Boston men have made a proposition to the company, which, if accepted, would provide a development fund. However, the offer was not acceptable to the directors and a counter proposition was made, to which no answer has yet been received. The Butte & London has a well located ground and one of the best plants among the new companies in the district. The shaft is 1,100 feet deep, but 300 feet of that is through wash, so that but 800 feet is below bedrock, which is generally insufficient to develop a copper mine in the Butte district. The shaft should be at least 1,600 feet deep. The company has no debts and owns 130 acres of ground on the east side of the old district of Butte. Still further east the Boston & Montana company is pushing development work on the Green leaf and has cut several

MINES IN WARREN DISTRICT

Briggs Shaft of Superior & Pittsburg Almost Unwatered—Sinking Will be Resumed After Long Suspension--Recent Strikes at the Junction Bring That Mine to the Front.

Bisbee, Ariz., July 25.—Preparations are under way by the management of the Superior & Pittsburg to resume operations at the Briggs shaft in the near future, owing to the fact that the water in the shaft is now but a few feet deep and is being drained through the Junction shaft at the rate of two and a half inches a day. The unwatering of the Briggs shaft has been one of the most difficult mining problems that has ever confronted a local company. Thousands of dollars have been spent to remove the water from the shaft by pumping, and actual development work in the shaft was discontinued about three years ago.

There is little doubt that in time to come the Briggs will furnish one of the big mines of the district, and that it will become one of the most valuable assets of the Superior & Pittsburg company. On the first level at 910 feet in an easterly direction from the shaft a leached zone of large dimensions was explored on the Top Gallant claim, 600 feet of leached matter being shown. Diamond drilling has shown beyond a doubt that rich bodies of ore will be found with depth. The Briggs shaft is the largest and one of the best equipped in the country.

The resumption of sinking at the Briggs will be an important event in the district.

That the Junction shaft of the Superior & Pittsburg company will be one of the most important shippers of this district is now almost an assured fact. Ore of commercial value was encountered in drift No. 3 on the 1,300-foot level and a crosscut cut at that point about 400 feet from the shaft. Crosscuts 14 and 16 they were numbered, and the ore cut at that point is of a sulphide nature and averages 8 per cent. With the extension of the drift, ore was encountered in what is now called crosscut No. 17, where seven feet of sulphides were passed through. The ore in this crosscut averaged 14 per cent. From crosscut No. 17 another crosscut has been run, No. 21, and twenty-one feet of sulphides have been passed through here. This ore also runs at about an average of 14 per cent. At the present time preparations are being made to raise in the ore to the 1,200 level above where the same grade of ore has been stoped out to some extent.

Another strike was made in a different location in the Junction last week. The scene of the strike is a winze, a new one, No. 2 on the 1,200 level. The winze has been sunk only nine feet up to the present time, but it is all in ore, being sunk in ore. The ore will assay 9 per cent and has an excess of sulphur.

The shaft has been sunk to a depth of 1,517 feet.

Shipments from the other mines of the company continue to be the same as in the past month. The Junction is shipping two cars, the Hoatson seven, the Cole 7, a total of sixteen cars or approximately 700 tons daily.

The Cuprite shaft of the Copper Queen has reached a depth of almost 700 feet and will be connected in a few days with the Czar. sinking will be discontinued and the ground will be further explored.

The new hoist at the Sacramento shaft of the Copper Queen company was tested this week and everything ran smoothly. The skips have not yet been installed, but it is probable that they will be installed and the equipment in active use at the first part of the coming month.

The Wolverine & Arizona began sinking a winze on the silver-leaf ore recently encountered in a crosscut from their main tunnel. It is probable that there is a copper deposit underlying. The ore body has been crosscut for about fifty feet and looks promising. Assays of the ore have yielded $60 a ton in silver and lead.

The Shattuck-Arizona offers nothing of importance this week. Work at this property continues of an exploration and development nature, with gratifying results.

Jerome, Ariz., July 25.—The fact that the Cleopatra company, operating in the near vicinity of the United Verde mine, has recently opened up a rich ore body is regarded as of more than ordinary significance among local operators. It is also noted that the property of the Verde Grande company is now brought into very favorable light, as the Verde Grande lies practically in a midway position between the United Verde and the Cleopatra. With enormous ore bodies in evidence on either side, it is believed that the Verde Grande stands an excellent chance of proving up to the best expectations of its backers. It is well understood that the richest strikes in Jerome have been made after cutting through a cap-stone of iron, which is precisely the sort of formation now being penetrated at the Verde Grande.

Nogales, Ariz., July 25.—Local operators are reported as well pleased with the recent heavy sales recorded in the copper market and much activity is reported, notably at the Mansfield mine, which is now being put in shape for heavy production in view of the improved conditions.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 25.—Among the important stockholders' meetings scheduled to take place here in the near future is that of the Central Mining & Development company operating the well-known Two Queens group in Pinal county, A. T. The meeting is booked for the first week in August, and it appears likely that a vigorous policy will be inaugurated, especially in view of the very encouraging reports that have been coming forward concerning the rich values shown up through recent development operations. It is stated that the second level the vein has just been cut at a depth of 300 feet beneath the surface, showing a width at this point of not less than six feet. As judged by surface assays this vein should undoubtedly prove a heavy producer. An extensive equipment has been installed at the Two Queens, which in addition to its high assays in gold gives good promise

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

New Shaft to be Sunk in Effort to Open the Syracuse Mine—Jones & Laughlin Steel Company Opening Good-Sized Mine in Meadow Property at Aurora.

The interesting statement is made that in the effort to open the Syracuse mine of Pickands, Mather & Co., in the Embarrass Lake district, east of Biwabik, Mesaba range, a new shaft is to be sunk. It is at this property that the heavy overburden of quicksand and bowlers first occasioned tremendous difficulties, and there, consequently, and for months past, the amazing inrush of water has made sinking decidedly slow and costly, and has so far defeated the attempt to tap the ore deposit. It will be the function of the new opening to serve as a well, into which it is hoped the water will drain in sufficient volume to relieve the deluge in the present workings.

That a veritable underground river would be encountered was hardly expected when the development of the Syracuse was started, and now that pumps, of a capacity of 7,000 gallons a minute, are in place to prevent the drowning of the mine entirely, it is found that the shaft, fairly choked as it is with water and exhaust pipes, is too small for both mining and drainage purposes. Little or no work will be done in the way of sinking to the ore body until the new shaft is prepared to handle a portion of the flow of water. The attempt to open the yracuse has already cost Pickands, Mather & Co. hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In the effort to get through the overburden of quicksand, various schemes were tried, at great expense and much loss of time, but all were unsuccessful, and the task was finally turned over to a company whose specialty is subaquous construction work. Using compressed air to hold back the sand and water, this company put the shaft down to the ledge and, with the troubles thought ended, the mining concern took charge again. It was an exceedingly difficult task, even for the contractors and their especially designed methods and apparatus, to sink through the treacherous blanket overlying the rock. This was not so much because of the quicksand, but because of the presence of the sheet steel piling, concrete, timber crib-work and other debris resulting from the former operations. It was necessary to cut through the steel piling literally inch by inch, and there were times when it was feared the abandonment of the shaft would be forced.

With the shaft finally anchored in bedrock, it was supposed that the sinking would cause little further difficulty. Good progress was made for a time. Then suddenly, and without warning, water gushed forth from a fissure in a veritable deluge. It was with difficulty that the men escaped. The pumps were drowned out. Since then it has been a continual battle with the water. The inflow has been terrific and inexhaustible. The source of the water is a mooted question, but, in the opinion of mining men, the explanation lies in the near proximity of the Embarrass lake and river. The Bangor mine, a twin property a short distance west of the Syracuse, and which also is being developed by Pickands, Mather & Co., has its troubles with water also, but in not near so great a degree. The ore has been reached and the deposit is being developed.

The Meadow Property.

The Jones & Laughlin Steel company is opening a good-sized mine in its Meadow property, in Section 3, 38-15, at Aurora. It is an underground proposition, the most important development work now in progress being at a depth of 175 feet. There are two shafts. One of these has only recently received its permanent equipment of machinery and has hoisted its first ore within the fortnight. From the other shaft, known as the Fowler, and in which little or no work is being done at present, 35,000 tons of ore were shipped last season. This was the initial production of the mine, the development of which was started only last year. It is not the intention to operate the Meadow vigorously for some time yet, but meanwhile the openings will be extended, and when the ore is needed th property will be ready to supply it. On the Marquette range, the Jones & Laughlin company is developing a very fine mine at Negaunee. This is the Rolling Mill property, at which an extensive deposit of ore of excellent grade is being opened at a depth of some hundreds of feet. The Rolling Mill will eventually take the place of the company's Lake Angeline mine at Ishpeming, which, having produced almost eight million tons of ore to date, has seen its best days, although assured of an active life for a number of years yet.

The New York State Steel company will ship 100,000 tons of ore from its mines this season, if it is possible to take out that amount. The product will come from the Larkin property, formerly the Tesora, in Section 4, 58-17, at Virginia, and the Kellogg, in Section 9, 58-16, about midway between Biwabik and McKinley. Both of these mines are being developed on lands owned by W. H. Yawkey. The Kellogg is especially well known, not only because of the exceptionally high grade ore contained in its deposits, but because the lease under which it is operated calls for the payment of a royalty of $1 a ton, which is about the highest in effect anywhere in the Lake Superior region. Adjoining the Kellogg on the east, and containing Bessemer ore of similar excellent quality, is the Republic Iron & Steel company's Monica property. The work of opening the Monica was started last year, but was subsequently suspended, since which time the property has been idle. It is the understanding that operations are to be resumed shortly, and some ore shipped this season. The Monica is an underground proposition, as are the Kellogg and Larkin.

Stripping at the Hartley.

A particularly large stripping operation on the Mesaba is that in progress at the Steel corporation's Hartley mine at Hibbing. Five steam shovels are employed. Several years' work will be required to remove the overburden. The property comprises four forties and the ore body extends across it almost from one side to the other. At its greatest breadth the deposit is upwards of a thousand feet in width. The ore dips into the Pittsburg Iron

FINE ORE BODY IN APACHE

Uncovered by Shot on the 300-Foot Level---Per Cent of Copper is Good---Sulphide Ore is Also Found.

Bisbee, Ariz., July 25.—A shot fired recently in the east crosscut on the 300-foot level of the Anderson-Apache mine, near Hachita, developed one of the richest and most promising ore bodies yet encountered in the development work being done on the Apache ground. About three-quarters of the face of the crosscut is in copper carbonates which run from 12 to 15 per cent copper. The appearance of the strike is such that it is expected the full ore body will be uncovered with a few more shots. Information to this effect comes from L. K. Houlton of Houle & Houlton, who is superintending the work now in progress at the mine.

The importance of this find is magnified from the fact that it is entirely in new territory, being about one-half way between the two pronounced faults on the ground, one of which runs north and south and the other east and west. Some distance away to the north these faults bisect and it is in this ground that the operators of the property expect to find a big ore body, a part of which has already been located. Heretofore most of the development has been along the north and south fault. A crosscut was run from the fault on the 300-level which ultimately will be extended to the east and west fault. This fault is even more pronounced than the other. The development along the crosscut thus far has proven the existence of much high grade ore and as the exploration of the new ground lying between the two faults goes on the results become continually more satisfactory and indicate even better results with greater depth.

Of much interest, too, to the company was the discovery of a fair-sized body of copper sulphides on the 200-foot level. This ore runs extraordinarily rich and is, too, an indication of the value of the ore beneath. This ore also carries a good value in silver.

The contract for shipping the Anderson-Apache ore from the mine to the station has been let to Mr. Houlton. Arthur Houle, consulting engineer for the company, expects to go out to the mine within the next few days to have a look at the work and to give further directions regarding development. He is a firm believer in the future of the Anderson-Apache as a good producer.

THE SILVER KING COUNTRY

Sin Rival Property Making Showing that Pleases Its Owners---As Much Ore in Silver King Mine as Ever Taken Out.

Silver King, Ariz., July 25.—A. W. Downs of London, Eng., is here looking over the properties of the Sin Rival Milling & Mining company, in which he is interested. Mr. Downs is more than well pleased with what he has seen, and believes that with a little more time and labor his company's holding will become one of the biggest silver and copper producing mines in Arizona.

W. F. Donald of Phoenix and Atchison, Kan., is looking at the Silver King property in the interests of himself and his associates. He is going through the underground workings and exploring the old Chimney of the Silver King. He claims that it is one of the most mystifying ore chutes he has ever had the opportunity to explore, and thinks that without a doubt there is as much if not more ore in the old mine than was ever taken out.

Harry Rahn, foreman of J. H. McCabe on the old Cloudburst, has a force of men at work straightening out the workings, and has discovered several ore chutes running good values in silver and gold. He has also had the old Stoneman grade Silver King road put in strictly first-class condition from the old town of Pinal to the Silver King mine, a distance of five and one-half miles. Gen. F. N. Solawass, who yesterday passed over the road to the Silver King properties, states that he had no trouble whatever with his machine and found it far beyond his expectations.

The Gilson properties closed down July 1 and will remain idle until the new machinery ordered for the McGred and Brown group arrives.

THE GIROUX CONSOLIDATED

Five Hundred Ton Concentrating Mill Completed---Blast Furnace Will Also be Blown In as Soon as the Concentrator Starts.

Ely, Nev., July 25.—Joseph L. Giroux, president of the Giroux Consolidated properties, after several days' examination of the company's holdings here, said: "The 500-ton concentrating mill has been completed, at a cost of $150,000, and pending the day that it is placed in commission the working force at the mine has been reduced to sixty-five men. The main work now in hand is the sinking of the Alpha shaft, which is down 1,145 feet. It is expected that water will be encountered in quantity at 1,200 feet. Enough water is making now to run the mill at half its capacity if desired. If expectations are realized, water will be developed sufficient to run the mill at capacity and so avoid bringing water from Steptoe valley, twelve miles away, which would involve a cost of $250,00. The Giroux is developed for a distance of nearly one mile by four shafts on the main quartz-porphyry dike, which extends for a total distance of 2⅛ miles on the company's ground. Already 3,000,000 tons of ore are in sight, and it is estimated that it will average 2¼ per cent copper."

The 200-ton blast furnace smelter of the Giroux company has also been completed and will be blown in as soon as the concentrator starts up. It cost about $45,000. As to cost of manufacturing copper, Mr. Giroux said that the estimates on cost from the quartz-porphyry low-grade ore run from 8 to 9 cents. These estimates do not take into account the high-grade ore from the Alpha shaft.

It is reported here that, as a result of a compromise, a coalition of the railroad interests of the Guggenheims and the Goulds in Nevada has been agreed upon. The Western Pacific, it is said, has abandoned its proposed branch to Ely, and the money is to be used to extend the Nevada Northern, owned by the Nevada Consolidate dand Cumberland Ely (Guggenheim enterprises), from Ely to Pioche.

Goldfield, Nev., July 25.—Harry P. Taylor, J. C. Niven and Lyttleton Price, all Salt Lake young men, have cleaned up $250,000 in the last three weeks from the engineers' lease on the Florence-Goldfield. They found a vein of shipping ore, averaging two feet in width, on June 18. The rock carries values of $230. One lot of thirty-one tons carried fifty-four ounces, making the shipment worth $33,480.

GOOD INDICATIONS OF OIL

Found in Sand on the Holdings of the Purea Oil Company in the Santa Rosa District of New Mexico.

Bisbee, Ariz., July 25.—The stockholders in the Purea Oil company are very much elated over reports which have just reached them from their holdings in the Santa Rosa, N. M., district, where their claims are located.

The information came in the form of a letter from Biddy Doyle, of this city, who is representing the stockholders on the field and who has charge of the apcrations there. He also sent by express to C. A. Overlock of this city, who is one of the chief stockholders, a sample of the water taken from the bottom of the well, together with samples of the mud at the bottom of the well.

When the well reached a depth of1,000 feet, there was trouble with the drill, owing to its having passed through the limerock formation in which oil is usually found, and it was thought for a time that the well would have to be abandoned.

Immediately following the letter containing this information came samples from the bottom of the well. The mud was almost pure asphalt, and smelled strongly of oil while the water was impregnated strongly with oil. The experts i nthe field who have seen the mud and the water express no doubt as to a good flow of oil being found further down.

ThePurea Oil company is made up almost entirely ofBisbee men, among whom are L. C. Shattuck, C. A. Overlock, Walter Douglas, W. H. Brophy and others. They have in all 7,000 acres. The Santa Rosa company is also isnking a well in the neighborhood of the holdings of the Purea company.

A POINTED ADDRESS.

C. D. Griffith of Sleepy Eye, president of the Minnesota Bankers' association and one of the most successful country bankers in the state, prodded some very sore spots in the body politic in his address to the bankers' convention yesterday, and he did it just like a man who thinks as a citizen first, and who is not blinded by business or personal prejudices.

For instance, he said: "Why cannot our houses of congress see that the key to the situation in the control of corporations is first to control the issue of all their securities?" There are business men and bankers who grow very red in the face when such proposals are made, and declare that it constitutes an impudent interference in private business. But Mr. Griffith has the right idea; over-capitalization is the mother of economic abuses, and these abuses are only to be cured by rigid public regulation of capitalization. To force the people to yield dividends on grossly inflated capital is to perform highway robbery on a large scale, and a government which permits it is grossly neglectful of its duty.

Another important matter upon which Mr. Griffith touched was the mortgage registry tax, the sole fruit of the tax amendment for which so much was promised. Designed to relieve the heavily-laden borrower and to make the wealthy lender bear the burden, it has worked just the opposite result, and it always will so long as it is retained upon the statute books. It should be repealed, and the tax amendment to the constitution that made it possible should be thrown into the scrap-heap with it.

The looting of trust funds by receivers who prolong their receivership while they and their attorneys draw fat fees was also vigorously attacked, and Mr. Griffith suggests that the liquidation of all failed state banks should be entirely in charge of the superintendent of banks, who is to appoint and pay a receiver "according to the per cent paid to creditors, and not allow a receiver to prolong his job for years as is usually done." Too often, under the present system, receiverships have been profitable to the receivers and disastrous to the creditors.

"I wish to go on record," said Griffith, "that we will have to do something in the way of guaranteeing deposits in all banks, or we will certainly have government savings banks, which will receive their deposits principally from the rural districts." The Herald has long advocated both the guaranteeing of deposits and the postal savings banks, and it cannot see that anything but good will come to the established banking institutions of the country from either. The postal banks will draw largely upon funds that now never get into the banks, and the deposit guaranty system will insure against the disastrous "runs" that follow every panic, in which the strongest and soundest banks may be forced to close their doors. The deposit guaranty system is for the benefit of the public as well as that of the bankers, and while some bankers oppose it, the public is likely to demand its adoption.

PROPHETS OF GOOD.

Says an "anxious inquirer:" "Why doesn't the school of prophecy reform and produce at least now and then a seer who will tell us of the good that is to come? The latter-day prophets are prophets of evil. They either tell us of something that has not happened up to date, though the time set for the event has passed, or insist, after the fact, that they foresaw the evil that has come. But why this predominance of pessimism? Not all or even half the things that happen are evil. The world is getting better, not worse. Why don't the prophets, if they really have the power to foresee things, discover and disclose some of the good? Do they think that the people are interested only in the evil? Is there more personal gain to them in foretelling disaster and destruction? They can hardly say that, because since the days of Mother Shipton nobody has tried. They have all posed as confidants of the worker of evil."

"I am an old man," said a sage once; "and I have had many troubles. But most of them never happened."

In other words, just as anticipation of pleasures often exceeds the realization, so preconceptions of evil often—usually, in fact—are worse than the events.

Prophets of evil who prophecy for sensation's sake are useless bores; but prophets who tell us that evil will come unless we avert it, and that tell us how to avert it, are useful; indeed, they are truly prophets of good because they teach us how to prevent evil and to produce good.

If your automobile is racing down a mountain road, and somebody stops you to say that the road goes over a thousand-foot precipice just around the corner, that person is a prophet of evil, but of evil that you can avert. He prophecies death if you kee pon, but safety if you heed his advice. And as you are likely to heed his advice, he is really a prophet of good.

Nobody has any use for the fellow who goes about dismally foretelling calamities that cannot be avoided, and that he would not avoid if he could, so much does he love disaster. Some people, too, dislike the fellow who goes about telling people that if they keep on as they are going, they will get into trouble; and the more evidently true his prophecy, the less such people like it. But the prophecy of warning and of instruction is necessary, even though the prophecy of gloom is unnecessary and a bore.

There should be a sharp distinction, therefore, between the prophets who foretell disaster from a ghoulish and unwholesome love of evil, and the prophets who point the way to peril and at the same time show the road to safety. The former are nuisances, the latter are blessings. The prophet of good who persisted in saying that everything is going to be all right anyway, no matter what anybody does, would be a stumbling block to progress if anybody believed him.

VACATIONS IN DULUTH.

For those fortunate individuals whose employers are wise enough to grant them reasonable vacations, or who, being their own employers, realize that they can do better work in forty-eight weeks than in fifty-two, there is a wide variety of vacation trips from which to choose. One may run out to the Yellowstone park, one may visit some seaside resort, one may put in a pleasant month at some mountain retreat, or one may even take a short run to Europe.

But no matter how far one may go, or how expensive one's trip becomes, it would be impossible to find greater pleasure, more perfect rest or keener enjoyment than may be found right in or near Duluth itself.

For those who choose to rest at home, there is a multitude of little trips of an hour, half a day, a day or a week in which perfect pleasure is to be found.

In the heart of the city there are beautiful parks to be visited, in which pleasant hours may be spent. At Fourteenth avenue east is Chester park, where a charming walk borders a scenic brook on both banks. At Tenth avenue east and Fourth street is Portland square, as pretty a little park as any city affords, where a book and a bench under the trees will provide a refreshing half-day's outing. In the West end and West Duluth there are other charming beauty spots, and at Lester Park and upon Park Point are delightful places for brief outings.

Near by there are lakes and streams of wild but brilliant beauty, where rest or recreation or both may be found in abundance. For longer trips, the north shore trout streams, scattered from Duluth to Port Arthur, provide keen sport in surroundings of great beauty. The lakes and rivers of Northern Minnesota west of Duluth provide fishing, boating and swimming. There are bass lakes in Itasca county, for instance, which furnish as good fishing as any upon the continent.

Lake Superior and its bays provide a large variety of pleasures. One may take a round-trip on the Great Lakes, lasting a week or more according to the nature of the vessel; one may in two days ride along Superior's north shore to Port Arthur and around Isle Royale, witnessing scenery as grand and impressive as any in this country; one may ride of a clear evening "around the horn," circumnavigating Minnesota point; one may travel, for a day's or half-day's outing, up the St. Louis river to the head of navigation through charming river scenery; and if there is time for nothing else, a round trip on a ferry to Superior furnishes a cheap and pleasant boat ride.

In short, the list of pleasant trips of varying lengths that could be planned about Duluth and its environs is so long that it could be made to fill any ordinary vacation period with unceasing interest, variety, enjoyment and recreation. It seems, on the whole, rather absurd to be wasting vacation time on long railroad trips when there is so much of beauty and interest and of pure enjoyment right here at home.

THE NEWSPAPER'S INFLUENCE.

There are people who say that the influence of the newspapers is waning, and that it is not now as it was in the olden days, when there were giants who wielded editorial pens that swayed the people as the consummate orator sways his audience.

Yet in the time to come, the influence of the newspaper must become greater than it ever was before, and that means that the responsibilities of the newspaper editor will increase in proportion.

With the growth of real democracy the public will have to depend more and more upon the newspaper as a medium of intelligence and information. The substitution of direct nomination systems for the old manipulated convention system of nomination throws a great burden of responsibility upon the newspapers, which must keep the public supplied, and honestly supplied, with accurate and reliable information regarding the candidates. The extension of the principle of direct legislation will bring even greater responsibilities upon the newspaper. In the past, conventions dominated by bosses picked all the candidates; and legislatures, dominated by the bosses and often by selfish interests, enacted all the legislation. When the people nominate all the candidates as well as elect them, and when the people, through the initiative and referendum, enact much of the legislation, as they do now in Oregon and Oklahoma, the duties of the newspapers will be largely increased, and it is needful that newspapers shall cultivate, in preparation for these changes, a greater sense of their responsibility to the people.

The chief reason why it has seemed that newspapers have lost much of their influence has been that in many communities certain newspapers have became known as "organs." Perhaps they were organs of some specially privileged corporation; perhaps they were merely partisan organs, which means that they reflected the views of the bosses that controlled their party; but in either event their utterances were discounted by the people and their most frenzied appeals were disregarded or laughed at.

The people have been quick to detect the motives back of the utterances of such newspapers, and when one of them is exposed its influences is nullified. Further, and still more important, such newspapers do not pay. They can be maintained only by expensive subsidies, for the people will not support them. While many interests have persisted for a long time in supporting newspapers to reflect their views, sooner or later it has been discovered that the expense is wasted, for the people refuse to be misled by such transparent devices.

The independent newspaper, which is purely a newspaper and in no sense an "organ," still wields an influence the extent of which is determied by its fairness. In its news columns it tells the news, without bias or misrepresentation. In its editorial columns it gives its views, which are aimed to serve the best interests of the many; its object is the "greatest good to the greatest number."

It is in such newspapers as these, not in the organ of special interests or of party machines, that the people will trust in the day of the new democracy when the people will really rule instead of the "interests" and the party bosses.

THE NUCLEUS OF SOCIAL PROGRESS.

Mr. Bryan never probed more deeply into the evils that exist today, and never disclosed more clearly the ultimate end of progress, than he did the other day in an address to a body of normal school students at Lincoln when he said:

> If you will examine the platform adopted at Denver, you will find that it closes with an appeal to those who desire to see this government a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and so administered that it will, so far as human wisdom can, secure to each individual a reward from society proportionate to the contribution which that person makes to the welfare of society.

That sentiment embodies the ideal which underlies all movements for economic and social progress. This government will not be a government of, for and by the people until it secures to every individual a fair return for his efforts in behalf of society, until it insures that society will pay each individual according to his gifts to socety, and not withhold from those who produce to give to those who do not produce but who thrive and prosper through special privileges.

"To my mind," said Mr. Bryan, "this is the ideal toward which a government should strive. One of our complaints against present conditions is that the rewards of society are not properly distributed. Compare the work and compensation of teachers, for instance, with the compensation and work of those who have secured privileges and favoritism. Compare your work and your reward with those who have secured control of some great industry and who, by means of thos control, are able to reach their hands into the pockets of eighty millions of people and by fixing arbitrarily the price of that which they sell and which the people must have, are able to gather a reward larger than they earn."

If one man receives a greater reward than he earns, it means that many others must lose a part of their deserts in order to make up the difference. If one man receives less than he earns, it means that some other man, through the special privileges that have been secured by stealth and corruption, is getting more than he deserves.

The plans of those who would make the government secure to each man a return for his labors proportionate to their benefit to society are damned as "paternalistic," "Socialistic," or anarchistic.

What should be said, then, of the operations of government functions that have taken from the many that which they have earned, and given it to the few who did not earn it?

If it is paternalistic to regulate the rewards of society so that each shall get his just deserts, what is it to take from the many that which they have earned, and give it to the few who riot in shameful splendor by the use of riches which they have not created or earned?

Mr. Bryan has touched the core of the economic problem, and has placed before the American people the ideal toward which they should strive. Liberty will be a travesty, opportunity a joke and equality a grim sarcasm until that ideal is attained.

THE COST OF WAR.

A time is coming when nations that refer their differences to the arbitrament of war will be as little respected as men are who settle their arguments by fist fights, and when nations that maintain a great and expensive armament will be as far from respectable as the street tough who carries brass knuckles.

Public sentiment, expressed through law enforced by the law's officers, has diminished the amount of fist-fighting; and public sentiment will, in time, relegate war to the same limbo of unrespectability that has received the practice of fist-fighting. The world is but half-civilized when it still finds it necessary, to settle a dispute of any sort, to resort to rapine and murder.

Such object lessons as that which has been furnished by the general staff of the German army will go a long way toward making people see the wickedness and waste of war. Gen. Blume, of the Germany army, has made an estimate of the probable cost of a modern European war, and his estimate has been published by the general staff. It makes a startling exhibit of the cost of modern war, and it is not encouraging to belligerency.

Putting the number of troops that Germany could put in the field at 4,750,000, he says that the cost to Germany of a war with another European power would be $1,500,000,000 a year as long as it lasted. On the basis of the war between Russia and Japan, in which the Japanese lost in killed and wounded 20 per cent of their armies, Germany would lose in the same length of time about 900,000 men. Says the New York World: "The cost in treasure and the loss in human lives would be only the beginning. Financial depression and paralysis of industry would follow and cost the nation immeasurably more in the long run. The account in blood and money would be duplicated if Germany were engaged with only one power. If three or four or even more powers were involved, as seems probable in the light of existing alliances, Europe would be 'bled white' and plunged in lasting disaster."

In reckoning the cost of war advocates of peace, curiously enough, often forget to figure what it costs the world to keep prepared for war even in times of peace. Armies and navies and their equipments in times of peace eat up billions of dollars that are wrung from the painful earnings of humanity. The tax burden is increased enormously in every country that has a large army and navy, and in all countries the burden falls most heavily upon those who can least afford to bear it.

Besides this, every man enlisted in either army or navy is a potential producer who is withdrawn from the ranks of wealth-makers and made over into a tax-eater to be supported by the industry of his fellows. The wealth that could be produced if every soldier and sailor in the armies and navies of the world were stripped of his uniform and put into overalls is enormous—beyond calculation, in fact.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

That Duluth was one of the best convention cities in the Northwest was proven yesterday, when the great crowd of bankers and their friends invaded the precincts and tried out the housing capacity of the city.

There was hardly a time when a few more could not have been taken care of. It is true that every one could not secure a front room or a room with a bath, but so well did the hotel men provide for the bankers and their friends that every one was taken care of in a satisfactory manner.

The remark was often made during the day that Duluth had overlooked nothing in the provisions made for the visitors. But not the least credit should go to the hotel managements. With over 1,000 strangers in the city, it was only natural that accommodations should be crowded. But at no time were people turned away, except in the very thickest of the efforts to get rooms, and then they were told to wait only a few minutes until arrangements were made for their accommodations.

It is safe to say that few other cities in the Northwest, this side of Chicago, could have handled the crowd any better than did the Duluth hotels. The visitors were very well satisfied with the way they were treated. The ability of the Duluth hotels to handle a convention crowd, or any large number of tourists that comes to Duluth, is not the least of the assets of the city in securing representive delegations and large numbers of visitors.

State Senator J. H. Stout of Menomonie, Wis., was at the hotel Lenox yesterday with his private secretary, William C. Ribenack. Mr. Stout has been senator from one district for six uscessive years. That is a fairly good record for these days of shifting political opinion. He is a Republican, but has managed to steer clear of the rocks of dissension that have been tossed upon the political beach by the stalwarts and insurgents in the fight that shook the G. O. P., from one end of the state to the other.

Speaking for Senator Stout, Mr. Ribenack states that Wisconsin was loyal to La Follette and accorded him hearty support in his efforts to get the resolutions drawn up by the Wisconsin delegation drafted into the plank of the Chicago convention. Mr. Ribenack said that politics were comparatively quiet in Wisconsin at the present time, though the Democratic state convention had succeeded in making itself heard outside of the borders of the state.

Mr. Ribenack lives in Menomonie and is a brother of the proprietors of the Lenox hotel.

Thomas E. Cootey, president of the Cootey-Blodgett Lithographing company, is at the Spalding with a fine display of his company. Mr. Cootey, who is from Minneapolis, states that reflected through the trade and business of the city of lumber and wheat, business is gradually improving. Doing so much business with bankers Mr. Cootey, in a way, has a finger upon the financial pulse. He states, optimistically that the financial illness of the commercial body is mending in splendid shape and that before the patient will be as strong and vigorous as in the days before something caused the illness of last October.

Mr. Cootey says that industrial and commercial condition in the Northwest are showing a steady and healthy improvement. He says that business in Minneapolis has improved greatly since last May and, at the present time, business is beginning to get within sight of the volume of trade that was transacted before the money stringency overtook the country last fall.

Claude G. Cotton, manager of the Minnesota office of the Burroughs Adding Machine company, with an office at Minneapolis, is another well known business man of the Flour City, who is here in connection with the business side of the bankers' convention.

Mr. Cotton says that his business fluctuates with the rise and ebb of prosperity more consistently, probably, than any other line of commercial endeavor. His finger, too, is on the pulse of business prosperity. Like Mr. Cootey, Mr. Cotton is of the opinion that industrial conditions are showing a steady improvement. He states that this is especially true of the Northwest.

Mr. Cotton states that the adding machine has played a most vital part in the consolidation of business. For instance, he states, there are cases where consolidations have been effected that would have been impossible without the assistanc of the adding machine. The adding machine is primarily a saver of labor. In the old way, when business enterprises were consolidated, there was ever the problem of what to do with the added number of employers that would be brought under the head of one management. Mr. Cotton says the adding machine has solved this problem.

The mechanical side of the convention, by the way, is one of the many interesting things connected with the convention. The Spalding hotel is the headquarters of the men who have mechanical contrivances that are used in the banking business, and if one wishes to observe the advances that have been made in the business world upon the mechanical and inventive side, he would do well to visit the exhibits in the lobby of the hotel. Some of these inventions almost talk and one realizes almost with a start the great part played in business and economy by the machines that are the result of years of study and work.

Senator Cullom, from the committee on commerce, has reported without recommendation a bill to take the control of rivers and harbors out of the hands of the army engineers and place them under a bureau, to be officered by a corps of civil engineers. A very heavy rainstorm followed and a considerable amount of damage was done to lawns, terraces and city graders' contracts in a very few moments. The rain fell with unequalled rapidity.

Henry Jackson, an employe of A. M. Miller at Thomson, met with a serious accident at noon today. THE WEATHER.

WEATHER MAN

The weather man promises no relief for tomorrow from the cool temperatures, damp conditions and thick atmosphere that have prevailed for a couple of days. With brief intervals of sunshine, fog and clouds have made things gloomy most of the time. Last night's lowest temperature was 52 degs. and yesterday's highest was 56 degs., the lowest figure on the weather map. Local showers, with fog and cool temperature, are promised for tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today fine summer weather prevailed.

The sun rose this morning at 4:39 and sets tonight at 7:50, making 15 hours and 11 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The temperature changes were generally unimportant throughout the whole country during the past twenty-four hours, but warm weather continues in the Central valleys and Eastern states. The barometer remains high over Eastern Canada and low over Alberta and Arizona. During the past twenty-four hours the depressions over the latter districts caused further showers in the Northwest and in most states east of the Mississippi river. An area of high pressure is developing off the Oregon coast, attended by cooler weather in that section. Indications favor a continuance of easterly winds, more or less fog, cool temperature and showery conditions in this locality tonight and Sunday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

When Under Fire.

Few of us get through life without having an experience of being under fire. Not that many of us are likely to feel the shock of physical battle or to be exposed to the cannon or sharpshooting of real soldiers. But if we do our duty, as we see it, we may incur the displeasure of those whose good will we value. Men in public life are especially exposed to these judgments and misjudgments. Their motives are impugned, their methods are censured, their policies divided—even their characters are assailed and traduced.

The way in which they carry themselves under such batteries of attack shows the stuff that is in them, and some live long enough to see their former critics transformed into friends and admirers. Mr. Cleveland is a striking example of this. If he could read the obituaries that have appeared in papers opposed to him politically he would realize how the flight of time rectifies human judgments, and how in the long run a man receives his just dues at the hands of his fellow-men.

But one does not have to hold office in order to incure the displeasure of others. Provided he be conscientious and independent he is likely more than once to run counter to the wishes and opinions of friends or kindred. Perhaps they do not like the woman he has chosen for his wife; perhaps they do not approve of his trying to go to college on very limited means. The late Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, once president of Wellesley college, had exceptionally fine parents. Yet they set their faces like a flint against her acquiring a higher education and did not yield until she, knowing herself better than they knew her, issued a declaration of independence in these terms: "I am going to college if I don't get there until I am 50 years old." Again one may choose a profession for which his neighbors and family think him unfitted. Or he may, by favoring a certain policy in the church, the school, the public institution or the home with which he is connected, precipitate upon himself the darts of criticism.

What then? How shall one behave when under any kind of fire? First let him make sure of his ground; let him not take his position simply because he wants to appear smart or singular. Let him review his course in order to be thoroughly convinced that he could not keep his mental or moral integrity and do otherwise.

Secondly, let him vouchsafe a plain statement of his position to those entitled to it, and then, if they are still unconvinced, let him say: "Here I stand; I cannot do otherwise; I should like your approval, but I must have the approval of my own conscience."

If the javelins continue to be hurled, let him follow the precept of Henry Ward Beecher, who said: "If any one hurls darts at me I try to lift myself so high that they will not touch me." Ah, that is a real triumph. If you can rise when criticised to a higher moral level, where you are above the noisy contentions of selfish and passionate souls, you have already entered into the reward that is sure to come to the man who follows his star, no matter whither it leads.

Being under fire isn't such a bad experience, is it? Not that one need court it, but if there is anything of the soldier in him, he will not complain if once or twice, or even oftener in his life, he has to run the gauntlet of criticism for doing the right, as God gives him to see the right.

THE PARSON.

Beware of Hot Rolls.

New bread and hot rolls are the last thing that any sensible man should eat. When bread is taken out of the oven it is full of moisture; the starch is held together in masses, and the bread, instead of being crusted so as to expose each grain of starch to the saliva, actually prevents their digestion by being formed by the teeth into leathery masses, which lie on the stomach like so many bullets of lead. Hot rolls, with plenty of butter, should carefully be shunned by all men who have any respect at all for their stomachs.

Bread should always be a day or two old before it is eaten, and if properly made and kept in dry, cool place, ought to be perfectly soft and palatable at the end of three or four days. Flour when freshly ground, is too glutinous to make good wholesome bread, and should therefore not be used immediately but be kept dry for a few weeks and stirred occasionally until it crumbles easily between the fingers.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The more a girl likes a man the more he would like her if she didn't.

The worst about marrying for money is it so often turns out to be counterfeit.

Anyway, if a man didn't spend all his money on his family he'd lose it some other way.

If servants worked half as hard as wives and got the same wages there would be lots more trouble than there is.

What a woman likes about having her husband take her to a summer resort is the good manners he pretends to have before strangers.

SIXTY YEARS SINCE

By SAVOYARD.

SOME days ago I was lazy enough to read the following, copied from a St. Louis paper:

"Franklin county is the birthplace of the 'Missouri meerchaum,' as those persons who desire to give it a more aristocratic name have christened the corncob pipe.

"Of corncob pipes during the year 1907, the county exported 22,608,488. Besides these, she sent out 912,000 pipe stems, 29,898 'cleaners,' and 108,902 wooden pipes, in value more than half as much as was realized from either her live stock or her grain exportations. Gasconade county shipped cob pipes to the number of 1,856,640, valued at $26,890, and showing a total shipment for the two counties of 24,485,128 such pipes."

Of the chattels on my father's plantation was old Uncle Archie, patriarch of all the niggers and sage of all the philosophers of the cabin roundabout. How often have I sat at his feet and heard him relate the experiences of more than threescore years and ten. He sopek ex-cathedra, and at sound of his voice the wind, chartered libertine, was still.. His wife was Aunt Caroline, and the two of them taught me to eat pot licker, and for that I am to this day grateful to their memory.

Now, Archie was a basketmaker, and my father, though the owner of Archie, used to buy his baskets, and all the farmers of the neighborhood bought baskets of Archie. He had a rather pretty penny in 1861. Archie cut down and fashioned into basket "splits," as he called them, enough white oak saplings on my father's land, which if growing today, and the land mine—

'Tis better to look upon land once our own—would make me so rich that I would not be necessitated to grind out this newspaper stuff for a living. Archie had an infallible eye for a young white oak. At a glance he could tell if it would rive, and he had carte blanche to cut down any tree on the place. I have known him to cut down a hickory tree, snow-white to the heart, that would now fetch $25 as it stood, in order that I might gather a peck of nuts. What vandals the Americans of the '50s were when it came to the slaughter of the forests. As Hannibal hated Rome, as Cato feared Carthage, so were Archie's sentiments as to trees.

Many a time and oft did my mother spank me for "living in the kitchen," but without avail, for it is yet vivid in my memory how Archie used to take me on his lap and feed me pot licker till I got to love it pretty nearly as ravenously as he did. At least five days in the week Archie complained this way: "Mars Tom, I has a misery in my jints." That meant a big dram of whisky, and when laden with one of those Archie could eat more than a peck measure would hold of a "biled dinner." But it was at hog-killing time that Archie's "jints" got most miserable, and then it was that his spouse, Aunt Caroline, saved every snout of the butchered hogs and stewed them for Archie, and my recollection is yet graphic of how Archie took me on his lap and disciplined my rebellious palate to the taste of a stewed hog snout. It was luxury.

Notwithstanding his wretched "jints," Archie, when past 70, could jump in the air and crack his heels together twice ere he hit the ground, and on one occasion I saw him soundly thrash two of John Cassady's niggers, lusty fellows, in their prime. It was delightful, delicious, to go possum hunting with Archie, his sons Zack and Aleck, the boy my father appointed to look after me, and who got me into all sorts of mischief, for which I got ten whippings to his one. I have known Archie, at 2 o'clock in the morning, make Zack and Aleck cut down a tree "four foot across," to get a miserable little possum not worth a bawbee. How the boys did swing the ax, and how careful Archie was to see that I and the dogs were in a place of safety when the giant of the forest swayed and fell to earth! Many a time we got half a dozen big fat possums, frequently a coon, and then there was feast in the kitchen as long as the possum lasted, and now and then it was every day of the week.

Maybe somebody wants to know what that has to do with Missouri corncob pipes. Be ye yet a little while patient, and I will tell you as follows viz:

Archie was an inveterate smoker, and his was a cob pipe; likewise, his was the very best tobacco that ever filled a pipe, in the bottom of the bowl of which Archie frequently managed to have a piece of the root of a plant that in my schoolboy days was called "Angelica." What a fragrance it did lend to the tobacco!

It was the tradition and the prejudice of Southern Kentucky of "'tis sixty years since" that cornmeal over a week old was not fit to make bread of. Archie's chief job was "to keep the niggers straight," as he defined it, and how like a dusky Cambyses he did it! There was not one of them that did not fear him ten thousand times more than he did "Mars Tom," the most indulgent master servant ever had. A duty of Archie was to go to the crib at least once a week, select about one hundred ears of corn, shell it off the cob, take it to the "spring mill," across the knob, and have it ground between stones that, beginning early and working late, with no idle moment, would turn out nearly fifteen bushels of meal a day.

Archie critically inspected every cob, and of the hundred he was pretty apt to find one that would pretty nearly meet his idea of what a corncob ought to be. This he fashioned into a pipe with the old shoe knife with which he shaved his basket splits. The stem was a root of the reed that grew on the cliffs above Little Borsceu river, just over the Knob. The man who wrote

How like a dog look'd Hercules,
Thus to a distaff chain'd—

did not have Archie in mind. He was master in his own cabin—except on occasion—and Aunt Caroline fetched and carried for him at his beck and call. Among the duties Archie prescribed for her performance was that of "trying out" his pipes—that is, she was to have the first smoke in order to save the epicurean palate of her lord and master from what he called the "greenness of the peth" of the cob. Never was woman who better tried to be helpmeet of man than Caroline was to Archie, but at rare intervals, yearly or biennially, she rebelled and laid the law down with tongue the sharpest and rolling pin the heaviest. On such occasions, Archie turned as meek as a basket of chips going to hell to be burned.

When Car'line had "tried the green out of the peth," Archie then smoked it till he tired of it. At least twice, and more frequently thrice, a week, I left off reading Capt. Marryat, and, stealing away from my mother, went to Archie's cabin and there sat at his feet to absorb the words of homely wisdom that issued from his lips ceaselessly, like soapsuds drenching a laundry or chitterlings sloshing in a slaughter pen. How absolute the sage was! What virtuous admonitions he gave me! And for these I revere that old negro's memory. Rest his soul in paradise! A prouder woman than Caroline never wore garter, and many a meaner man than Archie has been decorated with the Star and Garter that was instituted by the greatest of the Plantagenets.

Archie never did any real work except at harvest, because his basket making, that he carried on on his own hook, the usufruct of which he himself enjoyed, was a pleasure rather than a toil. His office, as I a thousand times heard him define it, was "to keep the niggers straight." But at harvest time "Mars Tom" went out of the store, and many was the hot day that I tossed hay to cure it and eat the more ravenously at noon and eve. I thought I was barbarously treated and resented it. What fools these boys be!

I tramped through the woods miles and miles with Archie. My father had an old place that he had taken for debt and that he called Texas. It is now worth $100 an acre. It cost him about 40 cents an acre and he would have jumped at the chance to sell it for that. Archie and I used to roam over Texas, he with an ax to cut down, and an eye to look out for a white oak sapling such as the little black bull that came down the mountain whetted his horn on. (With apologies to Maj. Stofer, this.) Constantly Archie got on other men's land and cut their timber. Waldy Thompson, David Philpott, Jack Snider, John Wilcoxen, Andy Brownlee, John Ralston, Isaac Malone, Stephen Edwards, and not one of them cared a cent. John Wilcoxen came on us one afternoon when Archie had sunk his ax in one of Wilcoxen's finest white oak saplings. All the man said was an argument which Archie as to whether the timber would "split," and he left us with the admonition that Archie was a fool for cutting down a tree that would not "split." If that tree had been left to thrive till now, it would be worth at the least $20 standing in the forest. If all the white oak Archie ruined was now standing in the forest and grown from sapling to tree, it would fetch at the least $100,000.

It was a treat to steal into Archie's cabin a night of a March day, when Archie's belly was full of Mars Tom's whisky, jowl and turnip sallet, cornbread, poached eggs, and buttermilk. A pipe was in his mouth, and on his left knee was a leather apron, and, knife in hand, he "scraped" the splits for baskets, and on the morrow the shavings served to enkindle a fire as rapid as gas jet will supply in city. It was then that wisdom came from him, and generally it was of and concerning the "niggers" of this man, that man, or 'tother man, an everfruitful theme for him.

There was this about slavery at the South—like master like man. If the master was proud his slave was proud. If he was ignoble the slave was ignoble. I once heard my father say to his head clerk like this: "If A's nigger comes to buy goods credit him to $20, and if B's nigger asks for credit don't give him a cent." There was a free masonry in it; the slave was a reflex of his master—in Kentucky, at least.

Archie undertook the benevolence of teaching me the useful craft of basketmaking, and in the work despoiled a whole forest of fine white oak saplings. Ultimately I made a basket of fearful and wonderful shapes, but a basket it was, and it would hold shelled corn, which Archie pronounced the highest mission of a basket, the ultima thule of the profession.

It was tobacco that Archie put in his pipe. Grown on new ground, and impregnated with the perfume of dried peaches, and sprayed with old peach and honey, twisted when in the "sweat," and laid away from the efflorescent splendor of June to the glorious fractitude of October.

Fill your pipe with that, smoke it in languour, and drop into pleasant, ecstatic reverie.

But who can conjure imagination from one of those Missouri pipes that is finished with vaseline and made horrid with varnish?

MAKES WORK EASIER

Duluth People Are Pleased to Learn How It Is Done.

It's pretty hard to attend to duties
With a constantly aching back;
With annoying urinary disorders.
Doan's Kidney Pills make work easier.
They cure backache.
They cure every kidney ill.

J. E. Watts, living at 918 Tenth avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have had no reason to change the opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I expressed in a testimonial given in 1898. At that time they cured me of a bad attack of backache and lameness, which made me stop work. I was unable to stoop, and the pain was severe just over the kidneys and through the loins. Plasters and other remedies I used brought me no radical benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me so strongly that I decided to try them. I soon found that they were just the remedy for my case. In a few days the pain left me, and the cure has been permanent."

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM. By Gaston Leroux. New York: Brentano's. $1.50.

France gave us the first and some of the best of the tales of mystery and ingenuity known as detective stories, and in this importation the same country provides us with one of the most startlingly exciting and ingenious stories of that nature produced in a long while. It is said that when this novel was running serially in the Paris Illustration, nearly everybody in Paris was buying the journal, and could hardly wait for the next issue in their eagerness to know how Rouletabille, the detective character who is the principal figure in the tale, would succeed in unraveling the astounding mystery. That he did solve it goes without saying, and the result of his investigations is as unexpected and yet as convincing as anything the keenest analyst of French or English detective fiction ever worked out. It is a typical detective novel, constructed with most unusual skill and worked out with marvelous and interest-compelling delicacy.

MATTHEW PORTER. By Gamaliel Bradford, Jr. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

Matthew Porter is a square-shouldered, hard-headed and aggressive young Bostonian, with ideas and ambitions, who sets out to make himself governor of Massachusetts in order to have the opportunity to put his ideas ino execution. To do this he has to overcome the opposition of the bosses of his own party and of the opposition, which he does by the charm of his personality and the keenness of his arguments. Incidentally he wins to his cause the heroine of the story, who starts out as a good deal of a snob with her instinctive dislike of the "common people" and her repugnance to democratic rule, but who becomes, with him, a real and effective radical. Porter's ideas are a little unusual. He opposes centralization and favors state's rights, being a Democrat; yet he favors centralizing more power in the hands of the governor, and giving the governor's "cabinet" places in the legislature to represent the state. The reasonable theory back of this latter proposal is that the members of the legislature all represent localities, and there is none to represent the state, which is the way it often works out in practice. Incidentally, besides being a political story, this is also a society novel; so that those who like society stories and don't like politics can skip the politics, and those who like politics and dislike society tales may skip the society. It is an entertaining story, well told, and there are some very interesting people in it, whose characters are well drawn.

THE WAYFARERS. By Mary Stewart Cutting. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

This latest novel by the author of so many charming stories of domestic life is altogether along lines new to Mrs. Cutting's hand, but it is nonetheless entertaining and skilfully done for all that. As usual, she shows herself to be a keen analyst of character and its impulses and results. The book is full of real people, and we can tell they are real because they have real faults, just like the people all about us; so that we love them—if they are lovable—for the frailties that prove their humanness. Business is a large figure in the story, and the author shows a keen insight into business processes and the psychological workings of human greed. There are two women whom most men will call "fool women," and they are prominent in the story; yet here again, faults are proofs of reality, and it would not be hard to find their duplicates in any community. The principal characters are burdened with more than their share of trouble, but that makes the story, and a good story it is—well thought out, admirably finished and certain to entertain.

THE REAL BRYAN. Compiled by Richard L. Metcalfe. Des Moines, Iowa: Personal Help Publishing Co. $1.25.

This book contains some of the best things ever put forth by the Democratic candidate for president in his speeches or writings, compiled by the managing editor of his newspaper, the Commoner. More than 150 subjects are covered, both political and nonpolitical, and they include as wide a range of thought as any speaker or writer of today has ventured to grasp. Business, politics, economics, society, finance, all are grappled with by the Nebraska statesman and treated as best he knows how. As a compendium of Bryanism the book is an interesting exhibit; though it is notable that there is nothing in it about free silver, government ownership, the initiative and referendum and other subjects which Mr. Bryan has tentatively touched and dropped.

FATE'S A FIDDLER. By Edwin George Pinkham. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. $1.50.

This exceedingly entertaining tale starts with the small boyhood of its hero—who tells it—in a bookshop located in a basement whose only outlook is a sidewalk window through which the boy watches the passing feet and speculates upon the people they support. This is the good old fashion of the British novelist of the early half of the nineteenth century, recently revived by William De Morgan, but it would be unfair to say that the story, in its plot or its presentation, is an imitation of anybody. It is true that the author is obviously an ardent admirer of Dickens—it did not need his hero's eulogy of "the Master" to tell us that—but so are many other writers who have, unconsciously and to their profit and that of their readers, imbibed something from his inexhaustible well of style. The characters are quaint and charming, notably the father and mother of the hero, a pair of failures, yet undisturbed in their faith in themselves and each other and in their hope of the future which the reader sees will never be realized. If they seem like the Micawbers, they are modern and American Micawbers, and fresh and lovable just the same. There is plenty of plot, for all the discursiveness of the early pages, which are embellished with vastly entertaining humor, and altogether it is a most unusual and most interesting book. It is a fresh and diverting tale, told in an uncommon way; and it is all the better for its hints of the influence of older and better known authors.

THE WIDOW: To Say Nothing of the Man. By Helen Rowland. New York: Dodge Publishing Co. $1.

This is a series of sparkling conversations between the Widow and the Bachelor, full of epigrams and aphorisms and quaint wit. In the relations of the two there is just enough romance to hang the epigrams together and sustain the interest, which would often revolt at too much of even the wittiest and most brilliant of paragraphs. Here are some of the spicy sentences that enliven the book: "A man's ideal woman is the one he didn't marry."

"Every man should have two wives—a sedative and a stimulant, one to stir him up and one to calm him down, one to spur him forward and the other to pull on the curb, one to make a home and keep him sane and moral, and the other to amuse, entertain and inspire him."

"A man should chose a wife as he would a dish at the table; not because he finds her attractive, or delicious, or spicy, but because he knows she will agree with him and sustain him and won't keep him awake nights or give him a bitter taste in his mouth in the morning." The only trouble with this is that most of us chose both our food and our wives contrarily to this advice, and suffer for it with physical and marital indigestion.

It is based on the third edition of the Realencyklopadie, founded by J. J. Herzog, and is edited by Albert Hauck. More than 600 scholars and specialists contribute to the work, under the supervision of Samuel Macauley Jackson, D.D., LL.D., editor-in-chief, who was associate editor with Dr. Philip Schaff of the first edition. The German work is known to theologians the world over, and the English edition, amplified and rearranged, constitutes a library rather than a mere encyclopedia.

CAPTAIN LOVE. By Theodore Robberts. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

Here are adventures a-plenty, upon the road to London town and elsewhere. The tale opens with a coach and four rattling Londonward, through a charming English landscape. Two men, one middle-aged, one young, talk of the days that are before them. A sharp pistol shot, confusion, and the young man wakes up, weeks later, in a farmhouse, with his memory gone. He takes the name of Captain Love, and pursues his adventures in ignorance of his real name and origin. Rescuing fair women, battling with highwaymen and ruffians, always triumphant, always stainless and brave—he is an ideal novel hero of an old and much-loved type. The clatter of sabers, the clink of wine-cups, the laughter and whispered words of women, run merrily through the tale, which is charmingly told.

FROM LINCOLN TO TAFT. By Charles Emory Smith. Philadelphia: Louis N. Hammerling & Co. 10 cents.

This is a concise and complete history of the Republican party, from 1854 to 1908, in chronological form, containing the chief events of American history as the Republican party is associated with it, making not only a valuable campaign handbook, but a condensed history of the nation.

IN THE WOODS AND ON THE SHORE. By Richard D. Ware. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $2.

This is a book that will delight the sportsman and the nature lover—which includes every whole and wholesome human being. Next to the actual experience of hunting big game and angling for gamy fish, it is pleasant to read of the experiences of others, especially when they are related in as entertaining a style as that which Mr. Ware employs. The book is illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull, whose animal pictures are inimitable, and by many excellent photographs. It is charmingly written, beautifully illustrated, and is done in the best style of modern book-making. The stories of hunting and fishing cover Newfoundland, New England and New Brunswick, but the woods and their denizens described in them will seem familiar to those who have seen them in Minnesota and elsewhere.

THE HOUSE IN THE WATER. By Charles G. D. Roberts. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

Animal stories by Prof. Roberts, whose reputation as a nature historian is established, are always eagerly welcomed, and that is what this book contains. This Canadian nature student has such a charming faculty of turning the results of his studies into smoothly flowing and entertaining English that one of his books is a possession dear to the lover of nature and of good literature. The book contains twenty-nine full-page illustrations by Charles Livingston Bull and Frank Vining Smith, and the stories cover the beaver, the moose, the bear, the lynx, the deer, the otter and others, but more particularly the beaver, who lives in the "house in the water." "The Boy" and Jabe the Woodsman again appear, figuring in the story even more than they did in "Red Fox"; and the adventures of the boy and the beaver make most absorbing reading for young and old.

CONSUMPTION: Its Prevention and Cure Without Medicine. New York: E. B. Treat & Co. $1.

While so many works on tuberculosis theorize upon the subject, this one shows how it can be treated, and in the large majority of cases cured, without the use of drugs and largely through the patient's own efforts. The author emphasizes the vital necessity of an open air life and a rational system of diet, holding the belief that, until nutrition is improved, little can be hoped for. It is a practical and popular treatise upon the subject, covering all essential points thoroughly and sanely. This is a second edition of the book, and to the former contents have been added chapters on bovine tuberculosis, the use of milk, general tuberculosis, marriage and the offspring, and a list of tuberculosis sanitoriums in the United States.

THE MAKING OF PERSONALITY. By Bliss Carman. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

Here are more of the charming essays of this gifted writer, whose prose is as tuneful as his poetry, which is saying much. The keynote of the book seems to be that "personality and not performance is the great thing." He might have said that personality is the raw material and performance the finished product; for as a man is, so must he do. Nobody thinks of manufacturing performances or anything else without raw material, and to accomplish, character must first be made. The author discusses, practically but never prosaically, the elements of character, the influence upon it of bodily conditions and environment, and the problem of securing rounded and complete development.

SOUR SONNETS OF A SOREHEAD, and Other Songs of the Street. By James P. Haverson. Boston: H. M. Caldwell Company. 50 cents.

This is a sort of George Ade in rhyme. It is breezy, clever, vastly entertaining, though its character is such that it is best to follow the author's advice and "don't take it at one sitting, but sup in doses to get the required effect." The sonnets are witty and pleasing, and the "other songs" contain really funny pictures of social follies. The pessimism is more in the title than in the contents, fortunately. The author is a former Duluth newspaper man. The book is well illustrated by Fergus Kyle.

CHANGES IN THE THEORY AND TACTICS OF THE GERMAN SOCIAL DEMOCRACY. By Paul Kampffmeyer. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

The title amply describes this instructive work, which the author says "attempts to estimate the fundamental ideas in the theory of the leading minds of the Social Democracy." It is valuable for students of advanced Democracy.

VALUE, PRICE AND PROFIT. By Karl Marx. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

This address to workingmen by the Rousseau of the social uplift was found among his papers after his death, and is now published in English for the first time. In a sense it is an epitome of the first volume of "Capital," and is a plain and instructive discussion of the fundamental economics of Socialism.

ARTS AND CRAFTS IN THE MIDDLE AGES. By Julia de Wolf Addison. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $3

One of the handsomest, most interesting and most practical of recent books on the arts and crafts of a time when patient, honest handiwork was producing some of the finest specimens of craftsmanship the world has ever seen has just been issued from the Boston publishing house of L. C. Page & Co. It includes a description of medieval workmanship in several of the departments of applied art, with an account of special artisans in the Renaissance. It covers work in gold and silver, precious stones, enamel, tapestry, embroideries, carving in wood and ivory, inlay and mosaic, illumination of books, etc. It is profusely illustrated with examples of the work describes. The book itself is a handsome specimen of modern craftsmanship.

THE SUPERIOR POWER. By Francis G. Nicholas. Boston: R. E. Lee & Co. $1.50.

This is a vivid novel of church and state in South America, showing the disorganized and crudely developed social and political conditions in parts of that continent. It is not a pretty picture of humanity or of the influence of the church which wields an immense power over the natives. The writer is evidently not a practiced hand at novel-making, but he has got hold of some very stirring material, and has handled it with unusual skill. The story is lavishly equipped with exciting incidents, narrated with compelling interest.

PEGGY AT SPINSTER FARM. By Helen M. Winslow. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

An "old maid" of a very charming type, worn out with hard work at welldoing, takes a colonial farm place, accompanied by her niece. They become fascinated with the unfolding delights of the place, and so will the reader. They find peace and pleasure and contentment, and the reader will share these privileges with them. It is a very charming book, with just enough thread of romance running through it to give it cohesion. There are lighthearted character sketches and unexpected happenings and alluring descriptions of nature and country life, with pleasing bits of biography of the farm animals and household pets. It is a very suitable volume for summer reading.

ANNE OF GREEN GABLES. By L. M. Montgomery. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

The chief figure in this very entertaining book is a quaint and lovable child, taken by an elderly brother and sister from an orphan asylum after a pitifully hard early career. In these early experiences she had learned to people her world and adorn her surroundings with imaginary characters and settings, redeeming the sordidness of her environment by the vividness of her imagination. Anne is one of the most delightful child characters ever created, and the alternating procession of laughter and tears that goes through the humorous and pathetic pages of the story will give pleasure not only to young people, but to old ones as well. It is a girl's book, but anybody with an appreciation of humor will enjoy it. There are other diverting and well-pictured characters besides that of Anne, the orphan.

THE CALL OF THE SOUTH. By Robert Lee Durham. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

In some respects this is a peculiarly strong and startling novel. Its theme is the race problem and the danger of intermarriage between the races. The hero is an octoroon, whose father came from a fine Southern family and whose mother is a quarter blood negro of miscellaneous descent. He is a Harvard student, a hero in a mythical war with Germany over Venezuelan complications, but as a negro his place is fixed. Yet he secretly marries the daughter of a president of the United States who entertains negroes at table, and is known for his pro-negro sympathies. A child is born, which reverts to type and is more negro than its father. The result is tragedy, little relieved by any redeeming light of hope. The author is a Southern lawyer who hopes to call the attention of the country to the need of earnest work toward the discouragement of misocegenation. Whether there is need of this appeal or not, the book makes a strong case against mixing the races, and forms a sensational and thrilling story.

BAHAMA BILL. By T. Jenkins Hains. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

Capt. Hains swings a vigorous pen, particularly when he describes incidents that take place on the water. "Bahama Bill" is a collection of stories of the Bahamas, in which the central figure is a gigantic negro, diver, sponger and wrecker, mate of the wrecking sloop Sea Horse. There is at least a thrill apiece in every tale and the average is much greater than that. The chief character, while he will not appeal to feminine readers, perhaps, will arouse interest and admiration in men who appreciate daring and physical prowess. His adventures while plying his desperate trade are full of peril that clutches the attention of the reader, and before he realizes it the reader finds himself heart and soul in sympathy with the enterprises of a rank rascal and his ranker associates. The descriptions of sea life are vivid and enthralling. The stories are stirring, realistic and uncommonly interesting; there is not a dull moment from cover to cover.

Among the Magazines.

Henry van Dyke has achieved a remarkable success in many literary forms—fiction, lyric poetry, criticism and lectures. In the fiction number (August) of Scribner's he adds another striking achievement to his brilliant career. "The House of Rimmon," a poetic drama in four acts, has great beauty as a poem, the blank verse having the swing and melody and perfect clearness which make it a pleasure to read. In addition, its dramatic quality is ususual, and very high authorities have said that it possesses every necessity for stage presentation. Dr. van Dyke visited Damascus, the scene of the drama, during the course of its revision. The short stories in the fiction number are: "The Pretext," by Edith Wharton—the story of a belated love affair in a college town. "The Dowry," by Margaret Sherwood—showing how a poor young girl was enabled to marry a French count. "Forty Minutes Late," by F. Hopkinson Smith—the amusing adventure of a lecturer in a New England village. "The Heresies of Paul," by L. Allen Harker—the story of an English boy who was captivated by John Hay's "Pike County Ballads." "A Son of Dreams," by Caspar Day, a new writer—the story of an heroic figure among the miners in the coal regions of Pennsylvania.

There are ten short stories to entertain the summer idleness of the readers of the August Century, the midsummer holiday number: "To Build a Fire," a vivid dramatic story of the Yukon wilds, by Jack London. "The Blind," one of Charles D. Stewart's most original tales. "A Tale of Two Burdens," a merry account of a guide and a millionaire, by Irving Bacheller. "Mulligan and Caspar," a delicious story of an Irish section boss and his divoted dog, by Frederick Walworth Brown. "The Calumny," a narrative of certain curious happenings at court, by Florence Martin. "Love and the Terror," a chapter of the crude, boyish devotion of "Thomas Jefferson," by Annie Steger Winston. "How Carty Carteret Proposed," a jolly story of American horses and American horsemen in England, by David Gray, author of the well-known "Gallops." "Mrs. Birkins's Bonnet," a pretty tale of life in an English village. "The Last Curtain," the story of the gallant passing of an old comedian, by Walter Prichard Eaton. "The Tent-Maker," a strong story of love and revenge, with a desert setting, by Waldo Curvea Walker.

The August American Magazine contains an interesting chapter of unpublished political history as has appeared anywhere in years. It is the story of how Boss Croker of Tammany hall, helped William C. Whitney elect Grover Cleveland in 1892. It is a story of a grateful man, and of how he "got even;" for, thirty years before the year 1892, William C. Whitney helped Richard Croker out of as tight a box as a men ever found himself in. In the same number of this lively periodical "Mr. Dooley" writes an extraordinary piece on "Gen. Grant and the Facts of History," in which a lot of fun is had with Secretary Taft's speech about Grant's overcoming the liquor habit. Other articles in the same number are: by Ray Stannard Baker, and "A Congressman's First Speech," by Congressman Murdock of Kansas. But the fiction in the August American Magazine is even more notable than the articles. David Grayson's "Story of Anna" must surely take its place as one of the finest things done this year. Then there are stories by May Sinclair, Octavia Roberts, Elmer B. Harris, Clara Byrnes, Rowland Thomas and B. J. Daskam.

Midsummer fiction, lively and abundant, occupies much of the August Harper's Magazine. Among nine stories, "Getting Rid of Fluff," the tale of an undesirable dog, by Ellis Parker Butler, is so keen in its fun that it should prove a permanent contribution to humor. The opening story, "The Flowers," is by Margarita Spalding Gerry, Elizabeth Shippen Green showing paintings for it in color. Brian Hooker has written the mediaeval romance "Edric and Sylvaine," which occupies sixteen decorated pages in color done by Howard Pyle. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman has a story, "The Selfishness of Amelia Lamkin," and other fiction writers are Richard Le Gallienne, Leo Crane, Alice Brown, Emery Pottle, and Mrs. Humphry Ward, who continues her much-discussed serial "The Testing of Dina Mallory." Of two articles of special importance Sven Hedin contributes "My Discoveries in Tibet," recording the discovery, the most important in modern geography, of the great chain of mountains near the Sela Pass; and Sir Oliver Lodge gives the recent results of "Psychical Research,' defining his new faith in spirit communication. "Paris by Night" is described by Marie Van Vorst, with a series of notable photographs specially taken in tint for illustration.

The Popular Magazine for August maintains its high standard of complete novels, with "Silent Service," by George Bronson-Howard. Underground diplomatic complications and overhead romantic situations, with the possibility of a war between the United States and Japan as the background, are woven into an exciting and entertaining tale. "The Waddy," by W. B. M. Ferguson, has rare value as a short story. It has a most surprising ending, one that grips the reader. J. Kenilworth Egerton begins a two-part story, "Queen Draga's Cape," relating the adventures that befall the possessors of a cape that belonged to the murdered queen of Servia. This first instalment makes one long for the following and the solution of the baffling mystery. "In the Black Night," by George Randolph Chester, is a story of a fierce feud in the mountains of Kentucky and a little boy's part in it.

August 10 Story Book is now on sale. The cover design is practically timely and pleasing—a bathing girl harmoniously blended into the blue sky and hazy sand. The stories this month are of the delightful summer variety, full of sparkle and interest. Harry Irving Greene contributes the leading story, entitled "La Diosa." It is a fascinating tale, involving among others an intriguing woman and an innocent young man, and at no moment does the interest drag. "Clancey's Get-Away-Stake," by John Day, is a very spicy account of the manner in which a race-track gambler retrieves his fallen fortune.

A striking feature of the August McClure's—one that will be widely discussed—is an essay on "Prohibition and Social Psychology," by Prof. Hugo Munsterberg . The distinguished psychologist says: "Better America Inspired than America Sober." Another strong feature, from a pictorial standpoint, is the reproduction of several of the best paintings of Alexander Borisoff, the Russian artist, who went to the frozen North and painted the marvelously beautiful colors of the Artic region on the spot. Richard C. Cabot, an eminent physician of Boston, analyzes one hundred "Christian Science Cures," declaring that Christian Science treatment does not cure organic diseases. The "Reminiscences of Carl Schurz" continue, with an intensely interesting account of two interviews between the author and Bismarck, in 1867; and Ellen Terry, in her memoirs, tells of her last years with Henry Irving. In fiction there are a half-dozen stories, every one of which possesses exceptional merit.

The August issue of Woman's Home Companion is full of delightful stories—just the right sort of mid-summer reading. Just to pick up the magazine and look at the little Dutch boy and the windmill on the cover makes you feel cool and comfortable. Then, when you open the magazine, you come across enough stories and entrancing illustrations to give you enjoyment for the whole month. Some of the authors are Temple Bailey, Juliet Wilbur Tompkins, Marion Hill, Ruth Wilson Herrick, May Isabel Fisk, Clinton Dangerfield and Harvey J. O'Higgins. And when we tell you that these stories are illustrated by Orson Lowell, Alice Barber Stephens, Charlotte Weber-Ditzler and other famous artists, you will appreciate what a treat this summer magazine has in store for you.

The August number of the Metropolitan Magazine opens with a particularly interesting article, "Our Navy's Great Task," by John R. Winchell, illustrated with splendid photographs taken on shipboard. John D. Wells writes of "The Scars of War in the Shenandoah," comparing with rare charm and sympathy the battlefields of forty-five years ago to their condition today. This article brings us closely in touch with stirring events in which our fathers played a part. "The Southwest Evolution," by Charles M. Harvey, is timely and valuable and explains how the desert is being made to blossom to make room for American progress.

Ainslee's Magazine for August shows that its publishers continue to be alive to their opportunities, for there is no falling off from the high standards which they have set and have pursued so successfully; indeed, this number is an advance. The complete novel is a new story by Miriam Michelson, called "Flower o' Sagebrush," a tale with an unusual plot, skilfully worked up, holding the interest without effort and introducing some very attractive characters. May Sinclair's new novel, which Ainslee's is running serially, "The Immortal Moment," is continued in its second instalment.

An interesting article in the August Popular Mechanics discusses the international war for the extermination of rats in an effort to prevent the spread of the bubonic plague. It declares that modern transportation methods aid greatly in the spread of epidemics in that infected persons can cross the ocean in less time than is required for many contagious diseases to manifest themselves. The article, which is illustrated, states that in numerous localities a bounty is offered for rats captured or killed. The magazine is a faithful chronicler of everything new in the line of mechanics and kindred subjects. In the August number there are 155 articles and 133 illustrations—every story "written so you can understand it."

Among the leading articles in the August number of the Technical World Magazine are: "In the Sweat of the Blankets," by Henry M. Hyde; "Death in School Drinking Cups," by Alvin Davidson, M. S., Ph. D.; "Roadless America in Transformation," by C. F. Carter; "Submarine Fishing Boat," by Dr. Alfred Gradenwitz; "Resource Becomes a Menace'," by Roy Crandall; "Sending Pictures by Wireless," by Cecil Bembridge; "In a Drowned Volcano's Crater," by Rene Bache.

A tawny haired, green-eyed sculptress, a fasinating, vaudeville actress, a brilliant, newspaper man, a slangy cloak model, an adventurous multi-millionaire, a demure, little Puritan girl, and an elegant clubman are among the characters, who make love and epigrams with equal celerity in "A Quakeress Astray" in the August number of Young's Magazine. It's a dashing tale of decidedly modern flavor in manners and morals, and from the multi-millionaire to the model, they are flesh and blood people. "If a Man Fail," by Frederick M. Smith, measures unsparingly the standard of men and morals that women have made by their cowardly blindness in refusing to see what they know they must condemn. "The Sabine Woman," by Mary Roberts Rinehart, is a strong love story.

A novelette of unusual interest opens the August number of the Smart Set. It is called "The Diary of an Unconscious Eve," and is written by G. Van Tyler, a writer who probably has as keen an insight into the feminine temperament as any living author. The situation on which the novel is founded is at once unique and daring, and the ending is so absolutely unlooked for that it will surprise even the most clever readers. A more original piece of work has not appeared in this magazine. Numerous well-known writers are represented in the August issue. Particularly interesting is Elizabeth Jordan's story, "Her Letters;" Lilian Bell, who never fails to write a lively story, contributes a bright sketch called, "Dinner for Six;" Beatrice Demarest Lloyd, in "The Word and the Wise," contributes what is probably her strongest short story; Anne Warner handles a tense situation with great are in her story, situation with great care in her story, "The Night of the Eighteenth-Nineteenth."

* * *

These hot days one craves a real good funny story like a cool drink with a straw in it. The People's Magazine for August fills the bill completely; it is full of chuckles. First and foremost is the yarn by Will Gage Carey, "The Fanatical Fans of Fantil Isle," which is a story with a stick to it—that is, it has the real, unadulterated humorous flavor. Two castaways in a cannibal isle coach the gentle man-eating natives in the art of our great national game, and in order to save themselves from becoming "pate de wrecked sailor," get up a match—the losing coach to surrender himself gracefully to the stewpot. How these "chocolate drops" of natives took to baseball, and how the final score stood—is well worth finding out.

August Gunter's is on a par with any of the summer's refreshments—although it is neither dry nor wet, simply refreshing. There is a contribution by Steel Williams, "The Wolf's Brother," that takes one into the heart of the North woods; there's a complete novel by Clinton Dangerfield, involving a three-months' adventure in the hills of Virginia; in "A Million a Minute" we are transported to Paris and so on, and the magazine is only 15 cents. Also, there's a complete novel, a series, two serial novels, a number of short stories, all profusely illustrated and too a department of humor, 160 pages in all, bound under a stunning cover designed by Arthur Crisp.

Smith's Magazine for August opens with an unusually attractive set of photographic art studies of stage favorites. The pictures in this series are exclusive, all being posed especially in the Smith Magazine studios. The complete novel which follows the photographs is "'Bijah's Experience," a strong and moving story of New England life by Charles Barnard, the well-known playwright. The magazine also contains sixteen short stories and articles, all of more than usual interest. "The Lacemakers of the New Ireland," with its splendid photographic illustrations, will interest every woman who loves fine lace and who has the slightest curiosity as to how it is made and where it comes from. "The Hand of Hatred" is a splendid story of the circus by Francis Metcalfe. There is another funny story of the peculiar folk in the little Maine village of Scotaze, by Holman F. Day, and a bright story dealing with the servant girl problem by Dorothy Canfield.

One of the most interesting and important of the anniversary celebrations of the year is that commemorating the founding, 300 years ago by Explorer Champlain of Quebec, the ancient capital of Canada, and the first permanent colony established on this continent by the French. In the current issue of Leslie's Weekly Dr. Charles M. Harvey explains the significance of the observances in honor of the birth of this quaint and famous old city. A page of pictures representing both historic and modern features of Quebec accompanies the article. A remarkable feature of this number is a double-page of "advance photographs," and also a cover photograph of the same character portraying President Roosevelt's future hunting feats in the African wilds. These pictures are spirited and lifelike and should interest every reader of the paper.

SOCIETY

MANY of the members of the Northland Country club are leaving town for Minneapolis to take part in the annual state championship golf matches, which will be played on the links of the Mnnikahda club, beginning Tuesday, July 28, and ending Saturday, Aug. 1. The competition for the state championship is open to all amateur golfers belonging to clubs which are members of the Minnesota Golf association, and since the privileges of the Minnikahda clubhouse and grounds have been extended to all competitors for the past two weeks, many of those who will compete, are now at the club becoming familiar with the links on which they will play.

The most skillful of those who play golf at the local club have gone down to take part in the competition, and, it is hoped, to win honors for themselves and the club. Others are attending simply to see the tournment played.

The operettas given by the Glen Avon Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening were a decided success—as great a success as time, money and fair weather could make them. About 1,500 spectators witnessed the plays from the beautiful little amphitheater in Hunter's field, which nature has provided for just such a purpose. Prof. A. F. M. Custance, who had entire charge of the production and who trained the chorus, directed the music and composed a great deal of it for the occasion; Mr. Alletzhauser, who drilled the dancers, and the Hunter's Park ladies, who aroused outside interest, made the hundreds of cherry and wistaria blossoms, and tended to things generally, deserve a great deal of credit for the unsurpassable production given on Tuesday evening.

Baby Elephant's Birthday Party: A Story of the Jungle.

BY MAUD WALKER.

"Little Wootsy-wimp," said old Mrs. Elephant, speaking to her two-year-old son, "it's your birthday tomorrow and I've decided to give you a party."

"Oh, you are a good, dear mamma!" cried little Wootsy-wimp, throwing his tiny trunk out of the way of his lips so that he could kiss his big and affectionate mother. "And who will you invite?" he asked.

"Oh, all of our woods friends," said Mrs. Elephant. "There are the Giraffes, both the grownups and their little daughter. And there are Madame and Mr. Lion and their two cubs—pretty children, too, for lions. But they can't compare with elephants' children—especially mine." And proud Mrs. Elephant stooped and caressed the funny little big ear of her fine son. "You are the finest little elephant in the world, Wootsy-wimp," she added affectionately. "Now, we'll finish naming the guests. We'll have the Lions, the Giraffes, the Tigers, the Camels, the Hippos, the Zebras and the Monkeys."

At mention of the last name Wootsy-wimp sat down and clapped his fat paws together in glee. "Oh, yes, the monkeys!" And he laughed merrily at the thought. "How they'll make us all laugh till our sides ache," he said. (But Wootsy-wimp changed his mind the next day).

"And now I must take the invitations round," said Mrs. Elephant. "You see, I have them all written. I did it last night while you slept, my darling son." And with her trunk she lifted from among the branches of a nearby tree a bunch of nicely written invitations on big green leaves. Then she went off, wagging her short tail as she waddled along, swaying from side to side. Soon she had deposited the invitations at the doors to the caves and jungles, and at the base of trees where the desired guests lived.

The next afternoon Mrs. Elephant had all in readiness for the party. A big clearing in the wood was selected for the spot where the party should be held. Wootsy-wimp had gone down to the river and bathed himself till his pretty brown coat glistened like a new one. Then he had polished his little tusks on a tuft of grass till they shone as white as snow. He had looked at himself in the water and felt that he need not feel ashamed of his appearance, for he was as spick and span as any little two-year-old elephant could be.

In the middle of the party grounds the feast was spread. A great lot of nice grass was there to be eaten by the vegetarian animals: the fine tender leaves on the trees would also supply food for the Giraffes, for it was proper that they should eat with their heads in air. And there was a vast supply of nuts, juicy roots and an assortment of meat. Of course the meat was for the Lions and Tigers, for they had never learned to be vegetarians.

Very early in the afternoon the guests began to arrive. Mrs. Elephant gave to each her trunk to shake in greeting. She was a most amiable hostess, and every animal in the country who knew her loved her. Even the Lions, a very high-tempered and ferocious family, declared that they could never have an unfriendly feeling for Mrs. Elephant.

And Wootsy-wimp was the happiest little fellow you ever saw. He scampered about, making merry every minute of the time. As soon as the young Giraffe came—her name was Skylark—he began teasing her till she slapped his little big ears with her pink tongue, telling him that unless he behaved with better manners she would tell his mother about him.

"Now, don't be so finiky," urged Wootsy-wimp. "You are here for a good time and not to fuss and quarrel like a young wild-cat."

And so little Skylark Giraffe became more playful and did not mind the teasing a bit. In fact, she got to teasing Wootsy-wimp till he wished she would let him alone and go off after some of the little Lion children. But she stayed pretty close to him all the afternoon, giving him as good—or better—than he gave her.

Of course, all the little animals joined in the play from time to time, but would grow tired and go off and lie down in the shade of the trees and rest. Not so with Skylark Giraffe. She was as wide awake as could be, and made little Wootsy-wimp sorry that he had ever engaged her in the play of teasing. But he enjoyed little Skylark immensely for all that and tried to hide the fact that she was getting the better of him.

At 4 o'clock the dinner was announced, and the old and young repaired to the clearing where the repast was spread. And how they did enjoy the meal! It was the first time they had ever come together in this way, and the experience was not only novel, but most enjoyable. Old Mr. Lion presided at the head of the table and served the guests. Mrs. Elephant, at the foot of the table, performed the part of hostess in a dignified manner. But there were several guests present who brought blushes to Mrs. Elephant's face on account of their conduct. They were the Monkeys—mischievous little imps that wouldn't sit still and be served like well-bred animals. One old chap—too old to be so noisy and bad-behaved at table—got to stealing old Mr. Lion's meat and carrying it off and hiding it in the grass. At first Mrs. Elephant tried laughing the matter off, but the thefts became so frequent—in fact, old Mr. Lion couldn't turn his head to speak to Mrs. Hippo, his neighbor, but the mischievous monk would steal away his food—that at last Mrs. Elephant took council with Mrs. Giraffe, who sat next to her on the right. "What shall I do about Old Monkey's conduct?" she whispered, using her trunk as a speaking tube, for otherwise Mrs. Giraffe could not have heard her.

"Send him home," advised Mrs. Giraffe, stooping very low, so as to speak in her hostess' ear.

"I can't very well do that," explained Mrs. Elephant. "He was invited here by me and it wouldn't be proper for me to bid him leave."

"Well, if he keeps up his pranks—so unsuitable at table—I'll do something to make him mend his ways," declared Mrs. Giraffe. "Now just turn the matter over to me."

"Very well, my dear," agreed Mrs. Elephant.

But at this minute there was a terrible commotion at the head of the table, and Mrs. Elephant looked in that direction to see the young Monkeys in an altercation with the young Lions. The little Lions had behaved themselves as long as they could under the young Monkeys' fire of mischievous pranks. While their father, old Mr. Monkey, had been plying his trade of mischief-making at the expense of old Mr. Lion's peace of mind and the fulness of his plate, the young Monkeys had been busy at the expense of the young Lions. And the latter would not endure as much as their older and cooler-headed parent could, and in a fury of temper attacked the young mischief-makers and rolled them over upon the table, much to the embarrassment of the hostess.

Like a flash, Wootsy-wimp had one of the Monkeys in his strong little trunk, and had choked him loose from his antagonist, a roaring little cub Lion. And while he held the struggling fellow in his clutch old Mrs. Giraffe lowered her head across the table and seized the ear of old Mr. Monkey and lifted him to the top of a tall tree, where she deposited him on a shaking limb.

At sight of the parent's and brother's dilemma the other Monkeys began to scream and scamper about like wild, forgetting the appetizing meal and the presence of the distinguished company.

"If I let you come down, sir, will you take your ugly little ones and begone?" asked Mrs. Giraffe of the old captive in the tree.

"Yes, madame, I'll take my children and our part of the dinner and depart for merrier fields if you will please to let me come down," replied old Mr. Monkey.

"And you let go of that impudent little one," commanded Mrs. Elephant, addressing Wootsy-wimp, who was still holding the small Monkey in the grip of his trunk.

Wootsy-wimp obeyed his mother's orders and released the struggling Monkey. And then all the Monkey family made a quick departure, going off at a run through the woods. They did not even stop to gather up their share of the picnic spread, for as soon as old Mr. Monkey got to earth again old Mr. Lion, whose temper had at last become aroused, gave one look at him and followed the look with a roar that caused the earth to tremble; and beckoning to his children and better-behaved wife to follow him, the disorderly old Mr. Monkey took to his four feet with the fleetness of a bird on the wing.

"Now, my dear friends," said Mrs. Elephant, smiling upon those assembled, "we'll finish the repast unmolested by rude outsiders. I owe you all an apology for having invited the Monkey family, but I had hoped they would behave nicely when in the company of so aristocratic an assembly. I cannot tell you how humiliated I am over their conduct at my table, where, in the capacity of guests, they took the advantage of me."

"We quite understand your position and your generosity in inviting that family," declared Mr. Lion. "And we sympathize with you, my dear; but do not for one minute condemn you. And now, since the disturbing element has been banished, let us proceed with the pleasures of the occasion and forget that our spirits have been ruffled."

"You are more than kind," declared Mrs. Elephant, her voice tremulous with emotion. "And now let's all be merry and happy."

"And after the dinner let's each give Master Wootsy-wimp a spanking to add to his birthday luck." So spoke up Mrs. Tiger, a pleasant and refined lady, whose voice had not been heard that day before, so shy was she.

"A spanking!" And little Skylark jumped up and down in glee. "Oh, won't we get even with Master Wootsy-wimp, though? Oh, how jolly to spank him—good and hard!"

And in spite of the promised spankings Wootsy-wimp laughed gaily, throwing his trunk about the slender neck of Skylark and giving her a hug she did not soon forget.

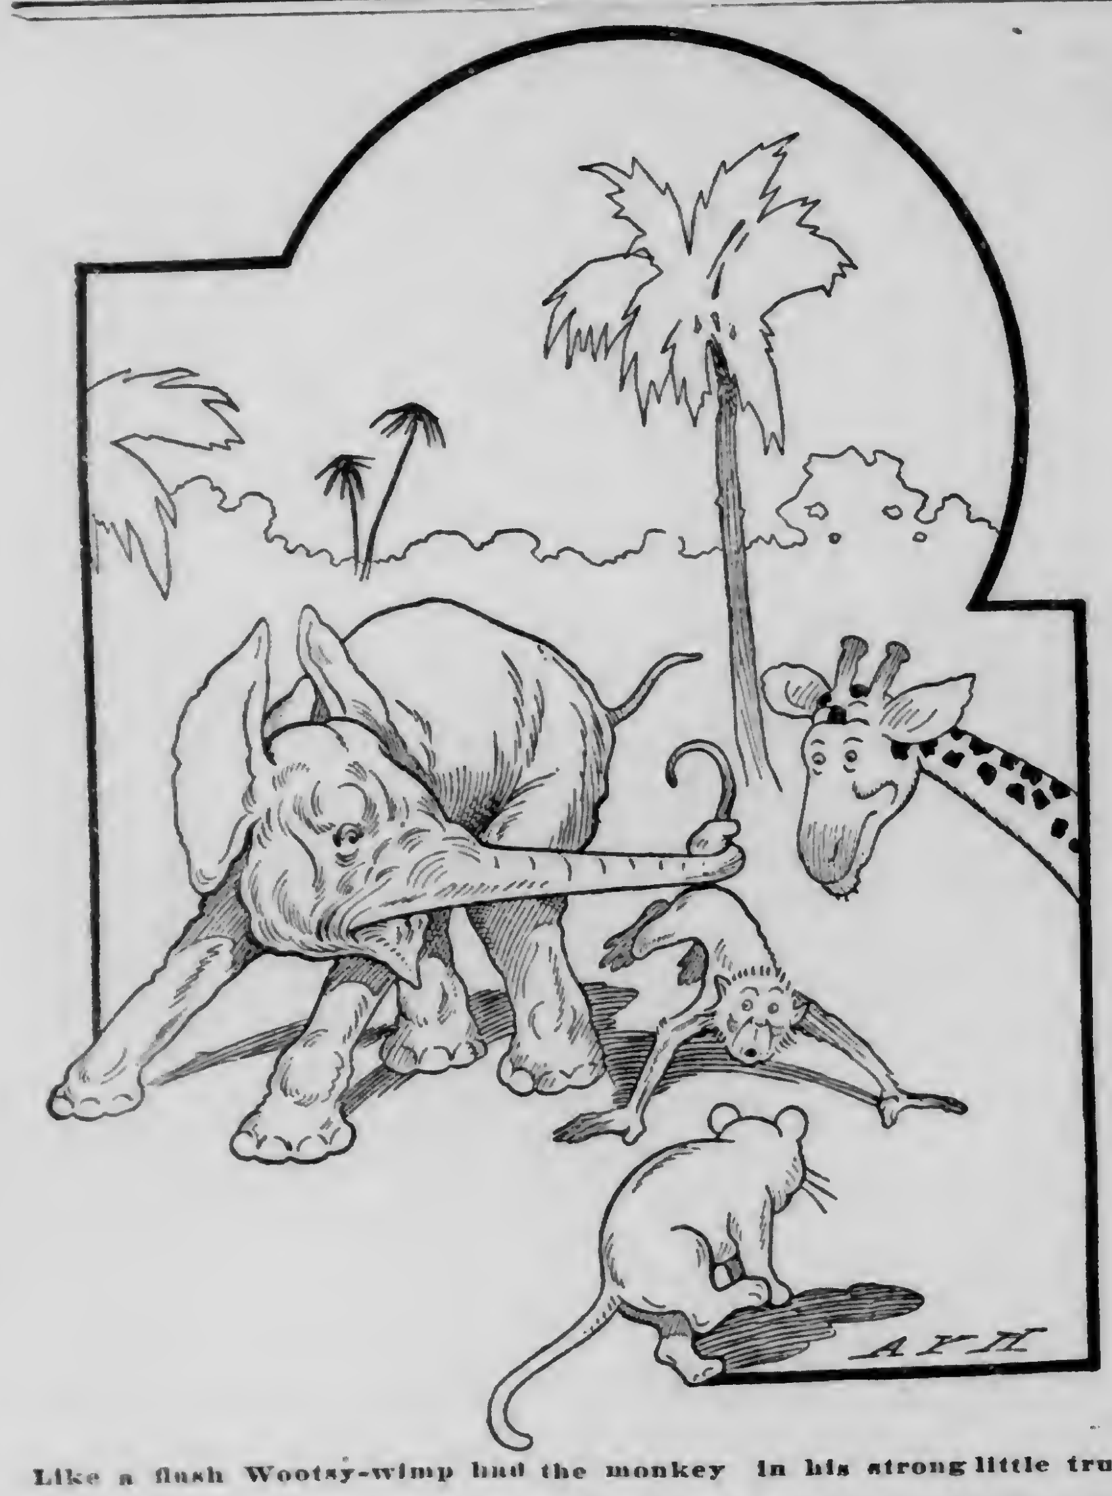
And then the day passed so pleasantly that none remembered the unpleasantness caused by the Monkeys, and at its close they each declared they had never, never enjoyed so pleasant a time before.

"Please have a birthday every week," whispered Skylark to Wootsy-wimp as she was taking her leave.

"No; you are on for the next birthday spankings," laughed Wootsy-wimp. "But be sure not to have the Monkeys at your party."

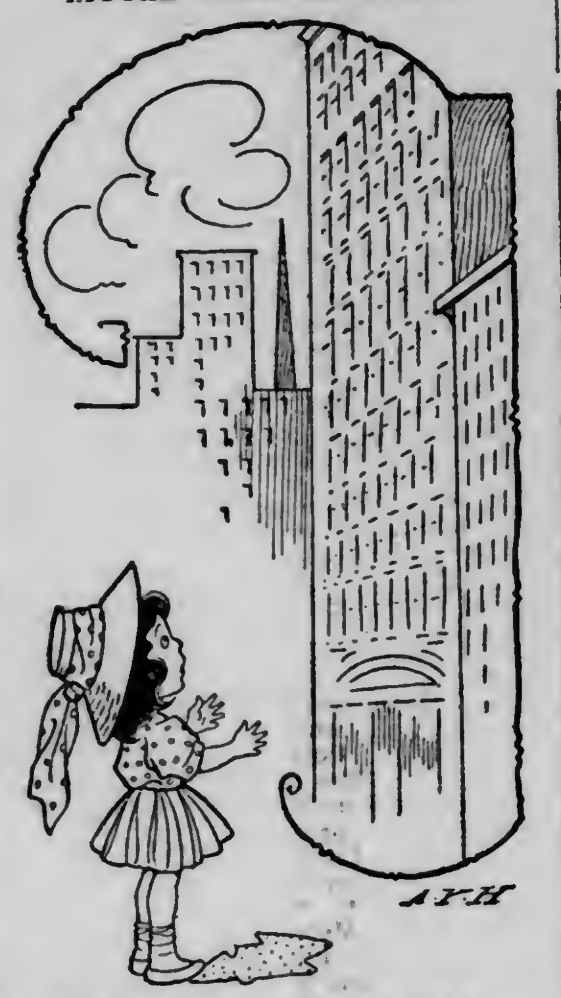
"Oh, never, never!" cried Skylark. Then she added: "But they made it lively while they remained, didn't they, eh?" And Wootsy-wimp had to say that they had done so. "The trouble with them is that they—they are——"

"Monkeys," said Skylark. And then all were gone, and Wootsy-wimp sat down to chat over his birthday party with his fond mother.



Like a flash Wootsy-wimp had the monkey in his strong little trunk

LITTLE COUNTRY SALLY.



A little maid named Sally Moore
Had ne'er been in town before:
She looked up at the houses tall,
And really feared the things would fall.
Of all strange things that she had seen
Were streets without a tint of green:
No trees, no grass to rest the eye;
Naught there but houses grown so high.
"I like it not!" sighed Sally Moore,
Who ne'er had been in town before.

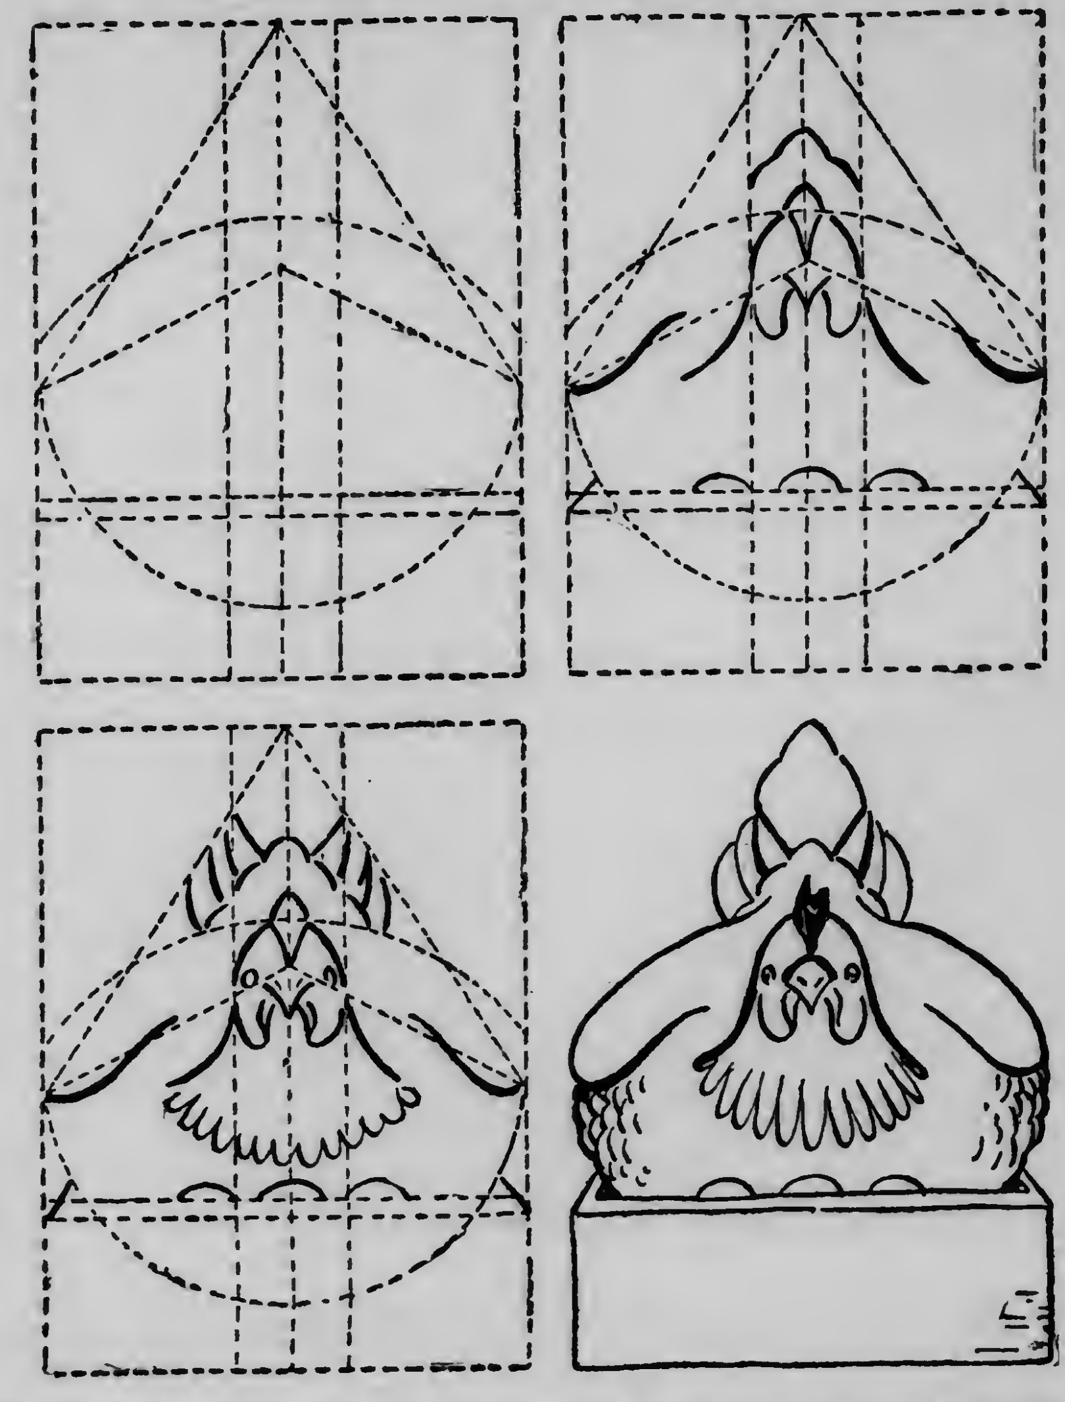
LESSON NO. 20—HOW TO DRAW A HEN.



Be Kind to Your Toys

Some children have a way of tearing and breaking their toys to pieces as soon as the newness has worn off them. These children have the same small regard for their clothing and their rooms and books. Now, the thoughtful boy and girl will never abuse a toy just because "it can't feel," as I heard a destructive boy say once in regard to a beautiful toy he had demolished ruthlessly. The thoughtful boy and girl will know that there are many poor children who never have toys unless some of their more fortunate little comrades give them their wornout playthings, and will therefore keep their toys as nicely as they can while enjoying them and as soon as tired of them—or they are replaced by newer and more interesting ones—will give them to those who will appreciate the gifts.

I have seen little girls wilfully pull the hair from a beautiful French doll's head, merely giving as an excuse: "Oh, we've had her since Christmas, and are tired of her and want a new one." Now, those same little girls might have made some poor child very happy by presenting to her the beautiful doll they had grown tired of. There are little girls who are obliged to play with empty spools, balls wrapped of bits of twine, old barrel hoops and any odd pieces of gay-colored cloth that may fall to their hands. A real toy, new and pretty, is never theirs, and seldom do they have the pleasure of second-hand toys that other children have become tired of. So, let every child who reads this make himself or herself a committee of one to take care of his or her toys so carefully that when tired of them they will be in fit condition to give to the poor children. It is sorrowful to pass down a tenement street in a great city and see the poor little folks that are deprived of the simple pleasures of life, and to think of the thousands of dollars' worth of toys that are ruthlessly destroyed by children of the well-to-do class.

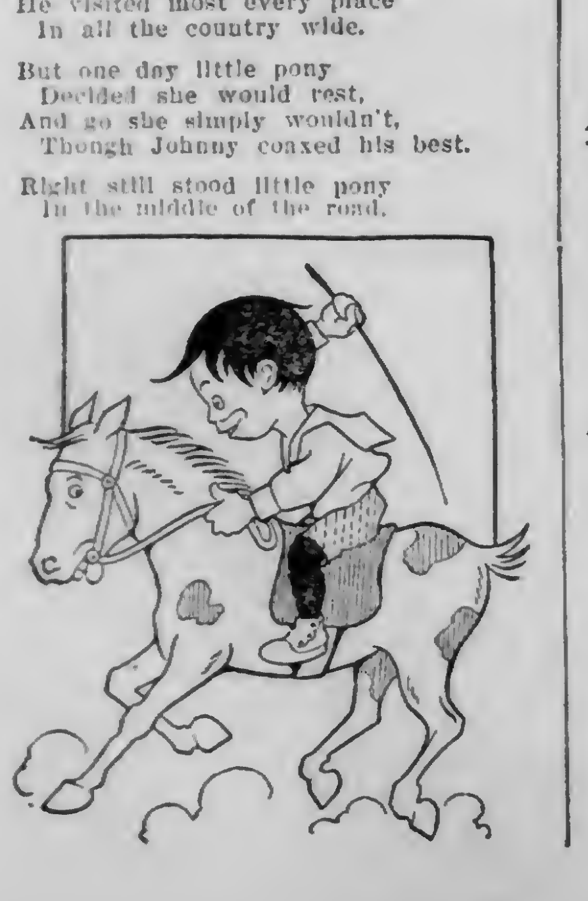
Be kind to your toys and when tired of them give them to the poor children, thus cultivating and enlarging your own sympathies and usefulness by making others a bit happy.

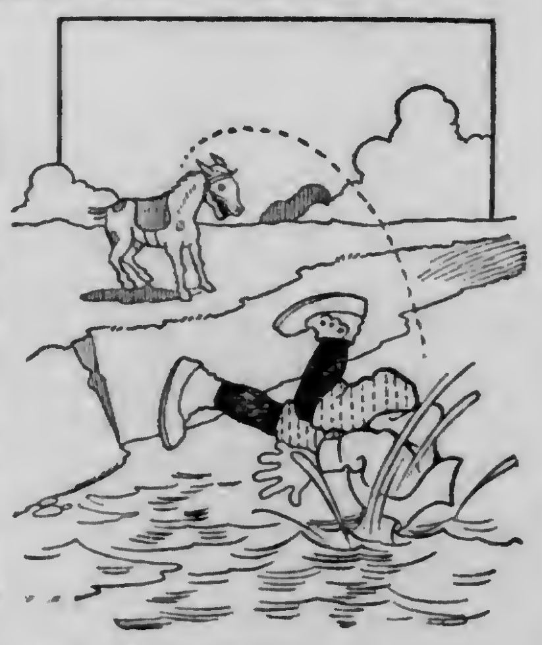
How Pony Turned the Tables.

Johnny had a pony;
How hard he did ride!
He visited most every place
In all the country wide.

But one day little pony
Decided she would rest,
And go she simply wouldn't,
Though Johnny coaxed his best.

Right still stood little pony
In the middle of the road,





And Johnny sat upon her,
A very heavy load.

He coaxed her, and he kicked her,
And then the pony, dear,
So angry grew she threw him
Right in a creek quite near.

And at last when Johnny
Came out, in sorry plight,
He said: "Poor little pony,
You served a bad boy right."

TOTTIE AND THE STORK.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

Tottie was four years old, but a very, very smart little girl for her age. Indeed, mamma said she was as knowing and sensible as a five-year-old child, while papa declared she was equal in intelligence to a 10-year-old child. Of course, both mamma and papa might have been mistaken, but the fact remains that Tottie was a very dear little girl and extremely knowing for one of her years.

One morning Tottie ran into her mamma's room crying out excitedly: "Oh, mamma, what do you fink?—Patsy Brown—she jus, now tol' me 'at a new baby is at their house. An' a stork brought it, too."

Tottie was all excitement and interest, her brown eyes full of wonder. "Say, Mamma, why don't you dit a little baby for me to p'ay wif? Tant you see Misses Brown an' ast her where she dot a stork?"

Mamma laughed; then replied: "If Tottie is a very, very good little girl Mamma will send for the stork and have him bring us a baby. Won't that be nice?"

"Oh, yes, Mamma, do it right away. I want one like Patsy Brown's."

"But do you know how Patsy Brown's little baby brother looks?—or is the baby a girl?"

"Oh, I never ast her," said Tottie. "I fordot to fink 'bout whever it is a boy or dirl. But I know it's pretty, for Patsy said it's awful tute. I dess it's a boy. I want a boy-baby, I do."

"Well, we'll try to get a boy," promised Mamma. "But if the stork has no more boys shall we take a girl?"

"Yes-s-s," hesitated Tottie. "But my firs' choose is a boy."

Then Tottie ran out to play in a big sand pile, and for the time forgot all about the promised baby boy.

One morning a week later Tottie was awakened at 8 o'clock by papa, who was saying in her ear: "Come, little Missie, there's a great big surprise awaiting you down stairs. Come, jump up; and don't wait for Nurse to dress you; just run down in your nightie."

Tottie rubbed her eyes wide; then a thought flashed through her mind. "Maybe the stork has brunged the baby!" Then, climbing down out of bed very quickly, she asked of her papa: "Did the stork tum wif a baby?"

"Well, you just run down stairs to the spare room and you'll see the surprise." And that was all papa would tell her.

So Tottie ran from her own room—on the third floor—to the spare room on the second floor. And there she saw a very nice-looking lady, with white apron and cap, sitting beside a little basket-cradle. As Tottie entered the room the nice-looking lady smiled at her and said in ever so gentle a tone: "Come, my dear, and take a peep at your little sister."

Tottie's heart beat very quickly, and without a word she tip-toed to the side of the basket-cradle and peeped down into the cunningest little face she had ever seen. But even as she did so a pang of jealousy came into her little breast. There was papa, smiling fondly at the little stranger, too, and not noticing Tottie at all. Was this wee mite to supplant her? Tottie didn't like the idea, which, of course, did not frame itself into words such as I have used. No, she really was not pleased with the newcomer. Turning to her papa she asked: "Where is my Mamma?"

"You can't see mamma today, Girlie," explained Papa. "She isn't feeling very well, and her little elder daughter must be good and not ask to go to her room. But tell papa what you think of our dear little baby girl."

But Tottie was too full of emotion to try to express herself just now, and turned about and ran out of the room. "I wish I tould fin' dat ole stork an' tell him to tum an' dit his baby-chile," she muttered as she ran up to her own room, to be bathed and dressed for breakfast.

For two or three weeks Tottie would take no notice of the new baby sister. When her mother and father called to her to come and kiss "little sister" she would pout and run away. "Don't you want your little sister to stay here?" Tottie's mamma asked her one day.

"No, I want the stork to tum an' dit her," spoke up Tottie.

"But you haven't got acquainted with her yet," declared mamma. "Now, suppose you stay indoors this morning and get to know your little sister. Won't that be nice?"

And although the suggested program for the morning did not promise great pleasure to Tottie, she decided to act upon her mamma's suggestion. And in spite of her determination not to "make up" with the new baby girl, Tottie found herself laughing at the funny little faces the baby made; also found that the baby's dimples and kicking feet and threatening tiny fists were very cute and dear. And once or twice the baby got her hands in Tottie's curls and made her laugh in spite of herself. And how pretty and fat Baby was getting! Tottie could not help noticing that. On the day of Baby's arrival she had been so little and uninteresting. But now she was as round as a ball and could kick and kick! and she laughed just a wee bit, too. And the laugh was caused by Tottie making a big mouth at her—when mamma wasn't looking. The truth is, Tottie would not show her admiration for Baby when mamma was watching her. Just why, the little girl could not say. But I know it was a bit of jealousy. However, Tottie was too young to know of such a thing as jealousy.

About 11 o'clock mamma told Tottie it was time for Baby to have a nap, and that she—Tottie—might run and play in the sand pile if she wished to.

"And what do you think of Baby now?" mamma asked, as she kissed her elder daughter on the cheek. "Don't you love her dearly?—and aren't you very grateful to the stork for bringing her to us?"

Tottie was serious for a moment; then said emphatically, though a bit uncertain: "No, mamma, I want the stork to tum an' dit her an' take her away off. I don't want no baby, I don't."

"Oh, Tottie!" And there was so much sadness in mamma's voice, so much disappointment. "What would we do without our baby? Mamma couldn't give up Tottie; so, how is she to give up Baby?"

But Tottie shook her head, declaring that she "didn't want no baby."

"Very well, little daughter," said mamma. "Now run out and play, and I'll send for the stork to come and get Baby. But what will the precious little one do without Papa, Mamma and Tottie?"

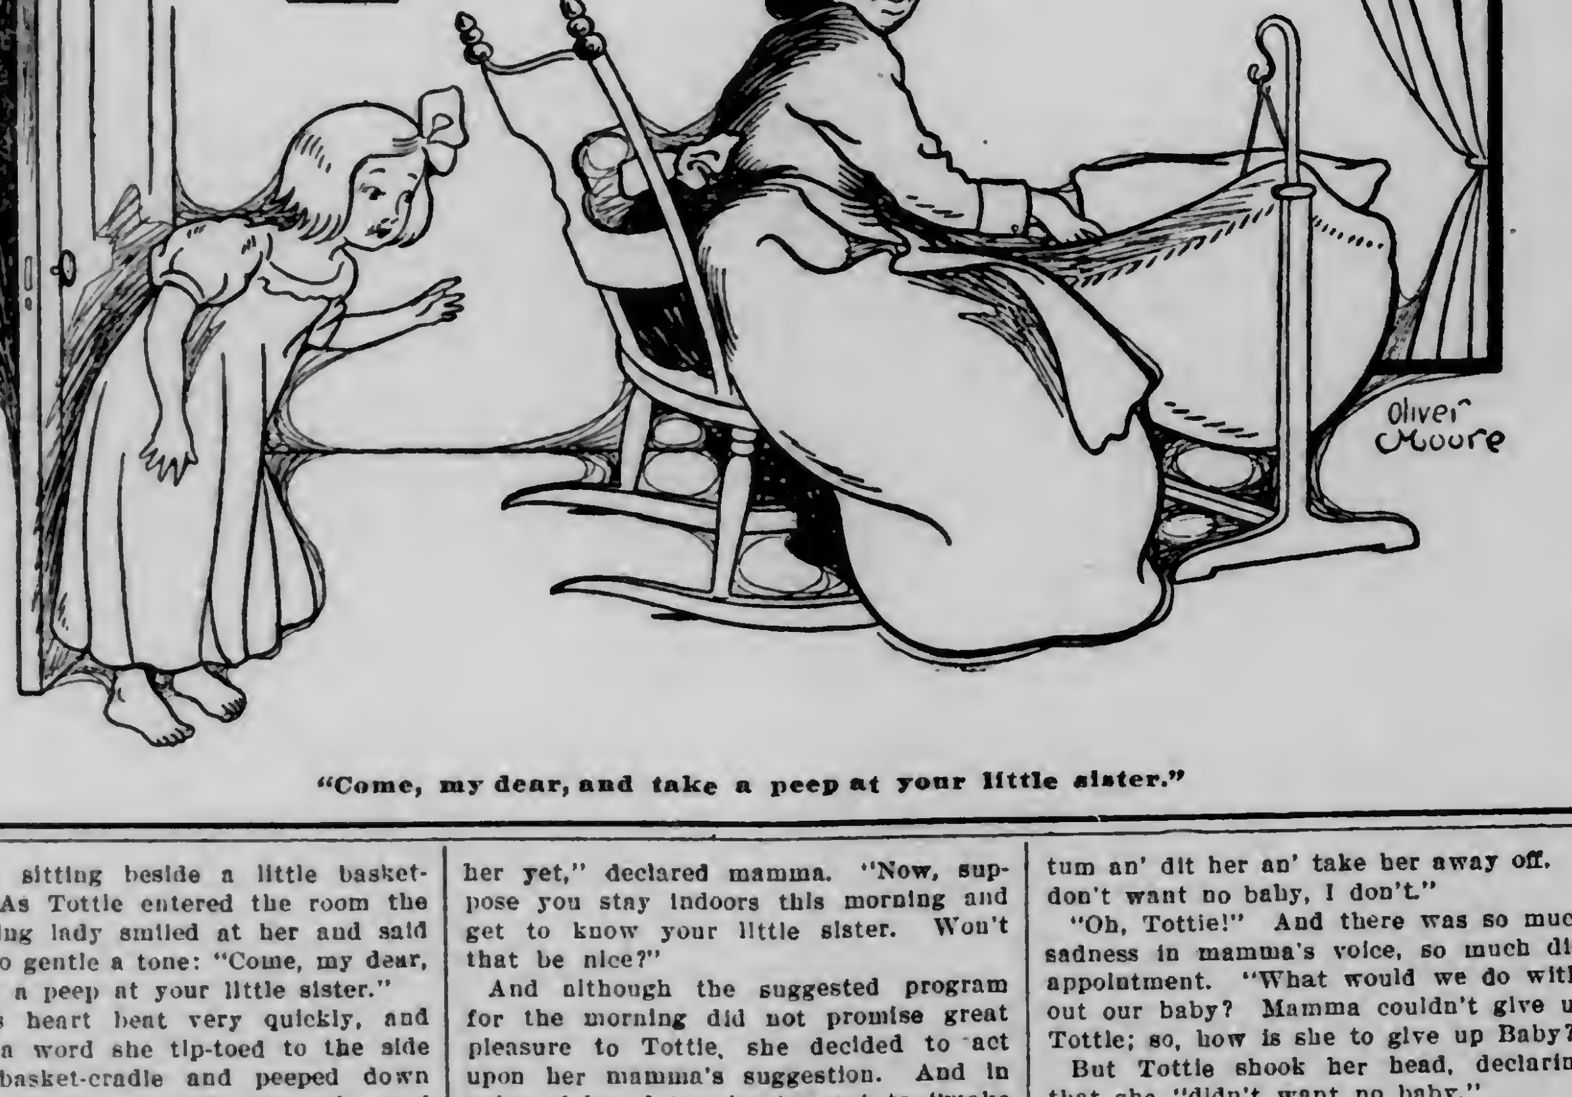
Tottie made no answer, but went out to her sand pile to play. But somehow the thought of sending the baby away caused her to sit listless, hands in lap and eyes seeing nothing. Then she said to herself: "Poor little Baby! She has dot such tute dimples an' toes. Oh, such funny 'ittle toes an' fin'ers. I fink she's awful tunning. What if the stork would take her to Misses Day? Oh, then, we touldn't have her fer ours at all any more. She's very tute. Maybe——"

For a whole minute Tottie sat silent, thinking very hard. Then she jumped up from the sand pile and ran to her mother's room. On entering, she beheld her mother writing a letter. Maybe it was to the stork. Oh, that letter must not be finished! Without a word, Tottie sprang close to her mother's side, grasped the sheet of notepaper on which she was writing and tore it into pieces before her astonished parent could stop her.

"Don't write to the stork, mamma, for us wants our baby. Don't let anybody else have her; she's so tute an' darlin'. I love Baby, I do."

"Ah, I knew you would as soon as you got acquainted with her," assured mamma, as she took Tottie in her arms and hugged her very tightly. "And so we'll keep our precious little girl to play with our precious big girl, and we'll all be so happy together, won't we, dearie?"

"Yes, mamma dear," Tottie replied. "An' I wish Baby would grow big very twick, fer I want her to play wif me in the san' pile. Won't it be fun?"



"Come, my dear, and take a peep at your little sister."

Brave Fido.

Big Fido sits upon the step
A-watching all about.
It is this noble doggie's place
To keep the strangers out.

If through the gate a kitten peeks
Big Fido growls and growls;
And if a tramp comes to a halt,
Then Fido howls and howls.

But if a bigger dog comes up
And stops as if to say:
"Hello there, Pup! I don't fear you."
Then Fido runs away.

The board of health presented a report of the investigation of charges preferred by Iver Iverson against John T. Harvey and E. F. Property owners residing on the south side of Sixth avenue presented a petition protesting against the assssment of 60 onts per foot allowed property owners on the north side of the street and charged against them on account of the lateral sewer being run fifteen feet only at 45 cents per foot, and the petitioners requested that the assessment be reduced from 60 cents to 45 cents per foot. The hearing was postponed until Monday evening next, the 27th inst. John Olson requested a change in the plans of concrete walk in front of the North Shore block on First avenue. The committee that investigated the proposition of the town board to charge $7 per day for the care of city patients at the town pest house reported that according to the expense figured by them a just charge would be $7 per day for one patient only and $2 per day for each additional patient on account of less average expense caring for more than one patient, and that they believed the town board would approve of the same. The matter was referred to the board mentioned. The quarterly report of Justice W. S. Andrews was returned by the chief of police and reported correct. Estimate No. 2 for dam and ditch work was allowed. Ordinance No. 75, changing the boundaries of the Second, Third and Fourth wards, was given its first reading upon recommendation of Alderman Watts. ANGLERS OF THE STONE AGE

Information Gleaned in Caves and Mounds Shows Our Prehistoric Ancestors Liked to Fish.

Very early in the stone age the inhabitants in the caves on the banks of the streams in Perigord, now Dordogne, in the southwestern part of France, caught great quantities of salmon, whose bones are found in the caves, along with a sort of harpoon, which probably served as a snatcher to drag the fish out of the water, says London Field and Farm. Natural conditions being similar, we may assume that in those distant ages the salmo salar at the time of spawning swarmed up the Dordogne, the principal river of that department of France, in serried masses, much as the sockeye salmon now ascend the rivers of British Columbia, and if so the fish could easily be raked or snatched out by a fisher from the banks without any need for his either going afloat in a dug-out or actually throwing a harpoon.

The bone caves of Perigord are apparently not all of one period, but the race or races who inhabited these caverns hunted the mammoth, the cave lion and the reindeer, and they clearly belonged to the palaeolithic or rough stone age, though presumably not to the earliest and most primitive part of that age, for, besides the harpoons, barbed arrows, pins and awls of reindeer bone are found in some of the deposits, whereas in the earliest cave dwellings only flint arrow heads and axes of the rudest type are discovered.

Edouard Lartet, who was a great cave hunter and a very acute observer, remarked that the remains of fishes are rare or common in proportion to the remote or recent date of the bone caves. In the earliest caves (in France), which are distinguished by the finding only of unbarbed arrows, no fish bones have been discovered, and M. Lartet was inclined to think that the earliest cave dwellers either had no tackle sufficiently perfect to procure fish or that they ate on the banks the raw fish just caught. But in caves of more recent date, where barbed arrows and harpoons are found, remains of fish are abundant. It is somewhat remarkable that all the species of fish identified in the cave deposits are still extant, though one of them has now disappeared from Europe.

In the days of the primitive harpoon the dawn of pictorial art had already begun to break, for one of the very earliest representations of the human form is an engraved sketch of a fisherman armed with a barbed harpoon. This was discovered by M. Broca and shown by him at the Palaeontological congress in 1872. Other carvers of what is known as the reindeer age, made sketches of fish, which have been recognized as eel, carp, barbel and trout—just the common fish of the Lozore and the Dordogne at the present day. The fish found in the celebrtaed Brixham cave was of the genus Scarus, which shows that there were already sea fishermen in Devon in those days.

Investigations in the islands of Denmark, which in early ages were open to the Atlantic—for the low-lying Jutland which now cuts them off did not yet exist—led to the discovery of what are called the kitchen middens, which are long piles of the refuse of prehistoric cookery, principally composed of the shells of oysters, mussels, cockles and periwinkles, mixed with bones of mammals, birds and fishes. The fish which occur most plentifully are the herring, the cod, the flounder or dab, and the eel. These heaps of refuse are all found within a few yards of the shore line, and probably not very dissimilar heaps are being accumulated in Tierra del Fuego at the present day. The age of the kitchen middens was probably later than that of the bone caves of Perigord, for the mammoth, the rhinoceros and the musk-ox, whose bones are found in the caves, seem to have no longer existed in Denmark. As Jolly says in "Man Before Metals:"

"The ancient Danes, a fishing people, have left behind them in their kitchen middens a quantity of the remains of eels, cod, flounders and herrings, all deep-sea fish, in search of which they were obliged to venture far out to sea in boats formed of the trunk of a tree hollowed by flints and fire; a terrible struggle for existence, in which many human victims fell, but in which dangerous school many bold spirits were formed."

The learned paleontologist seems to have been somewhat uncertain in his data and hasty in his conclusions. To begin with, neither eels nor flounders are deep-water fish, nor is there any clear evidence to show that the makers of the kitchen middens had any boats in which they could have put right out to sea, though doubtless they had small canoes in which they could cross the narrow sounds and dodge about from island to island, just as the Fuegians did when Darwin studied them in 1837. The question remains—how were these fish caught? We may be certain that the herrings were not taken with either hooks, arrows, or the harpoon. The oufinders might have been speared, and so possibly might the eels, but not the herrings, nor yet the cod.

Of nets apparently no record is left, nor of the cordage to make them; but as there were fishhooks there must have been lines, which it may be assumed were made from tendons, or from strips of rawhide. It is not quite improbable that some primitive form of stake net, or rather a hurdle-and-osier "kettle" was constructed on the flat sands, so that fish might be entrapped with the falling of the tide. "Kidels," or "kettles," made with stakes and nets, are known historically to be extremely ancient, and it seems as if they had been evolved from earlier engines made with hurdles, such as the "hedge baulks," which still exist in some parts of the country. Such a fixed engine would capture all the species mentioned, even the cod, which, we may be sure, swarmed in those Northern seas in early ages, and would be likely to wander over the flat sands at high water to hunt for their favorite food of shore crabs and sea worms. The cod may also have been caught with the hook without any need for the fisherman to go far out to sea.

Later than the neolithic makers of the kitchen middens were the lake dwellers of Switzerland, whose time dates from the age of stone through that of bronze, and does not finish until the age of iron arrived with the Roman invasion. Living above the surface of lakes, which teemed with fish, they were a race of fishermen, using hooks of bone and nets of linen thread. Probably the description which Herodotus gives of a Thracian tribe of lake dwellers in his time would give a not inacurate idea of the lives of the inhabitants of the lake villages of Zurich and the crannogs of Kerry. "One of the tribes inhabited a city built in the middle of the lake. Horses and cattle were fed on fish, which was so abundant in the lake that it was only necessary to open the trapdoor and let down a net, which was soon filled."

FOR MAN WITH SPRINKLER

Soak the Lawn, Plant and Trees Well Instead of Giving Them a Few Drops---Need Plenty of Water.

With the advent of hot weather people who have the conveniences begin artificial watering of lawns, trees and plants. Newly set trees, which, of course, have not had time to make new roots sufficient to supply with needs for growth must be supplied with water in greater quantity than the rains are likely to furnish, so that the soil will not become dry and hot at any time. The more rapid and vigorous the growth of a plant, the more water is needed, and taken if within reach. Any failure whatever in the supply of water means a slack to the natural growth of the plant. This fact has always been apparent to anyone who has had anything to do with the care of a lawn. If not well watered in dry weather the grass on the lawn turns yellow and ceases to grow, and soon becomes apparently dead. Grass roots are hardy in this latitude, and will throw up new leaves as soon as the fall rains come.

Watering a lawn in dry weather is necessary therefore, and there is the right way to do this, else the watering will do little good, and we frequently see cases where watering does more harm than good. A case reported not long ago showed this condition very clearly. A townsman, who had a wide lawn, complained one summer that his lawn was turning yellow notwithstanding he has regularly sprinkled it all over every day after dinner, when the heat of the day was over. It was a very hot period, without any rains, and the dews seemed to do no good, except to freshen the grass for an hour or two in early morning. After his attention was called to the fact that rains do not water the earth in he manner in which he was trying to keep his lawn from drying up, ht was advised to follow an entirely different plant, which, on trial, soon rejuvenateld the grass and it was restored to its natural healthy color. When the grass in the pastures dries up in a drouth the farmer always wishes for "a good soaking rain," and he never expects any good results from a short shower now and then. He knows he will get no permanent relief until a "soaking rain" has fallen. The city resident referred to, on his attention being called to this fact, immediately began running his sprinkler for several hours over one little plat of his lawn, during the late afternoon and evening, and the next evening he sprinkled an adjoining plat, following this course until he had watered his whole lawn. The ground was wetted down well into the roots of the grass, and would then remain moist for a week or two, while during the time when the entire lawn was sprinkled every day, the roots of the grass got no water, and of course the leaves showed it by turning yellow, dying for want of sustenance. This is the natural way that water is supplied to the roots of plants, and in our hot summers cultivated plants, growing under unnatural conditions in many respects, must have a good soaking once in a while during a drouth, or they will lose their foliage for the time being or stop all growth if the leaves do not turn yellow. And, on the whole, it is better for plants and trees indigenous in this latitude to get no watering during a drouth, as mere sprinkling of the surface of the ground usually does more harm than good. It encourages leaf action when there is no water in the soil to respond to the demand for sap production and the leaves die of a somewhat stimulated hunger.

In the case of newly set trees and hard wooded plants generally, the common manner of watering is unnatural, and often kills instead of preserving the plants. Every day we see men pouring a pailful of water at the foot of costly young trees, "because it is so hot and dry that they will die if not watered." The prognostications of death are generally proved true, notwithstanding the fact that the tree has had a pailful of water poured about it "every few days." The soil around the tree becomes hard, baked as it is all over the surface by the hot sunshine, and the freshly started feeding roots are not only deprived of water by the absence of rain, but are also deprived of air by the impermeable coating over the surface of the ground. Everyone knows that plants grow best in a loose, mellow soil, which is moist all the time and is so loose that the air circulates freely all about the roots. The oxygen and nitrogen of the air are needed in combination with the dissolved plant food in the soil to render the matters absorbed by the roots suitable for the growth and sustenance of the leaves, and when there is plenty of plant food suitably dissolved by soil moisture, the plant will soon die when access of air is prevented. In the usual way of watering, a pavement as impervious as concrete is soon made all over the root system of the plant, and it dies, not although it was watered, but because it was watered. The proper way to have watered it would have been to dig away three or four inches of the surface soil all around the tree, and then, if the soil had become hard below, to loosen up the soil carefully with a fork so as not to disturb the newly formed roots, and then pour in several pailfuls of water as fast as they were absorbed by the soil, and then, when the soil all around the tree had become saturated, the earth dug away can be returned and leveled off smoothly, without tramping or otherwise pressing it down, but leaving it as loose as possible, to serve as a mulch which will prevent most of the evapopration from the soaked soil below. One of two such waterings would be all that would be needed during an ordinary drouth. The tree would thus get the needed "good soaking rain," and would neither be drowned out, nor would be choked to death by a hard pavement put over the ground about it. Shrubs like the spice bush, white alder, itla, high-bush cranberry generally need watering once or twice during a drouth, and even in ordinary hot weather. As such shrubs are generally planted in clumps, the surface of the ground beneath them will have little vegetation, and the soil, being shaded all the time, will never become baked hard, even in hot weather, after a rain, and so the hose may be used on the shrubs without removing any of the surface soil first. When young trees are planted so closely together that grass or weeds will not grow beneath them, it is not necessary to remove any soil before putting the water on. But whenever trees or shrubs are so planted that the ground beneath them is exposed to sunshine, even part of the day, the surface soil must be removed always before any watering. In all cases when water is applied during hot weather, it must be put on so liberally that the ground will be thoroughly soaked, and no sprinkling should be done.

This rule for watering also applies to the flower border and vegetables garden, and to plants kept in pots. An expert gardener gives the rule "to apply to each square foot of the flower bed a twoinch covering of water, as fast as the soil will take it up." Watering is a special practice, the general practice should be to keep the surface soil loose and mellow all the time, so that no moisture will be lost from the soil by evaporation. In the driest time there is always moisture in the soil and if the evaporation of this is prevented by a loose mulch over the surface, artificial watering will seldom be needed. If the top soil is not mellow there is continual evaporation of soil moisture. This may be proved by heaping up a pile of dust over a small space in a hard road in hot weather. If the pile of dust is undisturbed for a day or two, on removing it the spot of ground beneath is will be found quite moist to a considerable depth, although no rain has fallen in the meantime. Outside of the space covered by the dust mulch the soil will be as hard and dry as it had been for a long time. The object should always be to save moisture than to add it. The common practice of sprinkling, tends to bring the roots the nearer the moister surface, and thus not only crowds them into a smaller feeding space, but makes the plant less able to endure a drouht.

Daily sprinkling of a lawn attracts the roots of the grass toward the surface, and after a month or two the grass will be injured by the heat if the sprinkling is omitted for a day or two. Watering is usually considerably laborious, yet half of it is usually unnecessary. When done in the ordinary superficial manner, the young growing roots of the trees and shrubs are attracted toward the surface, and the plants are made less hardy. Then the moisture is wasted by allowing the surface to become hard, and this allows the soil moisture to escape by way of capillary channels. It is always better to do the watering at dusk, or in cloudy weather, and then the mulching may be left till morning, before the sunshine is hot. The mulch, if of loose earth, is better for this little delay, as it goes on looser, and its under surface is not made sticky, to become a hard crust when dried out. No capillary tubes from the soil beneath should be permitted to become continuous through the mulch, as the heated air above the ground will absorb all the moisture that is permitted to reach the surface. Unless the soil is naturally very dry and porous, one or two thorough waterings will carry a freshly planted tree or shrub through a long drought and when a well-established tree shows signs of needing water in a dry time one soaking will be enough. Grass roots are nearer the surface than most tree roots, and in a well set lawn the soil is full of grass roots in the upper six inches of soil. This multitude of roots necessarily take up a good deal of water daily, and in a long, hot, dry time the lawn grass should have a soaking once in eight or ten days. In all cases the sprinkler should be kept running without being moved for several hours. The next afternoon and evening another portion of the lawn may be sprinkled, and so on until the whole lawn has been soaked. Then the grass will remain nicely green until the next watering, or until the drought comes to an end.

ALBERT KIRBY,
Or Lord Fairfax, Has Deposited Proof of His Right to the Title With the Committee of Privileges in the House of Lords.

ANTS ARE TROUBLESOME IN HOUSE AND LAWN

The state entomologist has received so many inquiries, indicating the distress of housekeepers and gardeners on account of the presence of ants of various sorts, that in addition to sending replies to each coorrespondent, he has deemed it wise to hand an account with remedies, to the press, in order that others who may not have corresponded may see how relief may be obtained.

Ants in the House.

We find on our pantry shelves occasionally the large black ant, also the little, tiny, wee ant known as Monomorium pharaonis, which originally was a tropical species, and which is only found inside of a house. This must not be confounded with the small red ant which makes hills outside. These little tropical ants, when they once obtain a foothold in a house, are most difficult to eradicate, although we hace succeeded by a method which we will mention directly, in evidently getting them out of a house where they had been established seven or eight years.

Turning to the big black ant, and the same can be said of any ant which is found in the house, we need not perhaps mention the various methods of keeping sweets out of their reach, by standing the legs of tables in water and kerosene, for these methods are pretty well known. We find that painting shelves where they occur, with a weak solution of alum water, which leaves a slight deposit on the shelf, appears to keep them away from the treated parts.

Another remedy, which Dr. Franklin, a member of the Entomological staff at the Experiment station, has seen used with success, consists of poisoning molasses or syrup with Paris green, and placing it in a saucer in a spot easily accessible to ants. This is poisonous to other things as well as ants, and should be handled with care. In the particular case which he cites, Paris green was mixed with molasses very generously, so that the mass was almost a paste, perhaps, and the ants died by the hundreds, and the survivors, apparently deterred by the death of their comrades, kept away. It is evident that arsenic mixed with molasses or syrup would have the same effect as Paris green, since it is the arsenic in the Paris green which does the business.

It must be remembered, however, that the eggs of ants are laid by a queen or queens, and no matter how many workers we may kill, if the egg-laying individual or individuals are not killed, the production of ants goes on. Therefore, it is well to look for nests outside, which may be the source of infection in the house.

Ants on the Lawn.

Black ants frequently build on the lawn or in fields quite large nests, four or five or six inches high. When one wishes to destroy a colony of these he should purchase some sulphide of carbon at a drug store, and should make in one of these nests anywhere from six to eight or more holes, with a croquet stake or hoe handle to the depth of six or seven inches, into each of which a tablespoonful of bisulphide of carbon should be poured, and the earth quickly pushed over the hole; then a couple of wet burlap sacks thrown over the nest and allowed to remain over night. Sometimes a second treatment, and possibly even a third treatment may be necessary, but the fumes of this gas are deadly, and go down through the earth, permeating the recesses, and generally killing the egg-laying individuals. Bisulphide of carbon is explosive when its gas is mixed with atmosphere, and no light of any kind should be brought near it.

Turning once more to the case of the tiny tropical ant referred to above, the entomological department worked for two years trying to eradicate them from a private house in Minneapolis, and finally succeeded after locating the colonies in the furnace roof, by taking advantage of the family's absence, and drawing the water from the pipes, opening the windows in the dead of winter, and allowing the temperature in the house to fall, for two or three days, below zero. This was supplemented by setting off in the furnace room a heavy charge of hydrocyanic acid gas, which, as every one knows, is fatal to any one breathing it, and an excellent insecticide. Since this was done no ants have appeared in this household, much to the relief of the family, who had been driven almost frantic by the constant annoyance caused by the presence of these pests.

Ants frequently seen on peonies are not injuring them; they are seeking a sweet varnish which covers the bud. Therefore, lovers of this flower need not be alarmed when they see these insects on their favorite plants. Nor must it be supposed that when one sees ants on bushes or trees that they are injuring the same. In nine cases out of ten plant lice are present on the leaves of these trees or bushes, and the ants are seeking these, from which they obtain a sweet liquid, called honey dew. On the other hand we have known ants to ruin snowball bushes by eating the bark of the same, completely girdling the bush. If the parts so attacked could be kept coated with Paris green, it should deter these attacks. The liquid should not be used in such quantities as to carry Paris green into the soil on to the roots of tender shrubbery.

THAT FAMOUS STEER CASE

Five Years' Legal Battle Over a "Scrub" Animal---Two Experienced Cattlemen Spent $5,000 Warring Over Property Worth $30.

"Died, July 1, at its home near Lagondo, Mo., one red steer, 12 years old, 17 hands high, worth $10,000; the property of Elijah E. Rice. Peace to its hide.
jah E. Rice. Peace to its hide."

The above obituary appeared in a Chariton county paper recently. Details of the animal's death were obtained from Jim Rice, Elijah's son, who was here this week, says the Kansas City Star.

He thinks it was a case of broken heart. There was talk of the steer being exhibited at county fairs this season as Missouri's most famous quadruped. When the old animal learned the idea had been abandoned it laid down and expired.

At the December call, 1904, of the Kansas City court of appeals docket, the biggest case over a small matter ever tried in Missouri passed into history. The style of the action was John Massengale vs. Eliah E. Rice. The appellate court's uncontested order of affirmance crowned Ellahj with the victor's laurel wreath.

The subject of litigation was a shindle-shanked steer, "a very ordinary animal, a scrub," the plaintiff said, "worth about $30." The life of the steer fight and the great Civil war were about the same—five years.

If there is a Missourian who has not heard of the celebrated Steer case it is because his parents were shamefully derelict in their educational obligations to him. It has become a part of the state's fame.

How the Trouble Began.

In September, 1899, John Massengale of Macon county (known as "Missouri John" when herding cattle back in Wyoming) missed from his ranch a small red steer. It didn't bother him much, because he had a thousand of much better quality left, and he never lost any time in hunting up the prodigal. But one evil day a horseman came along the road and called "Missouri John" out. He told him he had seen his missing animal down on Rice's farm, which was just across the line in Chariton county. John went over to see Farmer Rice. Together they visited the herd, and Massengale promptly spied the scrub.

"That's mine, Eliah," he said.

"No, John," replied Eliah, "we raised that ourselves."

Massengale telephoned to his lawyer at Macon and a suit in replevin was filed. Before the justice the plaintiff described his animal as "a dark red steer, a round body, rather a small dark 2-year-old, a little under average size with a white spot in his forehead and an underbit in the right ear."

Elijah gave the description of his steer as follows: "Well, the steer is what I would call a red steer. He has just a little white spot on his forehead, with an underbit in the right ear."

The similtunde of belief furnished beautiful grounds for warfare. Both men had money burning in their pockets. The border soon was aroused by adherents of the two prominent litigants. "Missouri John" had begun his career by rounding up cattle in the West, and he knew he could not be mistaken. Elijah had grown up in the valleys where a man's social success was rated according to his knowledge of steercraft, and he felt that he knew the subject of controversy as well as he did any members of his family. In passing, it may be remarked that it is fairly safe to criticise a cattleman's command of the king's English, or his manners at the dinner table, but when you challenge his capacity to identify anything that wears horns you can look for trouble with entire confidence.

There were seven trials. Hung juries, appeals and changes of venue strung the litigation out half a decade. It traveled along a highway paved with shining dollars, until at the climax it was figured the unsuccessful litigant stood to lose $5,000.

The case would have ended in 1900, but at the very end of the trial, during a strong appeal to the jury, Elijah's leading lawyer, J. A. Collect, used this language, taken from the printed record:

"Massengale obtained his start by rounding up unbranded cattle in the West and branding them as his own. In the West they call that 'branding mavericks,' but here in Missouri we call it plain-out cattle stealing."

That Cost Elijah $300.

That short tirade cost Elijah $300, for the plaintiff appealed on the ground that there was no evidence in the record to justify the attack, and after the appellate court had read through the 275 printed pages it so held and Elijah had to pay for the brief.

During the life of the steer case it had been tried at Bynumville, Salisbury, Kansas City and Fayette. When the trial was "on" in a town the tavern-keepers would send out for extra help in the cook room and buy out the grocers. Each side levied out its respective township for witnesses and when the two clans would meet in a town there wasn't much room for anybody else.

The case was fought out with varying honors until a fatal day last April, when a jury came into court at Fayette and said the steer belonged to Elijah.

"Missouri John's" lawyers went through the long record of the last trial with a microscope and then met their client at Macon.

"The jig's up, John," said one of the barristers gravely. "There ain't the ghost of a ground to hang an appeal on this time."

"We're beat, you mean?" asked the big ranchman.

"You've guessed right."

"Well," said John, "I hate a croaker. I went to law for a measley, spindle-shanked steer and I'm going to take what the law hands out. Figure up what the fun has cost me, boys, and the check's ready."

He sat awhile and calmly pulled at his pipe. Then he picked up his sombrero and walked to the door, where he hesitated and looked back.

"But, say, fellers," he remarked, "that was my steer!"

The defendant notified "Missouri John's" attorneys that he would file a motion for affirmance in the court of appeals at the fall term and they told him to go ahead—they were tired.

HIS GREED COST HIM HIS LIFE

Itasca County Girl Lands Monster Pickerel That Swallowed Wall-Eyed Pike Which She Had Hooked.

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following tale is not "Nature faking," but a strictly true relation of an occurrence that would have gladdened the heart of old Father Izaak himself, could have witnessed it, and furnished one more proof of the truth of the stories he used to relate concerning the voracity of "those greate pike," which were undoubtedly the self same fresh water sharks we know as pickerel.

Follows what happened and how it came about. Little Misses Margaret Benzing and Freda Erven, daughters of two prosperous and prominent Itasca county farmers, went a fishing in an eddy of the Mississippi rives near the farm of Senator Gunn one afternoon last week. They had a few minnows for bait, and purposed to land a few of the delicious pike-perch—which masquerade in the most Northern waters under the alias of wall-eyed pike—and got better than they went after, or at least a greater quantity.

After fishing a short time a "wall-eye" took Margaret's bait and put up such a strenuous fight against being yanked out of the water that he attracted the attention of a monster pickerel cruising somewhere in the neighborhood. The big fish, after the manner of his kind, rushed at his struggling fellow and swallowed him at a gulp. And now Margaret had a fight on her hands that would have puzzled many a veteran angler to win. But she stuck to her task like a veteran, and despite the struggles of the big fish she dragged him into the shallow water at the river's edge—and then her line broke.

It would have been fare-ye-well with many an old fisher then, but by this time Margaret's fighting blood was up, and, before the big shark realized that he was free she had dashed into the water and scooped him up into her arms. His desperate struggles played havoc with her raiment, but she hugged him ashore just the same. Once there, Freda, who had picked up an old hammer on the shore, came to her aid, and the captive was soon put out. A man with a kodak happened along shortly after the fracas ended—and heroines and captive appear in consequence. The "wall-eye" measured a trifle under twelve inches in lengthh, the pickerel a little over twenty-six, but the weight of neither was taken for want of facilities for weighing. The hook had not touched the big fish, but he seemed unable to disgorge the smaller one, and his greed cost him his life.

SOCIALISM AND HUMAN NATURE

Critics there are who tell us that Socialism is impossible, because, forsooth, we "have got to change human nature; that men are too selfish, too greedy and avaricious," and so forth and so on. Even the religious teachers of the present day tell us that "man is born in sin," is wicked at heart, and therefore prone to criminality, and as proof of their statements they point to the jails and other penal institutions of the land filled up with men and women who have broken the laws of the land and therefore outraged the feelings of society.

That crime in itself is not a cause, but merely a necessary result of the economic conditions underlying the social state, is inconceivable to the superficial mind, and yet as a Socialist I dare make the broad assertion, without fear of contradiction, that it is a natural law that no individuals of the same species—without provocation—will deliberately make war upon each other. On the contrary, it is a well-known fact that the individual units of any race in any given environment will unite ever and always to combat a common enemy. Nor is the line drawn there, for the element of race-consciousness is so strongly inherent within all of the animal kingdom, that should any species find itself attacked by an enemy of the race or species, there will manifest an involuntary grouping together by all those belonging to the same race to protect each other against the common foe. That principle applies to the human family as well as to those below us in the scale of intelligence. What does this demonstrate other than the axiom that individuals of a race will only make war upon each other when reduced to the extreme of starvation, and when reduced to that level, the instinct of self-preservation then becomes fundamental with each and all?

Man, naturally, is neither good nor bad. He is just what the conditions compel him to be. The aim of every human being is to preserve self regardless of consequences to others, but incidentally he recognizes the necessity of working in harmony with the race, and does so as fas as possible, thus "following along the line of least resistance."

What are the conclusions to be derived from the above facts—if they are facts? Does it not imply that it is not human nature for men to war upon each other? That concerted action between the members of the race tends towards mutual benefit? That jails and other penal institutions existing in civilized society are resultant wholly from the deprivation of opportunities—by artificial restraint that essentially causes statutory law-breaking? That being so, it becomes self-evident that if opportunities were equalized in human society, that bear upon the matter of physical essentials—that unless nature proved itself barren in the endeavor to supply human comforts—the struggle between men resultant from competition for bread will cease, and with it will fall all crime that has its root in property differences.

Socialism contends that only through the socialization of all the industries of the country can such a condition in society be reached. Land and capital must become the property of the nation.

Rich Strike in Dollar Mine of Granite Gold Company ---Great Returns From Recent Shipment From the Smuggler Mine.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 25.—An eight-inch streak of ore carrying $12.275 a ton in gold values has been opened in the Dillon mine of the Granite Gold Mining company, Cripple Creek. The strike was made in the 1,100-foot level, where operators were searching for the extension of the big Dillon vein, which has yielded heavily in upper levels. The shoot is two feet between walls, but values outside the streak have not been determined. New York and Colorado Springs capitalists are owners

A production of forty cars of $40 ore was made by the Isabella Mines company in June. A thirty-pound bar of bullion worth $7,200, resulted from 2,700 tons of ore treated at the company's mill. The ore was from the dump, the average value being $4 a ton.

Returns from a recent shipment from the Scruggs-Wardell lease on the Smuggler mine at Balarat, Boulder county, Colo., gave 252.32 ounces in gold and 288.19 ounces in silver, or $4,666.65 a ton. The second grade ore ran 10.10 ounces in gold and 14.07 ounces in silver—$252.60 a ton.

The drift in the 94-foot levels of the Washburn No. 2 mine at Sunshine, Boulder, Colo., is in an ore body yielding $500 in gold a ton.

A high grade copper ore body 9 feet wide has been exposed in the 80-foot level of the Snow Flake, Ouray, Colo. Samples assay 20 per cent black copper, 9 ounces silver and $2.75 gold. The ore is probably an extension of the Tom Boy or Smuggler Union veins. At the bottom of the shaft much gray copper ore is being excavated. A car of ore is being shipped daily.

The Elkton mine, Cripple Creek, put out 2,000 tons of ore in June, the average value being $30 to $35. Practically all the levels down to 900 feet depth are being worked.

Ore recently struck in the 40-foot level of the Minnie Bell No. 1, Boulder, Colo., assays 68 ounces in gold and 32 ounces in silver, or $1,393.98 a ton. Two shifts are driving the 150-foot level to get under the ore shoot. The vein is 3 feet wide, with a foot of good smelting ore.

The Inter-Ocean mine at Sunshine, Boulder, Colo., has lately come under new management. The main working shaft is being sunk an additional 150 feet and drifts are being indefinitely extended east and west. At the bottom of the shaft, now 540 feet deep, high grade tellurium ore abounds. In the 60-foot level an ore body, which is believed to be the one that yielded $250,000 in the 250-foot level, has been encountered.

A body of ruby silver 3 feet wide has been uncovered in the Aetna mine, Georgetown, Colo., returns from which give values of $305 in gold and silver, gold predominating.

of making a permanent copper producer as depth is reached.

Benson, Ariz., July 25.—Last week the Southern Pacific railway company notified A. J. Pidgeon that the rails for the line to Johnson will be delivered at Dragoon station about the first of next month. Within thirty days after the rails arrive the Johnson, Dragoon & Northern railway will be completed, and trains running, according to statements made by Pidgeon, who is president of the company., and is personally managing its affairs.

Immediately upon completion of the railroad Pidgeon will put a force of miners at work taking out ore from the property of the Arizona & Michigan Development company, property of which he is president and manager and regular shipments will at once begin.

Among the old producers that will ship steadily over the new road are the Arizona Consolidated, the Benanza Belt and the Empire; besides several others.

COST OF PRODUCTION IS LOW

copper bearing veins. The managers of the Boston & Montana are satisfied that they will develop a big mine in the Greenleaf.

W. P. Jahn of Milwaukee, president of the Pilot-Butte Mining company, has been in Butte for some days directing preparations for resumption of work on the Pilot claim. A shaft 530 feet deep was sunk before work was stopped by a lack of funds. Money has been provided and sinking is about to be resumed.

J. Parke Channing was in Butte last week looking over the properties of the General Development company and the South Butte Mining company. The mineral ground owned or claimed by the latter is nearly all involved in litigation and until that is settled the company does not know whether it owns any mineral deposits or not. Speaking of this disputed ground Mr. Channing said: "There is copper there in paying quantities and the clearance of title will be followed by the sinking of two large shafts. However, until the courts decide it would be futile to contemplate operations."

At the annual meeting of the Tuolumne Copper company, Edward J. Hickey, N. J. Bielenberg, J. W. Pratt, Bernard Noon and Daniel Shields were elected directors.

The Dark Horse mine in Beaverhead county, which is being developed by J. H. Lanyon and other residents of Duluth, Minn., is a promising property. More than 100 tons are now on the dump awaiting shipment as soon as the roads are in condition. Recent assays show 37 per cent copper, $12 in gold and nine ounces of silver.

A level wagon road having been completed from the Bell Boy mine to the Bald Butte property, the mill of the latter has resumed operations. The ore averages about $15 a ton with values chiefly in gold. Higher grade ore is being taken from the mine, but is being mixed with that of the old dump to clear up the property. Meantime the shaft is being sunk and will be driven 100 feet more. The Bell Boy yielded about $1,000,000 before its virtual abandonment, but now gives promise of again joining the dividend paying class. It was taken over recently by a local syndicate. It is situated in the Marysville district.

Recent heavy rains are responsible for suspension of operations in the copper district across the river from Helena. The high waters played havoc with the roads and in this country alone it is estimated that $100,000 will be required to repair them so that loaded wagons may run.

Three sets of sub-leasers are working the old Whitlatch mine south of Helena and are taking out splendid ore continuously. This property yielded more than $1,000,000 above the water level. The ore is being treated at the Spring Hill mill.

The Rock Rose company which is developing a most promising copper claim just west of the city limits, has made its initial shipment of ore to the East Helena smelter. Mine assays show values not only in the red metal but also in gold and silver.

The Big Eight mine, near Troy, has been sold to a French syndicate for $60,000. The new owners have purchased a complete sawmill outfit and purpose the erection of a number of suitable buildings.

The Truro Mining and Reduction company, operating the Buckeye mine near Basin, and has resumed operations and the mill has started up also. Operations have also been resumed by the Allport Mining company in the same district and already some good looking ore has been uncovered.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Ore company's Croxton mine to the east. The Hartley, first opened last year, sent out 345,000 tons of ore in 1907. It is not mining at present, but it is prepared to make heavy shipments at any time, and in future seasons it will rank with the biggest mines on the range. The Steel corporation is doing its own stripping at the property. Similar work done by contract is practically completed at the company's Pillsbury mine in the same field. Three shovels are engaged in stripping at the Shenango Furnace company's Shenango mine, and in the west end of the pit the ore is uncovered. The removal of the surface here is the heaviest work of the kind yet attempted on the Mesaba, the overburden ranging from ninety to 110 feet in depth.

Just northeast of Hibbing the Steel corporation is still engaged in the work of transforming the Sellers mine from an underground proposition into an open pit. Three shovels are in commission. The operation was started in November, 1906, and a portion of the pit is now ready to ship. This part lies close to the business district At the Steel corporation's Clark mine, where similar stripping operations are to be carried on, the small town—the "location"—is to be shifted to a new site for the second time. It was only two years ago that the houses were removed from the original plot. But there is ore under the ground where the buildings now stand, and since it has been decided to mine the deposit by steam shovel, the location must be shifted again. This time the houses will be transferred to a site adjoining the village of Chisholm on the west, providing no ore underlies the tract, and to determine this, drilling is in progress.

The product of mines on the Marquette range has been moving more freely latterly than at any previous time this season. At Ishpeming and Negaunee, where the greater number and the most important producers of the district are located, practically all the properties are shipping direct from shafts, and most of them are also loading cars from stockpiles. Eight or ten steam shovels are doing duty in the two cities. One of these has gone into commission at the Breitung Mining company's Mary Charlotte property, where it was necessary to cut working forces in half some weeks ago because the stockpile had already spread over all the available space. At their Empire mine, five miles south of Negaunee, Oglesby, Norton & Co. are filling an order for 40,000 tons of ore. A Milwaukee concern, to which the contract was awarded, is erecting two big steel smokestacks at Negaunee mines of the Steel corporation. One is 100 feet high by six feet in diameter and weighs eleven tons. This is going up at the Hartford. The other one, installed at the Blue property, is 100 feet high by 4 2-3 feet in diameter and weighs nine tons.

Menominee Shipments Light.

Ore shipments from the Menominee range continue at low ebb, and somewhat more so than from the other districts. Most of the mines are doing but little. Loading from stockpiles has been suspended the past fornight at all the Corrigan-McKinney company's properties, the majority of which are still on the inactive list. Pickands, Mather & Co. are forwarding comparatively small tonnages, as are the Steel corporation, Oglebay, Norton & Co. and other operators. Oglebay, Norton & Co. have reopened their two Chatham properties in the Iron River-Stambaugh territory, giving employment to more than a hundred men but their Bristol, Traders and Berkshire mines continue idle. The development previously carried on at the Berkshire has resulted in proving a large body of ore of excellent grade, and with the deposit fully opened, the mine gives promise of becoming one of the most important producers in the Iron river field.

At Iron Mountain the last of the machinery is being installed at the Jones furnace, which is designed to make steel direct from ore, and it is expected that the plant will go into commission the first of August. The initial run will be made on low-grade ores from the Randville field, where mining operations are being carried on by the company. The result of the smelting of the first product is eagerly awaited on the Menominee range. The Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company has banked the fires at its charcoal iron furnace at Manistique, Lake Michigan, and until the market improves the stack will be out of blast. Marquette's three furnaces continue out of commission, as does the plant at Newberry.

Pending the installation of new hoisting plants, 175 men have been laid off at "A" and "B" shafts of the Steel corporation's Norrie mine, at Ironwood, Gogebic range. The work will require three or four weeks. The new hoists will constitute the permanent equipment of the shafts, temporary plants having been in commission during the period of development work. The Chicago & Northwestern railroad is adding 500 new steel ore cars to the rolling stock of its Gogebic range division, the first lot having recently gone into commission. The cars are of forty tons capacity.

TALENTED DAUGHTERS OF TALENTED MEN

Herrick is an expert in household matters, her books on various subjects of this phase of woman's work being too numerous to mention here.

Closely allied with the literary contingent of talented daughters is the art and musical quota.

Work As a Sculptor.

By reason of her enviable position in New York society, Mrs. Henry Payne Whitney, daughter of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, is probably the best known of these daughters, her serious work as a sculptor having been exploited broadly at the time she did the caryatides for the balcony in the dining room of a comparatively new metropolitan hotel. Leading sculptors have praised her work, and Sylvain Sallere, the French sculptor who was called to New York to execute Mrs. Whitney's designs for the caryatides, declared that it was hard for him to believe that the girlish looking young woman who frequently stood with him on the scaffold, helping him to put the figures through, was only an amateur with the chisel. Until she gave it up, Mrs. Whitney's studio in McDougall alley was one of the most talked about workshops in New York city. Mrs. Whitney's first serious work, her caryatides, resulted, by the way, from a suggestion she made, half in jest, to the architect of the hotel, that she be allowed to submit designs for the supports of the dining room balcony. Last spring the public became acquainted with another of Mrs. Whitney's talents, when several of her paintings were exhibited in New Yrok city, one of them being awarded a prize.

Ellen Day Hale, who makes her home with her father, the venerable Edward Everett Hale, has built up quite a reputation for herself as a painter of portraits, landscapes and genre pictures. After receiving a private education in this country, she studied art here and in Paris, and after working for some time in the latter city and London, she came to this country, where her work, unlike that of many other native artists, finds an appreciative market. Miss Anna Alma Tadema, like her father and mother, handles the brush dexterously, and as long ago as 1889 a painting by her took the second medal at the Paris exhibition of that year. Naturally, her distinguished father is markedly proud of this daughter's recognized ability in his own especial line.

Shines as Singer.

Miss Flora Wilson, daughter of the secretary of agriculture, has shown quite a little talent before the easel, but it is as a singer that she particularly shines. A pupil of Jean de Reszke, it is her intention to go into grand opera for her life's work as soon as she can gain her father's consent. Recently she was praised in the foreign press as the possessor of a voice that made her superior to most American song-birds known to Europe. Miss Wilson has also tried her hand at writing poetry. Another American pupil of De Reszke who has shown considerable talent is Countess Szchenyi, nee Gladys Vanderbilt; professional musicians have given it as their opinion that if it ever became necessary for the countess to earn her own living, she could do so easily with her voice.

Clara Clemens, the witty daughter of Mark Twain, made her American debut as a concert singer in this country some time ago. Her first professional appearance occurred in Florence, Italy, where she spent several years cultivating her voice under the best masters obtainable after she found out that she had a voice that was really worth perfecting. Persons who have been fortunate enough to have heard Miss Clemens sing have been pleased not only with her rich, clear contralto voice, but with her personality as well. Wherever she goes she is a great social favorite, and not long ago, on landing in London, she set the English speaking world smiling by naively declaring that she had gone abroad to sing in order to escape her father, who always began to talk when she began to sing. Her many years spent abroad have made of Miss Clemens an exceptionally brilliant linguist, and she sings her songs in the tongue for which they were written. Interviews had with Miss Clemens by newspaper men on the other side read much like interviews with her distinguished father—and go to prove that Miss Clemens, if she would, could probably make a wide reputation for herself as a humorist. But it is through her voice that she aspires to fame.

A Skilled Musician.

Miss Louise De Forest, daughter of Robert De Forest, head of the Sage Foundation and a philanthropist and sociologist of note, is so skilled a musician that she is practically considered a professional. This talent she devotes almost wholly to instructing girls of talent who otherwise would not be able to receive good musical education. Frequently Miss De Forest gives over whole days to this form of charitable work. A sure enough professional with a well-known father (the publisher) is Miss Mabel Wagnalls, of New York. After a long course of study abroad she made her debut in this country some years ago in Theodore Thomans's orchestra; later she appeared with Anton Seidl's orchestra. While in Berlin she played the piano orchestras. Miss Wagnalls' other talent is that of writing, her books and stories most frequently dealing with musical people and situations.

Queen Maud of Norway, daughter of Edward VII., whose talent for world diplomacy has lately been strikingly apparent, numbers among her talents that of music. In brief, she is held to be one of the cleverest women in Europe both inside and beyond the pale of royalty. In this connection it is interesting to note that the present queen of Spain, whose father, the late Prince Henry of Battenberg, was rather talented, wrote a play and had it staged while yet she was a princess. Her talent for handling a sailboat is that of an expert, and she delights (or did before she ascended the Spanish throne) in performing feats of seamanship that would put her in the professional class any day she chose to enter it.

A talented daughter who is continuing the life work of her father is Miss Cornelia Horsford of Cambridge, Mass. Her father, dying fifteen years ago, Miss Horsford has been engrossed in archaelogical work since then. Two years after Prof. Horsford's death she sent out an expedition to Iceland to examine the ruins of Saga-Time; still later she despatched an expedition to the British Isles to explore the ruins of the ancient open-air amphitheaters and forts. She has directed several researches among the works of the North American Indians for possible evidence of the Norse discovery of America by Lief Ericson, and altogether she has been one of this country's most indefatigable and gifted archaeological workers of the present generation. Her literary talent finds expression in books and magazine articles on matters archaelogical. A woman of great wealth, she pursues archaeology because of her love for it, and also because this was her father's life work. Among her fellow-searchers for the story of the buried past she is as well known as was her father by his co-workers.

Pierpont Morgan's Daughter.

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, was one of the New York society women who successfully floated their famous Colony club, whose house cost two and a half million dollars, and is said to be the most sumptuous woman's club in the world. Also as one of the managers of the club and its treasurer, Miss Morgan is revealing a talent that is possessed by her father in no small degree.

In her especial line of activity—charities—Miss Morgan is credited by the professional charity workers of the metropolis with displaying unusual ability. She is one of the chief workers in the woman's department of the Civic Federation, a branch formed to look after the industrial interests of women who work. Miss Morgan is first vice chairman of this important auxiliary; the chairman is Mrs. Joseph Medill McCormick, daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna. A rather interesting coincidence that Mrs. McCormick should be the first head of this branch of the work and her father the first head of the federation itself.

Another woman who possesses in marked degree the characteristic talent of her father is Mrs. Anna M. Weightman-Walker-Penfield, who has been rather constantly in the news since she became one of the world's richest women, following her father's death two years or so ago. For years prior to her father's death she helped him to manage his immense chemical laboratories; and she figures in millions as easily as the average person does in hundreds. She is reckoned by her business associates and rivals as a keen financier and executive, and for some time after old William Weightman's death she carried practically the entire burden of the great business that he left behind. Persons conversant with her business career declare that Mrs. Penfield has never lost a dollar through poor investment, a record that not a corporal's guard of eminent financiers of today could equal, in all probability.

Ethel Barrymore, as all the stage world knows, is the talented daughter of the very talented Maurice Barrymore, from whom she inherited a ready wit, as well as histrionic ability. "Is that a real terrier," a friend asked her one afternoon, when she was out walking with her Boston specimen. "Sh-sh," replied Miss Barrymore, "he thinks he is." At the piano, Miss Barrymore reveals a charming latent talent; she plays exceptionally well, and had her inclinations been in the direction of music instead of the stage, she probably would have made a reputation for herself in that field. But she chose to follow the traditional profession of her forbears. Miss Viola Allen is another star of the stage whose father before her displayed talent in the same place; he was well known as a character actor.

A Leading Clubwoman.

Daughter of Judge John Ritchie of the Maryland court of appeals, Mrs. Donald McLean, recently re-elected president general of that "fighting" organization known as the Daughters of the American Revolution, is numbered among the leading clubwomen of the country. As head of the Daughters, she has displayed various talents, executive, financial and political being among them. Her predecessor in the president general's chair, Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, wife of the vice president, is the daughter of a judge well known in Ohio. Mrs. Fairbanks, like Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, is a graduate in law, and she is also quite talented in the medical line, having pursued studies in medicine at one period of her career. As a clubwoman she is active in the National Federation of Women's Clubs and other organizations, and she is one of the promoters of the "Junior Republic" movement. As a woman's club executive she is probably without a peer in the country.

Another clubwoman with a well-known father is Mrs. James R. Hopley of Bucyrus, Ohio. She is president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, a leading member of the national federation and a writer on various subjects, history and archaeology being two, and she was the only woman speaker at the centennial celebration of the admission of Ohio to the Union. Her father, during the Civil war and just after it, was famous throughout the North as the "Andersonville chaplain."

Like Mrs. Fairbanks, Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, daughter of Secretary of War Endicott under Cleveland, is a great help to her husband politically, and therein lies her talent, which Mr. Chamberlain has often publicly lauded. To run through the entire list of English women, with talented fathers, who are adepts in the political game as it is played in the mother country, would be to include in this article a large portion of the names of our fair English cousins which are always more or less contained in the newspaper cable dispatches from London and other English news centers.

Expert at Coaching.

It takes a talent of a peculiar sort to manage a four-in-hand (not a tie), as even the ignorant know. That daughter of Whitelaw Reid who was married a few weeks ago while the king and queen of England looked on, is an expert at coaching. When her distinguished father took up his ambassadorial residence in London, Miss Reid endeavored to awaken the English society women to the pleasures of coaching, but failed to do so. Mrs. Thomas Hastings, daughter of E. C. Benedict, the banker and intimate friend of the late Grover Cleveland, is president of the Ladies' Four-in-Hand Driving club of New York city, and one of the best known women whips of the metropolis. Miss Mary Harriman, daughter of E. H., rides and drives with skill; to her her father turns over the daily card reports that he receives from his lieutenants concerning the state of his railroads and other enterprises; and to her he looks for much valuable assistance in digesting and tabulating these reports. His daughter, Cornelia, before her marriage, was her father's business confidant and family assistant; Miss Mary is said to display even greater talent in financial matters than Cornelia. Another of Miss Mary's interests is rescue work among poor factory girls.

The Hon. Frances Wolseley, daughter of the famous viscount, his only heir and hence, inheritor of the title, has developed a talent for market gardening. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, daughter of the Commoner, is known among her associates as being gifted with pleasing oratorical powers; she is showing an aptitude for politics, and in all probability will be seen on the stump displaying her oratorical talents before the campaign is over. Jay Gould's talents for making millions is more than rivalled in the public mind by Miss Helen Gould's talent for dispensing them for the good of her fellow beings; while of the living daughters of Gen. William Booth—all of them being talented in the work their father started—Miss Eva Booth is best known to the average American, she being the present head of the Salvation Army in this country.

THE MAN WHO MAKES CORK LEGS.

New York Sun: "A manufacturer or dealer in artificial limbs, who wears a cork arm or leg himself, is much better equipped for business than his competitors who are sound," said a man who uses a cork leg. "In fact, it has become a sort of unwritten law among us to patronize such men when possble.

"Sentimental reasons may have something to do with the case, but I guess the chief reason is that we consider that if a man can make a limb for himself that fits like the paper on the wall, he can make them for others.

"Manufacturers of artificial limbs know this, and freqeutly you will find an advertisement like this: 'The So-and-So Artificial Leg is built by a man who is wearing one and who knows from experience what you want for comfort.'

"This is a strong argument, for it's no easy thing to get an artificial limb that just fits. Persons who have trouble getting shoes that are just right are in great luck compared to us."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MINNESOTA.

HE LOCATES HIS FAMILY

Winona Plumber Finds Wife and Children in Marshall County.

His Experience Leads Him to Try and Mend His Ways.

Crookston, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Micheal of Winona has located his family on the farm of John Thompson, Mrs. Micheal's brother, near Gatzke, twenty miles northeast of Middle River, Marshall county. Mrs. Micheal and her children left Winona early last week to visit her brother, whom Micheal understood lived on a farm near Crookston. Micheal is a first-class plumber at Winona, who is said to have had trouble on account of drink. Their furniture was finally sold and Mrs. Micheal decided to leave with her children. She had just money enough to pay railroad fare and by missing connections at St. Paul had to spend the last dollar or so she had to buy luncheon with for that day.

From St. Paul she wrote her husband to send her money to Crookston to pay stage fare to her brother's farm. He forwarded $4 which reached here, but no one called for it.

Micheal, not hearing from his wife, came to Crookston early in the week. He tried to locate his wife here with the aid of the police and finally feared his wife had not come to Crookston, but had sent the children to some state institution and started to support herself.

By chance, he found an old letter in his pocket from Thompson to Mrs. Micheal and it was postmarked Gatzke. Following this clue, the wife and children were located and husband and wife were reunited today. Micheal says he has taken his last drink, as he thought he had lost his family for good.

ESCAPES WITH CHILDREN.

Brainerd Woman Makes Quick Flight From Burning Home.

Brainerd, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—What might easily have been a fatal fire occurred at the residence of Bert Barber, North Ninth street, Wednesday night. Mr. Barber went to Staples on the midnight train, and the family, consisting of Mrs. Barber and two children, were asleep in a bedroom opening off the porch. Between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning one of the children awakened and aroused the mother. She saw that the house was on fire and attempted to go into the main room, but was driven back by the heat, her hair and arm being scorched. She then pushed off the screen on her bedroom window and escaped with her children. The fire department was summoned and the flames extinguished with comparatively little damage to the building.

NARY'S NEW POSTMASTER.

F. D. Coleman, Merchant and Farmer, Given Position.

Bemidji, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word comes from Washington that F. D. Coleman of Nary has been appointed postmaster at that place to succeed C. E. Harding, resigned. Mr. Coleman will take possession of the office imediately, or as soon as his commission arrives from the national capital.

Mr. Coleman, the new postmaster at Nary, has resided at that place most of the time for the past seven years, during which time he has engaged in the general merchandise business and has also conducted a farm near Nary. He has been successful in his undertakings, and being a liberal and broad-minded business man, has a large circle of friends in his home community. He is well known in Bemidji, having remained here for several months six years ago.

MURDER IS PREVENTED.

David Hill Trie to Shoot Another, But is Frustrated.

Cass Lake, Minn., July 25.——(Special to The Herald.)—David Hill, a Finlander, while engaged in a heated discussion with one of his companions yesterday, became enraged, and, reaching in his pocket, he pulled out a revolver, and, aiming it directly at the companion, was about to fire when another companion shoved his arm. The revolver was discharged, but the bullet went wild. Before Hill could do harm several bystanders seized him, relieved him of his gun and turned him over to the officials. He was given a hearing soon after and bound over to the grand jury.

RAISE NICE LAW POINT.

Legality of Certain Bemidji Proceedings Questioned.

Bemidji, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proceedings to test the validity of the action of the city council of Bemidji in organizing a municipal court for Bemidji was considered yesterday by Judge Stanton in district court, when the application of M. G. Slocum for an junction restraining the city from purchasing supplies for the municipal court ad allowing the use of a room in the city hall as court room was brought before the court.

F A Jackson appeared as counsel for Mr. Slocum, while City Attorney Gibbens represented the city and members of the council.

During the proceedings P. J. Russell intervened as attorney for H. W. Bailey, who was recently appointed judge of the court.

STAPLES' PITCHER IN WEST.

George Norris Makes Record in His New Field.

Staples, Minn., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Norris' ability as a pitcher has attracted attention elsewhere and he has gone to Forsyth, Mont., to accept a tempting offer where he appears to have "made good." A dispatch from the West says he pitched his first game against the Miles City, Mont., team a few days ago, winning by a score of 11 to 0. He has not recovered from the injuries received here and can only pitch in and out curves.

NEXT MEETING IS IN DULUTH

Swedish United Sons of America to Come to This City.

St. Paul, Minn., July 25.—The national convention of the Swedish United Sons of America came to a close last evening after electing the following officers:

Supreme president, Axel Rydahl, Menominee, Mich; supreme vice president, G. R. Johnson, Minneapolis; supreme secretary, John Naestrom, Calumet, Mich.; supreme treasurer, C. F. Rydahl, Marquette, Mich.; supreme examiner, Dr. Holcomb, St. Paul.

The next national convention will be held in 1910 at Duluth, not at Milwaukee, as was erroneously stated Thursday.

CUTTING BARLEY IN POLK COUNTY

Crop Outlook in Red River Country Appears to be Good.

Crookston, Minn., July 25.—(Spelal to The Herald.)—The program of the crops during week has been just fair. The early grain is coming on in excellent shape and is beyond the point where dry weather will effect it and is certain to make a big harvest, barring two possible setbacks, hot winds during the critical period of filling and maturing, and hail. Nothing outside of those two things can prevent a big yield of all early wheat, oats and barley and flax. During the past week the late sown grain has not made much progress on account of lack of moisture. A good soaking rain is needed to bring the late crop on to make a fair crop. Late grain will not yield heavily under the most favorable conditions from this time until harvest, but an average yield will result if a good rain falls within a few days.

A careful survey of the conditions in this section the past two days has developed the fact that there are to be found some fields which will yield very poorly, but these are the exception and not the rule. The coming week will witness the harvesting of many barley fields. Several farmers cut small fields this week, and a few harvested their oats, but they were of an exceptionally early variety. The oats and barley cut were all heavy straw and above average yield.

EX-CONGRESSMAN'S SON HURT.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 25.—Halder Boen, son of Former Congressman H. F. Boen, was seriously injured by falling from a load of grain while driving into this city yesterday afternoon. The wagon wheels passed over his chest and head, depressing the skull. Boen was immediately taken to a hospital for an operation.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston—The board of county commissioners have appropriated $350 to assist in paying for the expense attending the preparation of a county exhibit at the state fair.

Little Falls—A large number of home grown berries are being brought into the city daily. Red raspberries and black caps are predominating at present. The supply of home grown strawberries is nearly exhausted.

WISCONSIN

SEARCHING FOR LOST DAUGHTER

Montana Woman Scours "Little Italy" in Milwaukee for Child.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—For several weary months has Mrs. Maria Paulio, aged 64 years, the mother of 16-year-old Concettia Stranges, Lewiston, Mont., searched "little Italy" in Milwaukee for her daughter. The girl, who was married some months ago in Lewiston to Frank Stranges, was kidnaped and spirited away from her home shortly after the wedding and has not been found.

Members of a secret society, one of whom was accused by the girl of having wronged her, and who was arrested and is now in jail, are suspected. The police have been aiding the aged mothers, but thus far to no avail. It is now believed, however, that the girl was never taken to Milwaukee.

The man who was arrested at the instance of the girl is Carmellio Spencia. It is said that the girl may have been abducted by his friends, in order to prevent her testifying against him. Mrs. Paulio is certain that this is the case, for friends of the young man in jail have come to her, asking her to sign papers not to prosecute him. Just before the abduction, it is said, the girl was told to sign similar papers, but she refused.

LONE BANDIT BALKED.

Knocked Down by Fireman While Trying to Hold Up Train.

Appleton, Wis., July 25.—A lone bandit, with masked face and armed with a revolver, attempted to hold up passenger train No. 5 on the Northwestern road, a few miles north of here, about 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

The robber boarded the train at Appleton Junction, and when the train was a few miles out of that place he crawled down from the tender and covered Engineer Louis Wandell of Kaukauna with a revolver. Fireman Gustav Pahl struck the man over the head with his coal scoop, felling him to the floor. He then took the revolver from the bandit, who managed to jump from the engine.

Conductor Charles Bartley of Milwaukee was told of the attempted holdup when the train reached Hortonville, eleven miles north, and he telegraphed to this city. Police officers and a large posse of farmers started on a search for the bandit.

The robber wore a locomotive engineer's button on his coat, and it is presumed that he became desperate after losing his position or suffering some other reverse.

SAVED FROM LIVING DEATH.

Sewer Pipe Layer is Buried for Three Hours.

Merrill, Wis., July 25.—After being buried alive for three hours and twenty minutes, John Anderson, a sewer pipe layer, was rescued by fellow workmen. He had not suffered any injuries. While at work in a trench, Anderson was caught in a cave-in, but fortunately some heavy timbers fell in such a manner as to protect him partly against the load of earth. Others employed on the job at once set to work removing the debris, but it was not until after almost three and one-half hours' work that they succeeded in liberating the prisoner. They had hardly finished the rescue when the other side of the trench caved in, almost burying the men.

WOMAN MOTORIST FINED.

Wausau, Wis., July 25.—For the second time in the history of Wisconsin and the first time in Marathon county, a woman was arrested for exceeding the automobile speed limit. She is Mrs. T. H. Jacob of Kenosha. Her first arrest was last year, when a Milwaukee deputy sheriff pursued her on the Whitefish Bay road and she was fined $25. Judge Marchetti yesterday morning named the smallest figure allowable. The fine and costs were paid.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Lincoln—The feature of special interest which marked the first meeting in the congressional campaign in the Ninth district was the playing of Miss Ethel Minor at her violin at a political gathering in the interests of her father. She rendered several selections and was encored again and again.

Milwaukee—With no one to follow his body to the cemetery, William B. Hill, triple murderer and suicide, was quietly buried Thursday noon at Wanderer's Rest cemetery. Early in the afternoon a lone hearse drove up to the morgue and, followed by several professional pallbearers, the body was carted away to the grave

Neenah—So eager have the cigar band fiends become in this city and Menasha that the police have been instructed to interfere with their operations in front of stores and where cigar purchasers are assailed by boys and girls demanding bands.

Eau Claire—As the result of a kick on the head by a horse, little 4-year-old Elmer Howe is seriously ill at his home with lockjaw.

Ashland—The Wisconsin State Barbers' board of examiners were in the city Thursday and Friday and have been examining prospective barbers for this district. The board consists of the following officers all of whom were in the city: George McDonough of Superior, president; Henry Heine of Readsburg, treasurer; M. H. Whitaker of Milwaukee, secretary.

Grand Rapids—Fred Trudell of this city, while employed at the Consolidated Paper & Pulp company's plant, became caught in the reels of the calendar rolls Thursday in such a manner that he received injuries to his chest and shoulders. He is in a critical condition.

UPPER MICHIGAN

LIBRARY OFFER IN MUCH FAVOR

Houghton May Accept Proposition Made by Andrew Carnegie.

Houghton, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The propositon made Houghton by Andrew Carnegie's secretary, offering a donation of $15,000 for the erection of a library here providing that the village would furnish $1,500 a year toward its maintenance and improvement, and donate the site for the building, may yet be accepted and Joseph Croze and other members of the school board are interesting themselves in the offer.

The land owned by Mrs. Jacob Alt, where the old armory stood is for sale, and is looked upon as a very good location for a Carnegie library. The owner will be seen and if the land can be had at a reasonable figure the likelihood is that arrangements will be made for securing a source for the annual appropriation. It is thought that the village funds could stand the outlay.

Houghton has no public library at present and the value of such an institution is so generally recognized that the town will probably accept the offer and arrange to fulfill its part of the agreement.

MANY WERE CONVICTED.

Report of Houghton County Prosecutor for Six Months.

Houghton, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The semi-annual report of Prosecuting Attorney Angus W. Kerr has been sent to Attorney-General John E. Bird. It covers the total list of crimes for Houghton county for the past six months, ending June 30. Summed up the record of crime is about on an average with similar reports during Prosecuting Attorney Kerr's term of office. It is as follows: Total prosecutions, 465; convictions, 369; acquittals, 7; discharged on payment of costs, 45; nolle prosse, 3; discharged on examination, 1; escaped settlements, etc., 40. It wil be noted that the prosecuting attorney secured 369 convictions out of the 465 total number of cases. Crime is not on the increase in the county, although a number of serious charges have been disposed of during the past six months.

WILLIAMS ADMITS GUILT.

Calumet Uxoricide Has Acknowledged His Awful Crime.

Calumet, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Williams, who shot and killed his wife two weeks ago, was formally bound over for trial in the circuit court by Justice of the Peace Fisher. The penalty for the offense, if the man be convicted, is life imprisonment. When he was asked if he were guilty or not guilty, Williams said simply, "I'm guilty; I was driven to it." There was no evidence of insanity in his demeanor. He was taken back to the county jail at Houghton.

SALOONKEEPER SUES MINISTER.

Escanaba, Mich., July 25.—As an unusual development in the intermittent warfare being waged between the Escanaba Ministerial alliance and the saloon men of that city, a civil suit for damages for $5,000 against Rev. C. A. Lund, has been instituted by Victor Johnson, a liquor dealer at North Escanaba, who alleges malicious arrest.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

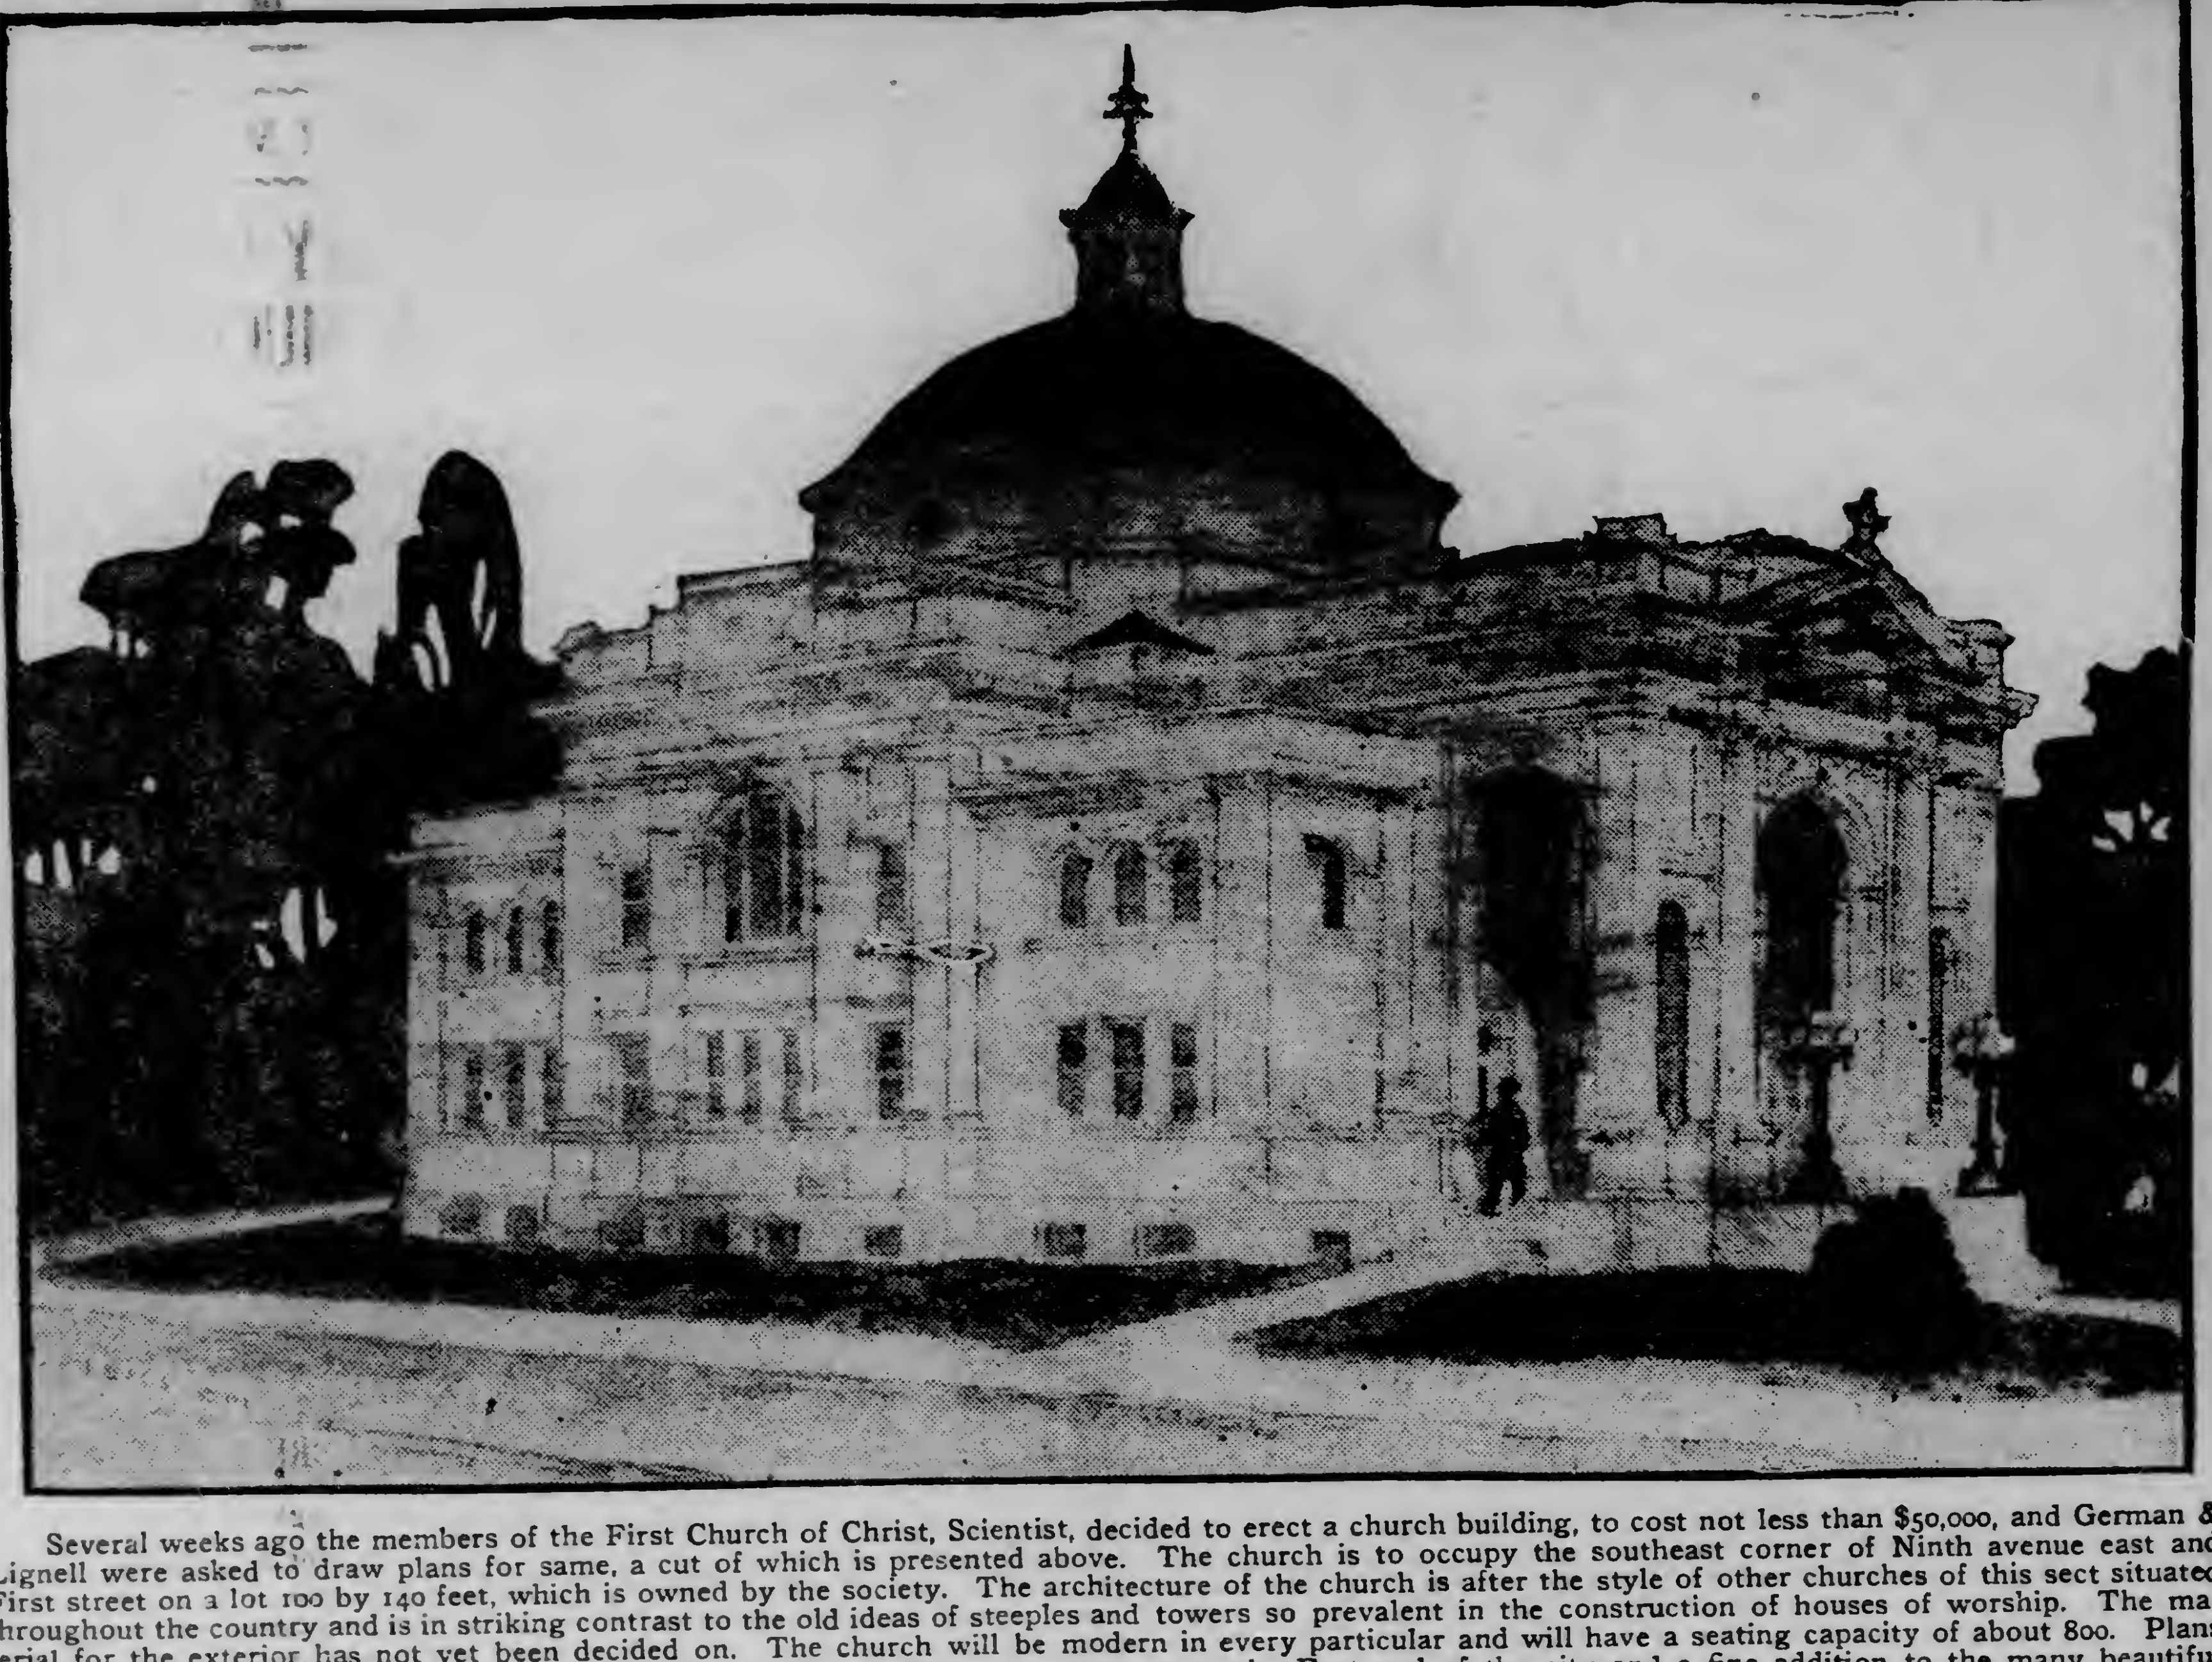
Baltimore American: A New Jersey pastor has devised the plan of passing cigars around to the men of the congregation so that they can smoke during service. For the sake of religion it is to be hoped that the pastor is a good judge of cigars.

Washington Post: "Wear the smile that won't come off. Laugh and be happy. There is health giving tonic in the laughter that comes from a happy heart. Disease and death abide in solemnity and morbidity," said a Washington pastor who is promulgating a "happiness religion." There may be a difference of opinion as to whether such sentiments are theological, but everyone will agree that they are mighty good advice.

Brooklyn Eagle: The American Unitarian association has placed advertising contracts with thirty-two daily papers and twenty-one weeklies, and will pay for the publication of pertinent paragraphs making clear the Unitarian view. This is practical missionary work. The churches will be crowded as soon as they master the art of newspaper advertising, because what they have to offer is something every man feels the need of at times. Repetition, in the right way, will lead all the stray sheep into the fold.

Kansas City Times: The Michigan pastor who is to be "tried" by a commission on a charge of horse trading may become a man of importance—at least a man of distinction. It seems that Pastor Ehle presides over the congregations of New Buffalo, Derby, Galien, Three Oaks and Lakeside, a considerable "circuit," and one requiring a good horse or some other reliable "conveyance." Now, if a preacher, dependent on some means of transportation in the performance of the arduous duty of attending five flocks has a chance to make a good horse trade, shall he be called to account for improving it? The ironical thing about this matter is that if the preacher had been the victim instead of the victor, his congregation probably would have felt sorry for him, but might have been slow to condemn the trade itself. It is all right for the members of the church to be "shrewd," but a pastor must show no capacity for getting ahead in material things, except on "donation" days.

THE NEW CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH TO BE ERECTED IN DULUTH



Several weeks ago the members of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, decided to erect a church building, to cost not less than $50,000, and German & Lignell were asked to draw plans for same, a cut of which is presented above. The church is to occupy the southeast corner of Ninth avenue east and First street on a lot 100 by 140 feet, which is owned by the society. The architecture of the church is after the style of other churches of this sect situated throughout the country and is in striking contrast to the old ideas of steeples and towers so prevalent in the construction of houses of worship. The material for the exterior has not yet been decided on. The church will be modern in every particular and will have a seating capacity of about 800. Plans to begin the work soon are being considered. The building will be an ornament to the East end of the city and a fine addition to the many beautiful churches in Duluth.

HEARST ARRIVES FROM EUROPE AND WILL PRESIDE AT CHICAGO CONVENTION

the party candidate for the presidency, would you accept the nomination?"

"I can not," came the reply quickly and with a decided emphasis. "I have given my word that under no circumstances will I be a candidate. I have given my word and will abide by it."

"Does that pledge hold good for future years—for 1912, for instance—as well as for this year?"

Again Mr. Hearst laughed, and he answered: "You have been going into my past, and here now you proceed into my future. I think that anything further from me today must be included in the arrangement I have already made." This referred to a promise to answer in writing, later in the day, any question the newspaper men might submit to him in written form.

Mr. Hearst will leave this afternoon for Chicago, where he will preside at the opening of the first national convention of the Independence party. He said that he and Mrs. Hearst had had a delightful time in Europe. They spent most of their time in Germany, "keeping off the main-traveled roads," as he expressed it. It was quite a restful vacation and they all enjoyed it.

As the party was about to leave the steamer, one of the interrogators pressed forward for just one more question. "Is there anything you may think of now, Mr. Hearst, that will be of public interest, which you will tell us—anything about which we havn't asked you?" he asked.

"No, there is not," came the smiling answer. "I feel pretty sure that if there were anything else you would have asked it."

Convention on Monday.

Chicago, July 25.—With the ratification today by the Independence party national committee of the plans for a temporary organization, which were formulated yesterday by the sub-committee on arrangements, all will be in readiness for the opening of the national convention of that party on Monday night. Selections for temporary officers were made, as follows: Temporary chairman, William R. Hearst, New York; temporary secretary, W. A. De Ford, New York; sergeant-at-arms, Frank Brust, Illinois.

The full national committee met today to pass upon the arrangements. It was said last night that Mr. Brust had declined to accept the tentative appointment as sergeant-at-arms, and that another, probably an Eastern man, might be chosen in his stead. About 900 delegates are expected to be in their seats in Orchestra hall when the gavel falls for the opening session. Every state in the Union, it is said, will be represented by delegates. There will be no delegates from the territories, and no alternates. Preliminary gossip on possibilities for the presidential nomination deals with seven candidates, or, more strictly speaking, six candidates exclusive of Mr. Hearst, who has announced that he does not desire the honor, notwithstanding he already has the indorsement of several states and the District of Columbia.

After Mr. Hearst, the candidates of greatest strength were said to be Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts, John Temple Graves of Georgia and M. W. Howard of Alabama. Mr. Hisgen is credited with being the choice of Mr. Hearst for the head of the ticket, and it was considered likely that, in event of another than Mr. Graves being named for president, the Georgia candidate would be nominated for the vice presidency. Mr. Hearst, according to advices received at the party headquarters last night, was due to arrive in New York from Europe today, and may be expected in Chicago on the Twentieth Century limited tomorrow morning. All of the delegations will caucus Monday afternoon, and the various committees will be announced on the opening session Monday night, after Mr. Hearst has delivered his "key-note speech," outlining the policies of the party in the coming campaign. Since there will be no contests for seats for the credentials committee to work over, it is believed now that the convention will proceed without delay to the adoption of a platform, which, it is expected, will be accomplished by Tuesday noon. Nominations will then be in order, and a third session may not be required.

running mate, Mr. Kern, other members of the sub-committee and a crowd of old friends, who had gathered there in anticipation of his coming.

Mr. Bryan made no speeches on his way into Chicago. He evinced great interest in the tirade of the sultan of Turkey calling for a constitutional form of government. On this point he said:

"Turkey has gone Democratic. Good. Maybe after a few more such nations have spoken, the Republican leaders will concede the right of the Filipinos to a constitution. The idea of governing people arbitrarily and outside of a constitution is un-American. And now it would seem that even Turkey repudiates the document."

The members of the subcommittee came in yesterday and last night, and such of them as were interviewed as to the probable selection for the chairmanship expressed the opinion that the wishes of Mr. Bryan in that respect would have much weight with them. Just whom he would favor was, prior to his arrival, a matter of conjecture. Party leaders, who had talked with Mr. Bryan recently, were quoted as saying that he had expressed no preference and that until he goes into the conference the choice will lie between several men as has been the case since the Denver convention.

Of those from whom the selection was considered likely to be made, Daniel Campau of Michigan, John H. Atwood of Kansas, Timothy E. Ryan of Wisconsin and John Lamb of Indiana were said to be the most favorably considered. Others who have been discussed for the place were Ollie James of Kentucky and Urey Woodson, Kentucky. Governor Haskell of Oklahoma was expected to be elected treasurer of the committee.

Members of the subcommittee intrusted with the selection were: Thomas Taggart, Indiana; Timothy E. Ryan, Wisconsin; Dr. E. T. Hall, Nebraska; J. E. Osborne, Wyoming; W. T. Brady, Oklahoma; John W. Tomlinson, Alabama; Nathan Cole, Jr., California; George W. Greene, Rhode Island; Josephus Daniels, North Carolina; Martin W. Wade, Iowa; Norman E. Mack, New York, and Urey Woodson, Kentucky.

Over Thirty-Five Years.

In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by all druggists.

him in this regard, would clip at least a fraction of a second off the record of 49 1-5. Instead, it took Halswell a full 50 seconds to cover the distance. He started hard, but just as in the case of last Thursday, he was all out when he came to the stretch, after rounding the turn where all the trouble in the previous race occurred.

Could Not Find a Flag.

A great cheer went up when Halswell finished, but much to the surprise of the spectators, it was several minutes before a flag was unfurled and sent to the top of the staff to denote a British victory. The blue jackets having this work in hand had mislaid their union jack, and they had to requisition one from the decorations of the stadium. Halswell had done what he believed to be right, but the experts feel that he has hardly justified his predictions that he was able to beat Carpenter and Robbins, both of whom made better time on Thursday than the English runner made today.

The running hop, step and jump was the only other event of the morning. Ahearne, United Kingdom, with 48 feet 3¾ inches; Lawson, Norway, 47 feet 2¾ inches, and McDonald, Canada, 46 feet 4 inches, qualified for the final. Both Ahearne and McDonald improved their jumps in the final, doing, respectively, 48 feet 1¼ inches and 48 feet 5¼ inches. Lawson got third place, with 47 feet 2⅝ inches. Bricker, Canada, with 43 feet 3 inches, and Platt Adams, New York A. C., with 46 feet 2 inches, were awarded certificates of merit for their jumps.

F. C. Irons, Chicago A. A.; Martin J. Sheridan, Irish-American A. C.; John J. Brennan, Marquette university, Wisconsin; D. R. Sherman, Dartmouth college; S. H. Bellah, Stanford university, California, and Frank Mount Pleasant, Carlisle Indian school, also competed, but their jumps were behind the leaders and were consequently not measured.

Hayes Visits Commons.

John J. Hayes, with the Marathon honors fresh upon him, visited the house of commons this afternoon. He was introduced to several of the members, who congratulated him upon his brilliant performance.

There was a fair attendance at the stadium this afternoon to witness the concluding contests of the Olympic games and the distribution of prizes. The winners of silver and bronze medals, diplomas of special merit and special commemorative medals formed on the far side of the arena and marched by the circle track to tables opposite the royal box, where the silver medallists received their tokens from the duchess of Rutland. The winners of the bronze medals were given their prizes by Catherine, duchess of Westminster, while the diplomas of merit and the commemorative medals were presented by Lady Desborough.

Porro, Italy, won the lightweight Graeco-Roman wrestling; Orliff, Russia, second, and Linden, Finland, third.

The middleweight of the Graeco-Roman wrestling was won by Martenssen, Sweden, with Anderson, Sweden, second, and Anderson, Denmark, third.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLING.

Cleveland, July 25.—A warrant was issued early today for the arrest of H. W. Gazell, secretary-treasurer of the Farmers' and Merchants' Banking company, which recently closed its doors. Gazell is charged with embezzling $32,325 of the bank's funds.

Tooth-Talks

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD OF ALVEOLAR DENTISTRY

ALVEOLAR DENTISTRY has done more to add to the science of Dentistry than all other discoveries and inventions for the past fifty years.

What do you know about this wonderful new Method.

Those who have read Dr. Martin's "TOOTH-TALKS" in the Twin City papers, or who have corresponded with him, know something about the Alveolar Method of Dentistry, but the great mass of the people have a very vague idea of this wonderful method by which missing and broken-down teeth can be replaced without the use of either the old-style bridge-work or plates.

The average dentist has only two means of replacing teeth:

1. By a Bridge—which is only a temporary affair—foul-smelling and insanitary.

2. By extracting all the teeth and making a False Plate—and everybody knows that a false plate is insanitary, incapable of masticating food properly, a torture to the wearer and a continual source of inconvenience.

Dr. G. Gordon Martin's Alveolar Method aims to SAVE your good or partly good teeth, cure your gum disorders, tartar accumulations, etc., and then replace the missing teeth without the use of either the old-style bridge-work or plates—by use of the Alveolar Method.

Send your address today for a copy of Dr. Martin's book, "Alveolar Dentistry."

It will be immediately mailed to you, absolutely free of all charge or obligation, and post-paid.

It costs you nothing to find out about this wonderful new method.

Patients are coming to us daily from all parts of the Northwest.

Write today for this book and learn how to obtain "Tooth Comfort."

Real Estate For Sale.

SEVERAL REAL ESTATE DEALS CONSUMMATED

Old Y. M. C. A. Property on Superior Street is Sold to James McCahill for $33,000—Many Sales Reported of Unimproved Lots in Various Parts of the City to People Who Intend to Build Homes the Coming Year—Owners Show No Inclination to Weaken on Prices.

A number of trades have been made in Duluth real estate during the past week including a few good-sized deals, one of them being centrally located Superior property. Realty prices are firm in every part of the city and there is no tendency toward selling at what the owner considers a sacrifice, in fact, the owners are more inclined toward holding out for higher prices. During the past few weeks quite a number of offers made through local real estate brokers' offices have been refused. The brokers claim that their greatest trouble is in getting the prospective buyer and the owner together as regards a price satisfactory to both. The sales for the week have been pretty well scattered over the city, many lots being sold for improvement in the eastern and western ends and on the hillside. While the improvement is not so lively as the real estate men would like to see it, the market is a long way from being a dead one and those who are following the real estate business express confidence that the conditions will continue to get better.

One of the largest sales reported this week was that of the old Y. M. C. A. property at Eighteen East Superior street to James McCahill, of this city. The consideration was $33,000 and the property was bought for an investment, according to its new owner. The property in question comprises a twenty-five foot lot fronting the lower side of Superior street and running back to Michigan street. The ground is occupied by a two story brick structure with a basement and sub-basement. The building is about twenty years old.

L. A. Larsen company reports the following deals closed during the last two weeks: Lots 1 and 2, block 6, Hazelwood Park addition, sold to Iver A. Norman, for $425; lot 7, block 77, London addition, sold to Karl Cromsdahl, for $250, lot 12, block 62, London addition, for Robert P. McDermott to Genevieve M. Brunet, for $2,000; lot 6, block 9, Chandler Park addition, to Adolph Johnson, for $375; lot 4, block 62, London addition, to Charles A. Hilmes, for $250; 40 acres of land in northeast quarter, section 1-51-13, to a local party for $500; lot 307, block 54, Duluth proper, Second division, for John McAvoy, for $15,000. Mr. Larson reports considerable activity in the eastern part of the city and has the earnest money on two corners, sold in the central part of the East end. There is a tendency on the part of the buyers, he says, to pick up property as early as possible, and it seems to be the general belief that good property on improved streets and avenues, well situated as to car service and distance, will not be cheaper, and if there is an occasional piece offered for less than the market value it is invariably picked up at once.

Among the Duluth firms that are widening their scope of business to keep pace with the growth of the city is the Whitney Wall company which this week incorporated to do a general real estate, mortgage loan and insurance business. M. J. Mullin formerly of Washington, D. C., who has been in Mr. Wall's office for the past year has purchased an interest in the firm and will, hereafter have charge of the real estate and loan department. Mr. Wall has for the last four or five years been making a specialty of building management and he will continue to give this department of the business his personal oversight. Mr. Wall will leave in a few days for Chicago to attend the national convention of building managers which occurs at the Auditorium hotel, Aug. 10 to 14, after which he will visit Washington, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Montreal and Quebec to study the methods of the building managers in those cities. The management of buildings has come to be regarded as a special business and the scope and detail of the work would astonish one not familiar with it. The firm will attempt a new departure for realty concerns of Duluth by establishing an auctioneering department, which will conduct real estate sales and other big sales which are similarly looked after in the Eastern cities. Whitney Wall & Co., have engaged the services of one of the best auctioneers in the East a man with twenty-five years' exclusive experience in the business. Auction sales of real estate are being looked on with greater favor in the West, and the courts are disposed to look on them as the most equitable way to dispose of real estate.

William H. Bradbury has purchased from Mrs. Carrie Tufte the residence property described as lots 11 and 12, block 11, Portland division, for $6,500.

The deed was recorded this week transferring lots 5 and 6, block 12, Central division of Duluth from Louis Lepman to Georger A. Hormel, for $15,500. Mr. Hormel will improve the Michigan street property purchased with a building for his branch packing house business.

MARINE NEWS

BOOM STILL FAR AWAY

Last Week of July Finds the Marine Situation Unchanged.

Some Boats Laid Up and Others Running at a Loss.

The beginning of the last week of July finds the marine trade in a bad way. Every week brings news of more boats being laid up by their owners, who can see no profit in operating them under the present conditions and at present over half of the wild fleet has been put out of commission. Scores of boats have not made a trip this season, the Duluth-Superior harbor having its share lying at anchorage in the bay.

At the Missabe ore docks, it is stated today that there is no change in the working force nor the amount of the shipments, nor is there any in sight. No additions will be made for some weeks and, unless near the close of the season, it is thought that more ore will be needed on the lower lake docks than can be carried at the pjresent rate, there will be no rush. The Pittsburg Steamship company's boats continue to carry most of the ore and the independents have small chance of getting larger portions than they have had.

The labor unions are by no means satisfied with their condition, but are in no position to better it at present. Hundreds of men, who followed the lakes in former years, have been unable to secure work this season and are either idle or have turned to some other pursuits. The Lake Carriers chose a good year to put the "open shop" plan into effect, for they have had little or no trouble reconciling the men to it with conditions as they are.

There are rumblings all season, although there is little likelihood of an outbreak. The policy of some of the vessel owners of demanding that the men give up their union cards is not meeting with the approval of the unions. One young fellow who arrived in Duluth yesterday said that he was given the alternative of signing a sworn statement that he did not belong to a labor union and never would or quitting his job and he quit. The unions are endeavoring to checkmate such moves, but they have been unsuccessful thus far. Only a few of the lines are said to be following the plan.

TO REMOVE PORT LIGHTS.

Caution to Mariners on Account of Work at East Gate Basin.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch, U. S. A. issues the following warning to mariners:

"The government dredging for the extension of the east gate basin, near the Interstate bridge, will necessitate the temporary removal of two of the post lights in that vicinity, one being Post light No. 5, a white light on the easterly edge of the east gate basin, about 1,600 feet easterly from the Interstate bridge, and the other being Post light No. 2, which is a fixed red lantern light marking the easterly edge of the east gate basin, about 1,200 feet southerly from the No. 5 post light and about 2,000 feet southeasterly from the Interstate bridge.

"These will be taken up and removed early next week, probably on July 28 or 29. No arrangements have yet been made as far as known to the engineers' office, for the replacing of these post lights. Vessels should therefore be prepared to find these lights missing after the time above mentioned.

"The channel buoys which marke the east edge of the east gate basin will be moved so as to mark the edge of the twenty-foot water of the enlarged basin at the time of removing the post lights."

New Breakwater Light.

Marquette, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The framework for the new breakwater light, to replace the light that has done service at the end of the pier for many years past, is nearing completion. The new light will be considerably higher than the old one, and will be in operation in a few weeks.

Boats Plentiful.

Cleveland, July 25.—Boats are more plentiful than cargoes in all branches of trade and there will not be much change in the situation until some surplus tonnage is taken off to the market. The long looked for improvement in trade has not been felt as yet, but vessel men are hopeful that the demand for tonnage will improve in all lines after tho middle of next month.

Marine Notes.

Work on the different dredging contracts in the harbor is progressing well and nearly every dredge owned here is working. The rubble mound breakwater at the Superior entry is also being constructed in good time.

The steamer Russia of the Port Huron & Duluth line arrived this morning with a number of passengers, besides its regular cargo of freight.

The steamer Ionic, the Northern Navigation company's package freighter, which was brought to the Superior shipyards for repairs this week, left for Port Arthur last night under her own steam.

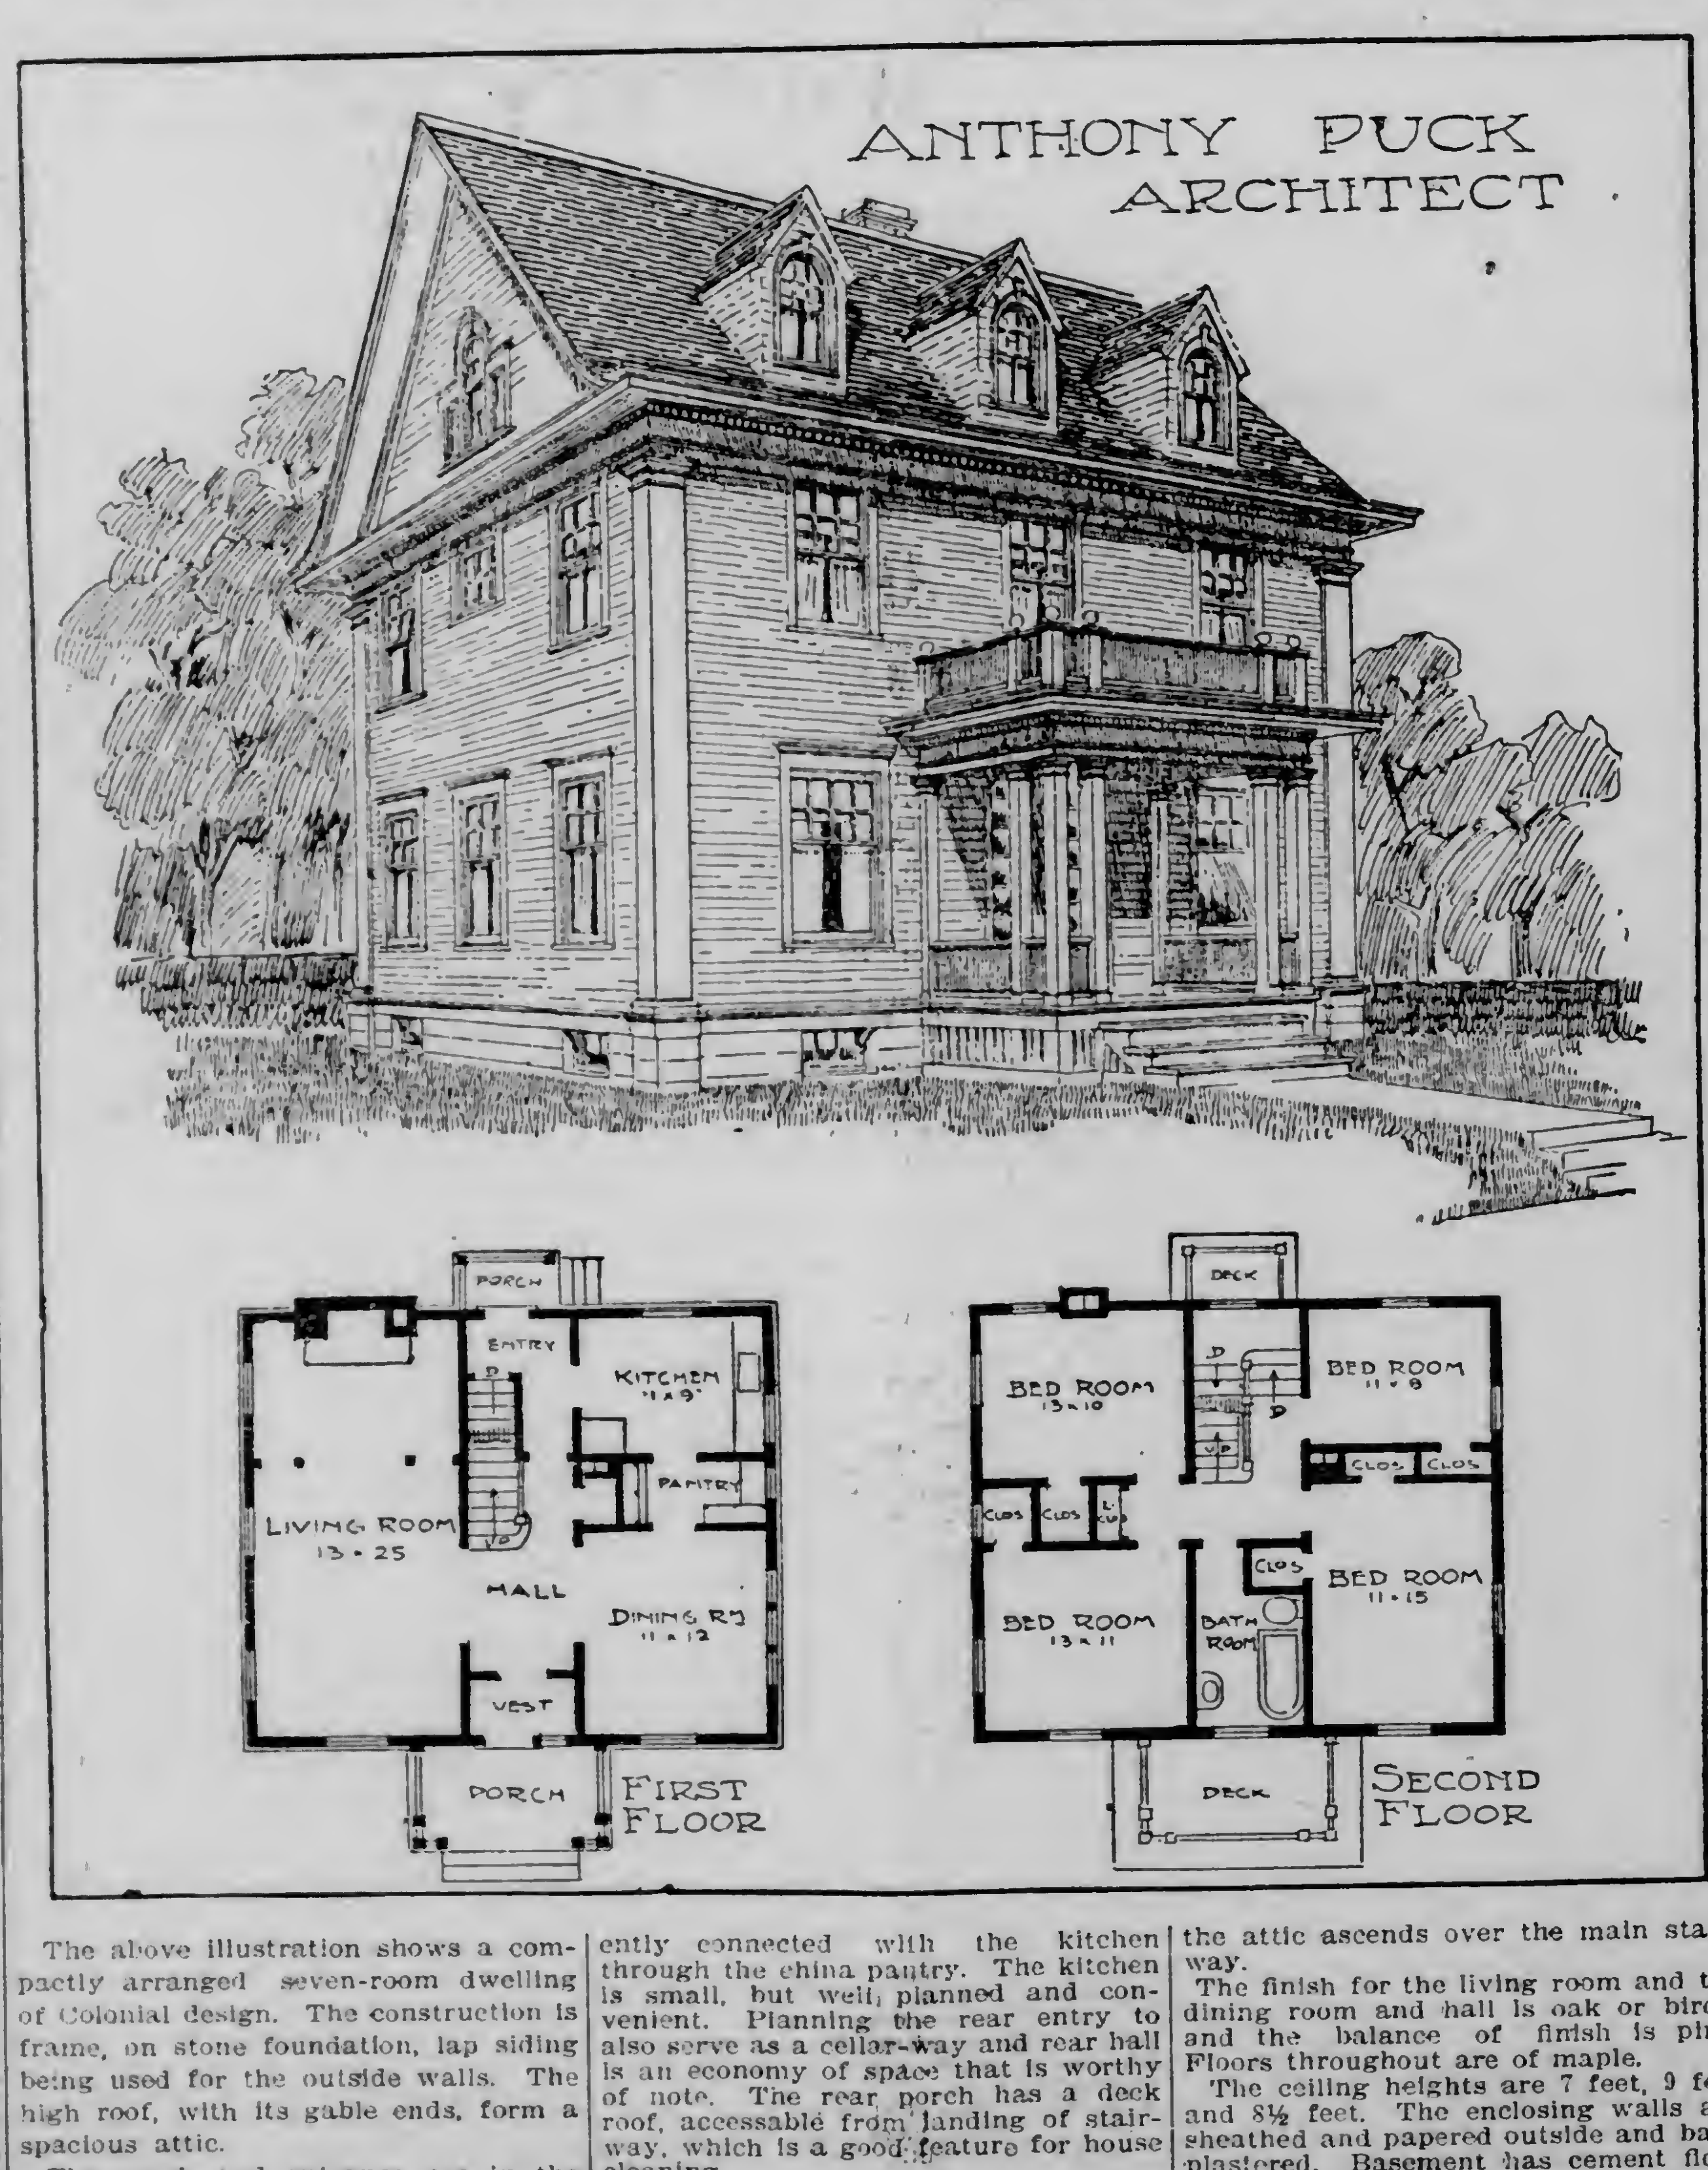
Seven boats left for the lower lakes light yesterday, being unable to secure cargoes of any kind here. Most of them were small carriers.

The hulk of the steamer Lafayette, which is to be sold, has been stripped of machinery and it is expected the sale will soon be made.

The Tionesta of the Anchor line will leave for Buffalo tonight with one of the largest passenger lists of the season.

The Minnesota bankers have taken up practically every berth in the steamers America and Easton of the Booth line, which will leave for Isle Royale and Port Arthur Sunday and Monday, respectively.

HANDSOME HOUSE OF COLONIAL DESIGN FOR $4,200



The above illustration shows a compactly arranged seven-room dwelling of Colonial design. The construction is frame, on stone foundation, lap siding being used for the outside walls. The high roof, with its gable ends, form a spacious attic.

The porch and entrance are in the center of thee levation. The large, cheerful living room, with a large fireplace at the end is the feature of the first floor plan. On the opposite side of the hall is the dining room, conveniently connected with the kitchen through the china pantry. The kitchen is small, but well planned and convenient. Planning the rear entry to also serve as a cellar-way and rear hall is an economy of space that is worthy of note. The rear porch has a deck roof, accessable from landing of stairway, which is a good feature for house cleaning.

Four light and airy bedrooms are planned in the second story. Ample closet space is also provided. The bathroom is situated to be most accessible from all the rooms. The stairway to the attic ascends over the main stairway.

The finish for the living room and the dining room and hall is oak or birch, and the balance of finish is pine. Floors throughout are of maple.

The ceiling heights are 7 feet, 9 feet and 8½ feet. The enclosing walls are sheathed and papered outside and back plastered. Basement has cement floor and is divided into a laundry, heater room, fuel room and cellar.

Including hot water heat and plumbing, the estimated cost of such a home complete is $4,200.

CELEBRATE LABOR DAY

Trades Assembly Makes Preliminary Arrangements for Event.

The first steps toward arranging for their annual celebration of Labor day, which occurs on the first Monday in September, Sept. 7, were taken last evening by the trades assembly, at the regular bi-monthly meeting, held in Kalamazoo hall.

The following Labor day committee, who will have entire charge of the assembly's end of the celebration, was appointed by President S. S. McDonald: E. P. Peters, C. B. Uncefher, Edward Blackwood, Paul Newmann and P. G. Phillips. Following the appointment of the committee, considerable discussion arose as to whether or not there should be a Labor day program this year. Several members were against having one, claiming that each year, in the past, had proved it to be an object of disapproval and criticism, and had always caused a great deal of dissatisfaction and trouble among the different members, who never failed to find the advertisements of unfair shops on its pages. There were many arguments for and against the program, and no decision was reached.

Mr. McDonald, in his new office of president, also appointed the following committees, who will serve for a term of six months: Organization committee, Henry Perrault, F. Cody, C. B. Uncefher and Edward Blackwood; publication and lecture committee, E. P. Peters, Mrs. M. McInnis and Miss Anna Murphy; city council committee, Joseph Miller, P. G. Phillips and E. Richard; Socitay of Equity, J. H. Baker, D. Logan and W. R. Thompson.

Among the many communications read last evening there was one from lodge 123, I. A. of M., Paducah, Ky., which asked that "an amendment be made to the Constitution of the United States, to read: 'Laws enacted by congress and duly signed, shall be constitutional,' and also, be it resolved that 'a court desiring to render a decision in a case where the law, as made by congress, is not fully understood, the court shall postpone the decision and ask congress to translate the meaning of said enactment.'" Such a petition and resolution, of course, is the outgrowth of the much-discussed decision of the supreme court in regard to the Sherman anti-trust law, applied to labor organizations. The communication was filed.

The compassion of the assembly was awakened last evening by the appearance of a blind man, of middle age, carrying a staff and led by a little boy The man was John Yahoe, and the card that he showed stated that he was a member of the Victor Miners' association of Denver, and had been made totally blind in a mine explosion which occurred in Silver City, Colo., in 1902. The little lad who led him was his 10-year-old son, who, with another still younger son, Yahoe is trying to support and send to school on the donations he receives from the different labor organizations throughout the country. The trades assembly, whose pity was aroused by the pitiful condition of the man, voted a small sum from its treasury to help the poor fellow in his struggle for a living and the education of his two little motherless sons.

An open meeting will be held Monday evening in Kalamazoo hall by the Women's Union Label league, No. 180. A special effort is being made by the members to have a large attendance at this meeting, as W. E. McEwen has accepted an invitation to address them. His subject has not been announced, but it will be in connection with the work that is being done by the league.

WHEAT HAS SOFT TONE

The Bearish Influences Predominate During the Short Session.

Flax is Quiet and Closes Weak in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 25.—Bearish influences predominated in the American markets today and prices fell off in consequence. The close was weak everywhere.

The bulls made ado about further reports of damage to the crop in the Northwest, but their reports were offset by rains in the West, a slack demand from abroad and liberal receipts at the winter wheat centers.

Liverpool closed ⅜d lower.

The July option closed ⅜c higher in Duluth, ⅝c lower in Chicago, ½c lower in Minneapolis, ⅛c lower in New York, ⅜c lower in St. Louis, 1-⅛c lower in Kansas City and ¼c lower in Winnipeg. TOOK POISON AFTER QUARREL

John McGillen Clears Mystery of Mrs. Lewis' Death.

St. Paul, Minn., July 25.—The mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Ida Lewis, who died at the city hospital, Tuesday night, three hours after being removed from a room in the Euclid hotel, has been practically solved. John McGillen, the woman's companion, who disappeared immediately after summoning a physician by telephone, returned to this city yesterday from Duluth. His story of the woman's death virtually substantiates the original theory advanced by the police—that the woman met her death at her own hand, from an overdose of morphine.

McGillen, when interviewed, was reticent, and wasreluctant in stating any circumstance that led up to the womicent, and was reluctant in stating any the so-called "missing man" for whom the police have been searching. When asked as to his intimacy with the woman, he stated that he had known her for years and visited the woman in her apartments Monday night and the greater portion of Tuesday forenoon. Late in the afternoon, he says, he called upon the woman and found her in an unconscious condition. Fearing that she was dangerously ill, he rushed out into the street and called a physician to her bedside, then hastily went to the union station and took a train for Duluth.

When asked for a possible reason for his leaving the city, McGillen said:

"Oh, the circumstances of our visit. We had a little quarrel the night before and—— Well, I don't want any notoriety, that's all."

When pressed for an explanation of their quarrel, and whether or not the woman made any threats to do away with herself, he said:

"Well, she liked me pretty well and we had a dispute—I don't know why she did it," he added.

His statement as to the possible incentive for the woman's death gives rise to the fact that the woman committed suicide after the two had quarreled. Whether or not she made any threats to do away with herself and McGillen, the latter will not say.

WHEN SMOKING IS LEAST HARMFUL.

It is quite certain that much may be done to diminish the risk of tobacco amblyopia by paying attention to certain points of personal hygiene.

For instance, a rule should be made never to smoke upon an empty stomach, but as far as possible only after meals. It is absolutely bad to smoke before dinner, and equally bad to smoke late at night to keep awake at one's work.

It should also be forbidden to chew the cigar between the teeth, as many smokers are wont to do.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Price Movement Narrow at Start, But Dealings Large.

Market Became Stronger and Closed Active Near the Top.

New York, July 25.—The opening movement of prices of stocks today was narrow, but dealings were on a liberal scale. Fractional declines were in the majority and exceeded ½ in Union Pacific, St. Paul and Baltimore & Ohio. Westinghouse Electric sold at a decline of 2 and Western Union 1½.

Sufficient demand developed at the decline generally increase prices and established them at a fractional range over last night. The demand was largest for Union Pacific, St. Paul, Reading and United States Steeel.

The market closed strong and active. There was a comprehensive uplift of prices which placed practically all the stocks traded in 1 to 1½ over yesterday's final prices. Short lines were covered extensively and professed knowledge of the contents of Judge Taft's speech of acceptance was ascribed as the grounds for buying. There were fractional recessions in the final dealings.

SERVICES OF GOVERNOR

As Speaker in the Coming Campaign, Desired by Bryan.

Nebraskan Asks Governor Johnson to Visit Him at Lincoln.

St. Paul, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota today received a personal letter from W. J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for the presidency, requesting his early presence at "Fairview," and asking him when he could be available for speaking purposes.

The later question is asked, Mr. Bryan says in his letter, in view of the numerous requests that have been received for Governor Johnson for speaking dates in the various states. He says the demand in this respect is general, and he hopes the Minnesota governor will be able to give them his attention.

Mr. Bryan refers to the visit made him at Lincoln by the Minnesota delegation to the Denver convention and the cordial support tendered him by the individual delegates. He was told then that Governor Johnson would be available when wanted and he now hastens to request his presence at Fairview that details concerning the campaign may be talked over.

Governor Johnson is not in the city, he being out on a lecture tour, but the contents of Mr. Bryan's letter were wired him. It is expected that on its receipt Governor Johnson will go direct to Lincoln.

In the absence of Governor Johnson, the text of the letter was not given out.

Governor Johnson was an opponent of Mr. Bryan for the Democratic nomination.

GOODMAN IS AN OLD OFFENDER

Short-Change Artist Arrested Five Times in Duluth.

William Goodman, a character well known to the local police, and often termed "The Jew Kid," appeared in police court this morning. He is the man who tried to work a short-change game on Alderman Trebillion's grocery store on Lake avenue, yesterday.

Goodman has been arrested five times in Duluth since 1904, on charges of vagrancy, theft, etc. In the five arrests he drew jail sentences aggregating 250 days.

His hearing was set for next Monday by Judge Cutting.

Charles W. Moore, a negro, was given a jail sentence of three months straight for petit larceny. He stole a watch from another negro, F. E. Nelson, yesterday, and pawned it for $7.50. He got the watch by cutting the chain, but the loss was discovered a few minutes after the theft, and the police notified. Moore was arrested while in the act of taking a ferry for Superior.

JUDGE GUY HERE.

Is Member of Supreme Court of New York.

Judge C. L. Guy, justice of the supreme bench of New York, is at the Spalding today. Mr. Guy is making a trip through the West. He attended the Democratic convention at Denver, traveled through several of the Western states and is now en route to the Yellowstone National Park.

From what he has seen of the West, Judge Guy is enthusiastic over the conditions that prevail in almost every state west of the Ohio river. His present trip is purely for pleasure. Judge Guy will leave Duluth tomorrow evening.

HOW CARLOS RAISED THE WIND.

"Carlos Ribera an' me once went broke in Atlantic City," said the sailor to the Cincinnati Enquirer. "Broke in the morning, we had enough by noon for a champagne lunch with lobster and sparrow-grass. Carlos turned the trick—I'll tell you how.

"He took our last dime and bought ten little sand shovels of tin. He stuck the shovels in his pocket and walked along the beach until he came to a group of old Philadelphia millionaires what he knowed by sight. The millionaires sat on camp stools under an umbrella tent on the edge of the sea. Carlos Ribera forced a wild glitter into his eyes and, waltzin' up to them, he says:

"'Gents, I'm a dead man. Last night I was murdered. Who done it? Who knows? Gents, will you help a poor unburied corpse to find his murderer?'

"'Yes, yes,' says the millionaires. They exchanged an anxious look. 'Who do you think done it?' they asked.

"'The Wright brothers,' says Carlos.

"'Them flyin' machine chaps?'

"'The same,' Carlos replied. 'O, gents, do you know the black-hearted villains? Can you locate 'em?'

"One of the millionaires riz from his stool.

"'Why,' says the first millionaire, 'them Wright boys is up to my hotel. I'll have them landed in jail before luncheon. You jest wait here, my man.'

"'Yes, you jest wait here,' says the others.

"But Carlos detained them as they was hastenin' away.

"'Hold on, gents,' he says. 'Don't go yet. I want you to promise to dig my grave for me.'

"They all promised.

"Then Carlos took out his shovels.

"'Dig it with these here gold shovels,' he says. 'I must insist on that.' His eyes now glittered wild, indeed. 'Buy the gold shovels from the corpse, pay for them in gold or its equivalent, then find the murderers and dig the grave. Is it agreed?'

"They looked about. There was no help in sight. Carlos picked his teeth with his caseknife, careless like. They rained gold and notes on him, took the shovels and made off. They had a relieved air as if they had just been saved from soul rackin' peril.

"All that morning the cops was searchin' the beach and board walk for a dangerous maniac what thought he was dead, but Carlos and me set in a Ventnor cafe surrounded with lobster and champagne."

In our local market everything went fast today. Butte & Superior seems to have gotten up steam again and is going fast. Ballaklava steady around $7. This one will take on a good advance in the near future. Greene-Cananea, Superior & Pittsburg and North Butte continue fairly strong. Next fall there will be nothing to it. They are all a buy right now.

BOSTON CLOSING LETTER: Among local copper brokers this morning the demand for metal is reported much more brisk. No one now doubts that there has been a real and decided betterment in metal conditions. The strength of Amalgamated and North Butte in this market continues noteworthy, and especially since other issues are more or less affected by the reaction in the big market. But generally speaking the reaction has only served as additional proof of strength of all metal issues. La Salle is weak this morning on Calumet & Hecla report, which reads that the Caldwell development has not been as satisfactory as was expected. In this connection it must be remembered that the company is not famous for the issuance of rosy colored documents. We still hold the positive side of the market and think it should be unhesitatingly purchased on such opportunities as the present.—MILLER & CO.

CARBOLIC ORDINANCE

Measure Regulating Sale of Acid Recommended By Patton.

Suicides Are Becoming Altogether Too Numerous in Duluth.

Suicides and attempted suicides are becoming altogether too plentiful in Duluth.

At the council meeting next Monday evening Health Commissioner Patton will recommend to the city fathers that they adopt a carbolic acid ordinance. He thinks prospective suicides have too easy a time of it buying the deadly poison.

The health commissioner will suggest that a measure be passed to the effect that all druggists be required to dispense carbolic acid only in a 5 per cent solution. In a 5 per cent solution carbolic acid is not dangerous. Other cities have a similar ordinance, and it has been found to work out very successfully. Under present conditions local druggists are selling pure carbolic acid, and one swallow is sufficient to kill a person.

There has been an epidemic of attempted suicides in Duluth during the spring and summer. Most of those desiring to end their lives chose the carbolic acid route, probably the most painful means of death they could have chosen. Some of the attempts at suicide met with success, and, in other cases, medical attention was given in time to save the lives of the sufferers, although most of them thus saved will remain scarred for life.

TROUBLES GET AIRING

Legal Fight Over McAuliffe Boy is Waxing Warmer.

Strong Charges and Counter-Charges Made by Parents.

Worn out by the trying session under Attorney McClearn's cross-questioning, yesterday afternoon and evening, Mrs. Lucia E. McAuliffe was unable to appear in court this morning to continue the habeas corpus proceedings which are to determine whether she or Dr. McAuliffe are to retain possession of the child.

The evening session, which was held last night to hurry the case, continued until midnight, Mrs. McAuliffe being on the stand, both afternoon and evening, a total of nearly five hours. The ordeal was a most trying one, Mr. McClearn's questions being of a most personal nature, and she could not stand the strain.

Dr. T. L. Chapman, who attended Mrs. McAuliffe, reported to the court that she was unable to appear, and Judge Dibell granted a continuance until Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Quite a crowd of the curious, who had gathered to hear the proceedings, were disappointed.

After the examination of Deputy Sheriff Angus Kennedy, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. McAuliffe was put on the stand at the request of Mr. McClearn, for Dr. McAuliffe.

Under Mr. McClearn's questions, Mrs. McAuliffe stated that she took up music professionally five years ago. She claimed that she had never received money from her husband to pursue her musical studies, having earned all she spent that way. She said that she studied under Mr. Tyler, taking three lessons a week. She had sung professionally in Duluth, Superior, Hibbing, Eveleth, Virginia, Tower, Ely, Cloquet and Port Arthur. She claimed that this was, for the latter part of the time of her residence with her husband, her means of livelihood.

"Dr. McAuliffe did the ordering for the last two years that I lived with him," she said; "he thought that he could do this much more economically, and so we did without."

Attorney McClearn commenced a line of testimony, in the attempt to establish Dr. McAuliffe's charges that Mrs. McAuliffe was addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors. Mrs. McAuliffe denied emphatically that she was in the habit of using intoxicating liquors, but stated that she did not consider taking an occasional drink of beer or a high ball is using intoxicating liquor. She had drunk beer and high balls at home, at Charles W. Thornton's and at the Spalding cafe. She had been at Boyle's, she said, but always with her husband.

When asked what homes she had visited, or what homes she knew of where they served intoxicating liquors, she asked for a city directory, saying that she thought they were served in nearly every home in Duluth. Mrs. McAuliffe emphatically denied that she had been ordered out of the Hibbing hotel on account of being intoxicated, or that she had been warned by any of the hotel attendants.

Mr. McClearn questioned her at length in regard to the relations with Charles Maginnis. Mrs. McAuliffe denied ever having driven away from Thornton's in a hack with Maginnis while both were intoxicated. She had never been undre the influence of liquor in her life, she said.

The McAuliffes were in the habit of keeping beer in thir flat. They had done this, she said, since they went on a yacht trip soon after they were married, and Dr. McAuliffe at that time paid her $1 to drink her first glass of beer. She left home June 1, 1907, she claimed. Their differences commenced, she said, when she refused to go to Mexico with Dr. McAuliffe, where the latter was to accompany a patient and his wife, to whom Mrs. McAuliffe objected.

Mrs. McAuliffe testified that on one occasion, Dr. McAuliffe had thrown her the whole length of the hall when she came to see her son while he was sick, and that she had been seriously bruised by his treatment of her.

She said that when she was planning to leave the doctor's home, he said that if she tried to take the boy with her he would drag her and her family in the mud from Lester Park to West Duluth.

At the adjournment of the afternoon session it was agreed that an evening session should be called to hasten proceedings. A conference of both sides was held before court was called to order, at 8 sharp, in the hope of reaching an agreement, but efforts toward this end proved futile and the case went on.

Mrs. McAuliffe went on the stand again. She testified that the doctor had refused to give her money, except on very rare occasions, and had cut off her credit at most of the stores and millinery and dressmaking establishments in the city. He wanted to pick her friends, she said, and wanted her to give up her relatives and all her present intimate friends. This she refused to do.

Thomas Clark, Jr., and Guy A. Eaton, postmaster, were called by Attorney McClearn, in an effort to prove that Mrs. McAuliff was addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors. Mr. Eaton said that he had known the McAuliffes for a number of years, but had never known Mrs. McAuliffe to be under the influence of liquor. He did not know whether she ever drank or not. Mr. Clark was a customs officer when Mrs. McAuliffe, Prof. Tyler and party went to Isle Royale to sing in a concert. Mr. McClearn endeavored to prove by him that Mrs. McAuliffe was drunk on this occasion, but he said that he did not know of it.

Dr. McAuliffe then took the stand in his own behalf. He had lived in Duluth for twenty years, he said. The doctor said his wife always had credit at any store in Duluth during her life with him, and that he never made objections to bills contracted by her.

He objected to his wife's singing in public, he said, especially for money. He objected to her singing in the cathedral and directing the choir for money, and protested, not only to her, but to her relatives as well. He never told his wife she must drop her relatives, he said, but he did tell her that she must give up the companionship of Charles Maginnis. He had also told her, he said, that they would have to stop going to places where liquor flowed so freely.

Dr. McAuliffe testified that on Nov. 10, 1906, he refused to go to a party at Sam Rothermels, and that this was the beginning of their trouble. He said that next day his wife's mother and sister called upon him and heaped all manner of abuse upon him for refusing to accompany his wife on this occasion.

As to Mrs. McAuliffe's alleged propensity to indulge in intoxicating liquors, he said that she frequently came home in the afternoon under the influence of liquor, and frequently at night. She often went to Boyle's and to the Spalding, he said, and usually drank enough there to become under the influence of liquor. He testified that, in spite of his protests, these conditions were steadily growing worse.

He denied that he had ever abused his wife, thrown her across the hall or called her vile names. He nevr had any objection, he said, to her calling on the boy.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Culkin, Dr. McAuliffe stated that he had no longer any affection for his wife, and did not want her in his house at all. He stated, however, that he is willing to share the boy with his wife, and let him live a part of the time with his mother. The session adjourned with Dr. McAuliffe still on the stand.

PHYSICIANS TAKE A HAND

Milk Question Will be Considered at a Special Meeting.

City Council May Revoke Licenses of Offending Dairymen.

The St. Louis County Medical association has decided to take a hand in the fight for a better milk ordinance. A special meeting of the organization has been called for next Tuesday evening at the Commercial club.

The only subject to be taken up will be the city's milk supply, and in all probability strong resolutions favoring a more rigid ordinance will be adopted. It is expected that Health Officer Patton will be commended for the stand he has taken in regard to the matter. Sentiment among local physicians seems to universally favor the adoption of such a measure as has been recommended by Dr. Patton.

The milk supply will be the most important question to come up at the council meeting next Monday evening. It is understood that the city fathers will call upon Healh Commissioner Patton to furnish a complete list of all the dairies in the city, together with their official standings, and that steps will be taken to revoke the licenses of such dairymen as do not comply with the existing city ordinance.

Probably no attempt will be made to revoke any license Monday, but this may come at later meetings. The inspection of all the dairies of the city is as yet incomplete, but it is being forwarded as rapidly as possible.

The milkmen are highly wrought up over the charges that have been brought against them, and they are meeting this afternoon with their attorney, Thomas McKeon. They will decide just what stand to take in the present agitation.

"Duluth is not the only city in the country which is having trouble with its dairymen," said Dr. Patton this morning. "The current issues of The City Hall, a magazine dealing with municipal affairs, takes up the question and deals with the unreasonable stand dairymen are taking. The periodical, editorially, says it is a remarkable fact that every attempt to improve the purity of milk is promptly opposed by the milk industry, which constitutes a strong factor in the commercial world and evidently considers it meddlesome interference with trade.

"The magazine goes farther and asserts that the men engaged in this industry cannot know that such hydra-headed diseases as cholera infantum, scarlet fever and diphtheria have been dissemated in the milk supply; that typhoid fever epidemics have been thus caused, and that milk may be the vehicle of tuberculosis and other infectious diseases and morbific agents.

"Pure, natural milk can only be secured at dairies with sanitary buildings, a pure water supply, healthy, well-fed and well-cared-for cows, a well-equipped and well-kept milk room, provisions for thorough cleanliness, intelligent and conscientious people in charge, and clean methods throughout. The majority of milk producers seem indifferent to hygienic requirements and would prefer the good old days, when there was no control even to prevent the shameful adulterations of milk by the intentional dilution with water, the removal of some of its cream or the addition of skimmed milk.

"Honest men will not object to regulations calculated to promote the purity of their products and the health of their customers, and, as many of the most serious faults in the milk business are the result of ignorance, rather than intentional neglect, the difficulties will be materially lessened by proper education. At all events, the dairyman will conclude in the end that it is money in his pocket to comply with requirements which at present may appear to him the outcome of exaggerated fear or extreme zeal of sanitary theorists."

HORRORS OF FIGHT

Preyed on Soldier's Mind Until He Became Insane.

Finally Takes Poison in Attempt to End Life.

New York, July 27.—The terrible massacre of men of Company C of the Ninth infantry at Balingiga, Island of Samar, on Sept. 28, 1901, by treacherous Filipinos, when Capt. Connell and more than forty others of the command were boloed to death after fighting in the barracks with even table knives and fists and slaying their foes by sheer valor, even in the throes of death, is pathetically recalled by the case of one of the survivors of that tragic day, Patrick McGuire of Brooklyn, who is in a hospital dying from poison taken with suicidal intent.

McGuire was only 18 years old when he enlisted in the Ninth infantry and was a member of Company C of that regiment at the time of the massacre at Balingiga. He did his part in the valiant attempt the survivors made to drive off their foes and was one of the eighteen to escape. But the horrors of that day when he saw forty of his comrades cut down in cold blood with practically no opportunity to defend themselves, preyed on McGuire's mind, and even after he returned to his mother's home in Brooklyn the horror did not leave him and two years ago his mind failed entirely. He was sent to St. Elizabeth's, the government insane hospital at Washington, and remained there until ten days ago, when he had so far recovered that his mother was allowed to bring him back to Brooklyn. But the old terror was still with him. His mind constantly wandered away and he would spring from his bed at night with cries for "Jim," the "bunkie," whose life was sacrificed in the awful massacre in far away Samar. Last night he escaped his mother's watchful eyes and took the poison which the doctors fear will cost him his life.

As a result of the final official count of the ballots cast in the primaries June 2, and which were in contest in Dallas county Capt. Hull has secured the nomination by a majority of only forty votes.

"We are beaten," said Judge Prouty, and also Attorney Dingwell of Adel, who represented him at the recount of the Dallas returns. "The game is over. There will be no further ligitation. I am satisfied that Capt. Hull has forty more real votes in the county than I have. I made the fight of my life for the nomination and carried it as far as I thought that I had a chance to prove that a majority of the legal votes cast were for me. I found out that this was not true as shown by the rsults in Dallas county and I admit without a minute's hesitation that Captain Hull is the Republican nominee for congress."

BIG PRIZES OFFERED

By Government for Successful Airships at Coming Contest.

Trial Flight to be Made at Fort Myer This Week.

Washington, July 27.—If Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin succeeds in fulfilling all of the requirements of the government in the trial flights of his military dirigible balloon at Fort Myer, he will receive $6,750, while Count Zeppelin will receive $500,000 from the government if all the requirements are fulfilled by his airship. The latter machine is twenty-five times as large as Capt. Baldwin's dirigible.

Yet, Capt. Balwin contends that in the aeronaut which he has built for the army, he has incorporated new ideas which will be eventually adopted by other nations in the construction of dirigibles. These new features are embodied in the gas envelope of Capt. Baldwin's machine, which differs widely from the Republique, the French dirigible, and the Nulli Secundus, the British military dirigible.

By his own process of vulcanizing rubber, Capt. Baldwin claims to have secured a material that will stand a strain of ninety-five pounds to the Baron von Hollenben of Germany, and Baroness Bertha Von Suttner of Austria also are present.

The bishop of Carlisle, president of the congress, in his opening address said:

"Nothing has impeded prosperity so much as partisan strife and blind antagonism. They were told to think imperially, but a rider was needed. Let them not act imperially."

King Edward and Queen Alexandra received the delegates at Buckingham palce at noon. The delegates presented an address, to which the king replied as follows:

LIVING DUMMIES TO TEST FENDERS

Men in Employ of Factories to Take Places of Manikins.

New York, July 28.—Being a fender dummy at $2 a day is a new form of livelihood opened for men out of work b the manufacturers of street car fenders and wheel guards throughout the country. The manufacturers are preparing for a series of tests of their devices under a call issued by the public service commission. These tests are to be held at Schenectady in September and another series in Pittsburg in October.

According to communications received by the public service commissioner there will be no lack of devices for demonstration at the tests and no lack of human dummies to illustrate their workings. One manufacturer of an automatic fender declared that among his employes and other workmen familiar with the fender, he had no difficulty whatever in getting men to act as dummies at $2 a day.

The public service commission in its plans for the tests is counting on the use of manikins made especially for the purpose, to represent a child, a youth and a full grown man, but if all the manufacturers succeed in hiring living dummies there will be no necessity for the use of lay figures.

UNABLE TO GIVE BONDS

Millionaire Sits Up All Night Awaiting Arrival of Judge.

St. Louis, July 27.—Frederick C. Pepper, millionaire president of the Christian-Pepper Tobacco company, who last night in his automobile ran down and perhaps fatally wounded Mrs. Hartwell N. Lyon, a prominent society woman, sat up all night in the captain's office at the Twelfth district police station, unable to give bond. Up to a late hour this morning he was still at the station, awaiting the return to the city of some of the judges, empowered to release him on bond before court convened.

Mrs. Lyon, who was still unconscious this morning, is being attended by her husband, Dr. H. N. Lyon, who was with her when she stepped from a street car and in front of the automobile.

A SECOND MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING CASE STARTLES THE CLEVELAND POLICE

Man Seriously Wounded While in Company With Girl.

Two Men Dash by and Fire at the Sitting Couple.

Case is Similar to Murder in Same Locality Recently.

Cleveland, July 27.—From a bullet wound just over his heart, a young man who is registered as Louis Weber, is said to be dying at Charity hospital. Back of the shooting is a mystery which the police of Cleveland and Cleveland Heights, a fashionable suburb, where it occurred, had not been able to solve early this morning.

The shooting occurred not far from the scene of the Carl Bernthaler and Lena Zeichman murder several months ago and as far as is known, under somewhat similar circumstances. Weber was walking on the heights with a Miss Agnes Atkinson, the police say. Both principals say Weber was shot by two men while the couple was sitting on the grass. The girl helped the young man to the residence of F. P. Root and asked for water. To Mr. Root she said they had been sitting at the side of the road not far from the Root residence when two men dashed through the bushes at the rear of them. She said the men seemed greatly excited.

One held a revolver in his hand and as he ran past them he fired. The bullet struck the girl's companion, passing through his arm and into his breast just above the heart. The men disappeared as quickly as they came, the girl said.

LITTLE KNOWLEDGE

In South America of Pan-American Movement, Says Traveler.

New York, July 27.—On a business trip that began on Dec. 28 of last year, and during which time he traveled more than 12,000 miles, through the countries of South America. Matthew Catuna arrived yesterday on the Seiglinde, having embarked at Rio Janeiro. Mr. Catuna began his labors as a selling agent for an American house in Panama, and went to Peru, Ecuador, Chile, Argentina and Brazil.

"Of all the countries of South America," he said, "Peru stands for everything that is of the United States, and is our true friend. Argentina is the coming country of South America. One thing I noticed is the lack of knowledge of the Pan-American movement, so-called. One is almost inclined to belive it is scarcely known outside of Washington."

HEARS VOICE OF DYING BROTHER

Twin Sister, Twelve Miles Away, Shrieks and Falls in Faint.

East St. Louis, Ill., July 27.—While her twin brother Fred was being sucked to his death in the quicksands of Long Lake, near Mitchell, Ill., yesterday, Merle Huber, 17 years old, who was twelve miles away at home alone, shrieked and fell to the front porch in a faint. Neighbors ran to her assistance and revived her.

"Fred is dying. I can hear him calling to me. He is drowning, let me go to him," moaned the girl. Marie made frantic efforts to leave the house, but was held back by friends, who assured her that Fred was all right. The girl could not be quieted.

Five minutes later a message came from Mitchell that Fred Huber had been drowned. When the news reached his sister, she again fainted, and up to a late hour last night was in a critical condition.

Headquarters Opened and Followers Are Organizing Campaign.

Platform Likely to Contain Radical Anti-Injunction Plank.

Chicago, July 27.—Delegates continued to arrive today for the national convention of the Independence party, which will be called to order tonight at 8 o'clock in Orchestra hall.

William Randolph Hearst of New York, who is to act as temporary chairman and whose speech will sound the keynote of the party's policy throughout the coming national campaign, has thus far been the dominant factor in the party councils. He has repeatedly declared that he is not a candidate for any office and is seeking nothing beyond the promotion of the best interests of the organization he has rallied around him.

Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts and Milton W. Howard of Fort Payne, Ala., seem to be the leading candidates for the presidential nomination. Mr.

ALL NEW YORK GOES FISHING

Thousands of Lafayettes Caught at Mouth of the Hudson.

New York, July 27.—All New York went fishing yesterday and will again today. One of the most palatable of edible fish, the Lafayette, which every few years selects the mouth of the Hudson river for a stopping place, is now in New York waters in countless thousands. Beginning Friday and lasting all day Saturday and yesterday, the Hudson river from the battery to One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street has simply been alive with Lafayettes.

Every pier along the water front has been lined with fishermen, fisherboys and fisherwomen. Such a lot of fish has seldom before invaded the river. The Lafayette bite anything. The Lafayette is what is known as a panfish and few are longer than five inches. The average is four. The Lafayette is one of the most voracious of small fish and one of the most delicious as far as edible quality is concerned, for those who caught a mess Saturday were back again yesterday for more. The strings caught seem almost incredible, but here are a few, and by no means record ones: Alexander Muir, 622 in three hours; William Haubner, 845 in four hours; Matt Richardson, 771 in five hours; Walter Dalton, 612 in three hours; William Telts, 110 in thirty minutes.

Every [illegible] and although tightly strung, the exhibit was nearly eight feet long and you could not see anything but fish six inches deep. A woman all alone got 500 and sold them to neighbors.

FIVE DROWNINGS NEAR TWIN CITIES

All But One Occur While Victims Were in Bathing.

St. Paul, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five persons were drowned in the lakes and river about the Twin Cities yesterday. John Grecerba, aged 18 years, and a companion, whose name has not yet been learned, were drowned in the Mississippi river near South St. Paul last night, while bathing. John Peterson, aged 22 years, was drowned in Bass Lake, near St. Paul, yesterday. Ralph Stedman, aged 16, was drowned by being thrown from a sailboat in Lake Harriet in Minneapolis yesterday. Frank Byron, aged 16, dived for Stedman and brought him to the surface by grasping his hair, but Stedman struggled loose from Byron's hold and the latter then nearly exhausted had to fight to save himself. Paul Wing, aged 17 years, was drowned in Lake Minnetonka late yesterday afternoon while bathing. Wing dived from a dock and evidently struck his head against the bottom. He came up once after remaining under for some time, but immediately sank again. Wing's body is the only one recovered so far.

TAFT HAS BUSY DAY

Confers With Committee on Final Arrangements for Tuesday.

Ohio State Leaders to Meet to Talk Over Situation.

Cincinnati, July 27.—What promised to be an exceedingly busy day of political conferences, committee meetings and general preparation for the notification ceremonies tomorrow, was begun early by Judge Taft. He appeared at his offices in the Hotel Sinton shortly after 8 o'clock and immediately the work was on. Arthur I. Vorys, who has been the final authority in making the notification arrangements, was the first to be given an audience. The program for tomorrow was carefully gone over and approved.

A meeting of the state central committee has been called at the hotel this afternoon at which Mr. Taft will be present. The real purpose of this meeting is explained to be to bring the state leaders into close touch with each other and the situation.

The early trains brought in many members of the notification committee and county and state leaders. The many decorations in the way of flags, streamers and bunting already in place and the activity in continuing this work, gave the city a gala appearance.

At the morning's conference on the notification day plans, Chairman Warner of the notification committee, the local arrangements committee and Arthur I. Vorys were present with Judge Taft, who declared that everything was entirely satisfactory. The purpose of the meeting was to familiarize everybody with the plans. After the conference Judge Taft went to a photographer and then to an oculist, where he said he wanted some glasses that would stay on over his ears. He next went to the residence of his brother, Charles P. Taft, to spend the time quietly until the afternoon conference with the Ohio committeemen and candidates.

There is also a growing demand for golden grain belt beer which is the greatest home beverage ever known. It is brewed from the best materials in a better way than other beers and should have a place on your home table. Order Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

GIFTS TO THE BARBER.

Cash is not the only shape in which gifts come to the barber. Here was one in the form of a spray of apple blossoms brought in by a customer who has a country place out somewhere on Long Island. The barber had put in a glass of water and set it in a central place by itself among the bottles and things on the shelf in front of his chair—a spray of apple blossom, with all the apple blossom's delicate beauty says the New York Sun.

It is no reproach to the barber to say that at first he didn't know what they were, for he was born and brought up in the city; and for that matter there were plenty of customers in the shop in the course of the day who didn't know what they were any more than he did; as, for instance, one customer coming in along in the afternoon who, his eye falling on the blossoms as he took his seat in the chair, asked of the barber:

"What you got there?"

"Apple blossoms," says the barber.

"Is that so?" says the customer, as he surveys them with new interest.

"Yes," says the barber, "that's what a customer of mine who knows tells me, and there are two or three barbers here in the shop that know and that's what they say, too.

And this customer looked them over again with keener interest still, his recollection bringing gradually other apple blossoms back to him with which to compare these, and these were apple blossoms, sure enough, some of them not yet opened, still of the unfolded blossom's beautiful pink, and some opened with their petals of the apple blossom's delicately tinted pinkish white. And then he smelled of the blossoms, and they had the apple blossom's delicate woody fragrance.

Yes, sir; they were apple blossoms all right, a lovely spray of apple blossoms here in a city barber shop. And then the customer sat back and got shaved.

COMES HERE FOR BEARS

Kansas Man Wants to Buy Forty Black Ones.

Must be Hardy Brutes Able to Stand Travel.

Wanted—Forty bears!

Must be hardy and able to bear the fatigues of one-night stands.

No previous experience is necessary.

A splendid chance for rising young bears with aspirations to enter upon a theatrical career.

C. W. Parker of Abilene, Kan., who is at the Spalding today, is in need of forty bears. He wants them for his shows, which at the present time are touring the country, and he is willing to pay a substantial price for every one that is secured for him.

Mr. Parker is going to put on a burlesque on the weaknesses of municipal life. For instance there will be a scene where houses, stores and a saloon are in view of the audience. Bears will represent aldermen, grafters, hangers-on and policemen. One scene will represent a saloon where the closing hours are being terribly abused, and the policeman is simply looking the other way. Occasionally he tarries long enough to have the itching of his palm relieved.

But, all joking aside, Mr. Parker really wants the forty bears. The reputation of Duluth as a center of the frolics of bruin has come to his notice, and he believes that he can secure at least some of the needed animals in these parts.

He has secured some already. But he wants many more, and in pursuit of the animals he will travel over the Head of the Lakes region, urging trappers and hunters to go out and bring back some lagging specimen.

There will be "Teddy" bears in the production, but they are back in Abilene, Kan., at the present time, rehearsing the parts they are to play in the "Bear of the Hour" production. Mr. Parker wants rugged bears of the Northwest, which can stand many one-night stands and the hardships of the road, so he has come to the region that is famous for its bears and makes his offer to the bear hunters.

FIRST AMERICAN GLASS.

The first American glass factory was erected in the town of Temple, N. H. Washington in his diary, speaks of glass being made in New Haven, Conn., in the year 1789, says the Crockery and Glass Journal.

One would suppose by the language ne uses that he consideres it a new and quite extraordinary affair. It was nine years previous to this, and during the very war whose issue first enabled the country to commence its own manufacturing, that Robert Hewes of Boston began to carry out the project which he had long conceived, but had hitherto found impracticable, if not impossible, under English rule—that of making glass in America for America.

In 1780 Mr. Hewes selected a site for his factory secure from the British forces (his glassblowers were Hessians and Waldeckers—soldiers who had deserted from the British army) and he must have had an eye for the beautiful in nature. He chose a spot on the north slope of Kidder mountain near its base. To the northwest Mount Monadnock rears his granite vrown, standing like a giant sentinel; to the north, and runnig east, are the Temple mountains, bold and precipitous; to the east a beautiful valley holds in its embrace the towns of Wilton, Milford and Nashua, while to the northeast Joe English Hill and the Uncanernucks mountains conceal the city of Manchester.

The place is now reached by a two mile walk over an old road, long a stranger to travel other than to grazing cows and nature loving tourists. The stone work about the ovens and the foundations of the building are all that now remain to remind us that here was another example of the American people's struggle for independence.

CURES FOR INSOMNIA.

New York Sun: "In my own case," said Mr. Philgminthrow, "I find that insomnia proceeds largely from worry over money. My nerves are all right and I have a castiron stomach. I can eat anything and enjoy it, and as a general proposition life looks pretty rosy to me; but still I do occasionally have nights when I can't sleep, when I lie awake worrying over how I am going to make both ends meet.

"I never deliberately consider financial questions at night, but I do find that sometimes—and this may be after a most completely comfortable evening—financial questions obtrude themselves upon me after I have gone to bed.

"To stave off these unpleasant questions and enable myself to forget them so that I could go to sleep, I have tried various familiar methods; I have got out of bed and stood up to make myself tired; I have recalled and dwelt on pleasant journeys; I have counted from one up to a million, more or less; I have said the alphabet backward over and over again; I have tried many things; but do you know what in my case I find most efficacious? It is a story that I tell to myself about how I am going to become comfortably rich and thus free from all financial troubles.

"It took me a considerable time to build up this story in such shape that it just suited me, so that it seemed natural, like something that might have happened, you understand, and then I filled in the amount that was coming to me, making that enough so that the income from it would be sufficient to provide for all ordinary wants and as well for a few modest luxuries, including a little travel—a pleasant prospect to dwell upon. And by the time I had this story completely built up it took me some time to tell it to myself, with that snug little fortune that was to save me from all financial worry coming in at the end.

"And then when those money questions used to pounce on me after I'd gone to bed and threaten to keep me awake, I'd start off and tell myself that story, as in truth I have done many times. And sometimes I'd have to tell it to myself two or three times over in succession to drive away the spectre, and then again once would do, that money coming in at the end of it soothing me to sleep, and then I have sometimes not even been compelled to tell it all through once; I have fallen asleep before I had finished it, before I got the money, so sure was I that it was coming to me."

To advertise your real estate twice as much as another man advertises his does not indicate that you are twice as anxious to sell as he is—but that you know twice as much as he does about how to sell.

CHURCH POPULAR WITH LOVERS.

Wide World Magazine: The little church of Absam, near Innsbruck, enjoys a reputation which is probably unique of its kind.

It is a popular superstition that couples united within the church of Absam, especially during the month of May, are assured of unclouded happiness during the whole of their wedded life.

This idea brings scores of lovers to Absam, and during May in particular the familiar notice, "Come early to avoid the crush," might very well be displayed outside the building.

MAY WORK SHAGAWA.

Rumored That Famous Property is to be Opened Up.

Ely, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—If current rumors are to be credited work in the Shagawa mine on the famous Section 30 property, near here, will be resumed and the shaft, now down 800 feet, will be sunk deeper. This report is based on the recent visit to the Vermilion range of D. M. Philbin and others interested in the property.

The Iron Range railroad will soon begin the construction of a spur from the Winton extension to the Shagawa mine. Ore has been encountered in two places in the shaft but the main body has not been struck. The property is believed to be richly mineralized and the owners hope to make a great mine out of it.

Eveleth, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday evening in Urania hall, Pundit Krishna of the Bombay university, India, and a Hindoo, told a fair sized audience somethin gabout the English occupancy of India. He said that 65 per cent of the products of India went to England and that in tne past fifteen years about 45,000,000 people have died of hunger. The priests and bishops live on the fat of the land, he declared. India is very rich in its products, according to Krishna, but the English take all of it for themselves. Instead of sending missionaries to the countries of Asia he believes they ought to stay at home and try to do away with the great evil of child labor.

LIFE CRIPPLE WANTS $50,000

Fireman Injured on Ore Docks, Sues D. M. & N. Railroad.

Crushed between the tender of an engine and the cab, at the Mesaba ore docks, Oct. 13 last, and made a cripple for life, Frank Gospeter, a fireman, formerly employed by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, has instituted suit in the district court against the company for $50,000 damages.

Gospeter claims that the accident was due to the carelessness and negligence of a switchman, who is alleged to have thrown a switch so as to throw his train on the wrong track, causing it to collide with a string of empty ore cars. He claims that he was crushed about the body and limbs; was severely scalded and injured internally.

CONFERENCE FOR PEACE

come you, the representatives of the universal congress of peace, and receive your address. There is nothing from which I derive a more sincere gratification than from the knowledge that my efforts in the cause of international peace and good will have not been without fruit, a consciousness of the generous appreciation with which they have been received, both from my own people and from those of other countries.

"Rulers of states can set before themselves no higher aims than the promotion of international good understanding and cordial friendship among the nations of the world. It is the surest and most direct means by which humanity may be enabled to realize its noblest ideal and its attainment will ever be the object of my own constant endeavors. I rejoice to think that your international organization, in which are represented all the principal civilized countries of the world, is laboring in the same field, and I pray that the blessing of God may attend your labors."

The delegates afterwards were introduced to the king and queen, both of whom shook hands with each delegate and spoke a few words evidencing the keen personal interest taken by their majesties in the work of the congress.

BIG PRIZES OFFERED

inch strip, and which is not affected by either heat or cold. In addition there is practically no elasticity to a gas bag made of this material, thus making a rigid balloon without the use of a frame. The rubber skin is lined on both sides with the best Japanese silk, adding considerable to the strength of the envelope.

Midway between the ends of the gas bag, which is slightly over ninety feet long, is a balloonet, twenty-five feet long, into which air can be pumped to counterbalance the alterations in bulk due to changes in atmospheric pressure or contraction of the gas due to heat or cold. A "window" permits the aeronaut to look within the gas envelope.

Car Suspended by Netting.

The car or framework of Capt. Baldwin's airship is suspended from the envelope by means of a square mesh netting, which is the creation of Capt. Baldwin. The Nolli Secundus, the British army dirigible, has a canvas casing, to which the car is suspended, while Count Zeppelin has an aluminum envelope entirely surrounding the numerous balloons which give buoyancy to his ship.

Although the capacity of Capt. Baldwin's gas bag is less than one-fourth that of the British dirigible, its lifting capacity is nearly as great.

"There are many things that should be on my dirigible which I have not been able to use because of the specifications and the low cost at which the ship was necessarily constructed," said Capt. Baldwin today, while working upon the assembling of his machine at Fort Myer. Among the attachments lacking, Capt. Baldwin pointed out, are the immovable blades or fins attached to the envelope, which add much to the equilibrium of the airship.

Two mechanics have arrived from the G. H. Curtis works at Hammondsport and are assisting Capt. Baldwin in preparing the machine for its initial flight, which probably will take place Saturday next. G. H. Curtis, the aeronaut who will accompany Capt. Baldwin on the trial flights, is expected to arrive Wednesday.

INDEPENDENCE PARTY CANDIDATES GET BUSY WITH THEIR DELEGATES

Hisgen is strongly supported by the Eastern delegations, while the South and portions of the West incline towards Mr. Howard. The fight is open and, according to Mr. Hearst and other men prominent in the organization, the nomination will not be dictated or influenced in any manner.

Platform to Be Radical.

The platform to be adopted will, it is expected, contain a radical declaration in favor of an anti-injunction measure. It is the expressed belief of many of the delegates to the present convention that the declarations of the Republican and Democratic parties on the injunction question were feeble and indefinite. It is asserted that the Independence platform will not be open to criticism.

Charles R. Walsh of Iowa, who for a number of years was secretary of the Democratic national committee, will be permanent chairman of the convention. It is probable that Clarence J. Shearn of New York will be made chairman of the resolutions committee.

It is not expected that any extensive debate will result either in the convention or before the committee on resolutions, and it is believed by the majority of the delegates that the convention can, with its night session today and a meeting which will last through all of Tuesday, finish its work tomorrow evening.

The program for the opening session will comprise, after the usual opening formalities, the address of Mr. Hearst as temporary chairman and the appointment of the various committees. It is believed that the subcommittee of the committee on resolutions which will be appointed to do the heavy work in drafting the platform, will report to the full committee by 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and that the platform will be formally presented to the convention by noon of that day.

Hisgen and Howard Lead.

The followers of the various presidential candidates were busy early today opening headquarters and organizing the campaigns for their respective leaders. There seemed to be considerable enthusiasm among the followers of Hisgen and Howard, and much optimism was shown by the adhenents of other candidates.

Hisgen, who has shown considerable strenugth, particularly among the Eastern delegates, seemed highly pleased over the outlook today.

"I have received pledges of support," he said, "from many of the delegations, and although I cannot say that the convention will select me, I know that I will make a good showing on the first ballot and believe that I will make a better showing on the second, if one is taken."

Milton W. Howard of Alabama, whose headquarters were opened today in the Morrison hotel, expressed himself in a similar manner, and seemed confident of ultimate success.

The New York delegation, some of its members declare, will not make a strong and continued fight for Reuben R. Lyon of that state. He will be given a complimentary vote on the first ballot and after that the New York people will probably place their strength elsewhere. It is known that Hisgen expects a material gain from this direction.

number of diplomats who are still in Washington. American interests or individuals not being involved in the disturbance, there is nothing for this government to do, but the developments will be more or less anxiously watched. Not a word has yet come to the state departments regarding the demonstrations at Curacao. American Consul Cheney of that place is thought to be on a leave of absence, the office being in charge of a vice consul.

Acting Secretary Bacon has returned to Washington from a brief visit to New England and was at the department today.

OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION

Saengerbund Records Its Disapproval and Elects New Officers.

La Crosse, Wis., July 27.—At the closing business session of the Saengerbund of the Northwest, comprising the German singing societies of seven Northwestern states, yesterday, resolutions were adopted strongly condemning the prohibition and anti-saloon movements. The resolutions declare that the bund "wishes to go on record in favor of personal liberty, while favoring the enforcement of reasonable laws."

The list of officers for the next two years was completed as follows:

President, Otto W. Rohlands, St. Paul, Minn.; vice president, Peter Laux, Omaha, Neb.; secretary, George H. J. Kleck, Milwaukee, Wis.; treasurer, E. O. Kney, Madison, Wis.; librarian, J. G. A. Wunder, Davenport, Iowa.; director, Theodore Kelbe, Milwaukee, Wis. Omaha was selected for the saengerfest of 1910 over the protest of the Chicago societies which threatened to withdraw and found a new organization, composed of societies east of the Mississippi river if the fest would be sent so far West. It is expected that the Chicago delegation will be pacified in some manner and that the threatened secession will not take place.

The fest closed last night after a picnic and dance, and thousands of visitors are leaving the city today.

SNEAK THIEVES.

How They Lay Claim to Lost Articles on Cars.

"One of the meanest of classes of sneak thieves is the man who will steal or attempt to steal umbrellas or small parcels forgotten by the hurry of the owners in getting off the street cars," declared a visitor in the city, yesterday who had just passed through the experience of losing a small article which he inadvertently left on a car seat when he left the vehicle.

While complaints of that sort are not numerous there are enough of them to indicate that there are a certain class of persons who seem to be on the watch to pick up personal property left on the cars, and to appropriate them to their own use. Some of these street car thieves have, it is said, become very bold in their operations and it was with a great deal of satisfaction that a crowd of people saw one turned down by Car Starter Hughes the other day.

Mr. Hughes had been changing some of the advertising cards in the cars and placed his unbrella against the side of the car starter's station to drain, while he stepped inside for a moment. He had scarcely gone inside when a man rushed up and siezed the umbrella, with the exclamation, "Oh, here is my umbrella, I just left it on that car," indicating the car Mr. Hughes had just left.

"I guess not," was the rejoinder of the car starter, and the would-be owner of the rain shield started in to argue the matter, but desisted when the crowd began to make caustic remarks and guy him. He slunk away very quickly.

"That is the system those fellows work," says Mr. Hughes. "They watch a conductor pick up an article left in the car and, after he turns it over to the car starter, they will rush up and demand it, claiming that they just left it on the car. The fellow who attempted to get my umbrella saw me get off a car and place it against car, he attempted to lay fraudulent claim to it. This is one of the things the conductors have to contend with and yet some people who lose things on the cars get the ideo that thre conductor keeps everything he finds."

CONFIRMS CLASS.

St. Josaphat Polish Catholic Church Holds Services.

Bishop John Francis Tichy of Cleveland, Ohio, yesterday confirmed a class of 187 at the St. Josephat Polish National Catholic church, Thirde avenue west and Fifth street. A sermon was delivered by Bishop Tichy in Polish following the confirmation. A large choir rendered special music.

Holy communion was observed at 9:30 in the morning, over 100 children partaking in it for the first time. Rev. Dr. Kimil Sierputowski, priest of the church, assisted at each service.

RAILROADS

LOW RATES TO FAIR

Minnesota Roads Will be Forced to Make Reductions.

Precedent Has Been Established by All Western Lines.

It is now practically certain that reduced ratese will be made for the Minnesota State Fair. The announcement of the Chicago, Great Western of its intention to make reduced rates for state fairs in Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, means, it is said, that other roads will be compelled to follow the example of the Chicago line.

It was stated by The Herald some time ago that the roads of the state would in all probabiltiy make reduced rates to the fair. The announcement of the decision of the Great Western to make special rates means that whether or not the other roads are willing to make reduced tariffs, they will be compelled to do so, in order to get the business.

Five or six months ago it would have caused a great deal of ridicule for any one to announce that the railroads of the Middle West would be offering reduced rates for the conventions and other large gatherings. The officials announced upon the passage of the two-cent fare law that the days of special rates were over. They even went so far as to claim that the roads would actually lose money under the operation of the two-cent law.

That this claim was somewhat exaggerated is proven by what has occurred within the past two months. The reduced rates for both the Republican and Democratic National convention, for the Shriners' convention and the national education convention placed the roads of the country upon record and established a precedent that will be followed on any occasion when the question of special rates come up.

Acting under this precedent, the Great Western has gone ahead with reduced rates plans, which would not have been thought of and which would have been fought tooth and nail by the Western Passenger association, had not earlier reductions stood out with precedent-establishing clearness.

BUTTE IS REACHED.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Completes First Part of Extension.

The Milwaukee road has entered Butte, Mont. The last spike was driven yesterday and the first half of the Pacific coast extension of the road has been completed.

The entering of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul into Butte marks the accomplishment of one of the greatest strides in railway building of the present year, and will mean that a continuous rail line will be in existence between Milwaukee and Butte, with St. Paul as the connecting point. The Duluth connection with the road, through its leased tracks and agency here, will place the shippers of this city in direct communication with Butte.

With the anmouncement that the last spike in the completion of the line to Butte comes the further announcement that the road will be completed to the Pacific coast in 1909.

RATE PROTEST.

Cincinnati Shippers Ask President to Prevent Increase.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 27.—Brushing aside all intermediate processes and modes of action, the receivers and shippers' association of Cincinnati has carried the war against a general increase in railway freight rates directly to the president of the United States. In general effect a communication forwarded to President Roosevelt last Saturday at Oyster Bay and made public here tonight, asks the chief executive to cause the attorney general to bring proceedings for contempt against the Missouri Pacific railroad and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railway. It is explained that because of the fact that certain general increases in freight rates are to become effective Aug. 10 by certain roads, prompt and positive action became necessary.

ARRANGE FOR LABOR DAY

Joint Committees Decide to Get Out a Program.

At a joint meeting yesterday of the Labor Day committees of the Trades assembly, the Structural Trades' Alliance, and the Duluth Union Pavilion association, preliminary arrangements were made for the celebration of Labor Day.

In spite of the disfavor the printed program met with since last fall, it was decided to have one this year. The committee feels confident that it has profited by the mistakes made in the program in past years and will be able to avoid them in the future.

The day will be celebrated with a parade and a picnic at Fairmont park.

L. Ewald was named chairman of the joint committee and E. R. Peters, secretary. The committee on the program consists of N. J. Harney, William Parry and E. P. Peters. No solicitor has been selected for the book, but it probable that one will be named at a meeting of the program committee Thursday night.

DEPUTY SWIMS TWELVE MILES

W. J. Duffy of New York Breasts Heavy Atlantic Tide.

New York, July 27.—A swim of more than twelve miles was made yesterday by W. J. Duffy, a well known deputy in the internal revenue department. Duffy's swift swim began at the Brooklyn bridge and ended a mile off Coney Island, in the face of a heavy tide that swept in from the lower bay.

Saturday's storm had stirred up the Atlantic and a savage tide was running all day, against which it was difficult even for launches to set their noses, and as a result Duff's attempt to make a record swim had to be abandoned, after he had forced his way along for twelve hours and twenty minutes.

Mr. Duffy, who is 55 years old, only a few years ago swam from the Brooklyn bridge to three miles beyond Shoal's light—fifteen and a half miles—in five hours and a quarter, and on a pleasant afternoon, as a joke on some of the members of the Crescent Athletic club, swam from the club landing to Norton's Point, more than three miles, fully clothed, including shoes and hat.

STREET FIGHT.

Nick Collins Has Dispute Over Payment of Shining Bill.

Because of a dispute over the payment for shining a man's shoes, George Professor of the Summit Shoe Shining parlor on West Superior street, and Nick Collins, had a fight on the street, in which Collins was badly worsted.

George claims Collins left the shop without paying for a shine. Collins claims it was some other man who dodged payment, and that he settled for the full amount of 10 cents. Anyway, George couldn't see it that way, and gave the customer, who was dressed in his Sunday best, an awful mauling. Both were arrested by Patrolman Bob McDermott and taken to the police station.

GREAT SCRAMBLE FOR LANDS IN OKLAHOMA.

Muskogee, Okla., July 27.—At midnight the law removing the government restrictions on 9,000,000 acres of In dian lands in Eastern Oklahoma went into effect. Every real estate office in that part of the new state office in that part of the new state is crowded with anxious buyers and sellers of land. Money is changing hands by the hundreds of thousands, agents are busy corraling the allottees that have been in practical captivity during the past few days, leases are being taken on land that is not bought and actual cash is being passed from hand to hand, making the night one of the most exciting in years in Oklahoma. Everyone is striving to get the first chance at the property.

The removal means that 9,000,000 of the 20,000,000 acres of Indian land in forty counties of Eastern Oklahoma, which was formerly Indian Territory, becomes salable.

The officer was preparing to take a bath and had entered the bath tub, when he endeavored to arrange the lighting current to take an electric bath. SIMPLE INJURY FATAL.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 27.—Arne Halvorson, 53, is dead at his home here, as a result of lockjaw. He was a carpenter by trade, and a few days ago stepped on a nail. He payed no attention to the accident, until it began to bother him, and when a physician was called it was found tetanus was too far advanced for medical aid to do any good.

Fourth Annual Encampment is to be Held August 19.

Winona, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fourth annual encampment of the department of Minnesota, United States war veterans will be held in this city Wednesday, Aug. 19.

It is expected that many of the young men, now ten years older, who enlisted in the service of their country in Minnesota during the last war in which this country was engaged, will be present at the annual reunion.

Local committees are already at work outlining the entertainment to be accorded the veterans.

A. J. Rick, commander of Clarence Miller camp, N. 5, of this city, and Joseph E. Cardinal, the adjutant, have issued the following invitation to all Spanish-American war veterans to come here for the fourth annual reunion:

"All veterans, comrades, friends, and their ladies are cordially invited to attend this encampment. It will be the tenth anniversary of the war with Spain, let it be a reunion of all those who took part in this eventful war and celebrate with the same spirit, that caused us to enlist to fight and suffer for our grand and glorious country. Let us all rally again to the good old bugle call, and it is our earnest hope that all the comrades will be present and answer roll call. Arrangements have been completed to give all a grand time. The reception committee will meet all arrivals and escort them to the convention hall, where all veterans and their ladies will register. A grand military ball will be given in the evening at Philharmonic hall by Clarence Miller camp, No. 5, U. S. W. V. All comrades and invited guests will be given free admission to the hall."

MURDERER SAYS MIND IS BLANK

Peculiar Plea of Thomas Williams for Killing His Wife.

Calumet, Mich., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Williams has been bound over to the next term of circuit court by Justice Fisher on the charge of murdering Mrs. Williams, his wife, at his home on Pine street, two weeks ago.

When the commitment was read to him, Williams said, "I'm sorry I did it." Williams showed a letter he had written, which he will hand to Judge Albert T. Streeter, he says, showing the reason, according to his way of thinking, for the crime.

The letter is somewhat disjointed and commenting on this Williams said that his mind becomes a blank at times and during those periods he is unable to think. He appears rational, however, and it is the opinion of the officers that he is in his right mind.

In his communication Williams refers to a number of boarders, the marriage of his son, and the hardships he has to undergo. He states that he was in the Osceola fire in 1894, and describes his release from the "awful and over bearing smoke" that was coming up the shaft. Williams says that he was not a drinkman, but that someone gave him a pint of whisky at that time and he drank all of it.

"The liquor overcame me," wrote Williams, "and I went home in a state of intoxication. My trouble at home seemed to start from that time."

FEARS REJECTED LOVER'S THREAT

Coming to Grand Forks to Kill Woman and Rival.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—State's Attorney J. B. Wineman has been appealed to by a young woman of Grand Forks county to prevent her murder by a former suitor, an Iowa man, who has sworn vengeance against her and her husband and has armed himself with a revolver. He declares that he will shoot both of them at sight even if he hangs the next day for his deed. According to the young woman in the case the would-be murderer was in th employ of her father as a laborer. He was regarded as being mentally weak. He proposed matrimony but she would not encourage him and refused to have anything to do with him. A little later she married and came to North Dakota. Before she left, her father's employe threatened to kill her husband. They came away safely, however. Since their departure she has been advised by her father that the young man intends to kill her and her husband and has disappeared. It is feared that he is on his way here.

VIEW STATE DITCH.

Deer River, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Ralph, chief engineer of the state drainage board, Julius Schmahl, secretary of state and drainage commissioner, accompanied by George Walsh, chairman of the state immigration board, who came as representative of the governor on this trip, were passengers on the M. & R. road for the big Bowstring bog Saturday, accompanied by County Commissioner King and Highway Superintendent Martin, to view the progress John Kohler is making in his big ditching contract. They had a handcar on the train, with which it was intended to return to catch the Great Northern afternoon train, but they went so deeply into the works that they did not return until late in the evening.

The members were well pleased to see the headway Mr. Kohler is making and in the great amount of work Foreman Dick Lewis has accomplished on the state road.

MAY TAKE FINE BAND.

Crack North Dakota Musicians Wanted at G. A. R. Encampment.

Fargo, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Negotiations are on between the entertainment committee of the city of Toledo, in charge of the festivities attendane upon the national G. A. R. encampment, which opens there Aug.1, and Prof. W. D. Wallace of Lisbon, N. D. director of the First Regiment band, looking towards the engagement of the crack North Dawota band for the encampment..

Prof. Wallace, when in the city, admitted that the Rirst Regiment band had received an offer from the city of Toledo to aid in furnishing music for the old veterans at their annual convention this year.

One obstacle, however, may prevent the North Dakota aggregation of musicians from accepting the Toledo proposition, and it that the fact that the band will accompany the First Regiment, N. D. N. G., to the American lake, Wash., army maneuvers to be held about the middle of the month. The regiment will probably leave the state about Aug. 15 and will be absent from the state about twenty days, including the time spent en route there and return. The G. A. R. encampment opens Aug 3! and continues until Sept. 5. Unless the First Regiment band can make arrangements to leave camp a few days before it breaks up it will almost be impossible for the band to reach Toledo in time for the encampment.

The flames burned through the flesh to the bone. She was also burned about the chest.

Her condition is serious but the physicians believe she has a chance to recover.

East Grand Forks, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is general rejoicing here over the action of the supreme court in sustaining the decision of Judge Watts in the case instituted by Ed Lodgford to test the validity of the East Grand Forks waterworks bonds.

The last obstacle to the construction of the water works plant by that city is thus removed, a matter for which the citizens generally will be very much pleased. It is expected that the bonds will be taken up now within the very near future and plans for the work ordered. Engineer Wolf of New York is in conference again with members of the city council and Commercial club, but no definite conclusion has been reached.

GIRL ADMITS PERJURY.

Confesses She Lied About Julius Tostenson Mistreating Her.

Roseau, Minn., July 27.—The trial of the case of the state against Julius Tastenson, alleged to have attacked and mistreated a girl by the name of Grace Craven, came to a sudden termination in the district court a few days ago. The complaining witness, in a sworn confession, admitted she was not telling the truth on the witness stand.

The girl told a story of degradation and shame in answer to the questions of County Attorney Stebbins, and upon cross-examination contradicted herself many times, swore to material facts quite different to her testimony at the preliminary hearing, and finally confessed that the story she had told was untrue. After the girl had repeated the statement that her story was not true, and that she had given it because she was teased and bothered to do so, the county attorney moved for a dismissal, which was promptly granted by the court, and the jury discharged.

The girl will be sent to the state training school, as it is evident from her conduct throughout this case that she is utterly devoid of moral responsibility and needs to be placed where she can be trained to know what truth is and given a chance in life.

FOUR BOYS' FINE TRIP.

Go From Bemidji to Grand Rapids by Boat.

Bemidji, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rob and Edgar Stewart of Wedd City, Mo., and Frank Street and Byron Wilson of Royalton, four boys who are camping on the shores of Lake Bemidji, formed a party which returned yesterday afternoon from Grand Rapids, where they went in boats from here.

The boys secured two rowboats and a camping outfit and left the city on July 17. They went down the Mississippi river and passed Cass lake, reaching Winnibogoshish dam late that night and Ball club on the third day. Here they struck logs and had to float with them, reaching Grand Rapids, but there were so many logs in the river that they decided to leave out the remainder of the trip. Accordingly, they shipped their boats from Grand Rapids to Bemidji, and returned here yesterday afternoon.

The boys report that they had one of the finest trips of their lives. There is no finer scenery in this section of the country than on the Mississippi between here and Grand Rapids.

WILL RUN AT NIGHT.

Two Big Lumber Companies Will Increase Their Output.

Bemidji, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is annocneed that beginning today the Bemidji Lumber company will run their local mill nights.

Following the announcement of the Bemidji Lumber company it is stated that the Crookston Lumber company will also start their mills beginning, Aug. 1.

Both lumber companies have large quantities of logs which they desire to manufacture into lumber which will necessitate the employing of sixty-five more men at the Bemidji Lumber company's plant and 125 in the Crookston company's plant. This means a considerable addition to the payrolls of both companies, bringing more money in circulation among local business men.

The big sawmill of the Red River Lumber-company at Akeley is to shut down, it is understood, which will mean the throwing of several hunderd men out of employment, most of whom will undoubtedly come to Bemidji to work.

The lumber companies do not fear lack of men for their night operations.

MALTED BARLEY is digested food. Hops are a tonic—also an aid to sleep. That's what you get in beer. That's why the doctor says "drink beer" when one lacks vitality.

Beer quiets the nerves, not because of the alcohol. There is only 3½ per cent. of that. But because of the hops, for hops are soporific.

A bottle of Schlitz at bedtime induces sleep.

In every way the drinking of beer is good for you, providing the beer is pure. It is only the wrong beer that leads to bad after effects and to biliousness.

Schlitz beer is pure. We spend more on purity than on all other costs of our brewing. Even the air that cools it is filtered. And every bottle is sterilized.

There is all the good of beer, and none of the harm, in Schlitz.

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris had gone to the home of their daughter, Mrs. Rennels, a short distance away, leaving the two children alone. The little girl tried to light the gasoline stove with the above not uncommon result. For a time she strove vainly to quench the flame, but she saw that the house was doomed, she gave up. Then she turned her thoughts to the baby in the next room. It was necessary for her to go through the flames to reach the baby and to run back through them to escape from the house.

UNITED STATES NOT CONSULTED

Not Known That Dutch Contemplate Venezuelan Demonstration.

Washington, July 27.—If the Dutch government contemplates making any naval demonstration against Venezuela as a result of the recent troubles with that country culminating in the expulsion of the Dutch minister, she is doing so without having consulted the American government. It was said at the state department today that no communication had been received from the Netherlands having in view any program regarding Venezuela.

Today a dispatch came to the department from American Consul Cheney at Willemstad regarding Saturday night's and Sunday's anti-Venezuelan demonstration. From this dispatch it appears that Gramcho, the Venezuelan newspaper correspondent, who, it is said, had criticized the Dutch government and who was compelled to retract publicly, went with Venezuelan Consul Lopez and his family to Porto Cabello on the steamer Maracaibo. According to the dispatch when the mob surrounded the residence of the Venezuelan consul Saturday night, the consul used a revolver, but no one was hurt and the crowd dispersed. During yesterday's disturbances while the Venezuelan consul was en route to the German consul to seek refuge, stones were freely thrown, one hitting the consul.

CONFERENCE IS USELESS

McAuliffes Cannot Agree and Case Goes Merrily On.

Airing of Family Troubles is Resumed in District Court.

The McAuliffes are apparently irreconcilable.

A session lasting from 9 o'clock this morning until 1:15 this afternoon, at which attorneys for both sides, as well as Judge Dibell, and the relatives of both parties lent their influence toward a compromise, proved fruitless, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon the airing of the family troubles went on again before Judge Dibell in open court.

Both sides lay the blame on the other, for the failure of the morning consultation to effect a compromise. It is understood that as far as the actual custodianship of the boy was conserned, an agreement was reached which provided that during the time that school was in session he should remain with his father, and that his mother might have him during the vacation periods. Had the court ruled in this way, the ruling would have been entirely without relation as to the fitness of either parent for the child's custody, but would have been made simply on the ground that as Dr. McAuliffe has a settled home, while Mrs. McAuliffe has not, it would be more advisable for him to have the boy during the school year.

According to a statement made by C. H. Thornton, a brother-in-law of Mrs. McAuliffe, the failure of the conference was due to the fact that Dr. McAuliffe's attorney would not retract the insinuations made against Mrs. McAuliffe's character.

"Mrs. McAuliffe was willing to consent to the agreement regarding the disposition of the boy" said Mr. Thornton, "allowing the doctor to keep the child during school periods while she had him during vacation. Her attorneys, however, insisted that the statements and insinuations regarding her character should be retracted, and this the other side refused to do, so the case will go on."

"We agreed on nothing" said Mr. Whipple at the close of the conference." There were, however, points on which we might have agreed had there been any hope of effecting an ultimate compromise. The case will have to take its course."

"We agreed on a number of points," said Mr. McClearn," but there were others on which there seems to be no hope of getting an agreement. We will go on with the case at 2 o'clock."

KITZ APPEALS KISSING CASE

District Court Refused to Grant Him a New Trial.

Notice of an appeal from the order of the district court denying the motion of the defendant for a new trial of the Bergman-Kitz case was filed with the clerk of the district court today. The action is one in which Mrs. Olga Bergman of Hibbing sued Jacob Kitz, a business man of that town, for $10,000 damages for an alleged assault and improper advances claimed to have mbarried man. At the first trial the jury jury awarded Mrs. Bergman $5,000 married man. At the first trial the damages. Kitz secured a new trial and the jury in the second trial returned a verdict of about $4,500 damages in Mrs. Bergman's favor. The defendant attempted to have the verdict set aside and a new trial ordered on the ground of prejudice on the part of the jury and the claim that the star witness for the plaintiff, Mrs. Kappm, had perjured herself, but the court denied the motion.

Duluth had another little taste of warm weather today.

While the mercury did not hit the high spots, or at least as high as two weeks ago, it was a little too close for real comfort and the atmosphere had that "muggy" feeling which the showers of this afternoon seemed to relieve.

Local Forecaster Richardson of the hilltop station says that the weather is likely to be cooler tomorrow with occasional local showers.

MOSES TAYLOR HERE.

Prominent Eastern Capitalist Thinks Business Conditions Are On Mend.

Moses Taylor of New York city, son of the late Moses Taylor, one of the heaviest stockholders in the Lackawanna railroad, and himself a heavy stockholder in the road, is at the Spalding hotel today.

Mr. Taylor is here for a trip of inspection to some of the mines on the Mesaba range. He will leave for the range this afternoon.

Mr. Taylor states that business conditions in the East are on the mend, and in his opinion, the election will not have the usual effect of seriously disturbing business conditions.

After an inspection of the mineral property on the range, Mr. Taylor will return to Duluth.

BRYAN HAS GOOD CHANCE

T. T. Hudson Finds Strong Sentiment for Him in West.

T. T. Hudson returned yesterday from a trip to the Pacific coast, convinced that William Jennings Bryan will be the next president of the United States. Mr. Hudson bases his opinion upon sentiment found in Oregon and Idaho, and from what he observed at the Denver convention.

"I think Mr. Bryan will be the next president," said Mr. Hudson. "Of course you can't foretell what will develop in the next three months. But from conditions right now I believe that Bryan will be the next occupant of the White House. The result of the Denver convention, in my opinion, shows that the Democratic party is solidly united on Mr. Bryan. I don't believe that any other opinion would sound reasonable after the overwhelming vote for Mr. Bryan.

"I believe that the Western states are very strongly in favor of Bryan, and that the Democratic party has the best chance for a victory that it has had in the past twenty years."

ARISTOCRATIC ENGINEERS.

Tit Bits: The khedive of Egypt has a private railway from his palace at Ras-el-Tin in Alexandria to his country place at Montazar, and it constitutes one of his favorite hobbies. It is, of course, only a short line, ten miles, but it is long enough to give him the constant delight of driving the engine himself, which he generally does. He is a very keen engineer, as was shown by the interest he took in the Nile dam at Assuan, but he is perennially interested in locomotives. During his last visit to France he rode on the cab with the driver of the express from Calais to Amiens, and took a hand at the levers.

The marchioness of Tweeddale drove the first locomotive that crossed the Forth bridge. The marquess of Downshire has a private railway at Hillsborough, and keeps a sort of "pet" engine, which cost his lordship 1,000 guineas. The train contains a splendid saloon carriage for his guests, for he himself is generally on the engine, and a guard's van, in which some of his guests prefer to ride. He almost invariably drives the engine with his own hands, and his favorite speed is forty miles an hour. There is no speed limit on a private railway line, and no police traps!

Earl Fitzwilliam is another practical engineer who delights in the locomotive engine. He learned the art of driving when he was quite young by going whenever he could with the drivers of the coal trains on his own estates.

It is well known one of the young king of Spain's chief diversions before his marriage was to ride on the footplate of the royal train with the driver and take lessons in engine driving. He has become quite expert and fearless. and he has frequently driven his mother and sisters.

Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria is another royal engine driver. He quite recently drove the express from Abbeville to Paris under the superintendence of the regular driver.

A FOOD DRINK

Which Brings Daily Enjoyment.

A lady doctor writes:

"Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleasure to of taking a few minutes ta tell of the enjoyment daily obtained from my morning cup of Postum. It is a food beverage, not a stimulant like coffee.

"I began to use Postum 8 years ago, not because I wanted to, but because coffee, which I dearly loved, made my nights long weary periods to be dreaded and unfitting me for business during the day.

"On advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it carefully as suggested on the package. As I had always used 'cream and no sugar,' I mixed my Postum so. It looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream it as my Kentucky friend always wanted her coffee to look—'like a new saddle.'

"Then I tasted it critically, and I was pleased, yes, satisfied with my Postum in taste and effect, and am yet, being a constant user of it all these years.

"I continually assure my friends and acquaintances that they will like Postum in its use. I have gained weight, can sleep and am not nervous." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

W. J. BRYAN AT OMAHA

Nebraskan is Tendered a Brief Reception at Depot.

Many People Hear a Five-Minute Speech at Des Moines.

Omaha, Neb., July 27.—Following a brief reception at the depot, today, W. J. Bryan and members of the party were driven to the Omaha club house at Twentieth and Douglas streets, where they were assigned quarters for the afternoon and evening. There were many callers and the informal reception planned to take place in the foyer of the club house gave evidence of the popularity of Nebraska's leading citizen in the state metropolis. The entire program was arranged with a view to give Mr. Bryan a purely non-partisan greeting.

After luncheon Mr. Bryan was given an opportunity to meet hundreds of Omaha citizens, but politics being barred, the reception developed into a large social affair.

At 2 o'clock Mr. Bryan was the speaker at a Democratic flag pole raising by the John A. Creighton marching club.

Tonight Mr. Bryan will be initiated into the Knights of Aksarben, the commercial order of Nebraska, to which every business man in Omaha and half of those in Nebraska, belong.

An incident of the trip which pleased Mr. Bryan very much was the presentation to him aboard the train at Atlantic, of several campaign contributions in sums of $5 and $10 each.

Bryan Meets Weaver.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 27.—When William J. Bryan awoke today he found awaiting him Gen. John B. Weaver of Iowa who, in 1892, was the Populist candidate for president. Gen Weaver boarded the train at Colfax, Iowa, while Mr. Bryan was dressing, but so on the two men weer engaged in earnest conversation over the political situation. Gen. Weaver, some tim ago, identified himself with the Democratic party and is a strong friend of Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan had a good night's rest. Before going to bed he was serenaded in his car by a male quartet from a theatrical company bound West. He greatly enjoyed the treat and clapped his hands frequently. At Newton, Iowa, this morning, a large crowd gathered about the car and called for Mr. Bryan. He was only partly dressed, but putting his head out of the window of his stateroom, he said:

"Good morning, gentlemen," and expressed regret that he did not know a speech was to be made, else he would have been up to say a few words.

When Mr. Bryan passed through this city at an early hour this morning, on a Rock Island train, he was greeted by a large crowd, and when he was literally carried from the train to an express truck under the station shed, they cheered, fought, pushed, and some "scratched" their way through the jam to hear the five-minute speech. They cheered at the Nebraskan from the time the train arrived until it had passed beyond the sound of their voices, except for a lull while they were listening intently to his speech.

Mr. Bryan promised them that he would come to Iowa at some future date during the campaign and speak at length.

Speaks at Atlantic, Iowa.

Atlantic, Iowa, July 27.—When the train bearing Mr. Bryan to Omaha pulled into the station here, a good sized crowd was assembled. Mr. Bryan was persuaded to leave the train and address the audience from a truck on the lawn nearby. After being introduced as the next president of the United States at which the crowd cherred, Mr. Bryan discussed the Democratic platform, with which he declared himself as being vastly satisfied with.

"I believe it is honest and straight. forward," he said, "and I believe it embodies what the American people desire written into law."

Proceeding to define the difference between the Chicago and the Denver platforms, Mr. Bryan asserted that the Democratic platform specifically stated the party's purpose, while the Republican platform leaves you in doubt as to what that party would do. He contended that the Republican platform asked the people to find out definitely after the election. "We," he said, "tell you definitely now and our confidence in you and in our position ought to awaken your confidence in our party."

BLOODY BATTLE IN THE STREET

Fruit Merchant and His Customer Have Hot Fight.

A bloody battle was waged, this afternoon at about 2 o'clock, up and down Fifth avenue west, between Superior and First streets, between Mike Minella and Nick Battlevich.

Minella is the proprietor of a small fruit and candy store on the avenue. How the fight began is not known. The first that was seen of it from the street was when Minella forcibly ejected Battlevich from his store. The two engaged in a hand to hand fight, in which Battlevich succeded in throwing his opponent into the gutter. When they had struggled to their feet, it was noticed that Battlevich had received a bad gash across his forehead, over the left eye, from which the blood poured over his face. As soon as they were on their feet they were at it again, neither seeming to have the advantage, until Minlla took to his heels down the alley, with Battlevich in hot pursuit. He overtook and threw Minella before the latter had reached the back door of his place. Just then a policeman appeared on the scene. His arrival probably saved Minella from a bad beating, as he was on his back in the dirt, with Battlevitch on top, one hand closed about Minella's throat and the other working back and forth like a piston rod against his face. The officer had trouble separating them, but succeeded, sending them both to the station in the patrol. They will be arraigned this afternoon.

DOING THINGS.

Chicago News: "If you want a thing done you've got to do it yourself," said the suburbanite who had taken a day off. "I've been after Boggs for a month, trying to get him to come and build this chicken house, and I finally got tired of waiting for him. I'll bet I make a better job of it by the time I'm through than he would, too. And I'll save money.

"How do you figure that out?" asked the neighbor, who had lingered on his way to the station.

"It isn't hard to figure," replied the amateur carpenter. "All he'd care about would be getting his $3 a day. The object with me is to get a place for my chickens to roost. Will your wife give me your square, do you think, if I go after it? Will she know where it is?"

"I don't own one," said the neighbor. "I make a practice of not keeping carpenter's tools around the house. It's too much temptation to fool away time. If you didn't have that hammer and saw you'd manage to let the chickens wait till tomorrow morning. I heard Boggs tell you that he'd be through with what he's doing by then."

"Yes, he told me that, but I don't believe him," said the man who had taken a day off. "Anyway, I know now that I'll get it done."

"How long do you think that it will take?"

"I guess I ought to have it all finished by this evening."

"Then you've got another guess coming," said the neighbor. "I know something about the time it will take you."

"That's all right," said the other. "You notice as you go by this evening."

"I will. By the way, who's going to attend to your business today?"

"I don't expect there will be very much to attend to," said the coop builder; "but I guess my clerk is competent."

"It's a good idea to have a competent clerk," said the neighbor. "All the same, I'll bet that he won't do as well by the business as Boggs would by the chicken house. You'll save $3, perhaps, and perhaps you won't, and you stand to lose $20 worth of business. What did you think of the chicken house Boggs built for Wilkins?"

"I didn't see it," said the saving man.

"Well, you take my word for it that it's a peach, and he had the whole thing done in a day. He's no slouch, old Boggs isn't, and he's got his tools all the time."

"What if he has?"

"Oh, nothing. Only the fellow who first got that off about doing a thing yourself if you want it done didn't know what he was talking about, and I don't care whether it was Ben Franklin or who it was. A man wants too many things done and he can't attend to them all. You'd be building your own house if you followed out your principle. You'd be carrying your own messages instead of letting your office boy do it. You'd be cooking your own dinner and making your own bed. What do you want to have your coal carried in for when you are quite capable of carrying it in yourself? It's because it's cheaper to hire it done, isn't it?"

"Of course it is," replied the man who had taken a day off. "That's a foolish question to ask."

"It's foolish not to do it," said the neighbor.

"You blamed chump," said the suburbanite who had taken a day off. "Do you suppose I'm doing this to save money? No, sir. I'm doing it because I enjoy doing it for a change and I feel that I can afford to indulge myself."

"That's different," said the neighbor.

A MAN'S VIEW.

Chicago News: "Here's another self-appointed critic of woman," remarked the wife, addressing her husband. "I declare, it puts me out of patience to read such drivel."

"Then why read it?" asked the man. "Why even look at the paper that publishes such contemptible falsehoods, especially when you know I'm waiting for it?"

"Wait a minute," said his wife, her eyes still fixed on the page. "I want to finish this."

"Oh, go ahead," said the man. "Don't mind me. Does he say anything about women pulling a paper to pieces and then putting it together again so that no two sheets have their proper sequence?"

"No, and he doesn't say anything about men being so selfish that they aren't willing to let a woman share the old paper with them," said the wife, tartly. "He says that our brains are smaller, of course, and in saying that he just shows how much he knows, because it has been proved that the size of the brain has nothing to do with the intellectual quality. If he knew anything at all he'd know that."

"Is that really so?" asked the man.

"Why, Henry, you know it's so. It was a celebrated doctor who made the discovery. This man says we are vain. If we are any vainer than you lords of creation I want to know. Vain!"

"It seems to me I have heard that charged against you before," said the man.

"We delight to concern ourselves with the trivialities of life, but we have not the capacity to grasp anything big. I'd like to grasp him! I suppose he thinks he's big."

"Don't bother about him," said the man, soothingly. "He isn't worth noticing."

"We're naturally capricious, too, if you please," said his wife. "He says that our devotion to fashion is one patent evidence of this. Didn't you say you didn't want to wear the suit you had a year ago because the cut of it was out of style? You answer me that, Henry."

"And the moths have eaten holes in the back of the coat," supplemented the man. "Don't forget the moths."

"You know perfectly well you wouldn't have worn it if there had not been a moth in it," declared his wife. "And who are responsible for the fashions? Men. The best dressmakers are men, too. I know I'll never go to a woman for another tailor-made dress. It was perfectly disgraceful the way Mrs. Gussette turned out that navy blue broadcloth."

"Are you through with the paper now?"

"He says we gossip and that we are incapable of loyal friendships, and that every woman has an innate craving for luxury and idleness. If we have there are very few of us who get them. If we're married, at any rate."

"That's only too true," agreed the man. "You married women certainly do have a hard time. Nothing to eat but food; nothing to wear but clothes."

"I believe you are in sympathy with him," declared his wife. "How many women are tramps? Will you tell me that?"

"I haven't seen the statistics lately," said the man. "But don't accuse me of being in sympathy with such scandalous ideas. I might have said such things once—when I was very young—not meaning them, of course, but just saying them to be smart and synical. I'll bet that writer is young and unmarried."

"He's got a great deal to learn then," said the man's wife.

"He has," agreed the man. "If he ever gets married he'll learn to keep such opinions to himself. Now, my dear, are you quite through with that paper?"

GERM OF A BAD COLD.

Chicago Tribune: One of the most difficult germs to identify is that of the only too familiar complaint known as the bad cold—the cold which affects most particularly the throat and nasal passages, and which signifies an uncomfortable sickness, all the more exasperating because it is given so little sympathy. As a matter of fact, several different kinds of microbes are concerned in the production of this special malady—half a dozen of which are being fed on bottle food at the Washington laboratory—and nobody has yet been able to find out which one of the lot is chiefly guilty.

Living under such artificial conditions as we do—we are all of us like hothouse plants—a slight chill produces a congestion in the membraneous lining of the breathing passages, and as a result a local congestion follows. At once the hostile microbes—always present in numbers in the nose and throat—get busy, feeding upon the tissues, and trouble follows. Not only do they create a good deal of local irritation, but incidentally they excrete poisonous porducts, which find their way into the blood and are carried by its stream to all parts of the body, causing that general feeling of lassitude and discomfort which is characteristic of such a cold.

Maybe the new "vaccine" treatment may prove to be of value as a preventive of grip the next time a serous epidemic of that malady sweeps the country. Its germ is already identified, and, as a matter of course, is kept in stock at the factory in Washington. One of the smallest of disease producing microbes, it is also one of the most difficult to grow, requiring either human blood or pigeon's blood as food. It is a bacillus, or rod-shaped organism, and, as now known, it produces quite a variety of complaints, according to the part of the body in which it finds a lodgment. In the throat and lungs it starts up one kind of complaint, in the intestines another, and in the nervous system another, and it even attacks the membrane that covers the brain sometimes, inducing a kind of meningitis.

"A REASONABLE PROFIT."

The introduction into the Republican national platform of the new principle of a tariff that will not only cover the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, but will "provide a reasonable profit to the manufacturer," is attracting more attention every day. This is interesting to The Herald, because it was the first newspaper in the country to call attention to this significant change in the phraseology of the Republican tariff declaration, which first appeared in the Ohio and next in the Iowa Republican state platforms.

H. E. Miles, chairman of the tariff and reciprocity committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, discusses this threatening phrase in American Industries for July, and makes some very pertinent and pointed suggestions.

"Our government does not guarantee profits to other classes," says Mr. Miles. "It does not insure farmers' crops, nor guarantee profitable wages to labor nor good salaries to clerks. Our government once guaranteed Union Pacific bonds, but it held the road as security, and sold it out at last to reimburse itself. The government did not guarantee 'reasonable profits' to American railway investors in that case, but in its tariff plank we find the dominant party solemnly pledging itself to guarantee solvency and a good earning return to the stockholders and investors in trusts. Freed of all circumlocution, it really means trust-making by government enactment."

The very men who profit by this paternalistic exertion of government for the benefit of a favored few are the first to cry "paternalism" and "Socialism" when anybody proposes to exert the government's functions for the protection and profit of the masses of humanity. Paternalistic operations of government, apparently, are perfectly proper when they benefit the fat-pursed few, but anarchistic and altogether damnable when they benefit everybody.

Mr. Miles truly says that this new principle, if made effective in the next tariff, will divide manufacturers into three classes, about as follows:

> First—Those who are on a sharp competitive business. These manufacturers receive nothing from the tariff.
>
> Second—Industries more or less closely joined in what is popularly called "gentlemen's agreements." These industries occupy a position in class one and the fully developed trusts. This second class is strengthened by the proper guaranty of profits.
>
> Third—The full-fledged trusts and consolidations, of which there are between 200 and 300, in control of most of the great necessities and conveniences of life.
>
> Under the proposed tariff, which is to cover and in that sense to guarantee profits, these trusts are informed that they will be protected by the government against foreign competition up to the point of a good profit on all they can "reasonably" claim, or by manipulation secure as by the old methods. If the new tariff promised by congress and the political parties, is to be enacted sixty days after the inauguration—say May 4, 1909—trusts can, it must be assumed, print not only on their bonds, but on preferred and common stocks, this extraordinary and un-American clause: "The principal, together with a 'reasonable profit' thereon, is guaranteed by the government of the United States by enactment of May 4, 1909." It is evident that class one, wholly under competition, and class two, midway toward consolidation, will be hastened most rapidly into class three. What will be the result? It surely is not wildly improbable that the manufacturers will become the real and only class wholly guaranteed and promoted by the government at the expense of the consumer.

NOT A GOOD ISSUE, ANYWAY.

The Herald's St. Paul correspondent, in his Saturday dispatch dealing with the Minnesota political situation, pictured some of the Republican leaders as being despondent because of the failure of the issue about "Jake" eating his pie with a knife.

These leaders should not despair. It was not a very good issue, anyway; and on the whole it is perhaps just as well for the Republican cause that the Republican leader has repudiated it. While the fact that a candidate boldly attacked his slab of pie with a knife, instead of delicately partitioning it with a fork or seizing it in his dripping fingers, might attract some votes from those who love humanity in its simpler and less highly developed forms, the argument might not be so powerful with others. Indeed, it is possible that it might even repel some folks who do not appreciate the ingenuity, the courage and the force of character shown by those who dare to brave the risk of unintentional suicide by conveying their food to their mouths with a knife.

But Mr. Jacobson has left little of this issue. He denies even eating pie at all. He might have entered, as a defense against the charge, the claim that he discarded both knife and fork for the convenient and luxurious method of taking the luscious triangle up in his fingers, for fingers were made before forks. But he did not do this. He swept away at one blow every possibility of attracting respect and admiration through this issue by denying absolutely that he eats pie in any form or in any manner.

This ought to be the last of the pie issue. Whether or not its temporary use gained Mr. Jacobson any strength, it has not been good advertising for Minnesota.

THE ITALIANS IN AMERICA.

Like some other nationalities which flock to this country from Europe, the Italians have suffered much from prejudice created by a few violent and ill-behaved members. Baron Planches, the Italian ambassador to the United States, has thrown much light upon the position of his people in our population, and what he says is of interest in this county, which the last state census showed to have nearly 2,500 people of Italian birth, not to speak of those whose parents were born in Italy.

The national bureau of labor speaks in the most complimentary terms of the Italians, asserting that they are industrious, frugal, well-behaved, progressive and generally peaceable. Baron Planches says that there are about 1,800,000 Italians in the United States, including those of Italian parentage who were born here. Most of them live in the Atlantic coast states. New York has 500,000, Boston 60,000, Philadelphia 20,000, while in such towns as Newark, Hoboken, Elizabeth and a number of New England towns there is an average of 12,000 to 15,000. Chicago has 100,000, New Orleans has 25,000 and 60,000 are in California.

Originally the Italian immigrants were Genoese, Piedmontese and Tuscans. During the last fifteen years most of them came from Southern Italy, and include Sicilians, Calabrians, Apulians, etc. About 5 per cent of the Italian immigrants have been agricultural laborers, few of which, however, have sought the country after their arrival here. Baron Planches accounts for this by stating that while most of the people of Southern Italy are engaged in agriculture, they congregate in towns, and have small love for the country. Hence they tend in this country to become general laborers and to congregate in the cities.

As far as possible the Italian officials in this country are working to safeguard the newcomers from the evils which threaten the unsuspecting on arrival in a new country. They guard them from going to an unhealthy section or to places where there is little work. On the other side the government officials look after the health of the Italian migrants, aid them in many ways and see that agents land them at their proper destination in this country. On this side the American government also looks faithfully after their interests. A successful effort is now being made to have these immigrants settle in many of the Southern and Southwestern states to engage in farming.

The American Italians have suffered from discredit because of the activities of organizations like the "Black Hand" society. As to this organization Baron Planches says: "The Black Hand society is by no means a powerful organization, as is imagined in some quarters. It seems to have originated in Sicily, and whenever one or two Sicilians desire to levy blackmail they write a letter and place upon it the insignia of the Black Hand. The criminals of other countries have taken advantage of the discredit which this practice has thrown upon Italians generally and use the insignia in their communications, thus evading suspicion. You may be certain that there is no large and powerful society. There are small groups of swindlers who should be caught and punished. A society known as the White Hand has just been formed in Chicago. It comprises Sicilians, and its purpose is to hunt down relentlessly all persons engaged in Black Hand work."

HELP IT ALONG.

There are many reasons why you should, if you can possibly arrange it, make an excursion to Fond du Lac Friday, Aug. 7, equipped with a basket full of lunch. It is a beautiful trip and a charming experience, worth having at any time. It will give you a day's relief from the care and burden and heat of the city, and a day's delightful communing with nature's most beautiful furnishings—the woods, the shore, the tree-clad islands, the picturesque St. Louis river.

And, above all, if you take this pleasant trip on this particular day, you will be helping the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic to make a proper showing for themselves and for Duluth at the annual encampment of the G. A. R. at Toledo beginning Aug. 31. Every citizen wishes Duluth to make a creditable showing on all occasions, and this is one occasion where she will have a chance to shine if her people wish to take advantage of it.

It was all explained in The Herald Saturday evening by Judge White, adjutant of Willis A. Gorman Post. Duluth, for the first time in the history of the state, is the home of the department commander. Because of this fact, and the fact that Commander Bates has secured for the Duluth drum corps the honor of leading the Minnesota department in the parade, the veterans wish to raise money enough to send the drum corps, numbering fifteen, to the encampment. Instead of asking for contributions, they have decided to give a basket picnic and excursion a week from Friday, and they hope the public will take a thousand tickets.

These are reasons in plenty why you should buy these tickets. If you can't go yourself, there are lots of people that would be tickled to death at the chance to use your tickets.

'WARE THE PUBLIC DRINKING CUP.

Most people have instinctive objection to drinking out of public cups, such as are usually found at street fountains and water-coolers on trains or in public places; and that instinct is founded on sound scientific fact.

Therefore it is pleasant to note that the board of public works of Duluth is planning to do away with the public drinking cups about the city, and to replace them with sanitary fountains.

An article in the Technical World magazine, entitled "Death in School Drinking Cups," furnishes information calculated to make everybody that reads it forswear forever the use of public drinking cups. It deals only with school drinking cups, and as children are more healthy than grown folks, it can be imagined that a similar exposition of street drinking cups would be even more appalling.

A cup which had been in use nine days in a school was a clear, thin glass. It was broken into a number of pieces and properly stained for examination with a microscope magnifying 1,000 diameters. The human cells scraped from the lips of the drinkers were so numerous on the upper third of the glass that the head of a pin could not be placed anywhere without touching several of these bits of skin. The saliva, by running down on the inside of the glass, had carried cells and bacteria to the bottom. Here, however, they were less than one-third as abundant as at the brim.

By counting the cells present on fifty different areas on the glass as seen with the microscope, it was estimated that the cup contained over 20,000 human cells or bits of deal skin. As many as 150 germs were seen clinging to a single cell, and very few cells showed less than ten germs. Between the cells were thousands of germs left there by the smears of moisture deposited by the drinkers. Not less than 100,000 bacteria were present on every square inch of the glass.

It is a good thing, probably, that our eyes do not see things as the microscope does; if that were the case, we should undoubtedly all die from starvation or thirst, if not from shocks of horror. "What we don't know don't hurt us," and many people drink out of public drinking cups without a thought of the consequences. Yet having heard as a result of a scientific investigation what possibilities a harmless looking school room drinking glass contains, it is very likely that most of us will be more careful in the future about the drinking utensils we use.

More important and more convincing than the microscopic examination is the demonstrated fact, as related in the Technical World article, that where a number of persons drank from a cup previously used by the sick, many of them became ill.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

If the report of a traveling man is to be believed, Virginia possesses the original dissipated Towser. You have often heard the expression of "going to the bowwows." The condition of the Virginia member of the canine tribe makes that trip one of most unseemly intent and does much to clear up the meaning of the expression.

The faithful friend of man, according to report, is indeed a most faithful of every man that "will buy." In fact, he is a habitual hanger on around a certain emporium where the musical gurgle of the swishing spigot lulls irritated nerves to a sense of drowsy content. Every time the spigot swishes and the gurgling sound of falling lager causes a pause in the conversation of Russian history and high art studies, Towser pricks up his ears and lines up against the mahogany.

If one of the lager lovers should overlook the faithful friend of man, crouching there beside the bar, with a look in his unsteady brown eyes that would move a granite image of J. P. Morgan, Towser takes things in his own hands—or mouth, rather, and is liable to take a cross section cut from the calf of one of the forgetful worshippers at the shrine of Bacchus.

Towser has his own little individual receptacle, into which is poured generous potions of the stuff that has caused Milwaukee to be well and favorably known in the countries of the Rhine. And what an effect this constant imbibing of the product of the golden grain has had upon the unguided canine! From an innocent and playful puppy, with deep and confiding brown eyes that gazed straight into yours, Towser has degenerated into a smirking, shifty, fat and pudgy dog of shady habits. Occasionally the brown eyes take on a flash of pristine innocence; then they change to the deceitful, shifty look of the barfly. Poor Towser has gone the pace and is developing sacs under his one-time beautiful brown orbs.

Sad as it is to relate, Towser is soused almost every night in the week. It has become a habit with him. Sometimes he becomes lively and vivacious; at other times he becomes sodden and mean of spirit. Sometimes he reels from the barroom bright and gay to his kennel, where, thank heaven, there are no keyholes and no creaking.

The Prohibition league might use Towser as a most potent argument for the closing of saloons. He gives a most exciting entertainment at times. The object lesson of a dog under the influence of liquor might prove to be a very strong reason why men should not have strong drink. There is no reason to believe that Towser would have any objection to thus acting as an instrument in the moral regeneration of man.

Before leaving Duluth C. D. Griffith, retiring president of the Minnesota State Bankers' association, expressed his appreciation of the way the city had responded to the entertainment of the bankers. Mr. Griffith stated that not only had the members of the association enjoyed a splendid time while in Duluth, but that the interest of the people in the program of the meeting was general, the accommodations provided by the entertainment committee were adequate and that in every way Duluth proved that as a convention city it is a thorough success.

Other members of the association expressed themselves as delighted with the time they had while here. The many places of interest in the city, and the many places of interest that can be reached by a short ride on the train, make Duluth one of the most desirable convention cities in the state. The success that the city enjoyed in the handling of the bankers' convention should be a strong argument for the city to go after other conventions.

Down Northfield way, according to T. W. Wann, at the Lenox, they have a system that in its end is not unlike the ancient game of extorting tribute from passing travelers.

Northfield is a favorite run for automobilists. It was this fact that led a farmer to devise a scheme whereby he could extricate the shining dollars from the pockets of the motorists. The scheme is simple, withal effective.

In front of the house of the farmer is a road that is naturally muddy. One day an automobile became stuck in the mud, and the owner went to the house of the farmer and asked for assistance. When the farmer had hitched two pair of Clydesdales onto the cold and quiet chug wagon and dragged it forth from the slough of clinging mud, the owner of the machine deposited three bright and shining dollars into the calloused hand of the rustic, who gained an idea.

Nature is never permitted to do its work in the matter of drying up that bad place in front of the farmer's house. The farmer and his son, it is said, worked diligently at carrying water and pouring it upon the worst place in the road. They worked in the stillness of the night, and in the fullness of the day awaited the coming of the victims.

Three dollars has been established as the regular price for hauling an automobile from the mud. Dollar wheat has no attractions to this particular farmer. His scheme has farming beat to a frayed and soiled imitation of a piece of faded crinoline. He smokes his pipe under the shade of the old apple tree and simply waits for ready money. No straining at the handles of the plow or putting a crimp in the small of his back by digging spuds—nothing like that at all. He simply sits under the shady lee of a spreading tree and waits until some motorist falls into the trap contrived for him. Then, pretending reluctance, the farmer goes to the barn and brings out the team that is harnessed and ready. It is an easy way to get money. It would pay the members of the state automobile association to raise a fund for putting in drains and dykes in front of the farmer's house.

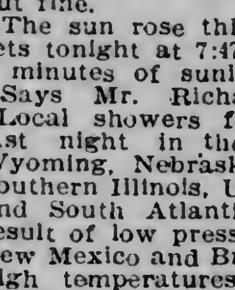
THE WEATHER.



A brilliant Sunday, hot back from the lake shore and comfortably warm even within reach of the lake's breezes, was followed by a warm Monday, with the sun's rays diminished in force by filtration through occasional clouds and constant haziness. The thermometer got only to 74 degs. in Duluth, but it was much higher than that back from the lake. The weather man expects local showers and cooler weather tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today it was partly cloudy, but fine.

The sun rose this morning at 4:41 and sets tonight at 7:47, making 15 hours and 6 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Local showers fell during Sunday or last night in the Red River valley, Wyoming, Nebraska, Eastern Missouri, Southern Illinois, Utah, New Mexico, Gulf and South Atlantic states largely as a result of low pressure areas central over New Mexico and British Columbia. Rather high temperatures prevail to the eastward of the 95th meridian, but throughout the Dakotas, Saskatchewan and Manitoba somewhat cooler weather attends a high pressure area central over those districts. Indications favor local showers and cooler temperatures in this section tonight and Tuesday."

Quadrennial Ode.

Booming and booming like thunder, up from the shores of the sea;
Down from the peaks of the mountains, speeches and speeches there be;
Son of Ohio in action; pride of Nebraska unfurled,
Jackass and pachyderm rampant over the gabfested world,
Up from the banks of the Wabash where the tall sycamores bloom,
Out from the woodnutmeg forests, rhetoric, gesture and boom;
Heaving of words on split eardrums; militant verbosity,
Ossa on Pelion lifted—Blest is a people so free!

Near every crossroads and hamlet, by every coulee and creek,
Banners and badges and buttons, barrels with bungholes aleak.
Streams of mad eloquence flowing; oceans of speech lashed to foam,
All for the glory of country, all for the altars of home.
Flags snapping out from the steeples; lions of logic unchained,
Chariots creaking and swaying, steeds racing wildly, unreined;
Posters and torches and streamers; bulletin, bunting and band;
All for the cause of the people; all for the love of the land!

Oaks of the forest uprooted; sea walls of calm rent in twain;
Valleys all wind swept and beaten; shrieking of traitors in pain;
Cyclones of promises whirling; blasting tornadoes of speech,
Sin fleeing madly for shelter; cannons red hot at the breech;
Canister, grape, steel and bullet; hysteric platform and pen;
Simile, climax, convulsion, over and over again;
Orator, spellbinder, prophet; tomtom, and hewgag and horn,
Sounding the pledges of party to living and dead and unborn!

Knee deep in words and franked speeches; ears full of clamor and din;
Woe to the child of the people, swept by tempestuous chin;
Tossing in seas of persuasion, argument, logic and threat;
Beaten, bombarded and battered; imbecile soon but not yet;
Skies split with luminous lightnings, cliffs tumbled into the sea;
Antics, gyrations, gymnastics—all that the people be free!
Cymbals and tocsins and slogans; twilight and midday and morn,
Blest be the people forever—living and dead and unborn!

"Bang It Again!"

Delineator: The family were gathered in the library admiring a splendid thunderstorm, when the mother bethought herself of Dorothy, alone in the nursery. Fearing lest her little daughter should be awakened and feel afraid, she slipped away to reassure her. Pausing at the door, however, in a vivid flash of lightning which illuminated the whole room she saw her youngest olive branch sitting straight up in bed.

Her big, brown eyes were glowing with excitement, and she clapped her chubby hands, while in her shrill voice she shouted encouragingly, "Bang it again, God! Bang it again!"

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

Oneota is to be platted to correspond with West Duluth.

The rain storm on July 25 proved the most severe ever known in Duluth. In the five hours ending at 9 p. m., not less than 2.15 inches of water poured out on the city as if in buckets. Nearly all this fall was in two 15-minute storms, one coming up at 4 o'clock from the west and the other two hours later from the north. Several houses in and near the farming settlement of Hermantown were badly damaged. In the city much loss was caused. Superior street was washed out in several places, and no street cars passed between the two ends of town after 5 o'clock. Suffel & Co., 129 West Superior street, were caught under a shower that came from a clogged drain at the roof of their store, and their stock of dry goods was seriously damaged. A number of basements were flooded, including C. H. Oppel's store; The Evening Herald press room, where engine, boilers and nine steam presses were submerged; the Tribune press room, M. M. Gasser's grocery, basement and the laundry of the Bay View hotel. Altogether, the damage may amount to $3,000, a large share of which falls on Suffel & Co.

Regarding the prospects of building the Duluth & Winnipeg road, it is proposed to consolidate with the old company, the Duluth, Northwestern & Winnipeg, which was organized last year. A leading capitalist of Saginaw is to be made president, and the matter of negotiating bonds is already partially arranged. Construction is to begin at Cloquet.

Capt. Tom McLaughlin celebrated yesterday the seventh anniversary of his entrance into the police department of Duluth. He entered the service on July 26, 1881, and has been longest on the force of any of its members.

At a meeting of Clan Stewart last night, seventeen new members were initiated. After the conclusion of business, Mr. McLean, a famous bagpiper, showed his skill. He was selected to play before the marquis of Lorne during the Canadian trip, and carries nearly thirty medals given him for his skill with the pipes. He will soon move to Duluth and be permanent piper of the local clan.

The Minnesota Prohibitionists have nominated Hugh Harrison of Minneapolis for governor.

W. H. Britts of Vermilion, a brother of the junior member of the firm of Stewart & Britts, bankers, is visiting at the West end.

The new proprietor of Knoblock's hardware store, at the West end, will take possession on Aug. 1. Mr. Knoblock will remain in Duluth and engage in some other business.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Long Prairie Argus: Bryan criticised the Chicago platform and now Republicans are picking to pieces the Denver platform, but in a year there will not be one persons in a thousand who will clearly remember what the platform said on most of the great questions. They do know, however, and will know how the candidates view these great questions and what they are likely to do.

Redwood Reville: It is hard for a good many of us to get away from the political "party of our fathers," but if the old parties don't get out of the ruts pretty soon there will be a breaking of ties all along the line.

Fergus Falls Wheelock's Weekly: The paragraphers of the Republican papers are already making merry over the first sentence of the Democratic committee's decision concerning publicity of contributions, that "no contribution shall be accepted from corporations." "Sour grapes," they shout in chorus, "couldn't get any anyhow." It is doubtless true. And that means, you short-sighted funny men, that Mr. Bryan is not the candidate whom the corporations want for president.

St. Peter Herald: For purely selfish reasons the Herald could have wished the nomination bestowed upon a Democrat who is not unknown in Minnesota, but it finds no fault with Mr. Bryan's leadership. In fact, we welcome it, for what party could ask for a greater leader? He is a man in a million; perhaps the greatest American of his age.

McIntosh Times: As predicted by us some time ago, Bryan was the whole thing at the Denver convention, and, in our opinion, his chances of election at the polls are better than that of any other Democratic candidate other than a gutta percha one. How the election will results will probably depend upon a few doubtful states. The organized labor vote will largely go to Bryan, the financial interests to Taft. We are not betting on the election, but were it a case of popular choice we would bet on Bryan.

Warren Register: Whether or not Eddy's statement, made when he nominated Jacobson at the state convention, that Jake eats his pie with a knife, is true, it is probable that Eddy made it because he believed it would help Jacobson, just as Eddy is said to have profited in his campaigns by at times dressing and acting in many respects like a common tramp. How Jacobson eats his pie, or whether he takes long or short sweetening in his coffee, is nobody's business, unless he does it solely for intended political effect.

International Falls Press: One man ran the Chicago convention, absolutely. One man ran the Denver convention, absolutely. Still we talk about the people running things in this country.

Anoka Free Press: It is now up to the Republican papers, that have worked so hard for Bryan's nomination, to keep up their good work and help elect him. Mr. Bryan must be as desirable and as deserving of praise on their part after the nomination as he was before it. Here's a chance for them to stand pat in a worthy cause.

Madison Independent Press: A little "tariff reduction" last winter would have been a far more potent campaign argument than "tariff revision" after the next election. Plainly the Republican party has blundered and the task now set before it is to convince the people that the party is acting in good faith, that the party means to revise the tariff and revise it the right way, and that is downward.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Contentment and ambition have nothing in common.

Some people act as if they had a corner on goodness.

The hard part about an easy job is the getting thereof.

When it comes to giving advice lazy men usually work overtime.

As a rule, only those who don't need advice are willing to take it.

No man ever acquired a lasting brand of popularity by knocking.

A woman isn't necessarily industrious because she has a busy tongue.

About the only thing some men are fit for is to give the undertaker a job.

The path to success is paved with good intentions that were carried out.

And sometimes a man gets married in order to have some one to believe his talk.

Men who like the same things and women who hate the same people are congenial.

Ask yourself this question: "Do I expect of my friends more than I am willing to give?

To the suburbanite life seems to be made up of mowing the lawn and shoveling snow off the walks.

The man who takes up a lot of room in a street car may not occupy any space at all in the hall of fame.

When a man has an excuse for going downtown every night it's a pretty sure sign that he is married to the wrong woman.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man can always be enthusiastic about the cook's meals if he has plenty to drink with them.

A woman's idea of a good husband is one who says it costs him less to be married than it used to cost to be a bachelor.

You could never make a man see that it is not mere generosity that moves him to send home to his wife a box of the special kind of fruit he likes.

There's nothing more exasperating about a woman than for her always to agree with you so you can't argue with her to show her how much smarter you think you are.

The most remarkable thing about a girl in a summer hotel is the way she can get proposed to in the letters she writes to her friends if there isn't a man within a hundred miles.

Big Lead on Whiskers.

Chicago Record-Herald: Notwithstanding Mr. Bryan's bare face, it will be seen that the Democratic ticket has more than a two-thirds majority of the whiskers.

Pictures of Memory.

Among the beautiful pictures
That hangs on memory wall,
Is one of a dim old forest,
That seemeth best of all.
Not for its gnarled oaks olden,
Dark with the mistletoe;
Not for the violets golden
That sprinkle the vale below;
Not for the milk-white lilies
That lean from the fragrant hedge,
Coquetting all day with the sunbeams,
And stealing their golden edge;
Not for the vines on the upland
Where the bright red berries rest,
Nor the pinks, nor the pale, sweet cowslips
It seemeth to me the best.

I once had a little brother
With eyes that were dark and deep—
In the lap of that dim old forest,
He lieth in peace asleep.
Light as the down of the thistle,
Free as the winds that blow,
We roved there the beautiful summers,
The summers of long ago;

But his feet on the hills grew weary,
And one of the autumn eves
I made for my little brother
A bed of the yellow leaves.
Sweetly his pale arms folded
My neck in a meek embrace,
As the light of immortal beauty
Silently covered his face;
And when the arrows of sunset
Lodged in the tree-tops bright,
He fell, in his saint-like beauty,
Asleep by the gates of light.

Therefore, of all the pictures
That hang on memory's wall,
The one of the dim old forest
Seemeth the best of all.

Months of Plenty Succeed Months of Money Famine.

Detroit Free Press: A year ago there was not the available money to finance the needs of the world. In 1907 expansion in all countries and in almost every avenue of industry stopped short. The reaction reduced profits with some, forced others simply to mark time while holding their own and still others to temporary or permanent suspension.

As a logical result there began a rapid accumulation of idle money. Now there is a larger supply on hand than for a decade. American bank reserves are at the highest point in ten years. Not once within that period has the Bank of England's rate been lower than at this time.

Just as surely as the lack of available capital caused the sudden halt last year, the abundance of such capital now will give an impetus to renewed enterprise everywhere, restoring prosperity to every legitimate line of operation.

The "Reasonable Profit" Idea.

(H. E. Miles, Chairman Tariff and Reciprocity Committee, National Association of Manufacturers, in American Industries for July.)

Our government does not guarantee profits to other classes. It does not insure farmers' crops, nor guarantee profitable wages to labor, nor good salaries to clerks.

Our government once guaranteed Union Pacific bonds, but it held the road as security, and sold it out at last to reimburse itself. The government did not guarantee "reasonable profits" to American railway investors in that case, but in its tariff plank we find the dominant party solemnly pledging itself to guarantee solvency and a good earning return to the stockholders and investors in trusts. Freed of all circumlocution, it really means trust-making by government enactment.

This principle, if made effective in the next tariff, will divide manufacturers into three classes, about as follows:

1. Those who are on a sharp competition basis. These manufacturers receive nothing from the tariff.
2. Industries more or less closely joined in what is popularly called "gentlemen's agreements." These industries occupy a position about half way between those mentioned in class one and the fully developed trusts. This second class is strengthened by the proper guarantee of profits.
3. The full-fledged trusts and consolidations, of which there are between 200 and 300, in control of most of the great necessities and conveniences of life.

Under the proposed tariff, which is to cover, and in that sense to guarantee profits, these trusts are informed that they will be protected by the government against foreign competition up to the point of a good profit on all they can "reasonably" claim, or by manipulation secure as by the old methods.

If the new tariff, promised by congress and the political parties, is to be enacted sixty days after the inauguration—say May 4, 1909—trusts can, it must be assumed, print not only on their bonds but also on preferred and common stocks this extraordinary and un-American clause, "The principal, together with a 'reasonable profit' thereon, is guaranteed by the government of the United States by enactment of May 4, 1909."

It is evident that class one, wholly under competition, and class two, midway toward consolidation, will be hastened most rapidly into class three. What will be the result? It surely is not wildly improbable that the manufacturers will become the real and only class wholly guaranteed and promoted by the government at the expense of the consumer.

Wished-For Promise Withheld.

New York Post: Mr. Bryan's pledge that if elected he would not try to be president again was not supplemented by the promise that if defeated he would not run again.

LOOKING AROUND.

Chicago News: "What are you a-drivin' at now, William?" asked the village patriarch of the young man with the near-linen collar and fancy-banded straw hat.

"Well, I ain't doin' nothin' eggsactly right now," answered the young man. "I've sold my platin' outfit an' I'm lookin' around a spell. Mabbe I'll take the agency for a bicycle house. There's a firm has wrote me an' offered me a pretty good layout. I don't see but I might make some money at it."

"It does look's if you might," agreed the patriarch. "But if I was you I'd get after the road supervisors an' get them to make a few roads for the wheels to run on afore I sunk much capertal in it. Do they want you to put up $50 as a g'ar'ntee?"

"Shucks, no!" answered William. "I don't have to put up nothin'. All there is, I get the order an' notify them an' they ship the wheel down. Then, after the feller's seen it I c'lect the money an' take out my c'mission. The only thing is that I've got to ride one of the wheels m'self, but then they let me have it at cost, so's that part of it wouldn't be so much. But there's another firm in Portland, Me., is offerin' me a good thing."

"What's that, William?" inquired the patriarch.

"It's a photo enlargin' an' colorin' business. They've got a patent process for enlargin' pictures an' makin' them look jest like they was oil painted. You couldn't tell it from a picture that cost $100. Suthin' that's jest been invented. They claim that agents is makin' as high as $10 or $15 a day on an av'ridge. Ten dollars a day would be good enough for me. I'd be pretty well satisfied with that. I've sent off for samples, but you bet I ain't goin' to send them no money for the reg'lar outfit until I see what the pictures look like. I got bit on that 'Lives o' Self-Made Men,' year afore last, that way. You don't ketch me twice."

"I thought mabbe you was goin' to take orders for suits o' clo'es again," said the patriarch. "You must have made good money at that."

"I didn't make nothin'," said the youth. "I only sold three suits an' Hen Waters wouldn't pay for his'n when he seen it, an' they wouldn't pay me what I'd made on the other two. They claimed I was owin' them an' they wanted to sue me. I told 'em to go ahead an' sue, daggone 'em."

"How about that patent washin' machine?"

"Couldn't do nothin' with that. I guess the women would have bought 'em all right if they'd have the say-so, but the men folks didn't see but what the reg'lar old tub an' wash b'ller was good enough. There's too many mossbacks around here."

"Wouldn't buy them self-adjustin' bachelors' buttons, either, would they? I s'pose they 'lowed that the kind sewed on with a needle and thread was good enough to hook their suspenders on. Well, well! Wasn't the mushroom growin' a success, either?"

"I lost clost onto $7," said William, sadly. An' all my time," he added.

"Sho!" said the village patriarch, sympathetically. "That was too bad. But then a man who's all the time takin' up business enterprises has to expec' to lose once in a while. I'll tell ye, William, I seen an ad in the paper yestiddy about a patent incubator that the man who owns it wants to get introduced around. He says that there's liberal terms to agents, an' you can get excloosive territory."

"I seen the ad," said William. "I thought some of writin' the feller. I don't know but what I will anyway. If that photo enlargin' business don't turn out the way I think it's goin' to I'll hafter take up suthin' else. I guess it ain't too late for fruit trees. If it is there's a candymakin' machine that offers inducements."

"An' if that don't pan out an' the worst comes to the worst you're young an' husky an' you can always go to work," said that patriarch.

SKIFFINS.

Chicago News: "He's a darling," said the girl with a maltese cat in her lap.

"Who's a darling?" asked the discontented-looking young man who sat on the steps beside her. "Do you mean to say that Johnson is? Have you got the nerve to tell me that?"

"Of course not," replied the girl. "I mean Skiffins here."

"Oh," said the young man, with an air of relief. "I didn't know. You were talking about Johnson just now. However, I don't like cats."

The girl rubbed her cheeks gently agaginst the cat's head.

"What are you doing that for?" asked the young man.

"Because I love him, of course," said the girl, opening her eyes wide. "I love all cats, and Skiffins in particular. Don't I, Skiffinsums? What makes you dislike them? I don't see how you can."

"What are they good for?" asked the young man, gloomily.

"Oh, for lots of things. Skiffins can sing, and he can open a door latch, and he coozles up so beautifully."

"Of course, it's handy to have a cat around that can open a door latch," said the young man. "So far as singing is concerned, when I hear cats sing I open the window and begin to throw things."

"I think you're horrid," declared the girl.

"I suppose I am," agreed the young man, "but you can't make me like cats. Skiffins in particular."

"Why Skiffins?" inquired the girl.

"Because I think Skiffins gets altogether too much attention. He's getting too much this very minute."

"But he's so lovely and soft to pet," pleaded the girl, "and he really is a most remarkable cat. He can do other things besides singing and opening doors."

The young man appeared to consider this. "Can he build fires?" he asked presently.

"How perfectly ridiculous!" said the girl. "Of course he can't."

"I didn't know," said the young man. "I've heard all sorts of stories about their intelligence. I can build fires. I can build a bully fire, and I really like to do it."

"I don't see what that has to do with it," said the girl.

"I was trying to show my superiority," said the young man. "I don't like to brag, but I can do other things, too. I can sing, if it comes to that. You've never heard me, because I'm a little shy, but some day I'll try to overcome my shyness and warble to you."

"Do come in now and sing," said the girl, half rising.

"No, let's stay here," begged the young man. "I want to tell you some more things about myself—things I can do. I can wash dishes if I've got somebody I like to wipe them for me."

"Dear me!" said the girl. "You're quite accomplished, aren't you?"

"You bet I am," said the young man. "I can beat any cat you can bring up against me when it comes to accomplishments. I can beat rugs and carry coal."

"So can the yardman next door," said the girl.

"Good for him! I can also dig flower beds. I think it's lots of fun to dig flower beds and sprinkle the lawn. I'd like to do it in my own yard. I mean to some day. Are you listening to me or are you too busy petting Skiffins?"

"I'm listening," said the girl.

"I've got another advantage over Skiffins, and the yardman, too," said the young man. "I can buy a little house if I want to, or I could rent a flat if somebody else preferred it. I've been thinking of it now for quite a while, but—— You aren't interested, are you?"

The girl slapped the cat rather smartly. "Get down, Skiffins," she said. "This bad man doesn't like to have me pet you when he's around, and we have to be polite to our guests. Get down!"

The disgusted cat padded heavily to the floor and the young man drew up a little closer. "That's better," he said. "Now I want to say something serious to you."

MAKING A HIT WITH HIS BOYS.

A Sunday school teacher on the upper West side has a class of boys who are all at the age when to sit in the upper gallery at a burlesque theater is the most delightful sensation in the world except going to the circus. It didn't take the teacher long to discover the inclinations of his boys, and being a diplomatic sort of teacher he didn't scold them and tell them how sinful it is for little boys to go to theater, and especially to sit in the gallery where only naughty boys go, says the New York Sun.

No, the teacher made an appointment with every boy in the class to meet him the following Saturday afternoon, each boy to wear his Sunday clothes and be equipped with a bag of peanuts. At the hour set the teacher found that every boy had been on hand an hour ahead of time.

He lead the way to the nearest burlesque house and bought tickets in the gallery for himself and his party. The theater never had a more appreciative audience, and the Sunday school teacher won't soon forget the afternoon's experience.

It took six months of Sunday school lessons to wipe out the memories of that afternoon, and the teacher then made an announcement that gave him absolute control of every boy for life and stamped him as the best Sunday school teacher who ever asked if any little boy had memorized the golden text. The teacher merely said that inasmuch as he believed that every boy ought to know how to defend himself he had arranged to have the entire class admitted to be a "really truly" pugilistic contest in a nearby athletic club.

The teacher carried out his promise, and the very next Sunday each boy went to Sunday school accompanied by three new boys. It is one of the few cases on record in which a Sunday school class developed a healthy growth out of the Christmas, Easter or picnic season.

No one is apt to think more highly of a store than its owner does—hence his advertising should be so big that it will reflect his belief in his store's importance—and so continuous that it will have the force of iteration.

RESORTS TO BE MOVED

St. Croix Avenue May be Cleared of Disorderly Houses.

Property is Needed by the Growing Wholesale Interests.

An agitation which probably will result in the removal of the red light district from St. Croix avenue to some other part of the city, probably "The Glenn," at Twelfth avenue west, has been begun by railroad, wholesale, retail and other business interests.

City authorities have been interested in the matter, and the movement to secure the removal of the disorderly houses from their present location is now well under way. It may take several months to accomplish the desired result, but there is no longer any doubt that the improvement will come sooner or later.

For several years past there have been objections to the district being in its present location. These objections have become more numerous recently. The land along St. Croix ovenue is considered far too valuable to devote to its present purpose. It is about the only available district left in the central portion of the city for wholesale houses and railroad yards. The wholesale district is spreading in that direction, and every year sees new business houses built along Lake avenue. These houses now employ hundreds of girls, who every day must pass in full view of the houses lining St. Croix avenue. They also must pass crowds of rough men attracted to the neighborhood by the disorderly resorts. It is claimed that several of the most objectional saloons along Lake avenue would be unable to remain in business if it were not for the patronage extended by men who visit St. Croix avenue. It is believed that the removal of the places in question would ultimately result in the cleaning up of Lake avenue, and bringing it to a condition where women and girls would feel safe to travel along it without escorts.

Residents of Park Point and campers across the canal are among those who have registered the strongest protests against letting the district remain in its present location. Everybody going to and from from the canal sees more or less of the houses and the undesirable class hanging around them. The claim is also made that it cheapens East Superior street in the vicinity of First avenue east.

There is a question as to what location is best suited to the purposes. There are bound to be objections, no matter where the houses are put. After carefully looking the situation over, those interested in the movement have concluded that "The Glen" at Twelfth avenue west is about as good a place as any. "The Glen" is a large cleft in the rocks, pretty well shut off from view from all sides, and out of sight of the street car line. It is well within the police patrol limits of the city and could be controlled by the police without additional help.

ALL QUIET AT WILLEMSTAD

People Pleased That Venezuelan Consul Got Away Safely.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Sunday July 26.—Great joy was manifested by the population here when it became known that the Venezuelan consul, Senor Lopez, who took refuge in the German consulate after a mob of Curacao natives had stormed the Venezuelan consulate, had taken passage for Porto Cabello on the steamer Maracaibo. The steamer arrived at 6 o'clock this afternoon and the counsel boarded her and proceeded for Venezuela.

The population of the island is quite calm. The troops have been withdrawn and returned to barracks. No casualties resulted from the attack made last night on the dwelling of a Venezuelan resident and the demonstration before the residence of the Venezuelan resident of the Venezuelan consul.

As Consul Lopez was going from his residence at noon to the consulate, escorted by armed troops, to remove the official papers, the mob nearly caught him, but he was saved by the arrival of more troops.

This afternoon the counsul's wife and children were escorted to the steamer Maraicaibo by the attorney general. They were not molested. A strong armed force took the consul on board the steamer, which was guarded by troops up to the moment of her departure for Porto Cabello. Every possible protection was accorded the consul by the Willemstad authorities and with the exception of a few insignificant bruises caused by stones thrown at him he was not harmed.

There was a great popular manifestation tonight to the leaders of the demonstration, at which several speeches were delivered.

THIS IS WHY HE IS SUCCESSFUL

WITTMAN IN AN INTERVIEW TELLS HIS SECRET

When asked to what he attributed his success to most and why so many were envious of the great amount of patronage he has established in such a short space of time, Wittman remarked: "Truthfulness, honesty and to never misrepresent is my motto." Through honest dealing with the public, Wittman has established a permanent business at Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street, as strong as the rocks of Gibraltar. He is proving every statement and his experts have never accepted an incurable case. His medicines are sold under a guarantee. All of this goes to prove the honest intentions and desire to cure his patrons, no matter what might be said. Mrs. D. J. Eyer of Biwabik is the latest sensational cure to the credit of these experts, and they are the everlasting gratitude of this woman who was saved from a bloody operation for gall stones in less than twenty-four hours, by the Wittman Method. Over 200 were removed from her system. The office at Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street continues to be thronged by an immense crowd from 10 to 12 and 2 to 4. Wittman will deliver another lecture tonight at his free band concert and vaudeville show at Fourth street and Lake avenue.

WAGON RUNS OVER SMALL BOY

Chris Ridgewell Has Leg Bruised Near Northern Pacific Station.

A heavy wagon, with a gray and bay horse attached, ran over Chris Ridgewell of Twenty-seventh avenue west and Railroad street, this morning, near the Northern Pacific depot, on Fifth avenue. Although the boy appeared to be seriously hurt, the driver did not wait to learn his condition, is said to have whippen up his horses and left Ridgewell to the care of onlookers.

Sympathetic men picked the boy up and carried him to a doctor's office up town. One of his legs was badly bruised, ant he was otherwise cut about the body, but no bones were broken, and the doctor said he would recover, without any serious results. He was taken to his home It is not known who owned, or who was driving the team.

ANGERMEIER IS ON TRIAL

Is Charged With Practicing Medicine Without a License.

Emil Angermeier is being tried before Judge Cutting in municipal court today on the charge of prescribing morphine for the use of Daniel Donovan, Sr., in the treatment of cancer, while he, Angermeier, was unlicensed, and was unlawfully practicing medicine in Duluth.

A civil action against Angermeier was tried in municipal court last week, Daniel Donovan, Jr., trying to recover $211.75 paid the so-called doctor by his father. Attorney William Marks defended the case, and won out, the jury returning a verdict in favor of the defendant after being out of the court room only about three minutes. One ballot was sufficient.

There was a good deal of trouble this morning in getting jurymen. The majority of them proved not to be qualified to act, because of predujice, and up to noon the full jury had not been drawn.

WIRE FENCE TELEPHONES.

From the Washington Post: "In the West and Southwest, where there are long stretches of unbroken wire fences, these wires are frequently used to convey telephone messages from one point to another," said Capt. John G. Souder of San Antonio, Tex., here on business before the departments.

"In some localities the fence wires are converted into regular telephone lines, with permanent equipment for practical use. These lines are often from ten to thirty miles long, and are a great convenience to people of the ranches.

"The United States Signal corps is well trained in the use of wire fences for telephone purposes. In the military manoeuvres that take place in the ranch region the Signal corps plays an important part in directing the movement of the troops by improvised telephones.

"In some localities where the country is rough or heavily wooded, it is impossible to convey the signals from one point to another by the usual methods of flags or other visual signals. It is then the telephone is brought into play.

"Each detachment of Signal corps men is equipped with a field telephone attachment. It requires the work of but a minute or two to connect this attachment with a fence wire and get into direct communication with headquarters.

"The use of the fence wire for telephone communication obviates the necessity of constructing temporary field telephone lines by the Signal corps. It sometimes hapens that a little difficulty is encountered in using the wires on account of some poor connection or break, but it usually does not take long to discover and remove the cause of the trouble.

"On some of the big ranches lines of wire fence fifty to seventy-five miles long are frequently found. These afford excellent opportunity for military field service.

"As a mater of necessity all ranch fences must be kept in good repair. To do this fence riders are constantly employed."

FISHING.

Chicago News: "Life is one glad, sweet song to me," said the citizen with the ruddy complexion. "Tomorrow I envelop my manly form in a flannel shirt and an old pair of trousers and go a-fishin'."

'Huh!" said the man with the protruding lower lip, with contempt in his tone.

"What's the matter?" asked the ruddy-complexioned citizen. "Don't you like to go fishing? I thought you were quite an angler? Seems to me I've heard you brag about a twelve-pound bass that you caught once when nobody was looking. I never heard of any one but an imaginative enthusiast catching a bass that weighed twelve pounds. Eight is the highest I've ever dared to catch.'

"I used to like fishing fairly well when I was younger and better able to stand hardship," said the man with the protruding lower lip. "It's a little too much like work for me now."

"Work!" exclaimed the other man. "What are you talking about? Work! You must be crazy. Do you call sitting under a shady tree and listening to the ripple of the water against the bank working? What do you call sweltering in an office from 9 till 5?"

"I said 'work' and I meant work," insisted the objector. "It's work and mental anguish. What's more, the shady tree isn't there. It's the hot, blazing sun all day, and if you're fool enough to wait after the sun goes down it's clouds and swarms of poisonous mosquitoes. I've got a shady tree in my back yard if I want to do any loafing in the shade, and I can get a good imitation of rippling water with the lawn sprinkler. I thought you were talking about fishing."

"I was," said the ruddy-complexioned citizen. "I was talking of the delights——"

"And there isn't any place to sit down, interrupted the man with the protruding lower lip. "I know all about it. The ground on the bank is too moist to sit on and if there are any shady trees it means that you're going to get your tackle tangled up in the branches and have to climb and scrape the skin off your knees. I've been there, so you needn't tell me."

"I was speaking of the joys of fishing, not the petty incidental discomforts that you exaggerate," said the citizen with the ruddy complexion. "I was thinking of the thrill of rapture I shall feel when the tug comes at the line; of the triumph of landing a fine, leaping, flapping fellow on the grass; of the constantly lengthening string and the triumphant return with the finny spoil."

"You weren't thinking of finding that the boy who was to bring you your bait failed to materialize, eh?" inquired the man with the protruding lip, sarcastically. "You weren't thinking of chasing over a marsh in mud up to your knees in search of frogs that were harder to catch than the fish? No? You didn't contemplate the solitary, measly little fish that you did hook getting away from you?"

'You bet your life I wasn't contemplating anything of the kind," said the ruddy-complexioned citizen.

"Nor the rainstorm? I suppose you like to clean fish when you do catch them—what? Get yourself covered with slime and fish scales and run the fins into your hands!"

"I'll just clean enough for a mess at the place where I'm going to stay for dinner and then take the rest home," said the other. "I get word that they're biting fine. You'd better come along."

"I think I see myself," said the scoffer. "How far is it, anyway, and are you just going for the day?"

"Forty miles out and the finest place I know of within a hundred. You can bet on the bait's being ready for us, and if we don't catch fish, I'll never fish again. We'll have eight good hours for it. What do you say?"

"Let's look at your time table," said the man with the protruding lower lip.

SAYS SHARK IS GOOD TO EAT.

An American writing from Italy suggests an addition to our list of table fish.

"A fish plenteously distributed up and down our coasts from Maine to Panama throughout the year, and one as palatable as bonita, sturgeon or halibut, is systematically cast out of the pound net fare at every haul and thrown away with a malediction by the doryman.

"Here in Rome," he says in the Medical Record, "it finds ready sale at the price of fifteen soldi a kilo weight, equal to about eight cents a pound.

"Any one who has watched a shark—for it is this fish with which the writer is dealing—romping in a school of blues need have no fear that it is not a cleanly feeder. The color of the meat resembles that of the shad, but is of finer consistency and has comparatively few bones beyond the central spinal column.

"At a price of two or three cents a pound, tons of these fish varying in size from two to six feet in length could be landed daily at Fulton Market with a fair profit. For a season or two or until the corner manipulator in food staples began his work of price boosting the fish would prove a worthy addition to the poor man's market basket."

HOW FAST WIND TRAVELS.

Boston Transcript: Most people at some time or other have used the expression "went like the wind," wishing to convey the idea of extraordinary velocity.

Coming down to actual figures, however, the wind is not such a speedy traveler after all. The month of March more than any other in the year has a windy record, so the figures supplied by the local weather bureau station for the month just ended will do to illustrate the fallacy of the expression.

From the 1st to the 31st the wind movement as registered at the top of the Federal building was 8,336 miles, or an average of 278 miles a day for thirty days. Here is an average of only 11½ miles an hour, a speed which even a slow-moving freight steamer approaches.

DAIRYMEN WANT SQUARE DEAL

They Ask Council to Appoint an Investigating Committee.

At a meeting of Duluth dairymen, held Saturday afternoon in the office of their attorney, Thomas J. McKeon, it was decided to ask the council to appoint a committee to personally inspect Duluth dairies, and also to look into charges made by Dairy Inspector Luxon, relative to the insanitary condition of the different dairies.

The milk men say they are willing to co-operate in every possible way with the health department in the crusade for pure milk, and have gone on record as being willing at all times to aid the health officials in catching milkmen whose methods of handling the lacteal fluid are unclean. They admit that there may be filthy dairies in the city, but say they are not in the majority, as statements of the dairy inspector might lead the general public to believe.

Some criticism was offered at the meeting because Inspector Luxon did not cause the arrest of the dairymen he found violating all the laws of cleanliness.

No final disposition of the milk question will be made by the council tonight. It is expected that the matter will drag along for several weeks. Alderman Tessman promised to have a new milk ordinance ready to introduce tonight. He says it will have the objectionable features of Dr. Patton's ordinance removed, and yet it will satisfy the general public.

Shall Bank Depositors Be Insured Against Loss?

To the Editor of The Herald:

As one of those who attended the late meeting of bankers in your thriving city, I wish to congratulate you upon your statement that "The deposit guaranty system is for the benefit of the public as well as that of the bankers."

I would put it a little differently—that is to say: A proper guaranty system would be an absolute insurance against all deposit losses in national banks. Hence the depositors would be the principal beneficiaries and the bank stockholders would in incidentally benefited, for such things as "panics," "runs" and "lockouts," could not survive such a "system."

If every depositor knew absolutely that the government would pay all deposits, as it now guarantees and redeems all bank bills, every man would deposit in the banks and leave therein his deposits. A rotten bank might fail, its officers be sent to prison and its stockholders assessed to pay the losses; but the innocent depositor who knows and can know nothing of the "inside" condition of every bank is saved from loss.

Now, what is the proposition?

1. It is not the proposition put forward by the Minnesota Bankers' association—a man of straw set up by Prof. Laughlin to be easily knocked down.

2. It is not (by those who comprehend the proposition) to be a tax on banks or on the people at large for the protection of depositors. Nothing of the kind, as I understand it; and I have given it much thought.

3. But it is a proposition that all deposits of depositors in National banks for the benefit of the depositors themselves shall pay a tax of (say) one-half of one per cent to the government, through the banks, said funds to be held by the government as trustee to be used to pay losses sustained by such depositors whenever a bank shall suspend payments—the insurance fund never to exceed a certain gross sum. In other words, it is a proposition that the depositors in our national banks shall be permitted, through the government banking laws, to insure themselves at their own expense against loss by the failure of any national bank.

What is there wrong about that proposition? As president of one of the national banks of this state, I welcome the proposition as both "safe and sane."

I sincerely regret that the committee of the late Bankers' association, in your city of Duluth fell into the error of building up a man of straw (Wall street straw at that) and then destroying it without the "benefit of clergy."

No man of sense, so far as I have observed, has, with sincerity, advocated the passage of a national law requiring "honest and efficient banks" to make up to a "depositor in a failed bank losses for which the honest and efficient banks" (like the New York monster banks, I suppose) "had no responsibility whatever!"

But the committee, or managers back of the committee, brought in the report and grabbed the convention by the nose with one hand and by the chin with the other and made it swallow the dose without time to take breath.

I think it was a mistake, however, unintentional it may have been, and for one I desire to enter this hastily written but respectfully earnest protest.

GRAND FORKS' BIG FAIR.

Tuesday Will Witness Opening of Big International Show.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota International exposition in Grand Forks will open tomorrow morning and continue four days. With the finest attraction program ever arranged, race events which in spectacular have never been equaled, promiss of exhibits in every department that will eclipse all previous records, and the support of the people of the state, there is every reason to believe that the exposition will be, without exception the most successful ever held in the entire Northwest. The beautiful fair grounds just outside the city limits, will be filled with all kinds of exhibits, there will be amusements for all, while the program as arranged, provides for continuous entertainment from the time the gates open in the morning until they close at night. Such are the present prospects for the North Dakota International.

INDIAN BOUND OVER.

Lo Alleged to Have Attempted to Break Into House.

Ontonagon, Mich., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles L. Pokagon, an Indian, has been bound over to the circuit court and is being held in jail in default of $500 bail, on the complaint of Mrs. Alda Ross. She alleges that Lo attempted to break into her house under pretense of seeing a man. Mrs. Ross secured a revolver and told the Indian to make himself scarce and to show him that she meant business she fired a random shot. He did not appear to be unduly alarmed, but turned and left the house and Mrs. Ross fired another shot.

Pokagon alleges that it is all a great big mistake. He claims he was seeking the house of an acquaintance and that he simply went to the Ross home to ascertain if that was where he resided.

CAPTURED MANY PRIZES.

Meadow Lawn Shorthorn Exhibit Carried Off Many Honors.

St. Cloud, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Meadow Lawn Shorthorn and Galloway cattle have just completed a very successful tour of the fairs at Brandon, Winnipeg and Fargo, where they were exhibited. An unusually good showing and the majority of the prizes were captured. The cattle owned by N. P. Clarke took fifty-five first premiums, twenty-three second premiums, six third premiums eleven championships and seven grand championships. The cattle took prizes in nearly everything that was entered. These premiums were won in the face of the fact that very strong competition was met. All of the larger stock men in the Northwest exhibited their cattle at the fair.

KILLED IN AUTO WRECK.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 27.—J. F. Dodge of Malden, Mass., and Lockwood Reed of Port Henry, N. Y., were killed in a shocking automobile accident six miles east of Port Henry Sunday night. Mr. Dodge, the owner of the car, was driving and in some unexplained manner lost control of the machine. The car dashed into a brook and, turning turtle, pinned Dodge and Reed underneath. Instantly there was an explosion and the car took fire, burning the victims beneath.

RED LAKE COUNTY FAIR.

Annual Exhibit at Thief River Falls Early in August.

Thief River Falls, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Preparations are being made for the seventh annual fair of the Red Lake County Agricultural society to be held here, Aug. 5, 6 and 7.

The state dairy and pure food department will make an exhibit. Commissioner Slater and George Welsh of the state immigration bureau are expected to be present, together with Senator Clapp and Congressman Steenerson.

The farmers of Red Lake and Marshall counties take great interest in the fair and furnish excellent exhibits in all lines. There will be balloon ascensions and other attractions and amusements.

Crops in Red Lake county, taken as a whole, are in excellent condition. There has been some damage through lack of rain on the higher lands, but in the north half of the county this has been overcome by good showers in the past two weeks, but the south half is still suffering slightly.

The timothy and clover crop is harvested and in good condition and while the yield is less than that of a year ago, the increased acreage will more than make up any shortage. Wheat and oats promise a better yield than for some years and a general feeling of satisfaction is felt with the present prospects.

PROHIBITION IS DEPLORED BY NORTHWEST SAENGERFEST

La Crosse, Wis., July 27.—The Northwestern German Saengerfest Sunday voted to hold the next fest in 1910 in Omaha and elected the following officers:

President Otto Rohland, St. Paul; vice president, Peter Laux, Omaha; secretary, G. J. Dieck, Milwaukee; treasurer, E. O. Kney.

Resolutions were passed deploring the progress of the Prohibition movement as opposed to personal liberty and the declaration of independence and denouncing the action of the postmaster general in requiring papers printed in foreign languages to furnish translations of their matter, as it placed the editor at the mercy of small politicians.

BIGFORK SALOON BURNS.

Bigfork, Minn., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire destroyed the two-story saloon building of J. M. Jones and of Oscar Lind early Saturday. It is not known how the fire started, but it was first discovered upstairs in the Jones building. The insurance of each is $2,500. The losses could not be ascertained, but it is supposed each will reach $3,000 to $4,000.

KILLED "PLAYING" INDIAN.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., July 27.—John Carpenter's 10-year-old daughter was killed Sunday by her 12-year-old brother during the absence of their parents. The children were "playing" Indian. The boy took his father's gun thinking it was loaded and pointing it at his sister, pulled the trigger. The charge entered the girl's head.

MUSICIANS WIN SHOOT

Field Staff and Band Have Margin of 30 Points.

Company A, Also of Duluth, is Second in List.

With a margin of thirty points over the nearest competitors, the field staff and band team from Duluth won the second annual shoot of the Northwestern Interstate Military Rifle association held yesterday on the local range. The field staff and musicians got 805 points, while Company A, also of Duluth, got second with 775.

This means that the local team will have possession of the Martin Smith punch bowl trophy, which will go for good to the team that wins it for three successive years. The Rice Lake team, which won it last year, fell down on this year's shoot and scored only 755. This was in spite of the fact that Private R. A. Holdridge of this team had high score. Maj. F. E. Resche and Lieut. Sellhorn of Princeton tied for second high score.

Company F of Eveleth and Company E. of Duluth were but recently formed and their men were, consequently, handicapped by lack of systematic practice.

THOUSANDS ENJOY FINE WEATHER

City Parks Thronged and Boat Trips Prove Popular.

The delightful weather of yesterday caused the pilgrimage to the city parks of thousands of Duluth people, the street railway traffic being quite heavy from the middle of the forenoon. Anticipating a rush to the parks, the company had made arrangements to handle the crowds, however, and the service was most satisfactory.

The crowd was the largest at Lester Park, but the others, Lincoln park, in the West end, and Fairmont park, in West Duluth, got their quota of visitors.

The bay was thronged with pleasure great many people took in the steam craft all day and during the evening, and a great many people took in the steamboat rides to Two Harbors and to Fond du Lac, the Newsboy and Mascotte carrying good crowds every trip.

Many picnic parties spent the day in the country, and some fair catches of fish are reported from nearby streams.

HAVE RIGHT MAN.

Officials Confident That Stevens Stole Mail Pouch at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., July 27.—Postoffice officials claim to have obtained positive proof that Charles Stevens, the negro arrested here Saturday, charged with having stolen a mail pouch containing $50,000 from the union station three weks ago, is the man wanted. Late yesterday, Inspector Vickery, during a severe "sweating" of the prisoner obtained evidence that it is believed will lead up to the finding of the greater part of the stolen money. There were sixty-two packages in the stolen pouch, making it possible for the lodging of as many counts against the man and this may mean life imprisonment.

LYCEUM—Mack-Leone Players give initial performance of "Captain Swift."

LYCEUM'S BILL.

Mack-Leone Players Will Present "Captain Swift" This Week.

This evening the Mack-Leone Players will give the initial performance of "Captain Swift," a stirring love story, which will form this week's bill at the Lyceum. The production is one in the class styled high class melodrama, and was one that furnished a favorite role for the late Maurice Barrymore. The play is one peculiarly well fitted for Mr. Mack in the title role. Miss Holmes will take the part of Stella, the girl who is in love with the dashing and debonair captain, and Miss Meade will appear as the captain's mother. The story deals with the clever efforts of the captain to elude the police, and the way he plays the game of chance is most exhilarating for the spectator. Mr. Founier has prepared some splendid settings for the play.

The story of the play is as follows: Capt. Swift, by nature a soldier of fortune, is driven, through force of circumstances, into crime. He robs an Australian bank and gets away from the police. He returns to England, his native home, and through his high bred bearing and charm of demeanor, wins his way into the confidence of the best people in society. He discovers the mystery of his birth, having known that he is of illegitimate parentage, finds his mother, now happily married, and falls in love with his cousin.

Traced by detectives to London, he finds himself confronted with the alternative of exposing his mother's past life and wrecking her name, or death for himself. He dies by his own hand, after one of the most intense situations ever conceived by a dramatist, just as the police break in to take him.

JOYLAND HAS FINE PROGRAM

Popular Resort is Visited by Large Sunday Crowds.

The Sunday attractions at Joyland proved a strong drawing card and the popular amusement park was visited by crowds yesterday afternoon and evening.

The feature of the program was the sensational dive of Marvelous Martin, from a pole eighty-five feet high, into a net, making several turns of his body while in air. The feat was a very daring one, and the spectators watched it with bated breath.

Another pleasing feature of the program was Mr. Jeacon's singing. His fine baritone voice was heard in several selections during the afternoon and evening.

It will be a quiet week at Joyland. The grounds will be open for picnic parties during the day, and the usual dances will be given at the pavilion Wednesday and Saturday evenings. The bathhouse and toboggan slide will be available to visitors at all times.

Manager Getz is negotiating for some good attractions for next Sunday.

KNIGHTS CLOSE WITH BANQUET

Supreme Lodge, Knights of Kaleva Winds Up Week's Session.

An excursion to Fond du Lac, and a banquet at the Oddfellows hall on Lake avenue in the evening brought the annual session of the supreme lodge of the Knights of Kaleva to a close Saturday. About 150 members of the order came up from the Copper country Friday evening, and they, with the delegates, members of the women's auxiliary, and other members of the order, went on the excursion to Fond du Lac yesterday morning.

About 400 members of the order were present at the banquet Saturday evening at Odd Fellows' hall. Speeches in Finnish were made by John Stone, Mikko Jokisalo, A. S. Karvan, Henry Moilanen, John Kiiskila, Dr. John Jakola and Everett Maatata.

BRIDEGROOM IS FAITHLESS

Chris Christopherson Disappears With $1,000 Belonging to Wife.

An empty suit case and an unpaid board bill are all that remain to remind the St. Louis hotel people of the bridal tour of Mr. and Mrs. Anna Christopherson of Milwaukee. At that, the hotel is better off than the bride of a few weeks, for she has lost husband, $1,000 cash, a wedding gown and a variety of wedding presents, and all she has left are memories, most of them unhappy ones.

After a brief courtship, Anna Christopherson married Christ Christopherson, who didn't happen to be any relation, although the names were the same. The happy event occurred in Milwaukee, in opposition to the wishes of the girls parents. The girl had been employed as a domestic in a wealthy Milwaukee family, and they liked her so well that they gave her a $100 silver set as a wedding present upon her departure.

The young couple came to Duluth on their honeymoon and registered at the St. Louis. The bride's sister lives in Duluth, and she immediately took a dislike to Christopherson, as did her husband. Opinions to this effect were so freely expressed that an estrangement was caused between the two women, which resulted in the bride and groom packing up and going back to Milwaukee. The wedding gown and wedding gifts were sent on ahead by express, but they never arrived at Milwaukee. The groom sent them where only he would know where to find them, and a day or two after his arrival in the Wisconsin city disappeared, leaving his wife with her parents. He took with him, it is said, $1,000 cash which belonged to the girl and which she was foolish enough to trust him with.

Why Fitger's Beer is good for you

THE delicious, refreshing qualities of Fitger's Beer constitute but a part of its real merit.

It's exceptional food and tonic properties are what make Fitger's the choice of the most fastidious beer drinkers.

Barely Malt makes a food—and Bohemian Hops produce one of the best tonics. Together with the choicest of the above ingredients we use the pure, clear, sparkling water of Lake Superior—proven by tests to be the best adapted to brewing of any in the country.

The percentage of alcohol in Fitger's Beer has been reduced to about 3½%, just enough to be a gentle aid to digestion, and much less than contained in most patent medicines.

DRINK IT WITH YOUR MEALS at home and let your family enjoy its delicious flavor and healthfulness.

WILLING TO SELL HOME OF FATHERS

Mattich Family Will Spend All to Save David From Prison.

If the money can be used to save David Mattich from the disgrace of a penitentiary sentence, the Mattich family in Austria is willing to part with their old home, a homestead and old mill, which have been in the family for over 300 years, in order to save him. So says a letter received Saturday by Mattich at the county jail.

Mattich was mixed up in the row at the Croxton mine location on April 20 last, when Rodi Donjonovitch was killed, and for which Eli Mattich was sentenced to twenty years in Stillwater Friday. The accused men were not relatives.

A motion for a new trial in the case will probably be made early this week by O. J. Larson, who took David Mattich's case since the trial which resulted in his conviction for manslaughter in the first degree. It is thought by Mattich's friends that the degree of the conviction was too severe.

ENJOYED RANGE TRIP

Visiting Bankers Pleased With Excursion to the Mines.

Were Amazed at Greatness of County's Mining Industry.

"Is'nt it wonderful? Simply marvelous!" These and similar expression were heard on the edge of the great Mahoning mine at Hibbing yesterday as a party composed almost entirely of members of the Minnesota Bankers association and their wives that made the range trip on a special Missabe train, gazed into the cavernous depths of the greatest open pit mine in the world. Similar exclamations uttered at the Hull-Rust, the Sellers, Burt and other big properties that have demonstrated to the world the remarkable mineral richness of the Mesaba iron range, told only in part the revelation the trip furnished the visitors, the most of whom live in the southern part of the state and never dreamed of the greatness of the mineral industry of St. Louis county.

There were 111 in the party that left Duluth about 8 a. m. on the Missabe special consisting of two coaches, an observation and cafe car and baggage car in charge of Conductor Kurtz with Engineer Carss at the throttle.

J. W. Kreitter, superintendent of the Missabe road accompanied the party to see that everything moved along smoothly and to look after the details of the trip that otherwise might have interferred with the usual traffic arrangements, because of the vast amount of business on the road. The run to Hibbing was without incident the town being reached about 10.30 a. m. Mr. Kritter arranged to have the special train run right out to the Mahoning, Hull-Rust and other big Hibbing properties where the visitors enjoyed the privilege of descending into the open pits and marveling at the extensive scale on which mining is carried on.

After looking over the big properties the special was run to the Hibbing depot and the party devoted half an hour to seeing something of Hibbing which at that time was in a fever of excitement over the approaching ball game with Eveleth, an ever present theme in the range towns.

The twenty-two and one-half miles between Hibbing and Virginia was covered in good time and the visitors were soon at the Fay hotel eating dinner, Supt. Kreitter having wired ahead to arrange for the party. While at Virginia the visitors were shown through the Virginia brewery, a plant that would do credit to cities many times larger, and some of the nearby mines were inspected. The run from Virginia to Duluth was made in fast time, the special leaving the range town at about 3:50 p. m. and reaching Duluth about 5.55 p. m.

The enterprise and energy of C. H. Draper cashier of the First National bank of Wells, Minn. and M. Lauritsen, cashier of the First State bank of Tyler, were largely responsible for the excursion, and those gentlemen along with the officials of the Missabe road who granted the visitors every courtesy in the way of equipment and fast running time, were generally praised on the conclusion of the range excursion, last night.

Many of the bankers will make the Isle Royal trip before returning, some departing yesterday, while others will leave today for the north shore.

PRINCE PUTS IN QUIET SUNDAY

Wales Attends Church at English Cathedral in Quebec.

Quebec, July 27.—The prince of Wales had a comparatively quiet Sunday after the round of ceremonies of the past few days. He attended church at the English cathedral, driving from the cathedral in an open carriage and raising his silk hat as the crowds saluted him along the way. A royal pew of the church had been elaborately decorated, but the prince preferred to occupy a less ornate position at the cathedral aisle. Vice President Fairbanks was invited to be present at the cathedral, but selected the church of his own denomination, the Methodist.

Earl Gray's dinner to the colonial representatives Saturday evening brought two speeches from the prince. The prince handed Early Grey a check for $10,000 to be used in maintaining the Plains of Abraham as a permanent memorial, the title deeds of which he had turned over earlier in the day.

Prior to the colonial dinner, the prince drove to Spencer Wood and made a call on Vice President Fairbanks. He was accompanied by Sir Francis Hopegood, under secretary for the colonies, and Capt. Godfrey Fayette, lord in waiting.

Vice President Fairbanks attended by Gen. Murray and Maj. T. Bent-Mott received the prince in the drawing room of the mansion and twenty minutes were spent in an agreeable exchange of international good will.

BOOKS FOR POLAR DASH

Artic Night to be Lightened by Globe-Girdling Libraries.

Two Book Chests Sent Farthest North by Seamen's Society.

New York, July 27.—With the prospect of being the first printed pages to penetrate the uppermost polar region, two sets of American books are today sailing the northern seas, snugly set up in the hold of Lieut. Peary's stout ship Roosevelt. Reports that these two of their 3,000 floating libraries were going into brisk circulation among the Arctic explorers when the party finally cast off for the pole have reached the headquarters of the American Seamen's Friend society in this city today. That some of this nation's literary works may eventually be planted beside the flag at the "farthest North" is the object of the determined crew who are to enjoy their solace in the bitter solitude of the next two years.

Months before the Roosevelt was finally commissioned for its latest dash toward the pole, the preparation of these libraries, which were to occupy the minds of the men through the long polar night, was carefully begun. From a list of the 618,400 volumes which they have placed before 442,230 sailors on every sea in the last fifty years, the officers of the American Seamen's Friend society chose two sets best calculated to supply the hungry brains of the isolated explorers. Those books of travel, adventure, history, religion, fiction and biography which have come back most thumbed from almost a hundred thousand fo'castles were finally selected. In two of the society's ship-shape bookchests the collections were arranged and sent to be set up in the mess room of the Peary ship at Shooter's island, where it was being finally outfitted. A dictionary, bible, atlas and Pilgrim's Progress were included with the fiction favorites of the season.

It is the more sober works that stand the men in best stead in the long test of the Arctic night, Lieut. Peary declared before leaving this city to join his ship. In his last "Farthest North" expedition the explorer found one of these American Seamen's Friend society libraries a steady recourse for his men, marooned in the ice packs. The books which served through that long night siege from Oct. 12 to March 6 are today lying in their weather-beaten case at the headquarters of the society. The lighter fiction is much more free from the tell-tale dogears which mark heavily the more serious volumes that were thumbed over and over in the frigid solitude.

If Peary succeeds in planting these treasured volumes beside the American flag at the pole, the 26,000 libraries which the American Seamen's Friend society has kept afloat for half a century will have penetrated every region on the globe known to the seafarer. From almost every state in this country applications to set one of these book chests on its constant course have now been received. Each library is registered and regularly reported in its wanderings to any one who may pay $20 to launch and keep it afloat. To President Roosevelt, who as a boy of 10, presented one of these libraries for the society, the sight of the two bookchests on Peary's ship was as familiar as it has now become to hundreds of thousands of sailors the world over.

He decided to adopt the plan of having the executive committee made up solely from the membership of the national committee. BROWNS AND SOX DIVIDE

Each Team Wins a Game in Sunday's Double Header.

Browns Bunch Hits on Murray and Sox Are Blanked.

Fargo, N. D., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before the largest crowd of the season, Duluth and Fargo broke even yesterday afternoon, the visitors taking the first game, 7 to 5, and Fargo capturing the second, 3 to 0.

The second game was really the better exhibition. Perce and Waldorf were hit hard in the first game, and Thorsen was poorly supported, though he did not give many hits. After the third inning, he was effective with men on bases. Duluth got to Perce in the first two innings for enough hits and runs to win the game.

The second game was a pitchers' battle between Clark and Murray, in which the Fargo man had the better of it. Each allowed the same number of hits, but Fargo bunched in the third and fourth, while the Sox could not hit with men on bases. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning.

Winnipeg, Man., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winnipeg and Brandon broke even in a double-header Saturday afternoon, the home team winning the first game by a score of 2 to 1 and Brandon blanking the Maroons in the second, 5 to 0.

Smith was knocked out of the box in the third inning of the first game, when the Maroons scored two runs, enough to win. The game resolved itself into a pitchers' battle between Dahlgren and Giencke, and they had about an even break, neither side scoring after the third.

In the second game Nelson held the Maroons to four hits and no runs, while Terry was hit opportunely, errors by Metzger and Sensenbach helping the Angels in the scoring.

WINNIPEG WON SENIOR EIGHTS

By Quarter Length From St. Paul—Duluth Did Not Row.

Winnipeg, Man., July 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Paul oarsmen captured nearly everything at the regatta of the Minnesota and Western Canada Rowing association, which closed on Saturday evening.

In the senior singles, Cochran of St. Paul was the winner by one-third of a length; Muir of Winnipeg, second; Mairs of St. Paul, third; Sargent of Fort William, fourth. Cochran's time, 10 minutes, 4 seconds. Muir was leading to within a few lengths of the finish, when he played out, Cochran winning.

The junior four-oared race was the next event on the program. The St. Paul crew, stroked by Nelson, won, being half a length in front of Patton's Winnipeg crew; the Kenora crew, stroked by Rose, third; Ordway's St. Paul crew, fourth. Time, 8 minutes, 40 seconds. Winnipeg was picking up fast at the finish, but could not overhaul St. Paul's lead.

Arthur S. French and Harold Anderson of St. Paul won the junior doubles by six lengths from W. H. McMillan and Harold Hastings of Winnipeg; time, 9 minutes, 14 seconds.

The crew stroked by Hesson of Winnipeg won the four-oared working boat race. The Campbell crew of Kenora was second and Fort William was third. No American crews were entered.

The last race on the program was the senior eights. The Duluth crew, having failed to make a good showing in the junior eights, did not row. Winnipeg and St. Paul were the only starters. It was a very warmly contested race from start to finish, and Winnipeg won by only a quarter of a length. Time, 8 mins. 3 secs.

SOX COME HOME EARLY

Fargo Browns Made Road Team and Open Here.

Baker Released and Wescott Holds Down Third Base.

On account of the slim attendance at Fargo, the Fargo team of the Northern league has been made a road team and arrived here this morning to open a series with the Sox, playing the remainder of the week.

The Sox will open the longest home series of the season, playing Fargo, Brandon and Winnipeg in succession, about twenty-five games in all.

There have been a few changes in the Sox. Baker has been let out and Wescott is on third base. Koepping is back in the game and Ness is covering first base regularly. Dave Williams is in right field, with Hopkins in center and Monroe in left. It is expected that Galen Henderson will join the team here this week and another pitcher is also expected.

While the Sox and Browns are mixing it here, Winnipeg and Brandon will be going to it at Brandon and, giving them about an even brake and the Sox a majority of the games with the Browns, the three leading teams will be bunched a little better when the Canadian teams cross the border again.

The first game of the Duluth-Brandon series will go on this afternoon at 3:30.

WESTERN HORSEMEN

Given "Fair Show" in State Fair Races This Year.

Fear Getting a Low Mark on a World's Record Track.

Fear of getting a low mark on a world's record track keeps many horsemen from making entries in the early closing events for "green" horses at the coming Minnesota state fair. This is the conclusion reached by C. M. Griggs, vice president and superintendent of speed who says:

"The only disappointing feature of the early closing events for the Minnesota state fair, Aug. 31 to Sept. 5, was the very light patronage given the two freshmen events and the two colt events. These events were added to our program to favor and aid the local horsemen.

"The colt races were restricted to the seven Northwestern states, and the freshmen races, for practically green pacers and trotters, were made for moderate-sized purses, so as not to attract the crack green trotters of the country. And as we wiped out the rule permitting two horses to be entered in one class, and also eliminated the rule permitting one horse to enter two classes for one fee, we adjusted conditions so that the big stable no longer had any advantage over the small stables. We virtually eliminated the big stables from all classes except the big stakes—and the Western horsemen upon whom we counted to fill the gap did not respond as they should, although the fields will be fast enough to satisfy grandstand bleachers and paddock.

"Iowa has many colts in training and a big list of stakes for their fair the week before ours, but these colts are not coming here. Why? In Iowa they go on a half mile track and are at home. Here they go on a very fast mile track and are afraid of taking a low mark.

"Under the circumstances it is foolish for us to attempt to put on colt races only to the Northwest, when our northwestern horsemen do not patronize them.

"The same condition seems to obtain in the slow classes. The Western horsemen seem to be afraid to come to our fair—even when we make rules to favor them or cut out the rules to which they have been opposed in the past. Perhaps more big stables are represented than ever before, but the total of the entries is less than previous years. The cracks are entered in but one place.

"They have left the field to the Western horses, just as we predicted they would and intended they should.

"We are trying to give our Western horsemen a fair show this year; that is, fair show as the Western horsemen regard it.

"There still remain six events for $1,000 each, three trots and three paces, entries for which do not close until Aug. 10, and in each of which there is again offered an opportunity to Western horsemen to get a fair show.

"In all these six races the entry fee is 5 per cent of the purse, but there is nothing additional from winners; the entry fee need not be paid until 9 a. m. of the day before the race and all six events will be held under the novelty plan—three heats only, and each heat a race, with 10 per cent of the money set aside for the summary and the other 90 per cent divided into three parts, each 30 per cent going five ways in each heat.

S.S.S. FOR BAD BLOOD
When bad blood is caused from an infection of the circulation by the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, it usually shows in the form of ulcerated mouth and throat, copper-colored splotches on the body, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc. These general symptoms, affecting all parts of the body, show how deeply poisoned the blood becomes, and emphasizes the dangerous character of the trouble. If allowed to remain in the system the disease will finally wreck the health and break down the strongest constitution. No medicine can cure Contagious Blood Poison which does not rid the circulation of every particle of the virus. S. S. S. is the one real and certain cure; it goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, and by removing every trace of the poison, and adding rich, healthful qualities to the blood, forever cures this powerful disorder. S. S. S. is the most reliable of all blood purifiers, and its concentrated ingredients of healthful vegetable extracts and juices especially adapt it to curing this infectious trouble. Write for our home treatment book, which is a valuable aid in the treatment of the different stages of the disease, and ask for any medical advice you wish without charge.

TUBERCULOSIS FIGHTERS MEET

Plans for Summer's Campaign Against White Plague Are Made.

The most active of the physicians and others interested in the anti-tuberculosis fight answered the call to the meeting which was held at the Commercial club Saturday afternoon, to make plans for carrying on the fight against the white plague here.

A committee, consisting of Dr. Boyer, Dr. Tuohy and Mrs. F. E. House, was appointed to carry on the work of popularizing the movement, and to arrange for properly advertising the big popular meeting which is to be called during the summer. The date for this meeting was not fixed, but was left to the committee. It will probably be held some time in August.

The big tuberculosis exhibit for the purpose of educating the people in regard to the white plague will be held during the last week in October, if the plans of the committee materialize

Rev. Moody of the Bethel was elected temporary secretary. N. F. Hugo, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, promised the assistance of the club.

MRS. EDDY QUITS DRIVING.

Explanation Is It Encourages Talk About Her Physical Being.

Boston, July 27.—Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of Christian Science, has discontinued her daily drives. The publication committee of the sect gave out the following explanation:

"Mrs. Eddy has decided to give up her drives because she feels that they encourage her followers to attach too much importance to the physical aspect of her life. The daily appearance of her carriage in public encourages discussion of her health, whereas Christian Scientists should think of her only in the spiritual sense."

TO LEAVE DULUTH.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dalrymple to Make Home at Minneapolis.

The following item from the Minneapolis Journal of yesterday will be of much interest to many Duluthians:

"Mr. and Mrs. William Dalrymple of Duluth are planning to remove to Minneapolis this fall. Indeed, Mr. Dalrymple is here now and Mrs. Dalrymple will join him after the warm weather. The Dalrymples are popular young people in Duluth and they have many friends in the Twin Cities already, for Mr. Dalrymple is a University of Minnesota man, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Dalrymple, who divide the year between St. Paul and their big wheat farm near Casselton, N. D. Both Mr. Dalrymple and his brother, John, were prominent in college life and "Billie" Dalrymple won many honors on the football field. After he left college "Billie" Dalrymple went to Duluth to enter the grain business and he has since made that city his home. Mrs. Dalrymple was a Milwaukee girl, a Miss Noyes, who has frequently visited Minneapolis relatives."

Mr. and Mrs. Dalrymple have been prominent in Duluth society during their residence in this city and they will be greatly missed from the younger married set.

Miss Margaret Mitchell has been engaged in teaching music in Shanghai. Although the work does not come under any missionary board, it is regarded by many in close touch with the conditions, as among the finest of the pioneer work being done in China. A pupil of Miss Mitchell, who was later sent to New York for further study, was this year one of the honor students at the Damrosch school.

HONEYMOON IS ABBREVIATED

Koochiching Couple Refused License and Miss Their Boat.

Because Burton S. Miller did not know that three days' residence, and an avowed intention to reside in St. Louis county were sufficient to make Miss Minnie Wolfgram, a resident of that county, the couple's honeymoon has been ignominiously cut down from a trip down the lakes to Buffalo, on the Tionesta, to a trip to Port Arthur on a Booth line boat.

Miller and Miss Wolfgram had a surprise marriage all planned out. They had both been residents of Koochiching county. A week ago both left to visit friends, Miss Wolfgram going to visit relatives in Wilton, Wis., and Miller going to Fargo. They planned to come to Duluth Saturday, get a license, be married by the judge of probate and get the steamer Tionesta out Saturday evening.

When Miller applied to the clerk of court for a license, however, he said that Miss Wolfgram was a resident of Koochiching county. He was refused a license on this ground. He attempted to get a special order from Judge Middlecoff, but he was out of town, so that affair and the trip had to be postponed.

Upon making application for the order this morning, however, it was decided that none was needed, as Miss Wolfgram was technically a resident. The couple were married by Judge Middlecoff and departed on their abbreviated honeymoon.

Miller was a legal resident of the county, his home being here a portion of the time, but he has been taking up a homestead in Koochiching county, where he met Miss Wolfgram.

FALLS TO HIS DEATH

Arthur Olson, Deckhand, is Killed on Log Pile.

Falls From Tramway on His Way to the Boat.

Early yesterday morning, Arthur Olson, plunged head downward from the old tramway of the Alger-Smith sawmill at West Duluth, onto a boom of logs, 20 feet below. He was killed almost instantly.

Olson was a deck hand on the steamer J. H. Prentice, captained by Samuel Olson. He was retunring to the boat, which was moored near the Alger-Smith dock, about 1 a. m., after a visit to the city with two companions. The men were leading the way over the tram when the accident occured. When they heard Olson fall they turned back and found him lying dead on the logs. It is thought that he must have stumbled in the darkness, and, losing his balance pitched headlong from the tramway.

The body was removed to M. J. Filiatrault's undertaking rooms, and the brother of the deceased, Olaf Olson, North and Campbell streets, was notified. Arthur Olson was 21 ears old and had resided with his brother in Chicago, where his body will probably be shipped today.

DULL WEEK REPORTED.

All Owners Have Trouble Securing Cargoes for Boats.

Cleveland, July 27.—Brokers and vesselmen report that last week was the dullest week there has been in the lake trade since the agreement to hold boats in port was called off the middle of June. The movement of ore is heavier than it was then, but the increase has not been great enough to take care of the addition that was made to the fleet since that time. Coal shipments, which were heavy last month, have taken quite a slump, and with more vessels in commission there is no more business than there was six weeks ago.

A number of big carriers have been sent to the dock during the past ten days, but others that were idle have been started and there has been little change in th supply of tonnage, which is far in excess of the demand.

The grain trade will not cut much figure in the freight market until about the first of September. It is expected that by that time that ore will be moving at a rate that will give employment to a fair percentage of the outside tonnage. Coal will be sent forward more freely later, but the outlook for the next few weeks is not very encouraging for the independent vessel owners.

Most of the vessels that are in commission, nicluding big carriers that are operated by the leading ore shippers, are on the market for coal. All the tonnage that is offered cannot be placed, and the boats that secure cargoes have to spend considerable time in port. That means a loss to ships that take cargoes to the head of Lake Superior at 30 cents and come back light. Cases of that kind are quite common, however, and some of the big freighters that are in commission have not had a down cargo.

The iron trade is improving steadily, but with a good supply of ore at this end of the route there is not much demand in that line, and until sales of ore are more freely there will not be much improvement in the freight market.

FREIGHT TRADE SLOW.

Agents of Line Boats Report Poor Business This Season.

The slackness in the marino trade, which is most noticeable among the big carriers, extends to the line boats and agents of the different lines operating in the Duluth and Buffalo trade are not slow in expressing their pessimism.

All season the trade has been slow, especially east bound. Whereas in former years, flour was the commodity moving most freely and offering line boats a cargo at all times, the movement of flour this year is very light and the line boats are forced to go down the lakes light through inability to get full cargoes here. Others have been fortunate enough to get part cargoes of grain, helping them out considerably.

Though the freight business may not be paying, the same complaint cannot be made of the passenger business, which is rushing. Despite financial troubles in different parts of the country, people are travelling and using the lake route freely. The Anchor line boats and the North West are crowded on every trip and the Huronic of the Northern Navigation company's fleet always draws a good crowd. Even the package freighters, which have accommodations for passengers, are crowded to capacity and the passenger agents rejoice all around.

HAS BIG CARGO.

Steamer D. R. Hanna Breaks All Records at Portage Lake.

Houghton, July 27.—All records from Portage were smashed with the arrival of the steamer D. R. Hanna with nearly 12,000 tons of coal, the largest single cargo ever brought here. This excels by 200 tons the record established by the same boat ten days ago.

TOSSED GIRL INTO LAKE.

How Chicago Man Saved Her From a Raging Fire.

Chicago, July 27.—To save a little girl from burning to death, W. C. Puyers, late Saturday night, threw her into the lake and then leaped in after her and rescued her from drowning.

The child, Helen Gordon, 10 years old, was carrying a can of kerosene near her home on the lake front, when it exploded, setting fire to her clothing. Puyers heard her screams and carried her to the lake and threw her in. She was being washed out into the lake when he swam to her and dragged her out.

Both the child and Puyers were badly burned.

FARMERS TO KEEP COTTON OFF MARKET.

New Orleans, La., July 27.—A special from Jackson, Miss., says that the Farmers' Union of Mississippi has determined to hold cotton off the market, is evidenced by many surface indications, although the meetings are secret and members give out nothing for publication that has not been strictly censored.

The union is thoroughly equipped for a practical test. Its membership now includes a large majority of the farmers of the state. Warehouses have been established in almost every community. When the season opens and cotton begins to move in volume the union will have, it is said, close to 150 to 200 warehouses of its own in which cotton may be stored to await the caprices of the market.

AFTERMATH OF REGATTA

Duluth Oarsmen Return From the Races in Winnipeg.

St. Paul Made Almost a Clean Sweep of the Prizes.

Medalless, but with the cold comfort of knowing that they were beaten by some of the fastest crews that ever rowed in a Northwestern regatta, the Duluth oarsmen returned this morning from Winnipeg.

It was St. Paul's turn to howl this year and the Minnesota Boat club men walked off with nearly every event. Winnipeg nosed out a victory in the senior eight-oared race, thanks to the magnificent work of the veteran Henley stroke, "Con" Riley, and the Canadians also captured the senior doubles, again thanks to Riley. The lightweight fours were won by the Kenora crew, and St. Paul took the rest.

The St. Paul oarsmen were conceded to be the finest squad ever entered in a regatta in this part of the country. They went to Winnipeg thirty strong and entered every event.

Showing perfect watermanship, rowing in beautiful form, trained to a hair, and as game as any crews could be, the St. Paul oarsmen were a hard combination to beat.

Their junior eight-oared crew was conceded by all the regatta veterans present to be one of the fastest, if not the fastest eight, that has ever been seen in a Northwestern regatta. Against the stiff current of the Red river they covered the course in 8:02, which was two seconds faster than the time made the following day by the senior eights, under better water and weather conditions.

Hard Luck Tale.

The Duluth men met with a series of misfortunes. The first blow came on Monday when the new sectional eight-oared shell was launched for the first row on the river. The Duluth men paddled up the river four miles to the course and when they took the boat out of the water, about ten gallons of water was dumped from the bow. The leak could not be remedied. The boat was taken apart every day during the week, but the leak grew worse instead of better, and on the day of the race the crew pulled a boat with a water-logged bow over the course.

The hot weather then got in its work and two of the crew were under a doctor's care for the two days previous to the race.

The third misfortune came when Capt. Sinclair drew for the courses. In every event in which Duluth was entered he was unfortunate enough to draw the outside course. The first half mile of the course was around a bend in the river. The current at the outside bank was swift, while on the inside courses it was almost dead water.

Under these conditions the Duluth crew started the race on Friday. For the first half mile of the course Duluth held St. Paul and Winnipeg on even terms, and the three crews swept around the bend almost in a dead heat. But the effort had been too costly for Duluth, and St. Paul and Winnipeg began to draw gradually away until they had open water. A quarter of a mile from the finish Duluth spurted and closed up the open water on the Winnipeg crew, but was unable to gain upon St. Paul. The Minnesota boys swept across the line with about a length of open water to the good, while Duluth was just lapping the Winnipeg boat.

The Lightweight Race.

The lightweight crew had a similar story of hard luck to tell. Prudden, No. 3 in the bantam boat, had been over weight all spring. On Thursday, by dint of hard work in heavy sweaters, he had taken himself down to the limit of 143 pounds. An informal consultation with the referee was held, and the official decided that there would be no objection to the weighing in on the day previous to the race. Feeling secure on this score, Prudden abandoned his efforts to keep down his weight, and during the twenty-four hours that followed took on four pounds. It cost the bantams a length, as the referee, on the protest of the other crews, penalized Duluth that distance. With the outside course and a handicap of a length, the Duluth four was out of the race from the start. They made a game fight, but never succeeded in regaining the lost ground.

The Junior Fours.

With a defeat at the hands of the junior eights against them, the senior eight-oared race on Saturday looked hopeless, and it was abandoned in favor of the junior fours, as the men could not row in both races on the same afternoon. A four composed of Crawford, Sinclair, Forgette and Hoyer entered the junior four-oared event, once more with the outside course. The race was a repetition of the four-oared race. The Duluth four got a beautiful start, and for half a mile led the field. But the desperate effort against the strong current was too costly, and the other crews gradually pulled away as the straight stretch to the finish was reached.

The Duluth stroke was most unmercifully criticised by the rowing experts on the grounr. It is claimed to be too short and choppy to be effective for a long distance, although it is conceded to be valuable for a spurt. The long, swinging stroke of the St. Paul and Winnipeg crews is certainly a prettier stroke to watch, and the clean sweep made by these clubs might appear to lend some force to the argument against the Duluth stroke. Dr. Lynam, who has been coaching the Duluth crews and has instructed them in the short stroke, himself entered the junior single event, although he was not in condition for a hard race. For the first half mile he had no difficulty in holding the other entries, but the youth and condition of the St. Paul and Winnipeg men told at the finish, and he was unable to stand the pace.

Some changes are likely to be made in the stroke next year, however, in spite of the fact that the Duluth men are not entirely satisfied that the stroke is wrong. They made a killing with the same stroke at Lake Minnetonka two years ago, capturing the principal events there and it was as much criticised then as it was this year.

St. Paul gets the next regatta on the understanding that Duluth will have it the next time it is held in the United States. The harbor does not offer a satisfactory course, and the Duluth club is not anxious to have it held here until a course can be provided on the river with a finish at the Spirit lake branch. It will probably be held on the Mississippi river next summer, and possibly at Kenora the following year.

Another point which was forcibly impressed upon the Duluth men was the value of fall rowing. The St. Paul and Winnipeg clubs have from 100 to 150 men rowing, and they keep it up until late in the fall, preparing for the following spring. The Duluth club has endeavored to develop a crew in six or eight weeks in the spring, when the weather conditions prevent rowing on at least one or two days a week.

--s entertainers the Winnipeg oarsmen are in a class by themselves. Every possible provision was made for the comfort and convenience of the visitors, and they were entertained with automobile rides, a ball at the Royal Alexandra hotel, and a boat ride on the river. President Julius H. Barnes of the Duluth club also entertained the Duluth party at a dinner Saturday evening.

DARING "SANDY" IS DEAD.

Pharis B. Lane of Montana Was Real Hero of the Plains.

Butte, Mont., July 27.—Pharis B. Lane, known as "Sandy," died Saturday night at his home. Mr. Lane was a government scout, Indian fighter, driver of the pony express, merchant in early days and later a faro dealer until the law put the gamblers out of business.

His career reads like a Wild West story, so many were his experiences.

His deeds of heroism in Indian campaigns have been the foundation of many stories in fiction.

Crookston, Minn., July 27. (Special to The Herald.)—Heavy rains prevailed yesterday in Marshall, Red Lake and part of Kittson counties, giving the ground another soaking. So far as known crop damages of any extent did not result.

GIRL BATHERS TATOOED.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 27.—"Jim" Squid, sailorman and expert handler of India ink "points," is in hiding from irate brothers and fathers of a score of fair bathing maids since the girls proudly appeared on the beach with tattoo marks on their fair arms and shoulders. It is said that the old sailorman has taken in several hundred dollars in carrying out his art.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Bearish News Causes Weakness in All the American Markets.

Flax is Quiet and Closes Off in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 27.—Wheat bowed before the bearish influences which poured in upon the American markets, and closed weak. There was really nothing for the bulls to build a stand upon and prices declined from the opening.

World's shipments were larger than expected, the primaries were liberal and the weather conditions for the growing crops, favorable. The visible supply of wheat increased 1,022,000 bus., and is now 14,282,000 bus., against 46,829,000 bus., a year ago.

Liverpool closed ⅛d higher to ⅛d lower, Budapest 1⅛c lower and Berlin ½c lower.

The July option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, ⅞c lower in Chicago, 1⅜c lower in Minneapolis, 1½c lower in New York, 1c lower in St. Louis, ¾-⅞c lower in Kansas City and 1⅛c lower in Winnipeg. The September option close 1¼c lower in Duluth and New York, 1¼-⅜c lower in Chicago, 1½c lower in Minneapolis, 1⅛-¼c lower in St. Louis and 1¼c lower in Kansas City. The October option closed 1⅛c lower in Winnipeg.

September corn closed 1¼c lower in Chicago and 1d lower in Liverpool. September oats closed 1⅛-¼c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

As a result of a firmer American cable on Saturday and larger world's shipments than expected offerings in this market were liberal which resulted in a decline at the opening of ¼d, followed by an additional decline during the early morning of ⅛d to ¼d. Toward mid-day, there was a steadier feeling developed on shorts covering, due to continued unfavorable reports from Russia and a better interest in September. At thos time, the market was firm but dull and ⅛d to ¼d lower than Saturday.

"Corn, was weak at the start but values were unchanged. During the morning there was heavy profit taking on free offerings of LaPlata parcels, and lack of support and at mid-day values were 1¼d lower than Saturday."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Dull and Weak on Good Weather and Easier Cables.

Chicago, July 27.—The wheat market was dull and weak on good weather and easier cables, the latter being due to larger world's shipments than had been expected. Trade was dull. September opened ⅛@¼c to ⅜@½c lower at 90⅛c to 90½c and sold at 90⅛c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 596 cars against 561 cars last week and 285 cars a year ago.

Weakness grew as the session progressed. September touched 89⅝c and although there was a temporary rally on shorts taking profits, the close was weak, September, 17⅛@¾c lower at 89⅝c.

The corn market was weak on lower cables and favorable weather. September opened ½c to ⅝c lower at 75½c to 75c and declined to 75⅛c. Local receipts were 141 cars, with 11 of contract grade.

Corn closed weak, 1¼c down at 75⅛c.

The oats market was irregular, July recovering 2c from its 6c decline of Saturday. Distant futures were weak on good weather. Trade was quiet. September opened ⅝c to 1⅛c lower at 43c to 43½c and sold at 43¾c. Local receipts were 137 cars.

Provisions were weak in sympathy with grain and on a drop in hogs, opening prices being from a shade to 2½@5c lower. September pork opened at $15.65 and dropped to $15.57½. September lard opened at $9.25 and September ribs at $8.70.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Somewhat Lower on Soft Cables and Sunday Rains.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 27.—With cables soft, rains over Sunday in the Dakotas, larger local receipts and an increase of 15,000 bushels in local elevator stocks, the first increase noted for a long time, wheat was under pressure and lower. There was no sharp break, but rather a gradual wearing away of prices as selling orders came into the pit. The news from Fargo, Grand Forks, Devils Lake and Jamestown was better. Moorhead had 1.50 inches of rain. A good many country holders sold out on the improved condition. The increase of 1,022,000 bushels in the visible started further selling. Minneapolis got 317 cars against 181; Duluth, 30 against 76. Near the close there was a feeble rally, but continued selling kept the market down and closed it weak near the low point. July opened, $1.13; high, $1.13½; low, $1.12⅝; close, $1.12⅝c July, old, high, $1.14; close, $1.12¼. September opened 97⅞c; high, 98¼@⅜c; low, 96⅝c; closed, 96⅝@¾c. Old September was high at 98⅜c; closed at 97@97¼c.

Demand was better for spring wheat with No. 1 norther nlc over new July and No. 2 northern 1c under. The market had the biggest run of winter wheat so far this season. Kansas and Nebraska are shipping this way freely. Some of the winter wheat dragged and was unsold late in the day. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.13½@1.14; spot, $1.12½ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.11½@1.12 spot; $1.10½ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.06½@1.08. No. 3 yellow corn, 76¾c; No. 3 white oats, 53⅞c; No. 3 rye, 74¼@75¼c.

Barley receipts, 17 cars, of which one was a car of new crop, the first of the season, from Northfield, Minn. It was of fair color, tested 47 pounds and sold for 56c. Old barley range from 53c to 58c, closing at 50@60c.

Flax receipts, 22 cars. The market was quotable 1c under Duluth September and was not quite as strong in tone as Saturday, closing at $1.21⅝.

Mill stuffs in satisfactory demand. Millers report free sales on basis of $19.50@20 for bran in bulk.

Although wheat was tending lower, millers made no changes in flour. They reported demand moderate and practically nothing doing for export. Shipments, 34,629 barrels. First patents, $5.85@6; second patents, $5.75@5.90; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

TOMBS OF SPANISH ROYALTY.

The escurial in which for nearly three centuries the kings and queens of Spain have been buried is said to be the most gorgeous burial vault in the world, says Tit-Bits.

It is an octagonal chamber, thirty-six feet across, with its walls, save where the coffins stand, entirely overlaid with precious marbles. The staircase which leads to it is of marble with jasper walls. The general effect is unspeakably splendid. In the midst of this magnificence are the massive black marble caskets let into the walls, containing the bodies themselves. They are all exactly alike, inscribed simply with the names of the different kings and queens. There is room for just six more monarchs and their consorts.

Of another character altogether is the vault devoted to Spain's royal children— princes and princesses. Here white marble rules, and very charming are some of the effigies over the tombs. The royal name for the vault is "the place of the little angels," and though many of the princes who lie here were not at all angelic in their lives the impression left by the white marble wings of the statues is one of spotless purity.

One unfortunate Spanish king, Don Jaime II, of Aragon, is daily on view in the cathedral of Palma, in Majorca. The sacristan of the place takes you to a yellow marble monument in the choir, opens a cupboard, and pulls out a very ordinary coffin with a glass lid. As poor Don Jaime died in the fourteenth century, he is not now at all a lively spectacle. His mummy is made gay, however, with imitation royal robes—cottony ermine, and so forth.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Started Out With Early Advance Which Was Lost.

Prices Dropped in Late Dealings and Close Was Easy.

New York, July 27.—Prices of stocks did not move decidedly in either direction at the opening today, small gains and losses being quite equally divided and many stocks starting unchanged from Saturday's closing. Dealings were on a large scale.

Prices started upwards after business got under way, resulting in gains in Railway Steel Spring of 2¼, Great Northern Ore Certificats and New Haven, 1¾; Minneapolis & St. Louis and Tennessee Copper, 1¼, and Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, American Smelting and Westinghouse Electric, 1. Offerings at the higher level were sufficient to force prices backwards.

The drooping tendency of prices persisted so that losses were recorded in St. Paul, New York Central, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, American Sugar and Distillers Securities of 1⅜@1⅜ and Reading, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper and Consolidated Gas of 1 or more. With a subsequent fractional rally came dullness. Bonds were irregular.

Prices went lower after the pause. Delaware & Hudson declined 1, Union Pacific, 1¼; Canadian Pacific and National Biscuit, 1¾, and Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse Electric, 2. Trading became dull again when the decline was checked.

Prices rallied again with more effect, the recovery reaching a point or more in prominent instances. The rally did not hold firmly. Federal Sugar sold at a decline of 4½, International Harvester preferred, 1¾, and American Smelting, United States Rubber and American Hide & Leather preferred, 1.

The market closed easy. Prices were lowered another notch after 2 o'clock and then rallied quite briskly. Missouri Pacific sold off 3½; Union Pacific, 1⅝; Southern Pacific, 1½. Great Northern Ore Certificates was a strong feature with a rise of 3 over Saturday. Declines were renewed in the later dealings.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened strong and active this morning, but soon began to sag on profit-taking. At low prices it got very dull and soon the traders began to buy back their stocks. Extracts of Taft's speech are out and show no radical sentiments. We will have a traders' market tomorrow with stocks a buy on the little reactions. Great Northern Ore Certificates are conspicuously strong and indications point to another dividend soon. Ontario & Western is tipped again for a good rise. Adventure is still acting well and good people consider it the best speculation on the list. The buying of the stock is strong and consistent. North Butte was the feature of the local market, selling at 78⅛, a new high point in this movement. There seems to be the same old scarcity of stock.

With our own private wire connections with New York, Boston and the copper countries of Michigan, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and Mexico, we are the best equipped to give you quick executions on all the leading local stocks of any brokerage house in the city.

SHIPPERS MAY COMBINE QUANTITIES OF FREIGHT.

Washington, July 27.—The interstate commerce commission today decided that the shippers might combine small quantities of freight of various ownership either by arrangement among themselves or through the medium of the forwarding agency and ship the combined lot at the relatively lower rates applicable to large shipments.

The interstate commerce commission today issued a statement to the effect that without waiting for the filing of formal complaints, it will institute an investigation of its own motion for the purpose of determining whether or not advances in freight rates are justified.

NAN PATTERSON SKIPS.

Chorus Girl Feared She Would be Sent Back to New York.

Pittsburg, July 27.—Fearing that she was to be sent back to New York, Nan Patterson, the chorus girl, who was tried three times for the murder of Ceaser Young at New York several years ago, and who has been making this city her home since that time, left here late Saturday afternoon for parts unknown, following a conference with the police authorities.

In speaking of the matter today, Acting Captain of Detectives Roach said: "When Nan Patterson was brought in before me she thought she was to be sent back to New York, as she is only out on probation there. She was very retiring and quiet and when I told her that she would have to go, she agreed to do so. The wife of a prominent man called up on the telephone, stating that Nan Patterson had enticed her husband and Nan Patterson admitted this, promising to leave the city at once."

The rowing regatta at Henley will be begun tomorrow, but too, no Americans are competing.

FORESTRY BY RAILROADS.

Experiments Due to the High Price of Lumber.

The railroads of the country have for many years been experimenting in forestry, in some cases with considerable success. At first the object of the experiments was to establish a forest growth in the prairie lands of the West, and to afford a shelter for the right of way. The recent high prices of lumber have led the railroads to try to raise timber for ties, fences telegraph poles, etc.

R. C. Bryant, instructor in forestry at Yale, has recently made public the results of an inquiry into railway forestry experiments. He finds that as early as 1870 the Kansas Pacific railway made experiments at stations along its line, says the New York Sun.

At about the same time the St. Paul and Pacific, which became the Northern Pacific, planted extensive windbreaks along the right of way as a protection against snowdrifts. While they were attended to, the trees thrived, but after a few years money got scarce and what with neglect and damage by fire the trees soon died.

Other roads, such as the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, the Burlington and Missouri River in Nebraska, the Northern Pacific and the St. Paul & Sioux City, set apart a few acres each for experimental forestry about this time, but because the wrong trees were chosen they served merely as an object lesson to the farmers and furnished little wood material. In all these cases the railroads lost their interest in the experiments after a time, and the plantations were abandoned.

The chief trouble at this time, in Mr. Bryant's opinion, seemed to be that many of the experiments were made by sowing the seed, and that there was very little information at hand as to the best species to plant and the best cultural methods.

An early experiment that wasn't abandoned was made by the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis, now part of the St. Louis & San Francisco, between 1879 and 1882 at Farlington, Kan. A whole section of land was planted to trees, most of it to catalpa and allanthus, and the rest to osage orange, white ash, black cherry and black walnut.

The catalpa and osage orange proved to be the only species adapted to the site. The catalpa proved valuable as a source of poles and fence posts, but no trees have grown sufficiently to make cross ties, although they are thirty years old.

Experiments were made in the East as early as 1883, when the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg decided to utilize the right-of-way in Indiana for forestry purposes, and 200,000 catalpa trees were planted. Though of an inferior species the trees grew for a time, but the plantation proved a failure because of injuries from telegraph linemen, storms and fire.

After that there was a cessation of forestry experiments, and they were not resumed until it became apparent at the beginning of this century that wooden cross ties were steadily increasing in price, and the railroads discovered that by using the cultural methods now available they could produce much wood material for their purposes.

Mr Bryant finds that the railroads are still failing to profit by all the present day knowledge on forestry subjects, and that with few exceptions the only species of trees planted have been catalpa and black walnut. Catalpa requires a rich, moist, well drained soil, which the railroads cannot always furnish, while black walnut is subject to serious insect attacks.

Since 1900 the Big Four, Boston & Maine, Boston & Albany, Illinois Central, Norfolk & Western, Louisville & Nashville and Michigan Central have set out millions of catalpa plants, while the Louisville & Nashville also set out about 200 acres of black locust. The Pennsylvania planted black locust until last year, when red bak, larch, pine oak and chestnut plants were set out.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe has recently made an extensive study of modern forestry, and as a result has begun a large plantation in San Diego county, Cal., where it is expected there will some day be produced all the cross ties needed by the road. At present the road uses 3,000,000 ties annually, but within eighteen years the plantation will produce 7,000,000 ties a year if the plans work.

The eucalyptus is the tree selected by the Santa Fe. It grows rapidly and produces hard wood, which, by treatment, may be made durable in contact with the earth. This tree is not likely to be a success outside of the Southwest, as it is killed at a temperature below 20 degrees Fahrenheit.

Mr. Bryant believes that there is an especially good opportunity for railroads to engage in profitable forestry in the sprout forest regions of New England, where large areas of chestnut and oak coppice can be bought at a reasonable price. The chestnut sprout forests will produce ties in thirty-five years, and each successive crop is secured without planting, since sprouts spring from the stump after cutting. The Yale forestry expert also believes that money invested in cutover lands in the loblolly and longleaf pine and the hardwood regions of the South will be well spent.

JUDGE THREATENED.

Italian Prisoner Calls on the Mafia as He is Sentenced.

New York, July 27.—Threats of death at the hands of the Mafia were made to Judge Rosalsky in court today just after he had announced sentence on an Italian.

"The Mafia will get you for this," shouted the enraged man. Then turning to some of his friends in the court room he cried:

"He has given me ten years, take care of him for me."

The prisoner on whom the judge imposed a penalty of not less than nine years and three months, and not more than ten years in prison, was Cosmo Riccobona. He pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to rob a bank messenger of $43,000.

YACHT VALMORE IS LEADING IN RACE.

Glen Haven, Mich., July 27.—The yacht Valmore, apparently has a commanding lead in the three hundred and twenty-mile race from Chicago to Mackinac Island. This yacht passed Sleeping Bear Point at 6:30 o'clock last night with none of the other contestants in sight. It was well after daybreak today when the first of the pursuing fleet appeared off the point. She was made out to be the schooner Hawthorne, twelve and one-half hours behind the leader. An hour later, at 8 a. m. the Illinois passed and at 9 a. m. the Vencedor followed. Since Saturday afternoon the lake has been almost in a dead calm but the breeze freshened this morning.

FURTHER EVIDENCE IN GOULD CONSPIRACY.

New York, July 27.—Further evidence was taken by Assistant District Attorney Hart today concerning the alleged conspiracy to secure false evidence to be used against Frank J. Gould in the divorce proceedings brought by Mrs. Gould. The new witness was Blanche Hale, a hair dresser in the Hotel Lincoln. She was questioned at great length in the district attorney's office, after which Mr. Hart said that Miss Hale had asserted that she had been approached with a proposition to prepare false evidence against Mr. Gould.

MAY HAVE REAL RACE

Wade's "Doman" Will be Matched Against Jones' "Buster."

O'Dells' "Ona" Shows the Way to Wyman's "Mollie."

Interest in motor boat racing on the St. Louis river is approaching white heat between the different owners of speed craft.

A week ago Sunday Frank Wade's "Doman" was reported to have lost to Guy Warren's "Buster," in a race to Fond du Lac and back to the Branch Boat club. Mr. Wade denies this, claiming that no real race was run. He says that it may have appeared like a race from the boat club, but, in reality, there was no race at all. According to Mr. Wade the "Doman" and the "Buster" started up the river together, but the owner of the "Buster" seeing that he had no show with the larger boat, turned back. When Wade noticed that the "Buster" was no longer in the race, he also returned to the Branch, arriving there a few lengths behind the "Buster," thus giving the idea to the spectators on the porch that the "Doman" had been outstripped.

Much chaffing passed between the owners of the two boats during the week, the "Buster" claiming that it had put it over the "Doman" in a regular race. This is said to have caused Mr. Wade to make the remark that the boat of the Sterling engines, the "Buster," at a pinch could not make over fifteen miles an hour. A race was arranged for yesterday, but, it was not pulled off, as the "Buster" could not run, something, it is claimed, being wrong with her engine.

There was one race pulled off, however, between R. B. O'Dell's "Ono" and Prescott Wyman's "Mollie," in which the "Ona" crossed the line at the finish, two lengths ahead of the "Mollie." The course lay down the river and return, and it was a very close race from start to finish. In a former race with the "Ona" the "Mollie" carried off the honors.

The interest that has been growing rapidly in the motor speeding, bodes well for some regularly appointed races before the close of the season.

PASTOR INSTALLED.

Rev. Gustav Oberg Takes Charge of Swedish-Finnish Church.

Rev. Gustav Oberg was installed yesterday as the first regular pastor had by the Swedish-Finnish Lutheran church, Fifty-third avenue west and Wadena street.

The installation took place at 3 o'clock, and the ceremony was conducted by Dr. John A. Krantz, president of the conference and pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church. He was assisted in the installation exercises by Rev. J. A. Linner of the Pilgrim Lutheran church of Superior, Rev. J. B. A. Edstrom of the Billings Park Lutheran church, Superior, and Rev. Carl G. Olson of the Swedish Bethany Lutheran church of the West end.

The choirs of the Bethany and Elim churches, under the direction of Dr. P. Olson, furnished special music.

Although the Swedish-Finnish congregation has met for several years it has never before had a pastor of its own. Dr. Krantz has always conducted their services. Lately it has grown so large and able to support itself that a regular pastor was deemed necessary. The church expects to build a parsonage, soon, on three lots that it owns near the site of the church.

WILL REORGANIZE.

Sitting Bull Tribe of Redmen Plan Festivities.

The reorganization and installation of officers of Sitting Bull tribe, No. 25, Red Men, next Friday night, at the Great Eastern hall, will be attended by great festivities.

A large class will be initiated on that evening, among whom will be Clarence B. Miller, George R. Laybourn, S. Adam Bede, Dr. N. L. Linneman, Dr. L. Catterson and E. J. Donahue. Dr. Thomas Reid of Minneapolis, who is the great sachem of Minnesota, will conduct the ceremony and assist in the initiation. The work will be exemplified by the degree team of Ojibway tribe, No. 5.

An elaborate program has been arranged for the entertainment of the visiting braves after the degree work, by J. E. Foubister, Chris Tracy and J. C. Ransbottom, who comprise the committee on arrangements.

It is expected the We-Ke-Ma-Wup tribe, No. 17, will be out in force. The Superior tribe has chartered a boat to carry the braves to the scene of the great pow-wow.

The Improved Order of Red Men is not an insurance order, but one of the oldest fraternal, social and patriotic societies organized in the history of this country. Its origin dates back to before the Revolution, and its ceremonies are based on the traditions and customs of the Indians.

HARDTACK WAS HIS DOWNFALL

James Sweeney Rejected From Army Because of Misfortune.

Hard tack, broken teeth, rejected soldier!

It was a matter of hard luck about that first bite of hard tack. No one had warned the recruit to be careful about this cast iron bit of army rations, so when some one passed the hard tack the famished recruit bit into it with jaws made strong by hunger. Two front incisors snapped off like reeds in a hall storm, but the hard tack remained undented.

Here's where the hard luck of the tale comes in. Today an applicant for the coast artillery service appeared at the local recruiting office. He was James Sweeney, the same man who four years ago damaged his teeth and the beauty of his countenance by trying to make an impression upon the rations served by Uncle Sam. He was rejected because his two teeth were gone.

The examination was almost completed. The man had been in the army before and knew the ropes. His sight was good enough to see the little letters, and there seemed to be no fault with his physical condition.

Then one of the examiners took a look into the mouth of Mr. Sweeney. Two large front teeth were missing. That's enough to reject a man from the army.

"Been in a fight, eh?" asked the sergeant. But Mr. Sweeney hadn't been in any fight. The only fight he had been in was a desperate effort to combat starvation by breaking teeth.

And so while James Sweeney has sacrificed his two incisors by devotion to his country and to his country's rations, he now finds that this very devotion has been the means of his undoing and that today, after losing two teeth in an engagement with army food, he is declared unfit for duty.

Such is the sad tale of the mess room. Hard tack is the cause of all the trouble, and demon rum has no part in the fall of James.

STUDIES CONCRETE

Building Inspector Kielly Gets Pointers in Chicago Construction.

Finds Concrete is Coming Into Use More Every Year.

Building Inspector S. M. Kielley has returned from Chicago, where he has been making a study of concrete and concrete work, so as to be better able to fulfill his duties in regard to construction work of this kind in Duluth. He got many valuable pointers in the Windy City, which will be able to put to good use in Duluth.

"Concrete is the coming building material," said Mr. Keilley this morning. "It is coming into more extensive use every year. To begin with, it was largely an experiment, and to a certain extent is still an experiment in many ways, although its value as a building material has been demonstrated beyond all question of a doubt. Improvements and changes are being made right along, however, and new uses for it are constantly coming to light.

"Failure of concrete work nowadays is due to incompetent men in charge. It is positively essential that an honest man who knows his business have charge of the work. If he is careful, and does his work well, there is no reason why the concrete should not do all that is claimed for it. The most common and efficient method now is to reinforce this style of work with steel. This makes a combination hard to beat.

"An important matter, that does not receive the attention it should from some contractors, is the testing of cement. It is very necessary that all the cement used in work of this kind be good. All of it should be tested before being used. There may be two barrels in a shipment of 100 barrels that is of poor quality, and this amount would be sufficient to lessen the life of an entire building, and make portions of it dangerous to the occupants, by weakening a pillar or a part of the walls, perhaps.

"I had an excellent opportunity to watch some big concrete work in Chicago, and picked up a good deal of valuable information that will be of use to me in Duluth, where concrete is coming into more general use every year."

NOT ALWAYS COLD FEET.

Marriage One Excuse for Quitting a Poker Game.

New York Sun: "Sometimes you're liable to imagine that the fellow playing opposite you in a poker game has cold feet when he hasn't," said a man from Cheyenne. "I sat in a four handed game in a hotel room in Denver one night a few years ago. I knew two of the players, but the other was a stranger to all three of us.

"We'd been introduced to him by somebody or other in the lobby of the hotel, and when we said we were going upstairs to play a little draw he asked to be allowed to sit in. He was a guileless sort of a young fellow and was, we understood, the manager of a big wholesale grocery firm in Denver.

"For all of his guilelessness he was some poker player, and he had all of us on the run from the leadoff. He went right out in front and stayed there.

"We hadn't started the game till after midnight, and before we knew it the light of dawn began to dribble in at the windows. By that time the young man who managed the wholesale grocery was into the three of us to the tune of about $800 all told.

"When he saw the daylight creeping in he announced that it was pretty nigh all off so far as he was concerned. But we jollied him out of that idea and so he played on, winning right along. But at 9 o'clock in the morning he gave a look of alarm at his watch, pushed back his chair suddenly and said that he guessed he'd better cash in.

"Entirely without justification all three of us set up the cold feet holler.

"'What's the matter—chilblains?' we asked him sarcastically. 'Feel a draught on your tootsies? It's a wonder you wouldn't see a chiropodist for what ails you! Here it is just the shank of the even—the morning, and you're running off like a—'

"The young fellow gazed at us helplessly, and then he broke out with:

"'Gosh blame it all! I'm going to be married at 11 o'clock this morning—only two hours from now—and I've got to skate home and get into my weddin' togs. haven't I?'

"Which was the truth, as we verified it later. Of course we had to apologize to him for accusing him unwarrantably of being a victim of frigid lower extremities, and I guess he started to keep house with the pat thousand he took away from the three of us.

"On another occasion I felt unjust resentment in my midriff over the desire of a man to quit a poker game when he was wholesale winner, and I was about to suggest the hot water cure for his chilled pedals when I was tipped off as to the situation in the nick of time.

"I got into a little game with a sheriff I knew in Southwestern Colorado, and after we were well under way a big, weather bronzed chap, wearing rather a serious countenance, as it struck me at the time, poked his head in at the door of the sheriff's office, which was inside the jail, where we were playing.

"'Come on in Jeff,' said the sheriff good naturedly. 'Want to slam into this?'

"'Jeff didn't mind if he did, he said, and he disappeared for a minute and returned presently with a sack filled with gold money. He bought a hundred dollars worth of chips, and the cards began to filter his way from the tap of the drum.

"Before an hour was over I was durned sorry the sheriff had invited him to sit in, for he had more than $300 of my pieces of eight, and it didn't look like Jeff knew how to lose at poker any way he or we played the game. He got into the sheriff just as hard as he did into me, and the longer we played the more Jeff accumulated.

"Along toward 2 o'clock in the morning Jeff looked up at the clock and said he reckoned he'd drop out—that he had a few letters to write and such like trifling excuses. I felt like being real rude to Jeff, and I was just about to tell him that 2 o'clock in the morning was a mighty untoward hour for a man to pry himself loose from a game in which he was such a big winner, when my friend the sheriff give me a kick on the leg under the table.

"So I didn't say anything while Jeff cashed. And when Jeff took me by the hand and bade me goodby with a good deal more fervor than the circumstances appeared to call for I wondered a heap just what kind of a proposition Jeff was anyhow. He stuffed his winnings into the bag he had brought into the office with him and then moseyed out.

"'Well,' I said to my friend the sheriff then, 'you took that good and easy, didn't you? I figured that you'd let out one little roar, anyhow, over that fellow's hiking away with so much of your good dough in his gunnysack—not to mention mine—but you didn't seem to—'

"'Steady, there, podner,' said the sheriff, spitting reflectively at the stove. 'Maybe I would 'a' called Jeff down some, but you see I'm a-goin to hang Jeff at 7:30 this mornin', and I reckon he wants to git ready for his little parade across the border.'

"Which was true again. Jeff was hanged on schedule time all right, and I saw him hanged at that. As he swung into the circumambient I couldn't help feeling sort o' guilty for imagining that he'd had cold feet when he pulled out of our game."

HE'S HOPEFUL.

Chicago News: "How's tricks?" asked the station agent, poking his head in at the door of the real estate office. "You seem to be busy."

The real estate agent wheeled around in his chair. "Come in and sit down," he said. "I want to talk to you about those lots of yours."

"You haven't sold any of 'em, have you?" asked the station agent as he lowered himself into a chair. "Don't tell me that. I don't feel able to stand any shock this morning. I'm not feeling well at all."

"You'll feel better after a while," said the real estate agent, smiling confidently. "No, I haven't sold any yet, but it won't be long before I do, if you still want to sell. I tell you things are going to boom here. There's no getting away from it. You can sell if you want to, and of course it's to my interest to keep things moving and get my commissions, but I think it would pay you to hang on to those lots for a while longer."

"I expect to," said the station agent.

"Don't you worry about not being able to sell 'em," said the real estate man. "You'll sell 'em all right if you want to. They'll be fighting for a chance to buy 'em before the season's over. Mark my words."

"Give me a pencil and a piece of paper and I'll write 'em down, so's there won't be any mistake about it," said the station agent.

"You don't believe it, but you'll see. All you've got to do is to hold on."

"I know it. I've done it so far."

"I tell you this is going to be the suburb of Chicago. We've got advantages that no other suburb has. There isn't a healthier spot in the whole country and——"

"What are you giving me all that for?" asked the station agent. "I'm not an intending purchaser. You told me about the advantages when you stuck me on the lots."

"'Stuck' is a harsh word," said the real estate man. "You'll apologize for using it before many months have gone by."

"I'll come to you with tears of gratitude in my eyes, I suppose."

"The advantages I was speaking of are going to be recognized now," said the real estate man. "They're being recognized already. It's a cinch. If you'd use your eyes and your natural intelligence a little I wouldn't have to tell you that. Do you hear those hammers going?"

"I hear somebody pounding, yes," said the station agent.

"You won't hear anything else in a few weeks," said the real estate man, "except the clink of trowels. That pounding you hear is Jim Hibbert and he's putting up a cottage on a lot in the Henderson block. He started on it this morning. Do you know what this is?" The real estate man held up a slip of pink paper.

"It looks like a check," said the station agent.

"And the boy guessed right the very first time," said the real estate man. "A check is what it is. A check for $50 for a lot up by Parker's place from a Chicago party, and in his letter he says he's going to build. When there is building that far out you can guess what it is going to be where your property is. I only had that man out for about an hour last Saturday, and here's what comes of it."

"Fine!" said the station agent.

"It's just one of the indications," said the real estate man. "I had another fellow out on Monday who I think is going to buy if he can hustle up enough cash down. I made him a proposition for the whole block of 19. There it is, on the map. Get up and look at it. It wouldn't surprise me a bit if we closed the deal. Do you know what I was working on when you came in? It was a lease for the Tapron residence. I've rented it for a year, and the man is going to bring his family down here next week. I shouldn't wonder if you got his furniture tomorrow."

"Great!" said the station agent. "But I guess I'll see if you can find me a buyer, and I'll be satisfied not to make any advances in the price."

"You're foolish," said the real estate man.

THE CORNSTALK FIDDLE.

New York Sun: "I suppose, my dear children," said Uncle Hiram, "that there must be millions of young folks, just like you, brought up in big cities, who never so much as heard of a cornstalk fiddle, to say nothing of having had the pleasure of making one.

"The cornstalk, my dears, you know grows in joints, like bamboo; you've never been in China, but you've seen bamboo in furniture, and so you know. The cornstalk grows in joints, each joint, oh, maybe a foot long; and each joint is round all around except on one side, where, instead of being rounded out, it is depressed, making on that side along the whole length of the joint a depression that is like a little shallow trough in the joint.

"And of course if there is a trough like that in the stalk, it must have on each side of it edges where it joins the rounded body of the stalk, and it was by working at these edges that we were able to make the fiddle strings. You remember the bamboo has at the ends of each joint a hard sort of ring running around it, a part of the wood. Well, the cornstalk is built just the same way; and in making a cornstalk fiddle we'd just run the point of a knife blade through the cornstalk just under the top of that sticky-up edge, doing the same on each side of the trough, and slit it along so from end to end under each edge, and those hard rings around the ends would keep the knife from slitting through there and also hold the ends there tight.

"Then when we had the strings all made and ready like that, we'd raise them up so that they would be clear of the rest of the stalk and look like really and truly strings, in this way. We would take two little twigs, or cut two pieces that would do out of a little piece of stick, and we'd raise up the two fiddle strings at the middle of their length and put the two little sticks across through there, between the stalk and the strings, and then we'd work one of those little sticks along under the strings out as far as we could toward one end of the joint, and the other one in the same way toward the other, and then there we had the strings raised up almost the whole length of the joint, and there was the cornstalk fiddle, all complete. And then we'd make a bow for it in just the same way, and then we'd play on it.

"Many's the cornstalk fiddle I've made in that way. I can't say that the cornstalk fiddle is a very musical instrument, but it's great fun to make them.

"And you children never even heard of one! what a pity! Why, I used to get almost as much fun out of making cornstalk fiddles as I did making jack o' lanterns out of pumpkins or siphons out of pumpkin vines. Some day, if you are good, children, I will tell you about the pumpkin vine siphon."

DIET FOR SLEEPLESSNESS.

London Globe: Dr. William Stevens says that insomnia is not a disease itself, but the effect of an unhealthy condition of the body or mind. When the cause is removed the insomnia may be expected to disappear.

Every physician has had stubborn cases of it which would not yield to any treatment and for which a change of air or of scene became necessary. But such cases as these should not occur, and do occur only when the sufferer has neglected precautions that should have been taken when the trouble first made itself manifest.

Insomnia results from causes which can be removed if attended to in season. The most common cause is found in the digestive organs. Either unsuitable food, causing insomnia as a feature of indigestion, or insufficient food, causing the patient to be kept awake by hunger.

There are few things which can be universally recommended as diet for sleeplessness, since what will agree with one man will disagree with another. But two things that may almost always be recommended are lettuce or celery.
